mouth of James thy Spodler: That of pou loke wyfgeuen hym. Heare my petition for this thy pryncer sake.

Let my prayer ascende lucke hym to thy sight like incense. Let thy from the frowe of thy maledyge, that thy wepe be with me, and labour with me, þe I may knowe what is acceptable in thy sight. Oh lerne me goodnes, nurture, and knowlege, for I beleue thy commaunde-mentes. Thou art good and gracious, instruct me in thyne ope-nances. Let thyne herte desire ascende in to thy presence. Goue me vnderstondynge accordynge to thy worde. Oh geue me vnderstoddynge, and I shall kepe thy lawes, for I shall kepe it with all myne herte. Shewe me thy wayes O Lorde, & teache me thy pathes. I lade me in to thy trouth and lerne me, for thou art the God of my helth.

Psalm 138. And on the do I depende alway. Heare now my voyce O Lorde with which I haue cryed vnto the. Goue mercy vpon me, and graciously heare me for Iesus Christus sake oure Lorde, which lyueth and cryg-

Unto the most victorious Prince our most gracious soueraigne Lord, King Henry the hynde of Englonde and of Fraunce, lord of Irelande, &c.

Defender of the Fayth, and Under God the chiefe and supreme heade of the Church of Englonde,

¶ The right a iust administracion of the lawes that God gaue vnto Moyses and vnto Josua: the testimonie of sayntes that God gaue of Dauid: the plenteous aboundaunt of wisdom that God gaue vnto Salomon: the lucke and prosperous age with the multiplicacion of lide whiche God gaue vnto a byrdam and Sara his wyfe, be graue vnto you most gracious Prince, with your dearell self wyfe, and most vertuous Princesse, Quene Anne, Amen.

Catharine beinge byshoppe of that yere, lyke a blynde prophete (not vnderstandyng what he sayd) propheticke, that it was better to put Christ vnto death, than that all the people shoulde precepte: he merr-nyng, that Christ was an heretike, a deceaue of the people, & a destroyer of the lawe, and that it was better therfore to put Christ vnto death, than to suffice hym for to lync, and to deceaue the people. as where in very dede Christ was the true prophete, the true Messias, and the onely true Sauiour of the worlde, sent of his heavenly father to suffice the moche small, moche thankfull, and most necessary death for our redemption: accordyng to þe mea-nyng of the prophete truly vnderstonde.

¶ Then after the same maner þe blynde byshoppe of Rome, (that blynde Basileus I saye) not vnderstandyng what he doo, gaue vnto your grace this tytle: Defendour of the fayth, onely because your highnes sufficed your byshoppes to vnto Gods word the rote of sayth, and to predicate the louers and mynistrars of þe same, where in very dede the blynde byshoppe (though he knewe not what he doo) propheticke, that by the righteous administracion and conseruatiue diligence of your grace, the sayth shoulde so be defendeb, that Goda word be the mother of sayth with the frutes therof, shoulde haue his free coursse thowhe out all Christendome, but specially in your realme.

¶ Your highnesse now of your princely benignite with pardon me to compare these two byshoppes (I meane byshoppe Cathas and the byshoppe of Rome) & these prophetes together, I doubt not but we shal fynde them agree lyke byrdam, though the one be a Jewe and the other a countrefayte Christian. First, Cathas propheticke that it was better to put Christ vnto death, than that the people shoulde precepte. The byshoppe of Rome also, not knowyng what he propheticke, gaue your grace this tytle: Defendour of the fayth. The truty of both these prophete-as is of the holy goost (as was Basileus propheticke) though they that make the, knewe not what they sayd. The truty of Cathas propheticke is, þe true grace in very dede saue for manne saluacion, that Christ by his death shoulde ouercome death, and redemme vs. And the truty of our Basileus propheticke is, þe true grace in very dede shoulde defende the fayth, for euen the true sayth of Christ, no byemes, no fables, no heretike, no papistall enuencions, but the incorrupte sayth of Gods most holy word, which to be sayth payed by the goodness of God, and in reuerence your grace your purpose your highnes with your most honorable counsell, applyeth all his study and endeuour.

¶ These two blynde byshoppes now agree in þe vnderstondyng of these prophetes: for Cathas taketh Christ for an heretike, whiche Basileus taketh the word of Christ for heretike. Cathas wyllet it to be a good dede to put Christ vnto death, that he shulde not deceaue the people. Our Saluam calleth bi feynynge of the fawth, the suppersing, leppynge secrete, and buyynge of the woide of fawth: lest the lyght chere of Gualde breke his darkness: lest his ome delectaciō a delectaciō, his ome laudaciō and constituciō, his ome doctore and inuenciō shulde come to none effecte: lest his intollerable craciōs and blasphemaciōs shulde lese thei Chyften strengthe: lest it shulde be knowne what a thyle and muttherer he is in the cause of Chyft, and howe heynous a traytoure to God and man in befraynyng all Chyften bygges a pyppes of thei due obediēce: lest he pynte gioues his secret shulde haue eyes in the woide of God, at the last to spee out his crafti counsailes and wyllynge and lest men shulde se, his fauour he and his false spoliēs haue deceaue all Chyftenhome, specially poure noble realme of Englonde.

Thus our grace seyth howe hartely the Fynglish byshoppe and oure Saluam agree together, not onely in mynet and outwarde apperaunce but as the one per secute the lospe Irlus in his ome persone, so doth the other persecute his woide and rescheth his holy ordynaunce in the ouertake of his anoynted bygges. For so make nothe as the woide of God is the onely treuth that bypuctly awoke all lyes, and discoloueth all suglynge and dissente, therfore in oure Saluam of Rome so laith that the scripture shulde be knowe in the mothe tonge: lest yf skagen and pyppes (specially aboute all other) were excepted therin, they shulde reclame and chalenge agayne thei due auctoryte, which he falsely hath buyrd so many peres, and so to the hym thowre: and lest the people beyng caught by the woide of God, shulde fall from yf false fownd obediēce of hym and his beguiled Apostles, unto the true obediēce commaunded by Gods ome mouth: as namely, to obey thei pyppes, to obey father and mother. And not to slepe ower fawth and mother to hely to enter in to his paynted religiō, as his pyppes teach: for he knoweth well enough, that yf the cleare spone of Gods woide come once to the heate of the daye, it shal byrue a waye all the foule myt of his bewyld doctrine. Therfore wote it moze to the mayntenance of Antichythen bygghome, that the woide were still in ignorance and byndnes, and that the scripture shulde neuer come to light. For the scripture (both in the olde testamēt and in the new) declareth most aboudauntly that the office, auctoryte and pouer geuen of God vnto bygges / is in earth aboute all other psones: let them call thei selues shopes, Cardynalles, or what so eue they will, the woide of god declareth them (per and commaundeth them) vnder payne of dampnaciō to be obediēt vnto the temporell swerde: As in the olde Testamēt all the papaphytes, phryses and Leuites were. And in the new Testamēt Chyft & his Apostles both were obediēt them selues, and taught obediēce of all men vnto thei pyppes and temporell rulces: which here vnto be in the woide present the persone of God, and are colled Goddres in the scripture, because of the excellēcy of thei pyppes. And though there were in mo auctoryties but the same, to poure the preminence of the temporell swerde, yet by this the scripture declareth plainly, that as there is mothyng aboute God, so in there no man aboue the bygge in his realme but that he onely vnder God in the chiefe heade of all the congregaciō and church of the same. And hit token that this is true, there hath ben of olde antiquite (and is yet vnto this daye) a lounge ceremonye used in your realme of Englonde, yf whā your graces subiectes coe to your letters, or begynne to talke or come of your highnes, they moue thei benedictes for a signe a token of cruceinte vnto your grace, as to thei most honerighe lorde a heade vnder God, which thyng no man wist to do to say byshoppe, whetly yf oure vnderstandyng were nat bludelyd) we myght coudly perceiue, that euen they nature teacheth in the same, that scripture remaundeth vs: and that lyke as it is agaynst Gods woide that a bygge shulde not be the chiefe heade of his people, euen so it saye as it agaynst hynde that he shulde haue any other heade aboute hym vnder God.

And that no prell nor byshoppe is exempte (nor can be lawfully) from the obediēce of his pyppes, the scripture is full both of strage commaundementes, a pparciēs of the

of the holpest man. Aaron was obedient unto Moses. and cal led hym his loyde, though he was his owne brother. Elias and Idineas were brider the obediēce of Jolias. & Carbon the prophete fell bowne to the ground before kyngs Joram. he had his pyntee in such reverence. He made not the kyng for in hisse bla fute as the bishoppe of Rome maketh Emperours to be. Herewith comynge he spake not to rebuke hym, and that tpyght sharply whan he fell from the woode of God to a bulter and minnlaughte. For he was not afrayed to reprove hym of his sin ne, no more than Helias the prophete stode in fraie to save into kyng Achab. & It is thou and thy fathers house that trouble Israel, because ye have spoken & commanedementes of the Lord, and walke after Baal. And as Johan Baptiste spake unto kyngs Herode: It is not lawful for the to take thy brothers wyfe. But to our purpose I passe over unmemorable one enynica bary of the olde Testament and of the new, for feare lest I be to rebous unto your grace. And in all goyle regiments of olde tyme the kyngs and tpyvall iudge was obeyed of every man, and was alwaye under God the chile and suppreme heade of the whole congregeyon, and depoted euen prynces whan he sawe on beg. at cause, as Salomon spake unto Achab. Who coude than stande agaynst the goyle obediēce of his pryncer, except he wolde be at dysauance with God and all his holy ordynamentes. that were to li acquainted with the holy scripture, which so earnestly comendeth vnto every one of vs the auctorite and power geuen of God vnto kynges and temporal rulers. And before both Moses a soverayn lord the Israelites to speake God. so moche as on euell woide agaynst the pyntee of p people, moche lesse than to dote beye hym, or to withstande hym. And not leene the prophete and Barne alio Jerem. exhorte the people in captivite, to praye for the pryncerous wellfare of the kyng of Babylon, and to obey hym, though he was an infidell. In the new Testament Barac wha ouerhauleth Chyrls byng yett a Lord of us kynges a pryncer sheweth his duty. obediēce ne payenge the tribute to oure enmy, as byd he not a miracle there in puttinge the peas of money in the slythes mouth (that peter myght paye the custome therewith) and all to stablyshe the obediēce due vnto prynces. And not Joseph and Mary the mother of our sauour Chyrls departe fro Marye vnto Bethleem, to foretome home, to shewe the pyntee obediēce to payenge the taxe to the pryncer. And to albe not our sauours be borne in the same obediēce. And not Pauls pronounce hym to obeye God hym selfe, that cōfesseth the auctorite of his pryncer. And (so be thynt) the Apostle Peter bathe not enly stablyshe the obediēce vnto prynces and temporal rulers of a statemeth playnly the kyngs (and no bishoppes) to be the chile heade. Rememberable places mo are ther in scripture, which bynde vs to the obediēce of oure prynces, and declare vnto vs, that no man can nor can be lawfully excepte from the same: but that all the mynistrs of Gobbes to whome we dybe the tpyvall sworde: a pryncer onely a oure obediēce vnto God a his woide.

And where as with hys vnto your grace tyme byd thys his heade tnta p imperiall crowne of your hyghnes (as he doth yett with othes noble prynces mo) that leech he of Asat the authoure of pyntee, and therein both he both agaynst the doctrine a also agaynst p enmy of Chyrls: whiche because his hyngdome was none of this woide, medled with no temporal matres, as it is exprest both by his woide and by pte: Luc. xii. & Math. xxvi. Joh. vi. Joh. viii. where he p hys speake to fe, nyspe: a he p both eeres to heare, in pte hys, p Chyrls abymynistracion was nolyng tpyvall, but playne spiritual, as he hym selfe admyteth a powereth in the fourth chapter of Isaym Luke out of the prophete Esay: where all blyssyppes and pteu in pte, howe farr (they) prynces and lordyngs cōtendeth, and to be in theyr office conllysteth, namely in prechynge the Gospel. &c.

Wherof (most gracious pryncer) there is no tonge I thynke, that can fully expre and declare the intolceable iniurie, which haue bene done vnto God, to al prynces and to the remynaltes of all chyrls conlmes, sence they which shulde be only the mynistrs of God, to be, became lordes of the woide, and thys pte &c.

Whiche Trespasse ouer his pestilent ppyllyng of pater pene out of poure realme: has dealynge alwaie of poure money for pardons: benefices and benefices: haue decaied of poure subiectes soules with his detestable duetyenes and lices of his falsse religion: his blouthebyng of so many of your graces people, for doctes of the scripture, whiche heere wolde not be greibed (see also that out of enuicousness) to call to remedyaunce, who obstarat and disordred, how presumptuous a ruddorne that Antychrist made the byshoppes of poure realme agayn your graces noble pcedecourses in tynes past, as it is manifest in y Cronicles: I trauel betely there be no suche note within poure realme as yett be. In then remembre thei wordes of scripture: presumptuousnes goeth before destruccion, as after a prouoc stomache thete foloweth a fall.

What is now the cause of all theie vntollecable and namore to be suffred abhominacione: I coulde euen the ignorance of the scripture of God. For hee had it els ben possibill, that such blunders shulde haue come in to y worlde, had not y lychte of Gods word bene expecterid: as coulde men (I saie) haue bene in fauce from the true scripture of God, and from the due obediencie of theyr pyccer, had not the late of God bene done thus by, bepylled, cast asyde, and put out of remembraunce: I say as was afore the tyme of that noble hyngre. Whiche, and as it hath bene also amonge the vnto poure graces tyme: by whose most syghelous administracion (choyse) the mercifull goodness of God he is now founde agayne, & as it was in the dayes of that most heetuous hyngre. Whiche God praied be the father, the sonne, and the holy goost worlde without ende, whiche so excellently hath cathechized poure bynce by vert with such firmenes to his honoure, and to the welch of poure louing subiectes, that I make syghelously (by rust occasiōs in poure persone) compare poure hyngre vnto that noble and gracious hyngre, y lantime of lychte amonge pyccers, that forrest protectours and defenders of the labours of God: whiche conuinceth truely (as pater grace doth) that the late of God shulde be redde and taught vnto all y people: set the prestes to theyr office in the worde of god: destroyed Idolatry and falsse ydols: put downe all euell customes and abuses: set up the true honoure of God: applyed all his iudges and endeuored to the syghelous administracion of the most incorrupt late of God, &c. And what felicity was amonge y people of Ierusalem in his dayes: And what prosperouse health both of soule & body foloweth the lyke ministracion in poure hyngre, for begynne now (pased be God) to haue experyence. For as falsse doctrine is the originall cause of all euell plagges and destruccion, so is y true executyng of the late of God the preaching of the same, the mother of all goodly preseruaunce. It be onely worde of god (I saie) is

Seinge then that the scripture of God teacheth vs euery thinge sufficient, both what we ought to be, and what we ought to leaue vnder: whome we are bound to obey, and whome we shulde not obey: the (I saie) causeth all preseruaunce, and setteth euery thinge in frame: and where it is caught and knowen, it lychteth all darknesses, casteth all fowle byetes, leaueh no poore man vnhelped, suffreth nothyng amysse and in men, leaueh no pyccer be disobeyed, permitteh no licence to be practised: but resolutely all thynges, amideh that is amysse, and setteth euery thinge in orde. Whyles Couerdale Unto the Christen reader.

Consideringe how excellent knowledge and learninge a Interpreter of scripture oughte to haue in the congue, and ponderinge also myn owne insufficiencye therein, I bold weake I am to performe þe office of a translatoure, I was the more lothe to meke with this worke. Notwithstandyng when I cōsidered how greates pryte it was that we shulde wante it so longe, & called to myn enemyngiaunce: I abhorred of them, which were not onely of type knowledge, but wolde also with all theyr hertes haue performed þe they beganne, if they had not had emprouement: I combede synge (I saye) that by reason of theyr aduersite it coulde not so soone haue bene brought to an ende, as ouer most pious naciōs wolde sayne haue had it: the se and othe reasonable causes considered, I was the more bold to take it in hande. And to helpe me hereyn, I haue had sondrye translatiōns, not onely in lityn, but also of the Iouche Interpreters: whome because of theyr synnguler gyfte, I pccially diligence in the Bible I haue ben the more glad to folowe for the most parte, accordyng to I was requyred. But to save the trouth before God, it was neither my laboure neceßsarye, to haue this worke put in my hande: neythelies it geue me þe othe naciōs shulde be more plementyly pccouped for with þe scripture in theyr mother congue, then we: therefore when I was instantly requyred, though I coulde not do so well as I wolde, I thought it yet my dewtye to do my best, and that with a good will.

Wher as some men thynke now þe many translatiōns make dylfion in þe fowth and in the people of God, þe is not so: for it was neuer better with the congregacion of god, then when eury church almost had þe Bible of a sondrye translatiōn. Amonge the Grekes had not Iugen a speciall translatiōn? Had not Iulianus our pcculpar, a Iherospe Chrysostom? Betwix the frenche Interpreters, is there not the translatiōn of I guilla, of Theobotto, of Symachus, and of sondrye othe? I gayne amonge the I lityn men, thou findest þe eury one almost a speciall a sondrye translatiōn: for in so much as eury byshoppe had the knowledge of þe congue, he gaue his diligence to haue the Bible of his a Ione translatiōn. The deuourous, as Iulienus, Cyriacus, & Ircullian, &c. Iherome, &c. Iugustine, Iplatus &c. &c. Antioch: byon by Ite places of the scripture, we be not Ite oill alphas.

¶ Herefor oughte it not to be taken as enel, þe fowth men as haue imbecillitye now in oure thynge, excepte them selues in þe congue, & geue their diligence to translate our of one language in to another, we ought rather to geue god þe the n. kee those, which shoulde his Ipyte steech by men mynde, to to errate them selues therein. wolde god it had neuer bene left of after þe tyme of Iugustine, then shulde we neuer haue come in to such blindness & ignorance, in to such exortacion de lityng. For as soone as the Bible was cast asyde, & nomore due in excepte, then became eury one of his owne harte to Ipyte what so euer came in to his payne and þe seemed to be good in his owne eyes: and so geue þe deuourous of men traditiōn. And this same enel cause þe we haue had to many pcces, which I shoulde not me open of þe scripture of the Bible: a though the same tyme Ipleget it, yet was it done so forer out of reason a so Ipyde from þe purpose, that a man maye well pccause, how that theyr neuer sawe the original.

¶ Wherefor then þe this diligence excepte of Icanlatyng doth so much good a Iccreth in othe languages, wher shulde it do enel in eurye? Iccreth lyke as all naciōs in þe byueltie of heache in Ipc knowe our God in the byte of Iath, and be one in Ioue: men so maye by Ite translatiōns understande one another, & that in the head & Iccreth of oure most blessed faith, though theyr Iccreth by Ite Ite. Icherfor me thynke we haue greates occasion to geue thanks vnto God, that he hath opened vnto his church the gyfte of Iccreth: & of Iccreth: and that there be now at this tyme so many, wherby with Iccreth diligence and Iccreth in Iccreth set forth this speciall translation, not as a checker, nor as a reprouer, or despyser of other mens translations (so) amonge many as yet I haue founde none without occasione of grate thankesgeuyng to god) but to wip a saythfull haue I folowed myne interpreters, as that vnder correction. And though I haue sayled eny where (as there is no man but he myght in some thyng) I haue shoul conseyer all to þe best without eny percurse iudgment. There is no man lyuyng þe can se all thynges. ne ther hath god geuen eny man to knowe euery thyng. And yeth more cleary then another, one hath more vnderstandyng then another, soe can better a thyng better then another, but none ought to censure, or despyse another. He that can be better then another, shoulde not let him be taught þe vnderstandeth lesse: per he that hath þe more vnderstandyng, ought to remember that the same spyte is not his but Gods, and þe God hath geue it him to teach & enlumine the ignorant. þe thou hast knowlege thereto to wote where eny faute is made, I haue not but thou wilt hye to amende it, þe I haue to open with thy knowledge. wholuer wherem is euery I can per-ceiue by my selfe, or by the infuormacion of other, that I haue sayled (as it is no wonder) I shall now by the helpe of God ouerlode it better & amende it.

Also wit I exhorte the (who so euer thou be þe readest scripture) þe thou synde oughte thereto þe thou vnderstandest not, or that aspreth to be repugnante, geue no remission nee haue iudgment therof: but aspre it to thyne awne ignorantie or, not to the scripture, thyne þe thou vnderstandest it not, or þe hath to me other meanynge, or þe it is happie miste of þe interpreters, or amonge printed. I say ne, it shall greatly helpe þe to vnderstande scripture. þe thou make not onely what is spoken of: witten, but of whome, & vnto whom, with what wordes, at what tyme where, to what intent, with what circumstaunce, consyderinge what goeth before, and what foloweth after. For there be some thynges which are done & myghte, to the intente þe we shoulde do lykelyhede: as whan Abraham bestrich God, as obedient vnto his woide, & bestricheth Lath his kyneman from violent wynges. There be some thynges also which are to be, to the intente þe we shoulde eschue (sch lyke). As whan Dionio perth with Lazarus myste, & cometh him to be slayne. Therfore (I saye) whan thou readest scripture, be myse: & cumspere as whan thou comest to such season ge manner of speakeinge & backe & fencen, to such pectible & similitude, so sch be cause of bylonas & ase hys (com thy vnderstandyng, comper them vnto God or to the gyfte of his holy spyte in the in þe are better leard then thou.

As for the commendacion of Gods holy scripture, I wolde saye magnifye it as it is worthy, but I am farte busynesse thereto. Therefore I thoughte it better for me to hylde my tongue, then to be to wode to puple or comende it: exhortyng þe (most beate reader) to loue it, so to cleue vnto it, so to folowe it in thy dayly con-uersacion þe other men seynge thy good woide: & the frutes of þe holy good in the, make prayse the father of hemm, & geue hym woide a good rejoyce: so to lere a lere the laur of God, & to leue a vertuous conuersion, is the greatest puple þe thou canst geue vnto his doctryne.

But as touchyng the euell rejoyce and dyspasse that the good woide of God hath by the conuersion & euill conuersion of some, þe may be at it and pectible at out wardly with they mouchen, I exhorte þe (most beate reader) let not þe offend the myse withyng the wynde to the lout of þe rectly, neyther moue þe to be pectible in lyke

[illegible]

In the first book of Spenser (called Genetrix) you may get some notion of the almighty power of god in creating all of naught, his infinite topdom in ordering the same, his righteousness in punishing & punishing, his love & fatherly mercy in comforting the righteous with his women &c.

In the former book (called Exodus) we see the mighty arm of god, to help:
 -ungrace has people from in grece bondage out of Egypt, and what power from be maketh for them in the wilderness, he to teacheth them in with his wholesome wayes and how to the abstracte was order and set by.

In the typewriter (called América) he declared what sacrifices the prices of cigarettes had, and what the office administration was.

In the fourth booke called fourmerie he declared how the people are numbered and mustred, how the captaynes are chosen after s^r rydes a kyndred, how they believe forth to s^r battail, how they pitch the my tentes, a how they beake up.

(The fifth book, called Zechariah's, says: "We know that you are now beginning to break forth the labor of God into y^e people, & purify them in remembrance againe of all the wonders & benedictions that God hath shewed for them; and e-^{ve} now shall they come selfe to knowe y^e Lord their God, to cleave out a heart, to purifie their eyes, and to bearken unto his voice."

To the reader.

After the death of Moses both Josue byrge the people in a the lide of promes where God doth wondrous things for his people by Josue, which distributeth þe tobe unto them, into euery tyepe theyr possession. But in theyr wealth they forget the goodness of God, so that oft tynes he gaue the ouer to a the hande of theyr ene myce. Hewethyles when so once they called faithfully vpon him, and conuerted, he deliueced them agayne, as the booke of Judges declareth.

In the booke of the Iynges, is descrybed the regiment of good and euill kynges, and haw the decaye of all nacions cometh by euill kynges. For in Jeroboam thou seest what impietie, what ydolatre & such like abhominacion foloweth, whi the kyng is a mapater of false doctrine, so causeth the people to fynde agaynst God, which fallinge a waie from Gods waye, increased safere amonge them, that it was the cause of all theyr sorowe and misery, & the very occasion why Israel first and then Iuda, were carryed awaye in a captiuite. Agayne, in Jothaphat, in Ose-chias and in Josias thou seest the nature of a vertuous kyng. He putteth doone the houses of ydolatre, seyth that his prestes teach nathing but þe lawe of God, & nameth his lawe to go with thia, and to te that they teach the people. In these kynges (I saye) thou seest the choyce of a true defence of þe earth, for he spareth neither cost nor labour, to mainteyn the lynes of God, to seke the welch & prosperi-tye of his people, and to eate out the wicked. And where such a pyncer is, thou seest a-gayne how God defendeth him and his people, though he haue neuer for many ene-myes. Thus wente it with the tye olde tyme, and euen after þe same maner goeth it now with vs: God be prayed therfore, to graunte vs of his fatherly mercy, that we be not with unskillfull where he now geueth vs a Jothaphat, an Osechias, yee a very Josias, he sende vs a Jotham, a Jeroboam, an Achab.

In the two last booke of Esdras & in Esther thou seest the deliuerance of the people, which though they were but fewe, yet is it but as all a speciall choyce, for so much as God is not forgetfull of his promes, but byrgeth them not of captiuite, accordyng as he had tolde them before.

In the booke of Job we lerne a myte and patience, in that God not onely pun-nyeth the wicked, but pouerth a tye the iust and righteous (hababell there is no man innocent in his sight) by dyueltic troubles in this lyfe, declaringe theyr, þe they are not his ballastre, but his deare lammes, and that he saueh them.

In the psalmes we lerne haw to resorte onely vnto God in all oure troubles, to seke helpe at him, to call aayly vpon him, to sake oute mynbes by pacience, & haw ought in prosperite to be thankfull vnto him.

The psalmes and the preacher of Salomon teach vs wisdom, to knowe God, and Gods felues, and the world, and haw waye all thynges are, saue onely to liue vnto God.

As for the doctrine of the prophetes, what is it a, but an earnest exhortacion to resche fynde, & to turne vnto God, a saythfull pmaner of the iarey so pardon of God, vnto all them þe come but of him, and a threatenynge of his wrath to the vngod-ly, sayynge that here and there they prophete all a manifestly of Christ, at þe expulsion of the Iewes, and callynge of the hethen.

Thus much thought I to speake of þe olde Testament, wherein almyghtie God apently sheweth vs his myghty power, his wisdom, his sayynge mercy & righte iust nesse, for the which cause it oughte of aluo man to be abhorred, belypped, as highly regarded, & a though it were an olde scripture, & nothing belied vnto vs, or þe now were to be refused. For it is Gods true scripture, a testimony, which the xpe Jesus commendeth the Iewes to seatch, what a cher belcomyng in the scripture, belueth not Christ, and who sa refused it, refused God also.

The New Testament or Gospell, is a manifest and cleare testimony of Christ how God performeth his oath and promes made in the olde Testament, haw the Iewes declared and included in the Olde, and the Olde fulfilled and decayed in

A prologe.

Nowe wher as the most famous interpreters of all geue sombyre iudgements of the retye (sofor as it is done by s^r phere of knowledge in the holy godd) me the p^riee noman shulde be offendd therat, for they referte theyr douges in mekenes to the spere of traueth in the congeyayon of gods true I am, that thre cometh moze knowledge and vnderstandenge of the scripture by theyr (sombe translations, then by all the gloffa of oure sophistrell doctours. For that one interpretyth somthinge obscurely in one place, the same translateth another (or els he him selfe) moze maner felly by a maye playn & vobable of the same meaning in another place. Be not thou offendd therfor (good reader) though one call d^r scybe, & not another calleth a lator: or elden, that another calleth father & mother: or exptauance, that another calleth penance or a meriment. For yf thou be not deceaued by mens tradicions, thou shalt fynde no moze d^r puerile betwene these termes then betwene foure pms and a groat. And this manner haue I v^ried in my translation, calling it in some place penance, that is in another place I call exptauance, and that nocontly because the interpreters haue done so before me, but that the aduersaries of the traueth maye se, how that we abhorre not this tooke penance (as they vntuly repute of be) no moze then the interpreters of lator abhorre penitence, when they seade redifcence. Onely ouer heeres desyre vnto God, is. I ha chyn people be not blynd in theyr d^r destination, lest they deleue penance to be oughte oue a beey exptauance, amement, or conserpon vnto God, and to be an vnspured heli creature in Chyl, and to luge acorpyng to his lawe. For the sholl they set in to the olde blasphem of Chyl the blande, and beleue, that theyr the felus are able to make satisfaccion vnto God vnto theyr atme synnes, from the which erroure god of hys mercy and p^retuous goodnes p^retue all his.

Nowe to concluder for so muche a oll the scripture is wyrtten for the doctryne & entemple, it shalbe necessary for the, to take holde vpon it, whyle it is offerd the, &e and wyrtten hande thankfully to receiue it. And though it be not toothyly ministered vnto the in this translation (by reason of my rudnes) yet yf thou be true in thy prayer, God shol not onely sende it the in a better shappe, by the mynistracion of othe that beganne it afors, but shall also moue the heeres of them, which as yet medle not withall, to take it in hande, and so bestowe the grise of theyr vnderstandyng thereon, as well in oure language as othe famous interpreters do in othe languages. And I praye God, that thou do my p^rose ministracion here in. I maye geue them that can do better, some occasion so to do: & wher theyr (most deere reader) in the meane whyle on Gods behalfe, yf thou be a heade, a Judge, or ruler of p^r people, that thou let not the boke of this late departhe out of thy mouth, but exerce thyselfe therein both daye and nyght, and be euer readyng in it as longe as thou lyest: that thou mayest lette to heare the X^r bide thy God, & not to turne afors from the commandement, neithe to the right hande nee to the left: lest thou be a kno/uer of perfonnes in ludg^rment, and lose the raigne of the sheaunges, of the fardres of of the hebdwe, and so p^r cude to come vpon the. But what office to coner thou hast wrote vpon it, and exerce it, to the mainp^renance of peace, to the welth of thy people, defendyng the lawes of God, and the towres thereof, and to the defuccion of the wicked.

yf thou be a p^reachre, and hast the ouersight of the flocke of Chyl, a w^rke and febe Chylles shepe with a good herte, & space to laboure to do them good, like not thyselfe, a detraite of felchly lices, but be vnto p^r flocke an ensample, in p^r word, in churche, in loue, in frendshipp of s^r phere, and be euer readyng, exhortyng, & teachyng in Gods word, that the people of God tyme nor vnto othe doctrynes and let thou thyselfe (when thou shaldest teach othe) be founde tyme want thyrt and rather then thou woldest teach the people n^r othe thyng thyrt God a word take the boke in thyne hande, & seade the word a cude as they shoulde them (so) it is no thyne to do, it is moze thyne to make a lye) Chyls I saie for such. &e are not yet expecten the fretyche, for I repute no p^reachyng w^rll, vnt the boke as longt as they saie the traueth.

p^resume be a man that hath wife and childre, first loue thy wyfe, accordinge to the commaundment of the lawe, wherewith Christ loued the churche, and remember that thou louest euery thyselfe: for thou haile her, thou hailest thine owne fleshy for thou cherishest her and makest much of her, thou cherishest a member much of thyselfe for she is bone of thy bones, a fleshy of thy fleshy. And who so enyet than be that hath children, bying them vp in the nurture and instruction of the Lord. For if thou be ignorant, as set other wyse occupied lawfully that thou canst not teach them thy selfe, then be euery diligent to seeke a good maister for thy childre, as thou wouldest seeke a maister to heare them: for there lieth a great weight in the one as in another. yet better it were for them to be instructed, then not to leaue them, as to be euery brought vp. which thinges I meane bying onge by well of children, for it be diligently looked to, it is the upholding of all common welthes: and the negligence of the same, the decaye of all realmes.

Finally, who so ever thou be, take these wordes of scripture in thine heart, and be not onely an outward hearer, but a doer thereafter, and practise thyselfe therin: that thou mayest see in thine heart, the fruit promising thereof for thy consolation in all trouble, as for the sure stable thinges of thy hope in Christ, and haue euery an eye to the wordes of scripture, that if thou be a teacher of other thou mayest be within the bounds of the truth, as at the least though thou be but an hearer or reader of another mans doyn ges, thou mayest yet haue knowledge to subuerge all spites, and be free from every exoute, to the better instruction of all sedicious sects and wronge doctrynes, that the holy scripture maye haue free passage, and be had in reputacion, to the worshippe of the author thereof, which is euery God himselfe: so to be comforted by his most blessed wordes be glory and redemption

And the Sabbath day: for that he lighteth in the firmament of heaven, to give light to the day, and the night, that they may be separated, for signs, for seasons, for days, and for years. And let there be light: and there was light. And God saw that the light was good: and God divided the light from the darkness. And God called the light Day, and the darkness he called Night. And there was evening, and there was morning: the first day.

And God so ordered the waters fountains founts creatures that move and have life; founts fowle flye above the earth by vertue firmement of heauen; And God created grasses, and all manner of creatures that haue and moue, which the waters haue befownd every one after his kinde; and all manner of fowle seed, every one a fowle by kinde. And God saue that is man a creature, a beast that liueth, by reason, and a multitude, and fill the waters of the sea, and let the fowles multiply upon the earth. And let the cattle multiply, and man multiply to subdue the earth.

And God sayde let þe earth bring forth heruyng foules, every one a feere his kynde: as beile, mooses & what so hath life vpon earth, every one after his kynde. And so it came to pass. And God made of beastes a of their kynde every one after his kynde, and entred after their kynde, and all manner womens of the earth after their kynde. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: let vs make man in our image after our likenesse, that he may rule ouer the ffish of the see, and ouer the fowles vnder y^e heauen, and ouer cattell, and ouer all the earth, and ouer all y^e wromes that crepe on y^e earth. And God created man after his likenesse: after y^e likenesse of God created he him, male & female created he them.

And God blessed them, and gave unto them: Sower, and multiplier, and full the earth, and subdue it, have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowls of the ayre, and over all the beasts that creep upon the earth.

THE LORD GOD also planted a garden of pleasure in Eden, towards the east, and his river therein whom he had made. And the LORD GOD caused to sprout out of the earth all manner trees, pleasant to the sight, and good to eat: and the tree of life in the midst of the garden, and the tree of know-

And the LORDE God sayde: It is not good, for I haue made him alone. I wil make him on helpe, to beare him company. And when God the LORDE had made of the earth all manner beastes of the felde, & all manner foules vnder the heauē, he broughte them vnto man, to se what he woulde call the. For as man called all manner of liuinge foules so are their names. And man gaue names vnto all manner cattell, & vnto the foules vnder the heauē, and vnto all manner beastes of the felde. But vnto man there was no founde no helpe, to beare him company.

Then the LORDE God caused an herbe slepe to fall vpon man, and he slepe. And he toke one of his rybbes, and (in steade thereof) he filled up the place with flesh. And the LORDE God made a woman, of the ribbe that he toke out of man, and broughte her vnto him. This sayde man: This is once bone of my bones, and fleshy of my flesh. She shal be called woman, because she was taken of man. For this cause shal a man leaue father and mother, and cleue vnto his wife, & they two shal be one fleshy. And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed.

Then sayde the woman vnto the serpent: We eate of the frute of the trees in the garden: But as for the frute of the tree that is in the myddes of the garden, God hath sayde: Thou shalt not eate it, and touch it not, lest thou dye.

Then saide the serpent vnto the woman: Tuffe, thou shalt not dye the death. For God hath sayde, that in what daye so eate thou eate of it, thine eyes shal be opened, and thou shalt be as God, and thou shalt knowe both good and euill. And the woman sawe that it was a good tree to eate of, and lustie vnto the eyes, and a pleasurable tree to make wissh, and toke of the frute of it, and ate, and gaue vnto her husband also thereof, and he ate. Then were the eyes of them both opened, and they perceiued that they were naked, and so they hid themselves together, and made them apert.

And they herde the voyce of the LORDE God, which walked in the garden in the coolle of the daye. And Adam hid himself with his wife, from the presence of the LORDE God amonge the trees of the garden. And the LORDE God called Adam, and sayde vnto him: Where art thou? And he said: I herde thy voyce in the garden, and was afraied, because I am naked, and euer so I hid myself. And he sayde: who tolde thee that thou art naked? Hast thou not eaten of the tree, wherof I commaunded thee, that thou shouldest not eate?

Then sayde Adam: The woman which thou gauest me to beare me company gaue me of the tree, and I ate. And the LORDE God sayde vnto the woman: wherefore hast thou done this? The woman sayde: the serpent deceaued me, so that I ate. Then sayde the LORDE God vnto the serpent: Because thou hast done this, cursed be thou aboue all cattell, and aboue all beastes of the felde. Upon thy belly shalt thou go, & thou shalt eate all the dayes of thy life. And I will put enmitye betwene thee and the woman, and betwene thy seede and his seede. The same shall treade downe thy heade, and thou shalt treade him on the heele.

thou hast hardened into the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded thee, saying: thou shalt not eat of it. Ensigne be of earth for thy sake. With sorrow shalt thou eat thereof, all the dayes of thy life. Thorns and thistles shalt thou see into thee, and thou shalt eat the herbes of the fulde. In the same of thy face shalt thou eat the bread, till thou be turned away into earth, whiche thou art dust: for earth thou art, and into earth shalt thou be turned againe.

And Adam called his wife Eua, because she is the mother of all lyvinge. And the LORDE God made Adam & his wife garments of skynnes, & therewith put on them. And the LORDE God sayde unto Adam: in become as one of us, & knowest good & evil. Now leste he stretch his hande, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and lyue forever. Then the LORDE God put him out of the garden of Eden, so till of earth, whiche he was dust. And he cast Adam out. And before the garden of Eden he set Cherubim, and a naked syrie sword, to kepe & waye unto the tree of life.

The iij. Chapter.

When Adam laye with Eua his wife, which occurred & bare Cain, and sayde, I have oppressed of man of the LORDE. And she proceeded forth, & bare his brother Abell. And Abell became a shepherde, but Cain became an husbande man.

And it fortuned a fete certayne daies that Cain brought of the frute of the earth, an offering unto the LORDE. And Abell brought also of the firstlings of his shepe, and of & fat of them. And the LORDE had respect unto Abell, and to his offeringe: but unto Cain and his offeringe he looked not. Then was Cain exceedingly wroth, and his countenance chaunged. And the LORDE sayde unto Cain: Why art thou angry? and why doeth thy countenance chaunge? Is it not so: that if thou do well, thou shalt receive it: but and if thou do evil, thy synne lyeth open in the booke. Shall he then be subdued unto thee: and wilt thou rule him? And Cain called upon Abell his brother.

And it happened, that when they were in the felde, Cain arose agaynst Abell his brother, and slew him. Then sayde the LORDE unto Cain: Where is Abell thy brother? & he sayde: I can not tell. Am I my brothers keeper? And he sayde: What hast thou done? The voice of thy brothers blood crieth vnto come out of the earth. And now shalt thou be cursed upon the earth, which hath opened her mouth, and received thy brothers blood of thine hands. When thou shalt rest of ground, she shall be unsittly nor give her power unto thee. A vagabonde and a renegate shalt thou be upon y^e earth. And Cain sayde unto the LORDE: my synne is greater, then that it maye be forgiven me. Therefore, thou castest me out this daye from out of y^e lande, and from y^e sighte of my face. And must be a vagabonde and a renegate upon y^e earth. And thus shal it go with me: that who so findeth me, shal slay me.

But the LORDE sayde thus unto him: Who so ever slayeth Cain, he shal be avenged sevenfold. And the LORDE put a mark upon Cain, that no man which found him, shalde kill him. So Cain went out from y^e face of the LORDE, and dwelt in the lande of Eder, upon the east syde of Eden.

And Cain laye with his wife, which conceived and bare Henoch. And he builded a cite, and called it after the name of his sonne Henoch. And Henoch begat Irad, Irad begat Mahawal, Mahawal begat Mahabiel, Mahabiel begat Lamech.

And Lamech told him two wyues: y^e one was called Ada, & the other Zilla. And Ada bare Jabel, of whom came they that dwell in tents and had cattell. And his brother's name was Jubal: of him came they that are occupied with pipes & psalms. And Zilla she also bare Tubalcain, a worker in all maner of poyntes of metall & iron. And Tubalcain's sister was called Naama.

And Lamech sayde unto his wyues Ada and Zilla: I have my vengeance upon y^e face of Lamech, and have taken my vengeance upon y^e face of Lamech, and have taken my vengeance upon y^e face of Lamech. I have slain a man, and wounded my self: and I have killed a young man, and gone: my self stricken. Cain shal be avenged seven times upon Lamech: seven and seven times more.

Adam laye yet with his wife agayne, & she bare a sonne, and called him Seth. For God (sayde he) hath apoynted me another side, for Abell, whom Cain slew. And Seth began a sonne also, and called him Enos: & the summe yere begonne menco call upon the name of the LORDE.

The V. Chapter.

2 This is the booke of the generacion of man, in the tyme when God created man, and made him a freeth similitude of God. Make and female made he them, and blessed the, & called their names Man, in the tyme when they were created. And Adam was an hundred and threie years olde, and began a sonne, which was like his owne ymage, and called his name Seth: & lyued there after eight hundred years, and began sonnes and daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and threie years, and so he dyed.

3 Seth was an hundred and fyve years olde, and began Enos: & lyued there after eight hundred and seven years, and began sonnes and daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and twelue years, and so he dyed.

4 Enos was nyneie years olde, and began Cam: and lyued there after eight hundred & fyfene years, and began sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and fyve years, and so he dyed.

Cam was scutye years olde, and began Mahalalel: and lyued there after eight hundred and foureie years, and began sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and ten years, and so he dyed.

Mahalalel was thre score years olde & fyue, and began Jared: and lyued there after eight hundred and threie years, and began sonnes and daughters. And his whole age was eight hundred, nyneie and fyve years, and so he dyed.

5 Jared was an hundred and twente & sirtie years olde, and began Enoch: & lyued there after eight hundred years, and began sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and two and sirtie years, and so he dyed.

6 Enoch was fyue and thre score years olde, and began Methuselah: and led a godly conuersacion thre hundred years there after, and began sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was thre hundred and fyue and thre score years. And for so much as he lyued a godly life, God toke him away, & he was not seene.

Methuselah was an hundred & sents and foure score years olde, & began Lamech: and lyued there after seven hundred and two and foure score years, and began sonnes & daughters. And his whole age was nyne hundred and nyne and tre score years, and so he dyed.

Lamech was an hundred and two and foure score years olde, and began a sonne, & called him Noe, and so yde: This same shall esforce vs in our twelue, and in the foure of our hundred upon the earth, which the LORDE hath curd. After this he lyued fyue hundred and fyue & nyneie years, and began sonnes and daughters. And his whole age was seven hundred seven and sennetie years, and so he dyed.

Noe was fyue hundred years olde, and began Sem, Ham and Japhet.

The VI. Chapter.

1 So when men begonne to multiplie upon the earth, and had begonne them daughters, the children of God sawe the daughters of men, that they were fyue, and toke vnto the wyues soch as they liked. Then sayde J LORDE: Liff spere shal not allwaye styue with man, for he is to be fleshy also. I will yet graue him respyce an hundred and twety yeres. There reue we wnto also in the world as that tyme. Forth after the children of God had lym with the daughters of men, and begotten them children, of same (children) became mightie in the world, and men of renomme.

2 But when the LORDE sawe J the wickednes of man was encreased upon J earth, and that all J thought and imagination of their hert was but eyle still continually, it repented him, that he had made man upon the earth, and he forsooke in his hert, and sayde: I will destroye man Iyube which I have made, from the earth. both man, best, womne, and foule vnder heauen: for it repeneth me, that I have made them. I neuer chesed Noe sounbe graue the signe of the LORDE.

3 This is J generacion of Noe. Noe was a righteous and pfecter ma, and led a godly life in his tyme, and began the sonne Sem, Ham and Japhet. Ieremichlon bing J earth was corrupte in J signe of God, and full of mysest. Then God leed vpon J earth and lo, it was corrupte for all flesh had corrupte his waye upon the earth.

Then sayde God vnto Noe: Then ende of all flesh is come before me, for the earth is full of mysest before them. And lo, I will destroye them with the earth. Make the an Ark of pynce, and make chambers in it, and such is within and without with payd and make it a fier this fashion: The length shal be three hundred cubites, the breadth fi ue cubites, and the height three cubites.

A window shal thou make aboue of a cu bite greater, but the base shal thou set in the myddest in the fye of it. And the Arke shal thou make with thyne lofte one aboue ano ther. So also, I will bringe a founteyne of water upon the earth, to bestowe all fleshy therein the breath of life wnder the heauen: All that is upon earth, shal perishe.

D But such the will I make a covenante, and thou shalst go into the Arke with thy sonnes, with thy wyfe, and with thy sonnes aymes. And of all creatures what so ever fleshy be, thou shalst bringe into the Arke, even a payre: the male and the female, that they may lyue of them. Of foules after their kynde, of bestes after their kynne, and of all manner wormes of the earth a fyve their kynde. Of euer y one of these shal there a pay re go in unto the, that they may lyue. And thou shalst take unto the all manner of meate that may be eaten, and shalst laye it up in store by the, that it may be meate for the and them. And Noe byd a cordinge to all that God commaunded him.

The vii. Chapter.

D And I LORD sayde vnto Noe: Go in to the Arke thou & thy whole hou se: for the haue I sene righteous before me at thyne tyme. Of all cleane bestes take unto the seven and seven, the male and his female. And of vncleane bestes a payre, the male and his female. Like wyse of the foules wnder the heauen, seven and seven, the ma le and his female, that there maye be seed left a lyue upon the earth.

For yet after seven dayes, I will sende ra in vpon the earth fourty dayes and fourty nighetes, and will destroye all manner of thyng that I haue made, from of the face of the earth.

And Noe byd all that the LORD com maunded him. Euer hundred yere olde was he, when the water founteyne came vpon earth.
And he wente into the Arke, with his son nes, his wyfe, and his sonnes wyues, for the waters of the founteyne. Of cleane bestes and of vncleane, of all fethered foules, & of all that crept vpon earth, wente in vnto him to the Arke by payres, a male and a female, as I LORD commaunded him. And when the seven dayes were past, the water founteyne came apon the earth.

In the six hundred yere of Noes age, upon the thirtieth daye of the thirde mo neth, that same daye were all I founteynes of the greates depe broken up, and the wynd owes of heauen were opened, and there came a rayne vpon I earth foure dayes and fourty nighetes.

Upon the selfe same daye wente Noe into the Arke, with Sem, Ham and Iaphet his sonnes, and with his wyfe, and the wy ues of his sonnes, and all manner of bestes after their kynde, all manner of cattell after their kynne, all manner of creeping thinges (that crept vpon the earth) after their kynne, and all manner of foules (what so ever coude flye & what so coude had fygures) a fyve their kynne. These wente all vnto Noe in to the Arke by coopes, of all fleshy in wborn was the breath of life. And these were the male & the female of all manner of fleshy, and wente in, accordinge as God commaunded him. And the LORD shut the doore vpon him.

Then came the water founteyne foure day es vpon the earth, and the water increased, and bare vp the Arke, and lift it up ouer I earth. Thus the water preynted, and in creased fow vpon the earth, so that the Arke wente vpon the waters. And the waters preynted and increased so fow vpon earth, that all the hye mountaynes vnder the whole heauen were couered. I fyfene cubi tes hye preynted I waters ouer the mount aynes, whi dy were couered.

Then all fleshy that crept vpon earth, pe rished, both foules, cattell, bestes, and all I men vpon earth, and all men. What so e uer had the breath of life vpon the eare lon de, perished.

Thus was destroyed all that was vpon the earth, both man and beast, both women and foules wnder I heauen: all that were des troyed from the earth. Sane Noe and they that were with him in the Arke. And the waters preynted vpon the earth, an hundred and fyfte dayes.

The viii. Chapter.

¶ Then God remembred Noe and all the beastes, and all the carrell that wece with him in the Arke, and caused a wynde to come upon the earth: and y^e waters ceased, and the founteynes of the tye and the wyndowes of heuene were stoped, and the raine of heauene was forbydden, and the waters ranne styll awaye from y^e earth, and decreased aftar an hundred and fiftye dayes.

Upon the fourthe daye of the tenth month refuld the Arke vpon the mountaynes of Ararat. And the waters were drawe and drawe forth vntyll the tenth month: for the first daye of the tenth month, the topes of the mountaynes appeared.

Aftar fourtie dayes Noe opened y^e dore of the Arke which he had made, & sent forth a raven, which flew ouer, and came agayne, vntyll the waters were dried vp vpon the earth.

Then sent he forth a dove from him, to see, whether the waters were falle vpon the earth. But when y^e dove coude fynde no resting place for her feet, she came agayne vnto him into the Arke, for the waters were yet vpon the face of all the earth. And he put out his hande, and toke her to him into the Arke.

Then he bode yet seven dayes mo, & sent out the dove agayne out of the Arke: & she returned vnto him aboue the euen tyde: and beholde, she had broken of a leaf of an olyue tree, & bare it in her mowthe. Then Noe perceived, that the waters were abated vpon the earth. Wherefores he taried yet seven other dayes, and sent forth the dove, which came no more to him agayne.

In the first hundred and one yeare of Noes age, vpon the first daye of y^e first month, the waters were dried vp vpon the earth. Then Noe toke of the birdes of the Arke, and saue y^e face of the earth was drye. So vpon the sum and twentye daye of the seconde month the whole earth was drye.

Then spake God vnto Noe, and sayde: E Come out of the Arke, thou and thy wyfe, and thy sonnes, and thy sonnes wyues with thee. As for all the beastes that are with thee, whiche so ever flesh is be: both foule & carrell and all manner of womme that creepe vpon the earth: let them go out with thee, and be ye occupied vpon the earth, growe and multie upon the earth.

So Noe wente out, with his sonnes, and with his wyfe, and with his sonnes wyues. All the beastes also and all the womme, and all the foules, and all that creepe vpon the earth, wente out of the Arke, every one vnto his kinde.

And Noe blyssed an afaire vnto y^e LORD, and toke of all manner of cleane beastes & of all manner of cleane foules, and offered hita sacrifice vpon y^e altare. And y^e LORD smelch: he sweete saue, & sayde in his herte: I myght hence forth curse the earth no more for mans sake, for the ymaginacion of mans herte is euill, euen from the very yowth of him. Therfore from hita forth I will notmen synne all that lyeth, as I haue done. Flesch shall foreynge tyme and harvest, colde & heate, sommer & wynter, daye & nyght, shall be as so longe as the earth endureth.

¶ And God blessed Noe and his sonnes, and sayde vnto them: increase & multi-plye, and fyll the earth. The feare also and drede of you be vpon all beastes of the earth, vpon all foules vnder the heauen, and vpon all that creepeth on the earth, and all ffishes as the fe be gotten in to youre handes. All that moueth and hath life be youre meate. Euen as the grene herbe, so haue I geaue you all. Only eate not the flesh with the bloude, wherein the soule is: for the bloude of you wherein youre soule is, myght I requyre of the hande of all beastes: and the soule of man myght I requyre of mans hande, yet every mans soule of anothers hande.

Ye thet sheddeth mans bloude, his bloude shall be shed by man agayne, for God woe man aftar his owne liknesse. As for you, be ye fructifull, and increase, and be occupied vpon the earth, that ye may multiplie therein.

Furthermore, God sayde vnto Noe and to his sonnes & him: Beholde, I make my covenent with you, and with youre seed

And God sayde: This is the token of my covenant which I have made betwene me and you, and all luyng creatures amonge you for evermore: My bowe will I see in the cloudes, and it shall be the token of my covenant betwene me and y^e earth: so that when I bringe cloudes upon the earth, the bowe shall appeare in the cloudes. Therfore shall my bowe be in the cloudes, and I maye looke upon it, and remember the everlasting covenant, betwene God and all luyng creatures in all flesh that is upon earth. God saye also vnto Mo^e: This is the token of the covenant, which I have made betwene me and all flesh upon earth.

The sonnes of Noe which wente out of the Arke, are these: Sem, Ham, and Japhet. As for Sem, he is the father of Canaan. The six are Noes six sonnes, of whom all landes were overspoken.

Noe beganne to take hede vnto y^e tylling of the grounde, & planted a vineyard. And vnto the wyne, and was drunken, and laye vncovered in his tent. Now when Shem the father of Canaan sawe his fathers nakednes, he tolde his two brethren without. The toke Sem and Japhet a mantell and put it vnto both their shuldres, and wente backward, and covered their fathers nakednes: & their faces were turned ayde, & they shalde not be their fathers priests.

So when Noe awaked from his wyne, and perceaved what his younger sonne had done vnto him, he sayde: Cursed be Canaan, and a seruante of seruantes be he vnto his brethren. He sayde moreover: Praise be the LORD God of Sem, and Canaan be his seruante. God increase Japhet, and let him dwell in the tentes of Sem, and Canaan be his seruante.

And Noe lyued a hunderth thre hunderth & fiftie yere, so y^e his whole age was 950 yere, and so he dyed.

The X. Chapter.

This is the generation of the childre of Noe, Sem, Ham, and Japhet, & they begate children: a fter the flood.

The children of Japhet are these: Gomer, Magog, Madai, Iauan, Tubel, Mesich, and Thyra. The childre of Gomer are these: Aserue, Kiphet, and Togarma. The children of Iauan are these: Elia, Tharsis, Cicim, and Dodanim: Of theie are deduced the Iles of y^e Northen in their countrees, every one after his speech, kynn, and people.

The children of Reyma are these: Sheba and Dedai. Chus also begate Nimrod, which beganne to be mightie in the earth, and was a mightie hunter in the sight of the LORD. Therof cometh the proverb: This is a mightie hunter before the LORD. Like as Nimrod. And the enguall of his kynedome was Babel, Erec, Acad, & Chalne in y^e lande of Syne. Out of that ides came Assur, and buylded Ninue, and y^e steepe of y^e etre, and Calah, and Resin betwene Tyre, and Calah: This is a greete cite. Myraim begate Ludim, Enamim, Leabim, Naphtchim, Pachusim, & Casluchim, from whence came the Phylistines and Caphtorims. Canaan also begate Sidon his eldest sone, & Heth, Jebel, Emou, Gergesim, Sin, Aric, Sot, Arad, Zemar, & Hamath: His brethren y^e Synedo of y^e Cananites are dispersed abrode. And y^e Synedo of y^e Cananites were six: Sidon, Heth, Thous, Gerar, Moza, & y^e Iles of y^e Northen. These are the children of Ham in their kynreds, countes, landes, & people. And Sem which is y^e father of all the children of Eber, & the eldest brother of Japhet, begate childre also. And these are his children: Elia, Assur, Arphaxad, Lub, & Aram. The childre of Aram are these: Us, Hul, Gether, & Mas.

D And Terphachab begat Sala, and Sala begat Elber. Elber begat two sonnes: the name of the one was Peleg, because that in his tyme the worlde was deuyded and his brother name was Jactan. And Jactan begat Almodab, Saleph, Hachamapher, Jereh, Hacham, Usal, Dithia, Obal, Abimael, Seba, Ophir, Henai, & Jobab: All the se ere y children of Jactan. And their dwel linge was from Mesia, tyll they come unto Sepharaim mountaynes of y east. These ere y children of Sem in their generacions, cum ing London and people.

This is now y generacion of y children of Noe in their tyme and y people. Of these were y people upon earth syns a biode af ter y flode.

The xi. Chapter.

And when all the worlde had one tongue & language, Now as they went to coumte the East, they founde a playne in y lande of Syname, & there they dwelt, & fide on to one another. Now let us make bryd & burre it. And they toke bryd fei stone, & syns for meeter. And so for: Come, let us bryde a cite to roere, whose top may reach unto heuyn, & we may make vs a name, afore we be scatered abrode in all lande. Then came y LORDE downe, to se y cite & towne, & y chylde of ma had bryd. And y LORDE saide: Beholde, the people is one, & have one maner of language: wherof the all, & this have they begunne to do, & wil not leaue of frum all y they have purposed to do. Come on, let us go downe, & confounde their tonge as there, & one vnderstande not what another saith. Then y LORDE scattered the fei chere in all lodes, so y they lest of to bryde the cite. Therfor is it callid Babel, because the LORDE confounded there the language of all the worlde, and from thence sca tered them a biode in to all lande.

These ere y generacions of Sem. Sem was an hundred yere olde, and begat Terphachab two yeres after the flode, and luynd thersafter fure hildith yere, and begat Jactan and daughter.

Terphachab was fure & thirtie yere olde, and begat Sala h, and luynd thersafter fure hundred yere and thre yere, and begat sonnes & daughters.

C Salah was thirtie yere olde, and begat Elber, & luynd thersafter fure hildith thre yere, & begat sonnes & no daughters.

Elber was fure and thirtie yere olde, & begat Peleg, and luynd thersafter fure hundred yere and thre yere, and begat sonnes & daughters.

Peleg was thirtie yere olde, and begat Jactan, and luynd thersafter two hildith and nyne yere, and begat sonnes & daughters. Jactan was two and thirtie yere olde, and begat Serug, and luynd thersafter two hundred and seven yere, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Serug was thirtie yere olde, and begat Laboi, and luynd thersafter two hundred yere, and no begat sonnes & daughters.

Laboi was nyne and twenty yere olde, and begat Terah, and luynd hersafter an hundred and nyne yere, and no begat son nes and daughters.

Terah was seauente yere olde, and begat Abram, Laboi and Haran.

These are the generacions of Terah: Terah begat Abram, Laboi and Haran, and Haran begat Lot, but Haran d and before Terah his father in y lande where he was borne, or in Chaldea.

Then Abram and Laboi toke them wyf es: Abimeys wife was called Sarai, & Labois wyfe Mikca the daughter of Haran, which was father of Mikca and Yisa. But Sarai was barren, and had no childe.

Then toke Terah Abim his sonne, & Lot his sonne Haran sonne, & Sarai his daughter in laue, his soute Abimeys wyf, & camd thurw him from in Chaldea, to go in to the lande of Canaan. And they camd to Eret, & dwelt there. And Terah was two hundred & fyne yere olde, and dyed in Haran.

The xii. Chapter.

And y LORDE saide vnto Abram: Get the one of thy countie, and from thy fyndred, and out of thy fathers house, in to a lande which I wil shew the. And I wil make of the a myghtie people, and wyl blesse the, and make the a greute name, yee then shall be a very blesseful people, & I wil blesse them that blesse the, and curse them that curse the: and in the shal all the generacions of the earth be blesse.

Then wente Abram out, as the LORDE commaunded him, and Lot wente with him. Fure y seauente yere olde was Abram, when he wente out of Haran. And Abram toke Sarai his wyf, and Lot his brother sonne, & all their goodes which they had gotten, and foules which they began in Haran, and departed to go in to y lande of Canaan. And whil they were com in to the same lande, he wente thurw, tyll he came vnto the place of Sichem, and vnto the Ogerne of Mear: for y Canaanites dwelt in y lode at y same tyme. Then the LORDE appeared vnto Abram, barons of Albano castle, and the barons of Leon castle. The Cananites also and the Pharisees were at that time in the land.

Then said the ADAM unto the LORD: I lie there be no strife between me and thee, and thou excuse my brethren and thine, for we are brethren.
Thou nor all the whole world open before thee: Depart from me, I pray thee, for thou wilt for thou wilt go to the right hand, I will take hold: and call the creature according to a name. And said that it was a pitiful creature as man.

For before the LORD destroyed Sodom and Gomorah, it was rebuilt above the air, as men: as the pleasure of men of the LORD, and as the land of the living.

Then Lot chose all the flocks of Jordan, and took his journey towards y^e East. And saith the one tother departed from the other. I heard dwelle in the lande of Canaan, and Lot in the citie of the same coastes, and pitched his tent close unto Sodome. But y^e men of Sodome were wicked, and synned exceedingly against the LORDE.

the kynge of Elasar, Adolphiomer the kynge of Elam, & Thyrat the kynge of Tyre, then they made warre wth Darius & the kynge of Sodome, and wth Belsa the kynge of Gomara, & with Seneab the kynge of Adama, & with Semabab the kynge of Sebom, and with che kynge of Bala, which is called Dour. They came all together in to the brode valley, where now the sale is: for so many years were they in battles wth the kynge Adolphiomer, & in the thirtenth yeare they fell from him. Therfore in the fourtenth yeare came Adolphiomer and the kynge of Bala, & with him, the Chanaan in Asirach, Baarnan, & Sufan at Ham, & Lemm in the side of Ariachalm, and y^e Gouties in their own mount Seir wth the playne of Pharan, which bordereth vpo the wilderness. And then they turned, & came to the rell of Iudg ment which is Cadex, & smote all the countie of the Amalechites, and also the Amorettes, that dwelt in Gageon & Chamar.

Then went out the kynge of Sodome, & the kynge of Gomara, & the kynge of Adama, and the kynge of Sebom, and the kynge of Bala, called Dour, & prepared themselves to fight in the brode valley wth Adolphiomer the kynge of Elam, & with Thyrat y^e kynge of Tyre, & with Ariach the kynge of Elasar: sente kynge of Syar. And y^e brode valley had many hylme pytes. But the kynge of Sodoma and Gomara were put to flight, & fell there, & the residue fled vnto y^e mountaynes. Then toke they all the goodes at Sodoma and Gomara, & all their vntayles, & wth their waye. They toke also Adama bothe his sonne, & his goodes for he dwelt at Sodoma, and departed.

Then came onerachab escaped, and tolde to Adam the y^e Alame, which dwelt in the Obegrom of Alame: the Amoyes, which was the brother of Elcal & Aour: for thes were confederate with Adam.

Now when Adam heere y^e his brother was taken, he harnessed his bonde seruantes boine in his own house, the hundred & eighty, & followed a fter them vntill Don, beynd the, & fell vpo them by night wth his seruantes, and smote the, and dwelt them awaye vnto Adama, which lity on y^e left hand of the cite of Damasco, and brought a waye all the goodes, and also his brother & his goodes, & wemen also and the people. And as he came awaye from the slaughter of Adolphiomer & of the kynge of Sebom, which were with him, the kynge of Sodoma wente to meet him in to the playne felde, which is called Byngon vale.

But Malchiseb the kynge of Salom brought four beas and wyne. And he beyng the puse of the mast hye God, blessed him and sayde: Blessed be thou Adam wth the most hye God possessor of heauen and earth. And prayd he God the hyest, which hath deliuered thine enemies in to thy handes. And Adam gaue him cyphes of all.

Then sayde the kynge of Sodome vnto Adam: Geue me che soules, and take y^e goodes wth thy self. But Adam sayde wth the kynge of Sodoma: Lift vnyr honde wth to the LORDE the most hye God, possessor of heauen and earth, that I wyl not take of all that is thynne, so much as a thebe or a sheelader, lest thou shaldest saye: I haue made Adam a yche: Same ondy that wiche the yenge men haue spent, and the men Arael & Elam, that reuence with me, let them take cheir parte.

The XV. Chapter.

It happened after these actes, y^e the worde of y^e LORDE came vnto Adam in a vision, and sayde: Geare net Adam, I am thy foyde and thy excreaing geare rewarder. But Adam sayde: LORDE LOUDE, what wylt thou geue me? I go childen, and the seruantes of my boofe this is the salar of Damascoe hath a sonne. And Adam sayde morouer: Beholde, vnto me hast thou geuen no foyde: and lo, the fime of my boofe holde shal be myne heye. And beholde, the worde of the LORDE spake vnto him, and said he shal not be thine heye, but one that shal come ouer se him on me body, he shal be thine heye. And he had him go fowch, and sayde: Ake up vnto heauen, and call y^e starres. Canst thou nombre them? And he sayde vnto him: I can so shal chyde be.

Adam beloued the LORDE, and y^e was conuined vnto him for righte iustice. And he saye vnto him: I am y^e LORDE, & I brought the from Diout of Chalda, to geue y^e this landee possesse it. But Adam sayde: LORDE LOUDE, wher by shal I knowe, that I shal possesse it? And he sayde vnto him: Take a coen of thes yeare olde, and a she geate of thes yeare olde, and a ramme of thes yeare olde, and a turrell done, and a yonge pgeue. And he toke all thes, and buryed them in the myddes, and laye the same ouer a gornell the ocher, but the soules buryed he net. And the soules fell vpo the fluff, but Adam drowe them awaye.

Sarai Abrahams wife bare himno child: but she had an handmaiden an Egipcian, whose name was Agar, and sayde vnto Abram: Beholde, the LORDE hath closed me, that I can not beare. Go in (I praye the) vnto my mayde: peradventure I shalbe multiplied by her, more then by myself. And Abram hearkned vnto the voyce of Sarai. Then Sarai Abrahams wife toke Agar his mayde I Egipcian after they had dwelt an yere in the londe of Canaan: and gaue her vnto his husbnde Abram, to be his wife. And he wente in vnto Agar, and she conceiued. Now when she sawe I she had conceyued, she despyed his me selfe.

And then sayde Sarai vnto Abram: I must suffer wronge for thy sake. I laye my wayde by thy side now because she saye, that she hath conceiued, I must be despyed in his sight: the LORDE be iudge betweene me and the. And Abram sayde vnto Sarai: The holde, thy mayde is vnder thine auenture, do with her, as it pleaseth the.

Now when Sarai dealt hardly w her, she fled from her. But the angel of the LORDE founde her by the well of water in the wilderness: (even by the well in the waye to Sur) and saye vnto her: Agar Sarai is maide, whence comest thou? I wyl saye to thee: She sayde: I fle from my maystresse Sarai. And the angel of the LORDE saye vnto her: Returne to thy maystresse agayne, and submitte thyself vnder his hande.

And the angel of the LORDE saye vnto her: Beholde, I wil so increase I febe, that it shall not be nombred for my fructice. And the angel of the LORDE saye furth vnto her: Beholde, thou art with child, I shal bringe forth a sonne, and shalt call his name Imael, because the LORDE hath herde I trouble. He shal be a ryde man. His hande agaynst every men, and every mans hande agaynst him: and he shal dwell ouer agaynst all his brethren.

And she called the name of the LORDE I spake vnto her: Thou art the God that suste me. For she sayde: Of a surety I haue sene the backe part of him that suste me. Therefore called she the well: the well of the liuynge that suste me. Which well is becomen Cedra and Bared.

And Agar bare Abram a sonne, and Abram called his sonnes name which Agar bare him, Imael. And Abram was foure score yere olde and fixe, when Agar bare him Imael.

The xvii. Chapter.

Now when Abram was nygenty yere olde and nyne, the LORDE appeared vnto him, and sayde vnto him: I am the Almighty God, walke before me, I be vnconspired. And I wyl make my couenaunt betweene me and the, and wyl multiply the thyce and yafte. Then fell Abram vpon his face.

And God talke forth with him, and sayde: Beholde, Imael, and haue my couenaunt with the, and then shalt be a father of many people. Therefore shalt thou more be called Abram, but thy name shal be Imael: for I haue made the a father of many nacions. I wyl multiply the thyce and yafte, and wyl make people of I, yee and thynges also shal come out of the. Moreover I wyl make my couenaunt betweene me and the,

and thy side after the thorn out their possession, that it maye be an everlastinge covenant, so that I will be the God of thee, and of thy side after the. And unto the and to thy side after the, will I give the land, wherein thou art a strangererment all the land of Canaan for an everlastinge possession, and will be thy God.

B And God sayde moreover unto Abraham: Repe my covenante then, then and thy side after the. This is my covenante which ye shall keepe betwene me and you, and thy side be after I thowen out their posterites. Every manchild that is amonge you, shall be circumcised: and ye shall circumcise the foreskinne of yo^r flesh. This same shall be a token of the covenante betwene us and you. Every manchild whoso is in eight dayes old, shall be circumcised thowen out your posterites: In like manner all householde folkes borne at home, or bought, or any other also that is a stranger and not of thy side. Thus shall my covenante be to your flesh for an everlastinge covenante. And yf there shall be any manchild uncircumcised in the foreskinne of his flesh, his soule shall be cut out from his people, because he hath broken my covenante.

C And God sayde unto Abraham: Thou and thy wyfe shall now be called Sarai, but Sara shall be his name: for I will blisse her, and give thee a sonne of her. I will blisse her, and people shall come of her, yet and thynges of many people. Then fell Abraham upon his face, and laughed, and sayde in his heart: Shall a child be borne unto me that am an hundred years olde? And shall Sara y^e to mynne years olde, beare? And Abraham sayde unto God: O that I might live in thy sight. Then sayde God: Yee even Sara thy wyfe shall beare thee a sonne, and thou shalt call his name Isaac: for with him will I make my everlastinge covenante, and with his side after him. And as concerninge Isaac also, I have sayde thy request: Beholde, I have blisseed him, and will increase him, and multiplye him exceedingly. Twelve yeres shall he beget, and I will make a great nation of him.

D But my covenante will I make wth Isaac: and thou Sara shall beare unto thee, and thynges twelve moneth. And he left of collectinge with him, and God wente up from Abraham. Then toke Abraham his sonne Isaac, and all the seruantes borne in his house, and all that were bought, (as many as were men children in his house,) and circumcised them the foreskinne of their flesh, even the same daye, as God had sayde unto him. And Abraham was ninety years olde and a yere, when he cut of the foreskinne of his flesh. As for Isaac, he was thirtene years olde, when the foreskinne of his flesh was circumcised. Then upon one daye were they all circumcised: Abraham, and Isaac his sonne, and all the men in his house, whether they were borne or bought, or any of the strangeres: they were, all circumcised with him.

The XVIII. Chapter.

Q And the LORD appeared unto him in the dreynep of Maran, as he sat in his seat down in the beere of y^e bair. And as he sat up his eyes, and looked, beholde, there stood thre men over agaynst him. And when he sawe them, he ranne to meet them from his tent dore, and bowed him self downe upon the ground, and sayde: I O R D E, yf I have founde favour in thy sight, go not by I servaunt. There shall be broughte you a litle water, and ye shall wash yo^r feet, and rest your selves under the tre. And I will set you a morsell of bred, so comforte your hertes withall, and then shall ye go your wayen, for therefore are ye come to your seruants. They sayde: Do as thou hast spoked.

Abraham wente a pace in to the tent of Sara, and sayde: I take haile, I mingle the pedes of myne melle. Embe it, and bake it. And he ranne to the heafes, and fere a calf that was tender and good, and gone it was a yonge man, which made it ready at once. And he toke butter and mylke and of the calf: he had prepared, and set it before the, stode him self by them under the tre, and they ate. Then saide they unto him: where is Sara thy wyfe? He answered: within in y^e tent. Then sayde he: becometh this thyne as yet mo nach, yf I live? I will come to thee agayne, and Sara thy wyfe shall have a sonne. And

As thou shalt see that out of the same dox, which was by him be had. And Abraham and Sara were both old, & well stricken in age: so that it woude neme more with Sara after y maner of women: the fere laughed she wryth in hir self, and sayde: How that I am olde & my lord olde also, shal I yet geue my self to lust?

Then sayde þe LORD E vnto Abraham: Wherefore doth Sara laughe, and saye: In this time in bede, that I shal beare, and yet am olde: Shuld I my selfe thiuge be to haue for the LORD E: Aboute this tyme (ys) I haue: I wil come to the age agayne, & Sara shal haue a sone. Then Sara denyed it, and sayde: I laughed noe, for she was afrayd. But he sayde: Is it not so, thou wydest laughe.
 Then the men stode vp fram thence, and turned them towards Sodome: and Abraham woude with them, to buyge them on their waye.

Then sayde the LORD E: How can I by be f. om Abraham, & thinger that I wil do: synge he shal be a grece and mighte people, and all þe people vnto earth shal be i-les-ty in him? For I knewe him that he wyl co mende his children and his househede after him, to kepe the waye of y LORD E, and so do after sighte and conscience, that the LORD E maye buyge vnto Abraham what he hath promysed him. And the LORD E sayde: There is a crynt Sodome and Gemora, which is greuce, & the synners are excomunge greuous: the fere wil I go downe & see, whether they haue done all together, acording to this crye, which is come to eise me, or not, that I maye knowe. And the men curned their face, and wete towards Sodome.
 But Abraham stode still before y LORD E, and stode vnto him, and sayde:

Wilt thou then destroye the righteous with the ungodly? Peradventure there maye be siffe righteous within y cite: wilt thou destroye the cite, and not spare the place, for siffe righteous a sake that are therein? That be sars for þe, & them shuld be do this, and to slaye the righteous with the ungodly, and that the righteous shoulde be as the un-godly. That be sars from the. Shuld nee the iudge of all the worlde be according to this? And the LORD E sayde: If I fynde siffe righteous at Sodome in the cite, I wil spare all the place for their sakes.

Abraham answered, and sayde: O se, I haue taken vpon me to speake vnto the LORD E, howbeit I am but dust and ashen.
 Peradventure there maye be siffe less than siffe righteous therein: Wilt thou then destroye the cite, cite because of those siffe? he sayde: yf I fynde siffe and righteous therin, I will not destroye them.

And he proceeded further to speake vnto him, and sayde: Peradventure there mighte be siffe founde therein. And he sayde: I wil do nothings vnto them for those fourtye sake. Abraham sayde: O se, noe my LORD E be angrie, that I speake ys more. Peradventure there mighte be siffe founde therin. And he sayde: If I fynde thirtie therein, I will do nothings vnto them. And he sayde: O se, I haue taken vpon me to speake vnto my LORD E.

Peradventure there mighte be twelfe founde of them. he answered: I will not destroye them for those twelfe sake. And he sayde: O se, noe my LORD E be angrie, that I speake yet once more. Peradventure there mighte be ten founde therein, he sayde: I wil not destroye them for those ten sake.

And the LORD E wene his waye, when he had lest talkyng with Abraham. And Abraham returned vnto his place.

The XIX. Chapter.

At the euenyng came the two angels vnto Sodome. And he sat vnto the gate of the cite. And wyl he sawe them, he rose vp for to meete them, and bowed him self downe to the ground vpon his face, & sayde: Se lordes, turne in y praye you vnto youre seruantes house, and tarye all nyght: let your fire be ready, for maye ys ryle come to us by nyght, and go your waye. Then the two they sayde: Nay, but we wyl byde in the strete all nyght. Then compelled he them four: and they entred in vnto him, and came into his house. And he made them a feast, and bakid swete cakes, and they ate.

But before they woude to rest, the men of the cite of Sodome came and compassid the house round about, yonge and olde, and people from all quarters, and called & se: and sayde vnto him: Where are the men that came vnto the to nyght? Bring them out here vnto vs, that we maye knowe them.

And he wente out to the doore vnto the and shut the doore after him, and sayde: O brethren, do not so wickedly. These, I haue two daughter, which yet haue knowe no man: them wil I bringe out vnto you, do with them as it liketh you. Only do nothing vnto these men of God, for they are they come vnder the shadowe of my rofe.
 But they sayde: Come thou hither. Then 146 b saye they: Canst thou only be in an a stranger, and wilt thou now be a iudge wch. we will deale wiche with the che with them.

146 c And they passed foue upon 3 man Loc.
146 d And when they came to, and wolde haue broken up the bone, the men put out their hands, and pulled Loc into them in to the house, and shutte the dore. And the men at 146 e 3 dore of the house were smitten with lynes 146 f neff both small and greete, so that they cou de not fynde the dore.

And if men saide vnto Loc: hast thou yet here any forme in lawe, or statute or bylawe?
The so moe beleuegh vnto them the che, byng him out of this place: for we must destroye this place, because the crye of them is greete before the L O R D E, which hath sent vs to destroye them. Then wene Loc forth, and spake to his sounes in lawe, whi h shalbe hane married his daughters, and sayde: O sounes up, and get you out of this place, for the L O R D E myll destroye this cite. Therewithes they cote it but for a spoke.

146 b Now when the morninge arose, the an gels canied Loc to speke him, and sayde 146 c Stande up, take thy wafe & thy two daugh ters which are at hande, that thou also pe 146 d ce the noc in the synne of this cite. But why is he punished the crime, the men caught him and his wife, and his two daughters by the hande (because the L O R D E was mer ciful vnto him,) and brought him forth, & set him withoute the cite.

And whi they had brought him out, they sayde: Save thy soule, and let us not be yode the, neither stande thou in all this countrie: Stand thy self vpon the mountayne, that thou perishe not. Then sayde Loc vnto the:
Oh no my L O R D E, beholde, in as muche as thy seruante hath seene grace in thy sight, rememere 3 mercy greates, which thou hast showed vnto me, in that thou hast my soule in alue. 3 can not save my self vpon the mountayne. There might some mysfortune fall vpon me, that 3 shalbe dye. Beholde, he is to a case by that 3 maye flye vnto, and it is a lile one: let me save my self there in. 3o is not a lile one, that my soule maye lyue.

146 e When sayde he vnto him: Beholde, 3 ha ue loved vpon the in this payme also, that 3 will not overthrowe the cite, wherof thou hast spoken. Stande the, and save thy self the re: for 3 can be nothinge vnto then be ce me wither. Therfore is the cite called Dore.
And the Soune rose vp vpon the earth, when Loc came in to Soor.

Then the L O R D E canied brynging and fye to rayne downe from the L O R D E out of heauen vpon Sodoma and Gomo ra, and overthrowe those cities, the whole region, and all that dwelt in the cite, and that that grew vpon the earth. And his me se lobed to hyde her, and was turned in to a pillar of salt.

3 beghyn rose up early in the morninge, and gat him vnto the place, wher he had stande before the L O R D E, and turned his sight remembre Sodoma and Gomo, and all 3 londe of that countrie, and loked. And beholde, there rose vp a smoke from 3 coun tre, as it had bene 3 smoke of a furnace. For whan God destroyed 3 cities of the region, he thynge vpon Abraham, and conueyde Loc out of the cites which be overthrowe, wher in Loc dwelt.

And Loc departed out of Soor, and dwelt in the mountaynes with both his daughters (for he was afraid to tary at Soor) and so remained he in a case w both his daughters.

Then sayde 3 eldres vnto the younger: W re farther in cite, and there is not a man re vpon earth, that can come in vnto vs af ter the maner of all the world. Come then forth, let vs hear vnto farther wyne to day le, and lye with him, that we maye save be of oure father. So they gaue their fa ther wyne to daynte that same night. And the eldres daughters wente in, and laye with his father: and he perceaued it not, neither when the laye downe, nor when they rose up.

On the morrowe the eldres sayde vnto the younger: Beholde, yf sumight laye 3 with my father: let vs geue him wyne to daynte this night also: that thou mayest go in and lye with him, that we maye save our re father. So they gaue their father wyne so deynke thes might also: And the younger as of like wyse, and laye with him: & he perceiued it not, neither when she laye downe, nor when she rose up.

Thus were both the daughters of Lot with childe by their father. And the elder bare a sonne, and called him Moab, of whom came the Moabites vnto this daye. And the younger bare a sonne also, and called him the same Ammon, of whom come the children of Ammon vnto this daye.

The xx. Chapter.

AS for Abraham, he departed then out of the south countie, and dwelt betweene Cades and Sur, and was a stranger at Beer, and sayde of Sara his wife: She is my sister. Then Abimelech the kinge of Gerar came for her, and caught her he was awaye.

But God came to Abimelech by night in a dreame, & sayde vnto him: Beholde, thou art here a dead man, for the womans sake which thou hast taken, for she is a maies wife. Therefore Abimelech had not recei-ued her, and sayde: LORD, wilt thou slay a righteous people? Sayde hee: No vnto me: she is my sister. Doe and saye not she herself also for he is my brother: With a pure heart & with innocent handes haue I done this.

And God sayde vnto him in a dreame: I knowe that thou dydest it wth a pure heart, and thou seest I keepe thee, that thou shouldest not synne against me, neither haue I suffered thee to touch her. Nowe therefore let the man his wife agayne, for he is a prophet, and let him paye thee, & then thou shalt lyue. But and yf thou deliuer her not agayne, be sure, that thou shalt dye the death, and all that is thine.

Then Abimelech rose v^y by night in the morninge, and called all his seruantes, and told all these thinges in their eares, and the men were faine as theyd, and Abimelech called Abraham, and sayde vnto him: Wherefore hast thou done this vnto me? And what haue I offended thee, that thou shouldest laye ge on me, and on my hande so grieuously? Then hast thou dealt with me, as a man shoulde deal. And Abimelech sayde: now ouer vnto Abraham: What sawest thou, & thou hast done this thinge?

Abraham sayde: I thoughte: Peraduenture there is no feare of God in this place, & they shall sleie me for my wifes sake, And as I trust she is my sister, for she is my sisters daughter, but not my mothers daughter, and so became my wife. So when God charged me to trowe out of my fatherly house, I sayde vnto her: Behold, thus shal I doe to thee, where so ever we come, thou shalt saye of me, that I am thy brother.

Then rose Abimelech sleepe and opene his eyes, and was wakened, and gaue them unto Abraham, and deliuered him Sara his wife agayne, and sayde: Beholde, my lands stande open before thee, vnder where li-eth the. And vnto Sara he sayde: Beholde, I haue geuen thee thy brother a thousand silver penies, he shall receiue the continge of the eyes, for all that art with thee, and euer where, and a sure excuse.

As for Abraham, he prayd vnto God: Then God heald Abimelech, and his wife, and his mayden, so that they bare children.
For afore the LORD had closed all the matenes of Abimelechs house, because of Sara Abrahams wife.

The xx. Chapter.

The LORD also visited Sara, and conceiued, & bare a sonne: & she narrated her, even as she had sayde. And Sara was much dilid, and bare Abraham a sonne in his olde age, even in the tyme appointed, like as God had spoken vnto him afore. And Abraham called his sonne which was borne vnto him (whom Sara bare him) Isaac, and circumcised him the eighth daye, like as God commaunded him. And when his birth yeare olde was Abraham, when his son Isaac was borne vnto him.

And Sara sayde: God hath prepared a iape for me, for when I was heerech of it, will releaue with me. She sayde moreover:
Who would haue saide vnto Abraham, that Sara shoulde geue children such, & beare him a sonne in his olde age? And the childe grew, and was weaned. And Abraham made a greater feast, in 3 dayes when Isaac was weaned.

And Sara sawe the time of Agar the Egyptian when she had borne vnto Aba-ham: that she was a mocker, and sayde vnto Abraham: Cast out this bond mayden, and her sonne, for this donke maye to some shal not be borne in my sonne Isaac. This worde displeased Abraham, because of his sonne.

Then when God sayde: vnto him: he shal not displeaue thee because of the child, and the hand maye: What seuerer Sara hath sayde vnto thee, so thou art, for in Isaac shall the side be called unto the. As for the bonde-maydens some, I will make a people of him also, because he is of thy seed.

Then Abraham rose up early in the morning, and took his maid and a bottle with water, and put it upon Agar's shoulders, and gave her the child, and sent her away. Then departed she, and wandered out of the waye in y wilderness beside Bersheba. Now when the maide in the bottle was out, she layd the child vnder a bush, and went, and sat her downe ouer on y other syde, a bowe shote of. For she sayde: I can not si the child by. And she sat her downe ouer on y other syde, and liue up her voyce, and wept.

Then God herde the voyce of the child, and the angel of God called vnto Agar out of heauen, and sayde vnto her: What ayleth the, Agar? feare not, for God hath heard y voyce of the child, where he lieth. Arise and take the child, and holde him by the hande, for I will make a greasse people of him. And God opened her eyes, that she sawe a well of water.

Then she went, and filled y bottle with water, and gave y child drinke. And God was with the child, which grew up, and dwelle in y wilderness, and became a comyn gearder, and dwelle in y wilderness of Pharan, and his mother toke him a wyfe out of the lande of Egypte.

At the same tyme talked Abimelech and Phicol his chefe capteyne with Abraham, and sayde: God is with the in all that thou doest. Therefore sweare thou vnto me by God, that thou wilt not hate me, nee my daughter, nee my childrens children: but that thou shalt shewe vnto me (and eo the lande wher in thou art a stranger) the same frendshipp that I haue done vnto the.

Then sayde Abraham: I will sweare. And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for the well of water, which Abimelecho's seruantes had taken a waye by violence. Then answered Abimelech: I knewe not who by it, neether dydest thou tell me, and I haue not herde of it her this daye.

Then sayde Abraham shepe and oxen, and gave them vnto Abimelech, and they both made a bonde together. And Abraham set seven lambes by them selves. Then sayde Abimelech vnto Abraham: What meant those seven lambes, which thou hast by thy self? He answered: For seven lambes shalt thou take of my hande, that they maye be witness vnto me, that I haue dydged this well. Then for in the place called Bersheba, because they swere there both together. And so they made the bonde at Bersheba.

Then rose Abimelech and Phicol his chefe capteyne, and departed agayne in to the lande of y Philistynes. And Abraham planted trees at Bersheba, and called vpon the name of the LORD y everlastinge God, and was a stranger in y lande of the Philistynes a longe season.

The XIII. Chapter.

Then these a tyme God tempested Abraham, and sayde vnto him: Abraham, And he answered: I am here. And he sayde: Take y sonne, thys onely sonne of thine, and Isaac whom thou lovest, and go thy waye in to the lande of Moza, y offer him there for a burnt offeringe, vpon, whom I commaunded the. Then Abraham shode up by tymes in the morninge, and let his Ass, and toke with him two yonge men, and his sonne Isaac, and close wood for the burnt offeringe, gat him vp, and went on vnto the place, wher of the LORD had sayde vnto him.

Vpon the thirde daye Abraham lift up his eyes, and sawe the place a farr off, and sayde vnto his yonge men: Tary ye here with the Isaac for me and the child, we will go yonder, and whan we haue worshipped, we will come to you agayne. And Abraham toke the woodde for the burnt offeringe, and layd it vpon Isaac his sonne. As for him self, he toke the fyre and a knyfe in his hande, and went on both together.

Then sayde Isaac vnto his father Abraham: My father. Abraham answered: here I am my sonne. And he sayde, here is fyre and wood, but whers is the shepe for the burnt offeringe? Abraham answered: My sonne, God shall provide his a shepe for the burnt offeringe. And they wente both together.

And whan they came to the place whiche

said to him, and

God shewed him. Abraham bayd eke here an altare, and layd the wood vpon it, and bound his sonne Isaac, layd him on the altare, above vpon the wood, and stretched out his hand, and toke the knife, to haue slayne his sonne.

E Then the angell of the LORDE called from heauen vnto him, and sayde: Abraham. He answered: here am I. He sayde: Laye not thy handes vpon the child, & do nothing vnto him: for now I knowe that thou fearest God, and hast not spared thine only sonne for my sake. Then Abraham kept his eyes, and saue his sonne. And hee kept by the heere in the betwixt, and wexed, and eoke the ramme, and offered him for a burnt sacrifice, in steade of his sonne. And Abraham called the place. The LORDE shall prouide. Therefore it is a common saying yet this daye: Upon the mountayne that the LORDE prouide.

And the angell of the LORDE cryed vnto Abraham from heauen the seconde tyme, and sayde: I haue sworn by my owne self, sayeth the LORDE, that for so much as thou hast done this, and hast not spared thine only sonne, I will preserue and multiply thee by the stars of heauen, and as the sonde vpon the se shore. And thy seed shall possesse the gates of his enemies: and in thy side shal all the nationes of the earth be divided, because thou hast hearkened vnto my voyce.

D So Abraham turned againe to the younger men, and they got vp, and went together vnto Beerseba, and dwelt there.

After these things is foretold, that it was tolde Abraham: Beholde, Milca haeth borne children also vnto thy brother Laban: namely, Zoa his eldest, and Basia his brother, and Zennah, of whom came the Syrians: and Esau, and Gado, and Philon, and Jephthah, and Zephah. And Zephah begat Rebecca. These eight dyd Milca beare vnto Laban Abrahams brother. And his concubynes called Hagar, bore also: namely, Thebi, Shoshan, Chobab, and Maacha.

The XXXII. Chapter.

S Isaac was an hundred and five and threetye yeres olde: so longe lyued he, and dyed in the head cite which is called Hebron, in the lande of Canaan. Then reuente Abraham, to mourne and reppre for her: After which he stode vp from his coorse, and talked with the Hethites, & sayde: I am a stranger and an indweller amonge you, geue me a possession to bury in with you, that I maye bury my coorse by me.

Then the Hethites answered Abraham, and sayde vnto him: O heare loude, thou art a pryncer of God amonge vs: I bury thy dead in the best of our sepulchres, where shal none of vs feyre þe, that thou shouldest not bury thy dead in his sepulchre. Then Abraham stode vp, and thanked the people of Jlonde: namely the Hethites.

And he talked with them, and sayde: If it be your will that I bury my coorse by me, heare me this, & speake for me to Ephron the sonne of Boaz, that he maye geue me the double cause, which he hath in þe ende of his felde. For a reasonable money let him geue it me, for a possession to burye in amonge you. For Ephron dwelt amonge the Hethites.

Then answered Ephron the Hethite vnto Abraham, that the Hethites might heare, before all that were come out in the gate of his cite, and sayde: To my lord, but heare me: As for the felde, and the cause also that is therein, I geue it thee: and in the sighte of my people I geue it thee, to burye thy coorse.

Then Abraham thanked the people of the lande, and called with Ephron, that the people of the lande might heare, and sayde: Heare me then, because of me the money that I geue thee for the felde, and so will I burye my dead there.

Ephron answered Abraham, and sayde vnto him: Heare me my lord: The felde is worth foure hundredth Syckles of silver: but what is that betwixte me and thee? Burye thy dead. Abraham hearkened vnto Ephron, and weyed him the money which he had sayde, that the Hethites might heare: namely foure hundredth silver Syckles of current money amonge merchants.

Then Ephron felde: where in the tabbla came in which lynch ouer before Mamet, and the felde and the cave, was made sure for Abrahams owne good, with all the trees of the felde also rounde aboute, in the sighte of the Hethites, and of all that were come and in the gates of his cite. Then Abraham buried Sara his wife in the double cause of the felde, that lynch ouer before Mamet (that is, Hebron) in the lande of Canaan. So the felde and the cause therein was made sure of the Hethites vnto Abraham, for a possession to bury in.

tooghgers of y Canaanites, (amonge whom I dwell) but that thou go is to my countrey and vnto myne owne kynred, and buyng my sonne Iteac a wife.

The seruante sayde: What and the woman will not folow me in to this countrey? shal I then carry thy sonne agayne in to yon der londe, wher thou camest out of? 18 Abraham sayde vnto him: Beware of that, that thou bringe not my sonne thither agayne.
The LORDE the God of heauen, which to 20 So the seruante toke ten Camels of the had w him of all manner of goodes of his Mesopotamia, to the cite of Haran. Then let he the Camels lye betwix without before the are before a well of water in the cuntry ge, about the tyme that the woman yist sayde

O LORDE, thou God of my maister Abra-my maister Abraham. 21 I stonde here besy face, and yet a virgin, and vnto herne of ny man: She wente downe to the well, and fylled hir pitcher, and came vp agayne. Then came the seruante to meete her, and sayde: Let me drynke a litle water out of y pitcher.

And she sayde: ynto.

And hastily let she bare the pitcher in hir hande, and gaue him drynke. 22 And whas she had geuen him drynke, she sayde: I will drynke for thy Camels also, yill they haue drynke ynough. And she mathe trough, and ranne agayne to the well to draw, and bere for all the Camels. Then marvelled at her, and helde his tounge, yill he knewe whether the LORDE had prospered his journey or no.

Then when the Camels had all drynken, he toke a golde earrynge of half a Sy-cle weight, and two bracelets for hir han-de: Doughter, whose art thou? tell me. 23 The Then the man bowed himself, and than-saunt, and the LORDE hath prospered my master richly, so he is become greater: and he hath given him shepe and oxen, silver and golde, servants and maides, Camels and Ases: yet and Sarai my masters wife hath borne my master a sonne in his olde age: vnto him hath he given all that he hath.

And my master hath taken an oath of me and saide: Thou shalt not take a wife for my sonne amonge the daughters of the Canaanites, in whose lande I dwell, but go I wayes to my fathers house and to myne owne kintred, and there take a wyfe for my sonne. But I saye vnto my master: What and the woman wyl aoe salowe me: Then sayde he vnto me: The LORDE (before whom I walke) shall sende his angell with the, and prosper thy waye, as thou mayest take a wife for my sonne of myne owne kintred, and of my fathers house. And so when thou comest to my kintred, yf they geue her not vnto the, thou shalt be discharged of myne othe.

So I came this daye vnto the well of water, and sayde: LORDE thou God of my master Abraham, If thou hast prospered my journey: the, I go: Beholde, I stande here by the well of water: Now yf there come forth a virgin to draw water, and I saye vnto her: geue me a litle water to drinke out of thy pitcher, and she saye vnto me: Drynke thou, and I wyl drinke water for thy Camel also: then the same be the woman, which the LORDE hath prouyded for my masters sonne. Now because I had spoken ouer these wordes in my heart, beholde, Rebecca cometh forth with a pitcher vpon her shulder, and goeth to drawe to the well, and drinke.

Then sayde I: geue me a drinke. And immediately she toke vnto the pitcher of her shulder, and sayde: drinke, and I wyl geue thy Camel drinke also. So I drinke, and she gaue the Camel also to drinke. And I ased her, and sayde: Daughter, who art thou? She answered: I am y daughter of Bethuel the sonne of Laban, whom thou hast vnto him. Then layd I the eare: vpon his face, and the bracelets vpon his handes, and bowed myself, and than had the LORDE, and prayd the God of my master Abraham, which had brought me I right waye, to take my masters daughters daughter vnto his sonne.

Yf ye be they then that shew mercy and faith vnto vnto my master, tell me: What age, yett all me, that I maye turne me to y right hande or to the left.

Then answered Laban and Bethuel, and sayde: This is come of the LORDE, for thou canst saye wondrous agaynst the, ne shewest mee good. There is Rebecca be- fore the, take her, and go thy waye, that she maye be thy masters sonnes wife, as the LORDE hath sayde. When Abraham sawe thus these wordes, he bowed himself vnto the LORDE flat vpon the earth, and toke forth Irmela of sister and be- gotten, and gaue them vnto Rebecca. But vnto his daughters and the mo- ther, he gaue spyaes. Then he ate and drinke, and the men also that were with him, and ca- rich there all night.

But in the morninge he arose, and sayde: I seme departe vnto my master. I re- uerchlesse but brother and her mother saye: I see the damfell tary much w at the least ten dayes, and then shall she go. Then sayde he vnto them: holde me not, for the LORDE hath prospered my journey: I let me go, that I maye departe vnto my mas- ter. Then sayde they: let vs call the name- full, and aske her, what she sayeth there. And they called Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Wilt thou go with this man?

And she answered: Yea I wyl go with him. So they: Rebecca that sister go with her most and Abraham sawe, and his men. And they blessed Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Thou art our sister, growe into many thousande synes: thou art our, and thy side possesse the gaze of his seruices.

So Rebecca gat hir vp w her camels, and satte them vpon the Camels, and werpe their voyce after the man. And the seruants toke Rebecca and departed.

As for Isaac, he was commynge from the well of y luynges springe, for he dwelleth in the south countree, and now gaue sonch to his motion close in the felde aboute the euen- tyde. And he lift vp his eyes, and sawe, that there were Camels commynge. And Rebecca lighted of the Camel, and sayde vnto y seruants: What man is this, that cometh agaynst vs in the fild? The seruants sayde: The same is my master.

Then toke she his cloke, and putte aboute her. And the seruant tolde Isaac all the carande that he had done. Then Isaac broughte her in to his mother Sarai, and toke Rebecca, and she became his wife, and he loved her. So Isaac was comforted ouer his mother.

The XXX. Chapter.

Abraham took another wife called Hagar, which bore him Simran, Jethsa, Medan, & Hishian, Jeshab and Sush. Jethan begat Seba and Dedan. The children of Medan were Assurim, Larasim, and Lemnim. The children of Hishian were Ephsa, Ephra, Ganoch, Abida and Eldad. All these are the children of Hagar. And Abraham gave all his goods unto Isaac: As for the children that he had of the concubines, he gave them gifts, and (why he ye sayd) he sent the away from his sonne Isaac, eastward in to the east countrey.

This is the age of Abraham which he lyed: as he hundredth and fyve and thirtie year, and fell sick and dyed in a good age, which he was old, & had heard ynough and was gathered unto his people. And his sonnes Isaac and Jsmael buried him in the dubble case in the side of Ephron the sonne of Hozai the Hethite, which lyeth over before Mamre, in the side that Abraham bought of the Churites. There was Abraham buried with Sara his wife. And after the death of Abraham God blessed his sonne Isaac. And he dwelt by the well of the living and bynghe.

This is the generation of Jsmael. And his sonne, whom Agar Sara mayde the Egyptian bare unto him. And these are the names of Jsmails children, of whom their fathers are named. The eldest sonne of Jsmail, Eltebiach, Cedar, Abdeel, Hishian, Hishia, Duma, Misai, Zabar, Thema, Jether, Taphis and Bedma. These are the child of Jsmail with their names in their countrey and cities. And he had seaven hundredth and seuen and thirtie year, and he fell sick and dyed, and was gathered unto his people. He dwelt from Heula unto Suramarde the Egyptian, as man gave the Assurims. And he dyed in the presence of all his brethren.

This is the generation of Isaac the sonne of Abraham. Abraham begat Isaac. Isaac was forty year old, when he toke to wife Rebecca the daughter of Bethuel & Sybil of Mesopotamia, & Sister of Laban the Syrian.

Isaac befonghe the LORDE for his wife: because she was barren and the LORDE was increased, and Rebecca his wife conceived, and she childe strowe together in her wombe. Then sayde she: If is synne go so with me, why am I then a childe? And she went for to age the LORDE. And the LORDE sayde unto her: Two manner of folk are in thy wombe, and two manner of people shall be decayed out of thy body, and the one nation shall overcome the other, and the greater shall serve the lesse.

Now when the tyme came that she shal be delivered, behold, there were twyn in her wombe. The first that came forth, was red, all rough as an hyde, and they called him Esau. And the after came his brother forth, which hadde the heels of Esau with his hand, and they called him Jacob. This seere year old was Isaac, when they were borne. And when the boyes were growne up, Esau became as hunter, & an husbande made. As for Jacob, he was a simple man, and dwelt in the countrey. And Isaac loved Esau, because he ate of his venison. And Rebecca loved Jacob.

And Jacob dighe a meace of meate. The came Esau from the fild, and was weary, and sayde unto Jacob: Let me praye of thee meace of meate, for I am fainte (because he is called Edom). And Jacob sayde: Sell me this daye thy byrthright. Esau answered: Lo, I must dye nevertheless, whate good then shall my byrthright do me? Jacob sayde: Then sweare unto me euen this same daye. And he swore unto him, and so he sold his byrthright unto Jacob. Then Jacob gave him herd and that meace of frye. And he ate and drank, and stode up, and went his waye. And so Esau regarded not his byrthright.

The XXXI. Chapter.

Here came a deth in the lande, passinge the other that was in Abrahames tyme. And Isaac went to Berar, unto Abimelech the kynge of the Philistynes. Then the LORDE appeared unto him, and sayde: Go not downe in to Egypte, because I am the lasse thoue I shall save thee. Be thou a stranger in the lande, and I will be with thee and blesse thee. For unto the and thy seede will I give all the lande, and will per forme myne oath that I sware to thy father Abraham. And I will multiply thy seed as the starnes of heauen, and unto thy seede will I give all the lande, and thoue thy seede shall all nations be blessed, because Abraham was obedient unto my woyca, and kept myne oshimamets, my oshimamets, my shaceta, and my lammas.

So Isaac dwelt at Gerar. And when the men of the same place asked him of his wife, he sayde: she is my sister. For he was afraid to say: she is my wife, (feintinge thus;) they mighte slaye me for Abimelech sake, for she was beautifull to loke vnto. Now when he had bene there a longe season, Abimelech the kyng of the Philistynes looke out at a window, and sawe Isaac speake with Rebecca his wife.

Then Abimelech called Isaac, and sayde: Beholde, thou art my wife, why saydest thou otherwise? Isaac answered him: I mighte peremure have died because of her. Abimelech saide: Why hast thou bene done this vnto me? It coude lighte haue come to passe, that some of the people mighte haue taken with thy wife, and so hauest thou brought hyme vnto vs. The Abimelech commaunded all the people, and sayed: Who so toucheth this man or his wife, shal dye the death.

And Isaac sowed in that sonke, and folowed the same years an hundredth bushell, for the LORDE blessed him. And he became a greute man, wente south, and grew, vntill he was exceeding greute, so that he had much good in shepheard greute catell, and a greute housholde. Therefore had the Philistynes enuye at him, and stopp'd all the wellies, that his fatheres seruantes had dygged in the tyme of Abraham his father, and fylled them with earth. In somuch that Abimelech also himself sayde vnto him: Departe from vs, for thou art faire myghter then we.

Then departed Isaac from thence, and pitched his tent in the valley of Gerar, and dwelt there. And when he was sated, he caused to digge up the wellies agayne, that they had dygged vpon his father Abrahams tyme, whiche the Philistynes had stoped after the deathe of Abraham, and he called the after 3 same names that his father had named them withall.

Isaacs seruantes also dygged in the valley, and there they founde a well of spring water. But the byrden of Gerar stroue with Isaacs byrden, and saide: The water is ouren. Then called he the well Seir, because they had done him wronge.

Then dygged they another well, and stroue for that aliother fore called he it Syema. So he gat him from thence, and dygged another well, for the which they stroue not, th' other he called it Rehoboth, and sayde: Now hath the LORDE made vs room, and letten vs growe in the sonke. Therefore he departed thence vnto Bersaba.

And the LORDE appeared vnto him the same night, and sayde: I am the God of thy father Abraham, feare thou me, for I am with the, and will bless the, and multiply thy seed for my seruante Abrahams sake. Then layden he an altar there, and called vpon the name of the LORDE, and pitched his tent there, and there his seruantes dygged a well.

And Abimelech wente vnto him from Gerar, and Abimelech his frende, and Phicol his chiefe captayn. And Isaac sayde vnto them: Wherefore come ye to me? Symge ye haue me, and haue peremure awaye from me? They sayde: We sawe open eyes, that the LORDE is with the, therefore we feyred that there shulde be an othe betwixt vs and the, and that we woulde make a hente with the, that thou do vs no harme, like as we haue not hurt the, and as we haue done nothinge vnto the, but all good, and let the departe in peace.

As for the, thou art 3 blessing of the LORDE. Then Isaac made them a feast, and they ate and dronke. And on the morow they arose, and swore one to the other. And Isaac let them go, and they departed from him in peace.

The same daye came Isaacs seruantes, and tolde him of the well that they had digged, and sayde vnto him: We haue founde water. And he called it Saba. Therefore is 3 the well called Bersaba vnto this daye.

The xxvij. Chapter.

When Isaac was fortye years olde, he toke wyues. Jacob the daughter of Beer the Syrian, and Leah the daughter of Lien the Syrian: both these were dishonestes vnto the effecte of Isaac and Rebecca.

And it came to passe when Isaac was olde, his eyes waxed byrme of sight, and he called Isaac his greuter sonne, and sayde vnto him: My sonne. He answered him: Here am I. And he sayde: Beholde, I am olde, and knowe not when I shal dye. Nowe therefore take thy gear, thy quyre and thy bowe, and get the forth to the silde, and take me some menyson, and make me more: (sed as I leue) and bymye wme herein, than I wmye take, 3 my sonne maye bleſſe the, before I dye.

But Rebecca herde theſe wordes, that ſhe ſayde vnto his ſonne. And eſau went to his waye in to the ſilue, to hunt veniſon, and to bringe it home. Then ſayde Rebecca vnto Jacob his ſonne: beholde, I haue herde thy father talkinge with eſau thy brother, and ſaynge: Dyinge me veniſon, and make me meate, that I maye eat, and bleſſe the before y LORD. For I dye, I ſow forſake my ſonne, beare my voyce, what I commaunde the: Go thy waye to the ſilue, and ſaue me two good byddes, that I maye make meate of them for thy ſuſher, ſo as he loath: this ſhall theu buyge in vnto thy father, that he maye eat, that he maye bleſſe the before his deathe.

Then Rebecca Jacob ſayde vnto Rebecca his mother: Beholde, my brother eſau is rough, and I am ſinough: then might my father perſonature ſe ſe me, and I ſhoulde ſe me vnto him as though I beſeſed him, and ſo buyge a curſe vpon me, and ſee a bleſſynge. Then ſayde his mother vnto him: That curſe be vpon me my ſonne, ſo ſomewhen my voyce: go thy waye and ſerch it me. So he wente his waye and ſerch it, and broughte it vnto his mother.

Then his mother made meate, accordinge as his father loth, and reſte eſau his elder ſonne: coſlyt layment (which) ſhe had with her in y houſe: and put them vpon Jacob his younger ſonne. Due the dyddow ſtrypes put ſhe abenue his handes, and where he was ſmooth aboute the necke: and ſo ſhe put the meate with bread, as ſhe had made it in his ſonne Jacob's hande.

And he broughte it in vnto his father, and ſayde: My father. He answered: here am I, who are thou my ſonne? Jacob ſayde: I am eſau thy ſiſtborne ſonne. I haue done as thou ſaydeſt vnto me: aſſe, ſit up, and ate of my veniſon, that thy ſoule maye bleſſe me. But ſhe ſayde vnto his ſonne: My ſonne, how haſt thou ſounde it ſo ſoone? He answered: The LORD y God broughte it to my hande.

Then ſayde ſhe vnto Jacob: Come neare my ſonne, that I maye ſe the, whether thou be my ſonne eſau or not. So Jacob roſe vnto ſhe Jacob his father. And when he had ſe him, ſhe ſayde: The voyce is Jacob's voyce, but the handes are the handes of eſau. And he knew himmer, for his handes were rough like as y handes of his brother eſau. And he bleſſed him.

And he ſayde vnto him: art thou my ſonſonne eſau? He anſwered: Yee I am. Then ſayde he: Dyinge me here then eate of thy veniſon my ſonne, that my ſoule maye bleſſe the. Then he broughte it him, and he ate: and he brought him wyne alſo, and he dranke. And ſhe ſayde vnto him: eate of my eye, and byſſe me my ſonne. So he came nye, and he byſſed him.

Then ſmelled he the ſauour of his daughter, and bleſſed him, and ſayde: Deſeloe, thy ſmell of my ſonne is as y ſmell of the ſilue. And y LORD hath bleſſed, God grabe the of the dem of heauen, arm of the ſarmſſe of the earth, and plant conſe of come and wyne. Flacene be thy ſervantes, and people fall downe at y ſoe. De then loſe euer thy brethen, and thy mother's children fall downe at thy ſoe. Laſed be he, that curſeth the: and bleſſed be he, that bleſſeth the.

Now when ſhe ſayde had made one ende of bleſſynge, and Jacob was ſaue gone out from his father ſhe ſayde, his brother eſau came from his hantinge, and made meate alſo, and broughte it vnto his father, and ſayde: vnto him: Aſſe my father, and eate of y ſonne veniſon, that thy ſoule maye bleſſe me. Then answered him ſhe ſayde: I am eſau thy ſiſtborne ſonne. Then was ſhe eſcryinge by amouſed above meaſure, and ſaide: Who? Where is then the hunter that brought me, and I haue eaten of all a ſore thou cameſt, and haue bleſſed him? And he ſhall be bleſſed ſhill.

When eſau herde theſe wordes of his father, he cried ſombe, and was eſcryinge ſore, and ſayde vnto his father: O bleſſe me alſo my father. But he ſayde: Thy brother came wryth ſerſite, and hath taken thy bleſſynge awaye. Then ſayde he: He maye well be called Jacob, for he hath undermined me now two tymes. My byrd night hath he awaye, and beholde, now takeſt he awaye my bleſſynge alſo.

And he ſayde: Haſt thou not lepe one bleſſynge for me? ſhe answered, and ſayde vnto him: I haue made him loſe one y, and all his brethen have I made his ſervantes. With come y wine have I poynded him. What ſhall I do vnto the now my ſonne? eſau ſayde vnto his father: Haſt thou not one bleſſynge more my father? O bleſſe me alſo my father.

And he liſt up his voyce, and wepte. Then ſhe ſayde his father answered and ſayde vnto him: Beholde thou ſhall haue a ſat dwelinge vpon earth, and y dem of heauen from

14. Gen. c.

G And Esau bare enill wyl unto Jacob, because of the blessing that his father had blessed him withall, and sayde in his heart: The tyme will come shortly, that my sacher shal mourne, for I will slaye my brother Jacob. This was it tolde Rebecca of that word of his elder sonne, and she sate, and bad call for Jacob his younger sonne, and saide vnto him: Beholde, thy brother Esau hath hated thee, that he will slaye thee. And now my sonne heare my voyce: Get thee vp, and fflye vnto my brother Laban in Haran, and carry thine wylth with thee whyle, . . . till the furrowes of thy brother be sowed, and call him wylth agaynst that he turned from thee, and he seige what thou hast done vnto him. So wyl I then sende for thee, and cause the be fetched from thence. Why shaldest thou be colde of yea bothen one daye?

15. Gen. c.

And Rebecca sayde vnto Isaac: I am weary of my life, because of the daughters of Syria: For Jacob take a wife of the daughters of Syria, which are as the daughters of his land, wher shall this life then proficme?

17. Gen. c.

I Then called Isaac his sonne Jacob, and blessed him, and charged him, and sayde vnto him: Take not a wife of the daughters of Canaan, but get thee vp, and go into Mesopotamia vnto the house of Bethuel thy mothers sacher, and take a wyfe of thy daughters of Laban thy elders brother. And the Almighty God blessed thee, and made thee fructifull, and multiplie thee, that thou mayest be a multitude of people, and geue thee the blessing of Abraham vnto thee, that thou mayest possesse the land, wherin thou art a stranger, in which God gaue vnto Abraham. So Isaac let Jacob departe, that he might go into Mesopotamia vnto Laban the sonne of Bethuel of Siria, brother of Rebecca, his and Esaus mother.

18. Gen. c.

When Esau sawe that Isaac had blessed Jacob, and let him departe into Mesopotamia, that he might take a wyfe there, and that he was blessed him, he charged him, and sayde: Thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan, and that Jacob obeyed his father and his mother, and was gone vnto Mesopotamia: Byng also that Isaac his father loved not gladly upon the daughters of Canaan, he wente his way vnto Isaac, and besyde the wayes that he had a sere, he toke a halioch the daughter of Isaac (Abrahames sone) the sister of Laban, to wife.

So for Jacob, he departed from Bersaba, and wente vnto Haran and came to a place, wher he taried all night for the Sonne was downe. And he toke a stone of his place, and put it vnder his head, and layed him downe in that same place to slepe. And he dreamed, and beholde, there stode vpon each side a ladder, whose toppes reached vnto the heauen. And beholde, the angels of God wente vp and came downe vpon it, and the LORD stode vpon it, and sayde:

I am the LORD God of thy father Abraham, and the God of Isaac. The land that thou hast vpon, wyl I geue vnto thee, and to thy sere: and thy sere shal be as thy dust of the earth. And thou shalt sowe forth towarde the west, east, north, and south, and thou shalt be blessed. And beholde, I am with thee, and wyl kepe thee wher soeuer thou goest, and wyl bringe thee hither agayne in to this land: for I wil not leave thee, till I have made good, all that I haue promysed thee.

Now when Jacob awoke from his slepe, he saide: Surely the LORD is in this place, and I knewe not. And he was affraid, and sayde: How fearefull is this place: here is no thinge els but on house of God, and a gate vnto heauen. And Jacob arose early in the morninge, and toke the stone that he had layed vnder his head, and set it vp, and poured oyle vpon it. And he called the place Bethel, but afore the tyme was called Enai. And Jacob made a vowe, and sayde: If God wyl be with me, and kepe me in this journey, that I go, and geue me bread to eat, and clothinge to put on, and bringe me peaceably home agayne vnto my father: This shall the LORD be my God, and the stone that I haue set vp shal be a house of God: and all that thou wyldest me, I wyl geue thee: the cheere of my house.

The xxxix. Chapter.

When Jacob got him vp vpon his feet, and wente in to the east countrey, he looked aboute him, and beholde, there was a well in the felde, and a flocke of the pe cheery, for the flockes dwelte of the well. And there lay a greates stone at the well mouth, and thither they wold bringe the flockes, and to roule the stone from the mouth of the well, and to geue the shepe drinke, and so they put the stone agayne upon the well: so much in to his place.

And Jacob sayde vnto them: Duerther, whate be ye? They answered: we are of Chanaan. the same vnto them: Know ye Laban the sonne of Laban? They answered: We knowe him well. he sayde: Is he in good health? They answered: he is in good health. And so, there cometh his daughter Rachel with the shepe: the same: It is yet byre daye: it is not yet tyme to buye in the cattell: geue the shepe to drye. & go your waye, & take them. They answered: We can not, vntill all the flockes be broughte together, and vntill we reule the stone from the well: so much, & so geue the shepe drye.

While he yet talked with them, Rachel came with her fathers shepe, for she kepte 3 shepe. When Jacob sawe Rachel 3 brought of Laban his mothers brother, and the shepe of Laban his mothers brother, he reioysed, & couled the stone from the well: so much, and geue his mothers brother the shepe to drye, & called Rachel, lift vp his voyce, and weeped, and tolde her, for he was his fathers brother, and 3 sonne of Rebecca. Then came he, and tolde her father.

When Laban hearde of Jacob his sisters sonne, he came to meete him, and embraced him, and kysed him, and brought him in to his house. And so he tolde him all the manner. The same daye Laban vnto his: Well thou art my bone and my fleshy. Abide with me a month longe. But a fewe dayes sate he vnto Jacob: Because thou art my brother, shalte thou therefore serue me for nought? Tell me, what shall thy wages be. Laban had two daughters, the eldest was called Lea, & the youngest Rachel. And Lea was tender eyed, but Rachel was beautifull & well fauoured of face, and Jacob loved her well, and sayde: I will serue thee seven years, for Rachel thy youngest daughter. Laban answered: It is better than I geue her the, then vnto another: then with me.

So Jacob serued seven years for Rachel, and they seemed vnto him but fewe dayes, he loved her so well. And Jacob saide vnto Lea: geue me my wyfe, for the tyme is come that I shalde be with her. The Lea had all the people of that place, and made a marriage. But at eue he toke his daughter Lea, and brought her in vnto him, and he laye with her. And Laban gaue Bilha his mayde vnto his daughter Lea to be his mayde.

But on the morrow, beholde, it was Lea. And he sayde vnto Laban: Why hast thou done this vnto me? haue not I serued y for Rachel? Why hast thou then begyled me? Laban answered: It is not the manner in our countrey, to marry the youngest before the eldest. holde out this week, & I will geue thee this also, for the service y thou shalt do me yet seven yeares more. Jacob obeyed so, & helde out 3 weeks. The same daye he toke Rachel his daughter to wyfe. And Laban gaue Bilha his mayde vnto Rachel his daughter to be his mayde. So he laye with Rachel also, & leued Rachel more che Lea, and serued him yet seven yeares more.

But when the LORD sawe, that Lea was a thinge regretted, he made her fructifull, and Rachel bare. And Lea conceived, and bare a sonne, whom she called Ruben, and sayde: The LORD hath loosed upon my seruice. Then wyl my husbande love me. And she conceived agayne, and bare a sonne, and sayde: The LORD hath helpe: that I am despyed, and hath geue me this also, and she called him Symeon. She conceived yet agayne, and bare a sonne, and sayde: Now wyl my husbande kepe me company agayne, for I haue borne him three sonnes, therefore called he his name Leui. She conceived y fourth tyme, and bare a sonne, and sayde: Now wyl I geue thanks vnto the LORD, therefore called she him Iuda, and left bearinge.

The XXX. Chapter.

When Rachel sawe that she bare no chylde vnto Jacob, she had enuy at her sister, & saide vnto Jacob: Be as my chylde also, as is Iem but dead. And Jacob was very wroth at Rachel, & sayde: Am I then in Gods steade, whyd I speake y frute as if I were but from y? Therefore she sayde: Beholde, there is Bilha my mayde, take her, for she maye beare vpon my lappe, & thou I maye be increased by her. And so she gaue him Bilha his mayde to wyfe.

And Jacob laye with her. So Bilha conceived, and bare Jacob a sonne. Then sayde Rachel: God hath geuen sentence on my syde, and herde my voyce, and geaue me a son. B ac, therefore called she him Dan. Dilke Rachel mayde obtained a gayne, and bare a son: for some vnto Jacob. Then sayde Rachel: God hath merced vpon me, and my sister, and I haue geateth the ppephande. And she called him Joseph.

Now when Lea sawe that she had left bearyng, she toke Silpa hiernayde, and gaue her vnto Jacob to wyffe. So Silpa Leas mayde bare Jacob a sonne. Then sayde Lea: This is good lude, 2 she called him Gad. After this Silpa Leas mayde bare Jacob another sonne. Then sayde Lea: Well wille, for the doughter will call me blessed, and she called him Isser.

Ruben wente out in the tyme of y mibe a teharusell, and founde Mandiagoras in the felde, and brought them home vnto his mother Lea. Then sayde Rachel vnto Lea: Geue me some of y fumes Mandiagoras. She answered: Hast thou not yough that thou hast taken awaye my husbande, but wilt take awaye my sonnes Mandiagoras also? Rachel saide: Well, let him be with thee this night for thy fumes Mandiagoras. Now when Jacob came home as euen from the felde, Lea wente forth to meete him, and sayde: Thou shalt be wme, for I haue boughte thee for my sonnes Mandiagoras.

And he slept with her that night. And Gad herde Lea, and she conceived, and bare Jacob the sixth sonne, 2 sayde: God hath rewarded me, because I gaue my mayden vnto my husbande, and she called him Issachar. Lea conceived yet agayne, and bare Jacob the sette sonne, and sayde: God hath endowd me with a good dowry. Now wyl my husbande dwell with me agayne, for I haue borne him sette sonnes, 2 she called him Zabulon. After that she bare a doughter, whom she called Dinah.

D Whereby Lea thought wps Rachel, and bare her, and made her frutfull. Then she conceived, and bare a sonne, and sayde: God hath taken awaye my rebude, and she called him Joseph, and sayde: God geue me yet another sonne.

Now when Rachel had borne Joseph, Jacob sayde vnto Laban: Let me go, 2 departe in to my place and vnto myne owne land: geue me my wyues and my children, (for the which I haue serued thee) 2 I maye go: for thou knowest, whoe I saye I haue done thee. Laban sayde vnto him: Can I not see fauoure in thy sight? I perceaue, that God hath blessed me for thy sake. Appoynte thou the reward, 2 I shal geue thee. Dike he saide vnto him: Thou knowest how I haue serued thee, and what manner of cattell thou hast vnter me, 2 thou haddest but litle a four I came hither, but now I am growne into a multitude, and the LORD hath blessed 2 for my sake. And now myne shall I reue to myne owne householde: he saide: What shal I then geue thee?

Jacob sayde: Thou shalt geue me nothinge at all, but yf thou wilt do this for me 2 I saye, then wyl I stede a dape thy shepe agayne. I wyl go thorow all thy flocke to daye, and separate thou from amonge them all the shepe that be specked and partye coloured, and all blacke shepe amonge the lambe. Now luke what shalbe partie coloured and specked amonge the ryddes, the same shal be my reward: so shal my ryghte conseruatiue with me to daye or tomorrow, myn in cometh vnto my reward before the shephar, whiche I am not specked and partye coloured amonge the ryddes, and blacke amonge the lambe, let that be theif with me.

Then sayde Laban: Beholde, luke it be so as thou hast sayde. And he partide the flocke sundred ouer the specked and partye coloured goates, and all the specked and partye coloured hyddes (where there was ery wyte vpon them) and all the waa blacke amonge the lambe, and put them vnder the hande of his chyldren, and made to me of the daye journey wyde betwixt him and Jacob. So Jacob receyue the residue of Labans flocke.

But Jacob toke slaves of grene myllene, basell and of chesmerrees, and pylld whyte stickes a them, and layed the flane so that he had pyllid, in the burninge trowen be fore the flocke, which came there to dryne, that they shoulde conceaue, myn they came to drynte. So the flocke conceaue ouer y flane, and brought forth specked, specked and partye coloured.

Then Jacob partide 2 lamine, and put them to the flocke vnto the specked: and all the waa blacke in Labans flocke, that put he vnto the specked. And he made a flocke of his owne, which he put act vnto Labans flocke. Whereby Lea in the first luyng gettyme of the flocke, he layed the flane in the burninge trowen before the eye of the flocke, that they shoulde conceaue ouer the flane. But in the latter luyng gettyme he layed them nee in. So the later were Labans, but the first luyng were Jacobs.

Thus the man became exceeding rich, so that he had many shepe, maydenes, seruantes, Camels and Ases.

The XXXI. Chapter.

BEhold alſo of y^e ſonnes of Laban children, that they ſay to Iacob hath brought he all of fathers good vnto him ſelf, & of ome fathers good hath he gotten theſe riches. And Iacob beholde Laban commenaunce, & beholde, it was not towarde him as yeſterdaye and yereſterdaye.

And the LORD ſayde vnto him: Departe agayne to thy fatherlande, and to thy kynred, I will be with the. Then ſent Iacob and bad call Rachel and Lea in to the ſelds to his flocke, and ſayde vnto them: I ſet your ſhepers commenaunce, that it is not towarde me like as yeſterdaye and yereſterdaye: but the God of my father hath bene with me. And yet knowe, that I haue ſerued your father with all my power.

And he hath deceaued me, and changed my wages now ten tymes. But God hath not ſuffred him, to do me harme. If he ſayde: The parre coloured ſhalbe thy rewarde, then the whole flocke hath parre coloured. If he ſayde: The ſpeckelde ſhalbe thy rewarde, the whole flocke hath ſpeckelde. The LORD God with diuerſe your fathers goodes from him, and geuen them vnto me. For when the buck ynge tyme came, I liſt vp myne eyes and ſawe in a dreame, and beholde, the ramme leaped vpon the ſtocke that was ſpeckelde, ſpotted, & parre coloured.

And the angel of God ſayde vnto me in a dreame: Iacob. And I answered: here am I. He ſayde: liſt vp thine eyes, and beholde, the ramme leape vpon the ſpeckelde, ſpotted, and parre coloured flocke: for I haue ſeene all that Laban hath done vnto thee. I am y^e God at Bethel, where thou vddelt an ymage the ſtone, & maydeſt a ſwete here vnto me. Get thee vp now, & departe out of this land, & go agayne in to the lande of thy kynred.

Then answered Rachel and Lea, and ſayde vnto him: As for vs, we haue no portion in inheritance more in our fathers houſe. & he hath ſold vs as ſtraungers, for he hath ſold vs, & ſet vs up of wages. Therefore hath God withdrawen of fathers riches from him vnto vs & our children. What ſo ever ſaw God hath ſayde vnto the, that do.

So Iacob ſaw, and ſe ſe his children and wyues vpon Camels, and caried awaye all his cattell and all his ſubſtaunce, that he had gotten at Heſepotamme, & he mighte come vnto Iſaac his father in the lande of Canaan. Laba was gone to dyppre his flocke, and Rachel ſale her fathers ymagines. Thus dyd Jacob ſeale awaye y^e herte of Lea & Syan, in the colde him not that he ſied. So he ſied, & all that was his, & got vp, and paſſed ouer the waſer, & went ſtraighte towarde the mount Gilead.

Vpon the thirde daye it was colde Laban, that Iacob ſied. And he colde him beſide vnto him, and folowed a ſer him ſeven dayes iourney, and overtoke him vpon the mount Gilead. But God came vnto Laban the Syrian in a dreame by night, & ſayde vnto him: Be ware, that thou ſpeake no thinge to Jacob but good. And Laba wrore vnto Jacob. As for Jacob, he was wroch his curſe vpon the mount. And Laban with his beards pyched he rent alſo vpon the ſame mount Gilead.

Then ſayde Laban vnto Jacob: What haſt thou done, that thou haſt ſtollen awaye my hert, and caried awaye my daughters, as though they had bene calte a captyue do y^e ſwarde: Wherefore teſtifiſt thou that ſteale, &, that thou woldeſt flye. And haſt ſtollen awaye from me, and reſeſt me not, that I mighte haue brought the on the waye with myſt, with ſyngeage, with tabrettes and harpes: and haſt me ſuffred me to ſyſe my children and daughters: & then haſt thou ſo liſt, and ſo much mighte I haue made, that I coude haue done you eall: but your fathers God ſaide yeſterdaye vnto me: Departe, that thou ſpeake no thinge vnto Jacob but good. And ſa ſo much then as thou woldeſt departe, and long cheſt ſore a ſer y^e fathers houſe, why haſt thou ſtollen awaye my goodes?

Jacob answered and ſayde vnto Laban: I was a ſtraſed, that thou ſhouldeſt haue taken awaye my daughters from me: but loſt by whom thou ſynſteſt thy goodes, ſe the ſame tye here before our brethren. Seke that thine is by me, and take it awaye. (But he knewe not, that Rachel had ſtollen them.) Then wente Laban in to Jacobs tent, and ſawe Lea reſe, and in to both the maydenes tentes, and founde nothinge: and out of Lea tent he wente in to Rachels tent, and ſe to bed vpon them. But Laban ſearched the whole tent, and founde nothinge. Then ſayde he vnto his father: Be not anſweris my ſorbe, that I can not ryſe vp vnto theſe ſo: it goeth by, & a ſer the manner of women. As he ſought,

And Jacob was wroth, and chode with Laban, answered & sayde vnto him: What haue I trespassid or offended, y thou art so wroth vpon me? Thou hast sturched all my housholde stuff, & what hast thou sonde of thy housholde stuff? Laye it here before my brethren & thyne, y they maye iudge betwene me both. Twentie yere haue I bene w thetyr shepe & goates haue not bene in fructuall, the rammes of thy flocke haue I not eaten: & the whar was tyme of beastes, I broughte it not vnto y, I was fayne to paye it my self: thou requyrest it of my hande, wherfor I was stollen fro me by daye or by night. On the daye tyme the heart offended me, and the steff on the night, and my shepe departed fro myne eye.

Then haue I stered twentie yere in thy house, fowerteen yeres for thy daughter, & fure for thy flocke, & a ven tyme hast thou chaunged my seruante: & yf the God of my father the God of Abraham, and the state of Isaac had not bene on my syde, thou haddest laide a me go awaye emptye. But God hath loked vpon myne aduersitee and laboure, and rebuked the yssurdaye.

Laban answered and sayde: The daughters are my daughters, & the children are my children, and the sheffes are my flockes, & all that thou seest is mine. What can I do this daye vnto these my daughters, or to their children whom they haue borne? Let them fore come on, let us make a coneuant (I & they) which maye be a wytnesse betwene me and the. Then roke Jacob a stone, & set it up (for a pile: or mark stone) and sayde vnto his brethren: Gather stones. And they roke the stones, and made an heape, & aze upon the same heape. And Laban called it Jegar Sathu, but Jacob called it Gilead: (either of them offer the properte of his language.)

Then sayde Laban: This heape be wytnesse betwene me and the this daye (therefore is it called Gilead) and a testimony, for he sayde: The LORD be betwene me and y, whan we are departed y one from y other: yf thou woe to my daughters, or eke ocher wyse vnto them, There is no malitie vnto, but so, God is the wytnesse betwene me and the. And Laban sayde meynere vnto Jacob: Beholde, this is the heape, and this is the marckstone that I haue set up betwixt me and the: the same heape be wytnesse, and the same marckstone also be wytnesse, yf I passe ouer vnto the, or yf thou passe ouer this heape & marckstone vnto me, & do any har-

me. The God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of their fathers, be wge ge betwene vs.

And Jacob swate vnto him by the state of his father Isaac. And Jacob offered an offeringe vpon the mount, and called his brethren to eate bread. And whan they had eate, they taried vpon the mount all night. But vpon the morow Laban rose vp early, blessed his childre & daughters, & blessed, & departed, and came agayne vnto his place. So for Jacob, he turre on his iourney, & the angel of God met him. And whan he sawe them, he sayde: I se a Gods host, & called the same place Mahanaim.

The XXXII. Chapter.

Jacob sent messengers before him to his brother Esau, in to the lande of Seir, of the sube of Edom, & com mandeth the: & sayde: Saye thus vnto my lord Esau: Thy seruante Jacob standeth y this word: I haue bene out of Laban, & haue bene hither to amonge strangers, & haue open & Aspis shepe, seruantes & mayde, & haue sent such to fure me the my lord, & I mighte fynde fauoure in thy sight.

The messengers came agayne vnto Jacob, and sayde: We came vnto thy brother Esau, & he cometh forth also agaynst the with fure hundred men. Then was Jacob sore affrayed, and wylt not what waye to turre him self, & dryed the people that was with him, and the shepe, and the oxen, & the Camels in to two diuers, & sayde: If Esau come vpon the one house, and smyte it, the ocher shal scape.

Jacob sayde meynere: O God of my father Abraham, God of my father Isaac, LORD thou that saydest vnto me: Departe agayne to thine owne lande and w thy lynde, and I wyl do the good: I com to lide for all the mercies and all the fauour that thou hast shewed vnto thy seruante: for I had a none bat this fluff whan I wente ouer this Jordan, and now am I become two houses, blyuer me from y hande of my brother, for he hade of Esau, for I am affrayed of him, lest he come and smyte me the mother with the children. Then sayd he: I wyl do the good, and wyl make thy lynde as the sonde of y fze, which can not be nombred for multitude.

And there he taried that night, and toke of such as came to be aye a priest vnto his brother Esau, two hundred shepe, twenty camels, and thure myle camels to thir the handes of his seruantes, carrye flock by them selues, & sayde vnto them: So ye shal be fore me, & put a space betwixte one flocke after the other, and commaunded the first and sayde:

When my brother Esau meeteth the, and overth the: Whose are thou? whither goest thou? and whose are these that thou brynest before the? Thou shalt saye: They be thy ser-uants Jacobs, which sendeth a present vnto his lord Esau, and commaundeth behynde vs him self.

- D Thus commaunded he the seconde also, and the thirde, and all them that folowed the flocke, and sayde: Let vs I haue tolde you, shewe ye vnto Esau, when ye meet him, and saye vnto him also: Beholde, y seruant Jacob is behynde vs. For he thought I wylle reconcile him with the present that goeth before me, after wardes yll Iste him my self, peradventure he shal receaue me to grace.

So the present wente before him, but he tard in the entre the same night, and rose up in y night and toke his two wyues and the two maydens and heate us some, and went vnto the foorde of Jacob, toke there and caried them ouer the water, so that all that he had came over, and tared him self alone on this foorde.

- E Then mistell there a man with him vn-tyl the break of y daye. And when he sawe y he myghte not overcome him, he couched the seruaunt of his thy, and y seruaunt of his thy sturndes in wrestling with him. And he sayde: Let me go, for y daye breaketh on.
But he answered: I will not let y go, except thou blisse me. He sayde: What is thy name? He answered: Jacob. He sayde: Thou shalt not be called Jacob, but Israel, for thou hast stryuen with God and with men, and hast preuailed. And Jacob aghed him, & sayde: Tell me what is y name? But he sayde: Why askest thou what my name is? And he blisse him there. And Jacob called the place Bethel, for I haue sene God face to face, & my soule is recovered. And as he came ouer his penid, y some rose upd him, & he halted vpon his thy. Therefore eate the children of Israel no name vpon the fenoer of y thy vnto this daye, because y came vpon the fenoer of Jacobs thy was touched.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

- F Jacob lift up his eyes, & sawe his brother Esau comyng with foure hundred men and he beynded his children vnto Esau vnto Rachel, and to boche the maydens, and so the maydens with their children before, and Esau with his childer a fter, and Rachel with Joseph hymbermost. And he went to before them, and bowed him self to the grounde seuen tymes, tyl he came to his brother. But Esau ranne to meet him, and embraced him, and fell abowen his neck, & kyssed him, and wept, and lift up his eyes, and saw the wyues with the children, and sayde: What are these with the? he answered: They are the children which God hath geuen vnto thy seruant. And the maydens came forth with their children, and byd their obeyfance vnto him.

Esau came forth also with his childer, and knelt vnto him. Afterwardes came Joseph and Rachel forth, and knelt vnto him like wyll. And he sayde: What meanest thou all the digne that I met? He answered: That I mighte fynde grace in the sight of my lord.
Esau sayde: I haue yongth my brother, depe that thou hast. Jacob answered: Whi nay, but y I haue founde grace in y sight, receaue my present of my hande (for I sene thy face, as though I had sene the face of God, and becom with me. Take this present in good worth, that I haue brought y, for God hath gruen it me, & I haue yongth of all thynges. So he compelled him to take it.

And he sayde: Let vs go on and take oure iourney, I wyl go in thy company. But he sayde vnto him: My lord, thou knowest that I haue tender children by me, and small and greue small also, which are yet but yonge, y they shalbe be deuyd ouer in one daye, the whole flocke wolde dye. Let my lord go on before by a fernaie. I wyl dryue after sayre and shilly, (there a fere as the small & the children can go) tyl I come to my lord in Beir. Esau sayde: Yet wyl I tene some of my people with the. He answered: What nede is it? Let me but onely fynde grace in the sight of my lord.

Esau departed agayne the same daye towards Beir, and Jacob toke his iourney towards Seuech, and bayled him an bouse, and made dres for his cattell. Ther fore is the place called Seuech.

Afterwardes came Jacob peaceably vnto the cite of Sichem, which heath in y land of Canaan, after that he was come a way ne oot of Mesopotamia, and pitched be fore the cite, and bought a pece of londe of the children of Hamet y sacher of Sichem for

The XXXIII. Chapter.

AND y^e daughter of Lea, which she bare unto Jacob, wente out to be-holde the daughters of the londe.
When Sicheim the sonne of Hamor the he-nite (which was lord of the lode) saw her, he took her, and laye with her, and forced her, and his butt hanged upon her, and he leach y^e damsell, and called longely with her, and spake to his father Hamor. Get me this mayden to wife.

And Jacob understood, that Dina his daughter was defiled, and his sonnes were with the cawell in the fildes, and Jacob helde his tongue till they came. Then Hamor the father of Sicheim wente south unto Jacob to comen with him. In the meane season came Jacob's sonnes from y^e fildes. And when they herde it, they grieved the men, and they were very wroth, that he had broughte so in Israel, and then with Jacob's daughter: for so was ote the wile to do.

D Then comend Hamor with the, and say de they sonne Sicheim here longeth for y^e daughter, O geve his dower to wife: make friendshipe with vs, geue vs youre daughters, and take ye oure daughters, and dwel with vs, the londe shall be open unto you, dwel and occupie, and haue youre possi-sion therein. And Sicheim saye unto his father and brethren: Let me fynde grace with you: I see what ye appointe me, I will ge-day. I will geue it a cordiage as ye will are, onely geue me the damsell to wife.

Then Jacob's sonnes answered Sicheim and Hamor his father (and spake dyscreet-ly, because their sister Dina was defiled): saye unto thim. That can we do, so ge-ue oure sister to an uncircumcised man: for that were a shame unto vs.

C Then theydres we will consente unto you, yf ye will the like unto vs, and be circumwill we geue you oure daughters, and take your daughters unto vs, and dwell with you and be oore people. But yf ye will not herten unto us, to be circumcised, then we will take oure daughter, and go oure waye.

These wordes pleased Hamor and his son-in his fathers house. Then came Hamor and Sicheim his sonne under y^e gate of the cite, said: These men are peaceable with vs, and will dwell in the londe and occupie: now is the londe boode of both the sydes, we wyl becher daughters unto vs, and geue them oure daughters.

But then wyl they consente unto vs, coyf we circumcise all the men children amonge vs, like as they are circumcised: that cell and gooden, and all that they have, shall be oure, yf we consente unto them, that they may dwell with vs.

And they herdend unto Hamor and Sichaim his sonne, as many a wente out and the males, that wente out and in at his cite.

And upon the thirde daye (when it was pe-man his sword, and wente boldly to the cite, and slew all the males, and slew Hamor also and Sicheim his sonne with the edge of the sword, and took their sister Di-na out of Sicheim's house, and wente their

Then came Jacob's sonnes over the lay-defiled their sister) and took their shepe, oxen, asses, and what so ever was in the cite and in the londe, and all manner of gooden.

All their children and wyues take they cap-

And Jacob sayde unto Symon and Le-

And Esau toke his wyues sonnes & daughters, and all the fowles of his house, his substance, and all the cattell with all the goodes that he had gotten in the lande of Canaan, and wente in to a countre awaye fro his brocher Jacob: for their substance was so greuous, that they coude not dwell toge ther, and the londe wher they were straungers, myghte not holde them be cause of the le goodes. So Esau brak vpon mount Seir, and dwelt in Seir.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

And Dina the daughter of Lea, which she bare unto Jacob, went out to behold the daughters of the land. When Schem the sonne of Hemor the Gentile (which was lord of the land) sawe her, he took her, and laye with her, and forced her, and his brethren ragged upon her, and he lewd & carnall, and talked longly with her, and spake to his father Hemor: Get me this mayden to wife.

And Jacob answered, that Dina his daughter was defiled, and his sisters were with the candle in the selve, and Jacob helde his tongue till they came. Then Hemor the father of Schem wente forth unto Jacob to comen with him. In the meane tyme came Jacob's sonnes from yf Jude. And when they herde hit, it grieved them, and they were very wroth, that he had broughte soley in Israel, and layn with Jacob's daughter: for so was not the use to do.

But then comen Hemor with the, and sayd: My sonne Schem hath longed for your daughter, & he hath had her to wife: make friendshepe with us, give us your daughters, and bestowe your daughters, and dwell with us, the lande shall be open unto you, dwell in it or buye, and have your possessions therein. And Schem sayde unto his father and brethren: Let me finde grace with you: let's what ye appointe me, I will geve it. And they the daye and gift of me hardely, I will geve it as ye will. And they geve him the damsell to wife.

Then Jacob's sonnes answered Schem and Hemor his father (and spake thus: because their sister Dina was defiled) & sayde unto them: What can we doe to, to geve our sister to an uncircumcised man: for that were a shame unto vs.

Circumcise we will consente unto you, if ye will be like unto vs, and be circumcised as many as are males amonge you: then will we geve you our daughters, and take your daughters unto vs, and dwell with you, and be one people. But if ye will not hearken unto vs, to be circumcised, then will we take our daughters, and go our waye.

These wordes pleased Hemor and his sonne, and he saide unto Jacob: Heare me now, for he hath lust to Jacob's daughter, and he was holden in his house above all in his father's house. Then came Hemor and Schem his sonne: and they geve of advice, and comen with the citizens of the cite, and sayde: These men are peaceable with us, and will dwell in the lande as occupiers: no man is the lande lord of both the sides, we will not kepe our daughters unto vs, and geve them unto daughters.

But then will they consente unto vs, to dwell by vs, and to be one people with vs, if we circumcise all the men dwellers amonge vs, like as they are circumcised: their cels shall be gooder, and all that they have, shall be ours, if we consente unto them, that they maye dwell with vs.

And they herkened unto Hemor and Schem his sonne, as many as were men and men in yf gate of his cite, and circumcised all the males, that wente out and in at his cite. And Jacob sayde unto Symeon and Levi: Ye have broughte me so to passe, yf I stonde before the inhabitants of this lande, yf I call names and pherses, yf I am but a small nombre: if they gather their felowes now to gather against me, they shall sle me, so shal I be destroyed with my house. But they answered: Shalt we chidele with our sister as with an whore?

Jacob dwelt in a land, wher in his father was a stranger, namely in the land of Canaan. And these are the generations of Jacob. Joseph was seventeen years old, when he became a keeper of sheeps: as he dwelt in the land of Canaan with his father. And Joseph's brethren were twelve: and Joseph was the firstborn of his father. And Joseph's brethren were twelve: and Joseph was the firstborn of his father.

Then toke they Josephs coate & stee a goat, and dypped the coate in y bloude, and sent a waye that parue deuyred coate, and caused it be brought vnto their father on sayde: This haue we founde, loke, whether it be thy sonnes coate, or no.

ma, and every dreamer had his interpreter at hand. Now in the morning to what Joseph came in vnto them, and found that theye loosed fi-fely he axed them and sayde: Why looke ye so sably at daye? They answered: We haue dreamed, and haue no man to declare it vnto vs. Joseph sayde: Interpretinge belongeth vnto God, but tell me the me.

2 Then the chief butler tolde Joseph his dream, and saide vnto him: I dreamed that there was a vine before me, which had thre branches, and it budded, grew and bare blooms, and the grapes thereof were ripe. And I had pharaohs cuppe in my hande, & redde (the grapes) and wroghte the in to 3 cuppe, and gave pharao the cuppe in his hande.

Joseph is yete. This is the interpretation. The three branches are the dayes, and other three dayes shall pharise take the, and putte in theire office agayne, that when they shall geue him the cuppe in his hande after the old manner, when thou wast his butler. Whereupon thou art in thy prosperitie, thyne enemies, and therefore by thyselfe, that thou mayest certifie pharise of Iudas, he maye bringe me one of these beuities. I was puredly caried out of the lande of the chanaan, and here also haue I done nothinge, that they shal be done vnto me in this dominion.

When the doct^r bader sawe, that the interpretacion was good, he sayde unto Josephes I benaned, that I bare the myr^r of fayth upon my head, and I sh^d be appoynted baptist all manner of bads; inuoco vnto phouo, and the scales are out of the baptist vnto my head.

Joseph answered, and sayde: This is the interpretation: The three busses are three dayes, and a fter this dayes shall pharaone die, and hang the upon the galowe, and the fowles shall eat the flesh from of it.

And upon the thirde daye it came to passe that pharao helde his .viij. birth dayes, and made a feast unto all his seruantes, and to kepe the chefe butler and the chefe baker before all his seruantes, and restored the chefe butler to his butler shipe againe, so that he reached the cuppe in to pharaoes hande. As for the chefe baker, he causeth him to be hangyd, as Ioseph had inuentured unto him. Wherefore the chefe butler thoughte now on Ioseph, but forgoe him.

The XML Chapter.

After two yeares Pharaos had a dreaime, how that he should by a water from and beholde, out of the water there came seven goodly Eyne, and seven heben, and seven sindinge in the meadowe. After these he sawe after seven Eyne came out of the water, which were small fawoured and lean, flished, and wener by the Eyne upon the water syde; and the small fawoured leane Eyne are up the seven goodly and fat Eyne. Then Pharaos awaked.

And he slepte agayne, and dreamed the second tyme. And he sawe that seven eares of come grew upon one stalk, full and good. Afterwarde he sawe seven eares blasted eares come up, and the seven thymme eares beoweth the seven greates and full eares. Then Pharao awaked, and sawe that it was a dreame. And when he was daye, his spere was troubled, and he sente out, & caused to call all the wise men in Egipte: all the wise men, and tolde them his dreame. But there was none, that coude all pharaos the interpretatione of it.

- B Then spake the chiefe butler unto pharaos, and saide: Thus saide do I remember my dreame. When pharaos was angrie with his seruantes, and put me in prison with 3 cheif butler in 3 cheif marshalls house, we dreamed both in one night eury mā his dreame, havinge his owne interpretation. Then was there with vs a yonge man an egiptie, the cheif marshalls seruante, unto whom we tolde it, and he declarede aare dreame unto vs, unto eury mā accordinge to his dreame. And as he declarede it unto vs, so came it to passe. For I was restored into my office, and he was hangid.

Then pharaos sent and called for Joseph and they let him out of the dongion. And he let himself be shaven, and changed his clothes, and came in unto pharaos. Then said pharaos unto him: I haue dreamed a dreame, and there is no man that can interpret it: but I haue herde tell of the, that thou hast heard a dreame, thou declarest it. Joseph answered pharaos, and sayde: God shall geue pharaos a prosperous answer, yet well with conscience.

- C Pharaos sayde unto Joseph: I dreamed that 3 shebe by a water side, and beholde, out of the water there came seven thyme, full fledged and goodly, and wente sidiage in 3 meadowes. And a fere them I sawe ocher fere thyme come out, thymme, well favoured, and leafy fledged. So euell favoured fere I neuer in all the lande of Egipte. And the seven leeme and euell favoured thyme, ate up the: seven full fledged thyme. And when they had eat them up, a man coude not perceiue that they had eaten them: yete as euell favoured as they were afore. Then I awaked.

And I came agayne in my dreame: sawe a carue of corn, geuynge up one stalk, full and good. A fereward there spounge up seven wysked eares, thymme and blasted, and the seven thymme eares beoweth the seven good eares. And I haue shewed it unto my ferebyers, but they can tell me nothinge thereof.

- D Joseph answered pharaos: Both pharaos dreame is one. God sheweth pharaos what he will do. The seven good thyme are seven years, and the seven good eares are seven years also. It is one dreame. The seven leeme and euell favoured thyme, that came up a fere them, are seven years. And the seven thymme and blasted eares, shall be seven years of fere. This is now the charge which I tolde pharaos, that God sheweth pharaos, what he will do.

Wherefore, there shall come seven years of greates plenty: and in 3 whole lande of Egipte, and after the same there shall come seven years of fere, so that all this plenty: and the fere shall consume the lande, so that the plenty: shall not be perceiued in the lande, because of the fere: that cometh after it, for it shall be very greace. Where a pharaos dreamed the seven dreame, it signifieth that this charge is surely prepared of God, and that God will surely bringe the same to passe.

Let pharaos now prouide for a man of understandinge & wysdome, whom he maye set over the lande of Egipte, and let him be ouer the officers in the lande, and let 3 fifth (part) of the lande of Egipte in the seven plenty: years, and gather all 3 fote: 3 shall come of the plenty: years, that they maye laye ap come vnder pharaos penne for sixteen monethes in the ciues, and let it be, 3 there maye be fode for the people: for the lande in the seven dreame years, which shall come vpon the lande of Egipte, that the lande be not destroyed of fongre. The sayenge pleased pharaos well and all his seruantes. And pharaos sayde unto his seruantes: How mighte we fynde such a man in whom is the spere of God? And he sayde unto Joseph: For so much as God hath shewed 3 all this, there is none of such understandinge & wysdome as thou.

Then shalte he be at my house, and accordinge vnto thy words shall all my people obey: as in the bynges: saie wilt I be more then thou. And he sayde: Desider, I haue set the ouer the whole lande of Egipte. And he coude of his ringe from his hande, and gaue it Joseph in his hande, and clothed him with whyte ryste, and he gaeve thyme of golde a beute his meate, and made him ryde vpon the fereconde chaire: and caused he to be proclaimed before him, that men shalde knowe that thou art unto him, as to him: and pharaos had set ouer the whole lande of Egipte.

And pharaos sayde unto Joseph: Iom pharaos: without thy will shall no man as his hande on his fore in all the lade of Egipt. And he called him Joseph. And he gave him a wife, even Asenath the daughter of Potiphar the priest of On. So Joseph was married, for to wylde the landes of Egipte. (And he was thirte years olde, when he stode before Pharaon.) And he departed from Pharaon, and wente thowen all the lande of Egipte.

And the lande byd so thost fowen plenteous yeres, and the y. schadowe all the fowde of the fowen yeres that were in the lante of Egipte, & layde it in the cities. & all the fowde fowde grewe in the felde rounde aboute every cite, they put it there. So Joseph layde up the corn in fowes, and that much aboute measure, as the fowde of the lante in so much he left it as noughtinge of it, for it coude not be consumed.

And was Joseph there were borne two sonnes before Joseph came; whom Asenath the daughter of Potiphar priest of On bare unto him. And the first called he Manasse: for God (sayde he) hath caused me to forget all my laboure, and all my fathers house. The seconde called he Ephraim: for God (sayde he) hath caused me to grewe in I lande of my trouble.

Now when f. fowen plenteous yeres were ended in Egipte, then begonne the fowen deare yeres to come, wherof Joseph had sayde. And there was dearth in all lande, but in all the lade of Egipte there was fowde. Now when the lande of Egipte began to suffer hunger alio, the people cryed unto Pharaon for bread. But Pharaon sayde unto all the Egiptians: Go unto Joseph, whome he sayde unto you, & so do. So when there was dearth in all of lade, Joseph opened all the way by him, & stode unto the Egiptians. Thus Joseph p. wylde in the lante, & all comen came to Egipte to byt at Joseph: for the dearth was mighty in all landes.

The XLiiij. Chapter.

San Jacob firme that thers was much comen in Egipte, he sayde unto his sonnes: Why gape ye? Behold, I doat that there is much comen in Egipte: go bewite & byt ye come. I have made lye, & not lye, so Joseph can becomen men & domes be come in Egipte. As for Ben Jamin & Joseph his brother, Jacob wolde not let him go & his brother, for he sayde: Some myffortune may be ppen unto him. So Joseph of Ioseph came to byt come, amongst these & comen to them: for there was dearth also in y lande of Canaan. But Joseph was gouernour in the lande, and fowde come to to all the people in the lande.

Now when his brother came to him, they fell downe to the grounde before him upon their faces. And he sawe them, & knewe the, and helde himselfe standinge towards them, and calde roughly with them, and shide vnto them. Whan he came y. they sayde: Out of the lande of Canaan art thou come. Then he shide though he knewe them, yet knewe they not him. And Joseph thought upon y. dreames that he had dreamed of them, and sayde unto them: I am Joseph, and art come to se where the lande is open.

They answered him: To my lord, thy servant art come to byt y. yeres: we are all one mannes fowes, we are unfowen, and thy fowences were many fowes, the sayde unto the. No, but ye are come to se where the lande is open. They answered him: We thy fowences are twofold broken, the fowes of emmunt in the lade of Canaan, and the y. gift in my oure father: as for me, he is now y.

Joseph sayde unto them: This is the thar I fowde unto your fowes are y. fowde by will I ppen you by the life of Pharaon ye shall not: & hence, excepte your y. gift be her come hit her. Sende amongst one of ye to fowde your brother, but yeshide in person. Thus will I se ye out y. wordes, whether ye go aboute & march on nor: for I, by the life of Pharaon ye are fowes, & And he put the together in warde the daye longe.

Upon the thirde daye he fowde unto the. If ye will hym, the daye, for I fowde fowes. If ye be unfowen, the one of your brother the fowde in ye, & ppen: for ye your waye, and I my fowde the necessity fowde, & bynge me your y. gift brother, so will I beate your wordes, that ye shall need ye. And so the y. byd.

And they fowde one to another: This have we desired against our brother, in the same the angnysh of his fowle, when he fowde the, and we wolde not beate him that fowde comen now thine fowde upon us. And he answered them, and fowde: Telle me I fowde some, when I fowde. Of fowde now agayn y. fowde, but ye wolde not beate. Now in his fowde requyrd. And they knewe not that Joseph understood it, for he turned vnto the by an mee ppen. And he turned him from them and wepte. Now when he had turned him to them agayn, and talked with them, he toke Symon from amongst them, & bounde them before their eyes, and comen dey shal chear saden & come, and to put every man money in his sack, and to geve every one his repaite by the waye. And so was it done unto them.

D And they labored there come upon this Asser, and departed thence. And when one opened his sacke, he founde his Asser piewer in the same, he spied his money in his sack mouth, and sayde unto his brethren: My money is returned agayne: lo, it is in my sack. Then they bettes sayde them, and they were asayed amonge them selua, and sayde: Where seist thou? And none of them answered.

Then when they came home to Jacob, their father in the lande of Canaan, they tolde him all that had happened unto them, & sayde: The man that is lord of the lande, spake roughly to vs, and take vs for spyers of the countrie. And when we answered: we were wylful, & were neuer spyers, but accuſed our brethren the sonnes of our father: one is awaye, and the yongest is yet this daye in our father in the lande of Canaan, he sayde: Where is my son? I marre, that ye are unfaithful: I take one of your brethren with me: take sode necessary for youre house, & go youre waye, and bringe youre yongest brother unto me: so shal I knowe that ye are no spyers, but unfaithful: shal I deliuer you youre brother also, and yet maye occupye in the lande.

E And when they opened their sackes, every man founde his handell of money in his sack. And when they and their father sawe, that it was the bundles of their money, they were asayed.

Then sayde Jacob their father: Ye have rebbed me of my children, Joseph is awaye, Simeon is awaye, and ye will take Ben Iamin awaye: Ye gooth all over me. When answered his father & sayde: If I bringe him not to the gaines, then I laye my two sonnes: deliuer him but in to my hande. I will bringe him agayne unto the. He so for me forme shal not ye downe with youe suchin brother to death, and he is left alone. If your my foreman shoulde happen unto him by the waye, ye go, ye shoulde bringe my graye horse with youe downe unto the grave.

The xliiii. Chapter.

D When all the vryales that they had broughte out of Egypte were present, Jacob their father sayde unto them: Go agayne, and bye vs a litle sode.

The Iuda answered him, and sayde: The man seare us up vs, and sayde: ye shal not se my face, excepte your brother be with you. If so be no no that thou wilt sende more sode chear with vs, we wil go downe, and bye the sode. As ye if thou wilt not sende him, we wil not go downe. For the man sayde unto us: Ye shal not se my face, excepte your brother be with you.

Israel sayde: Wherefore have ye done this? well unto me, to tell I man: that ye had yet a brother: They answered: The man enquired so straitly of vs, and of our sode, & sayde: Is your father yet a lyue? Howe ye yet a brother? Then tolde we him, as he asked us. How coulde we knowe, that he wold be laye: beyng your brother downe to you? Then sayde Iuda unto Israel his father: Let the lad go with me, that we maye geve up and take our iourney, and bye, and not bye, bech me and thou, and our child. I will be surety for him, of my hande shal thou requyte him. If I bringe him not unto the agayne, & set him before thine eyes, I will beare I blame my life longe. For if we had not made this carryinge, we had now bene come agayne emptye.

Then sayde Israel their father unto the: If I must needs be so, then do this: take of the best frutes of the lande in your sacke, and bringe the man a present: a carrey of balme, and honey, and spyce, and myrr, and dates, and almondes. Take other money with you also, and the money that now I broughte agayne in your sacke mouthen, carry it agayne with you: peradventure it was on eyght sight. And take your brother, geve you up, & go agayne unto the man. The Almightye God geve you mercy in the sight of I man, that he maye let you have your other brother, and Ben Iamin. So for me, I must be as one, that is robbed of his children.

Then they took the present, and other money with them, and Ben Iamin, and the up, and wente in to Egypte, and stood before Joseph. Then Joseph beheld them with Ben Iamin, and sayde unto the ruler of his house: Bring the these men in, and slep, & make ready, for they shal dyne with me at noon. And the man dyd as Joseph had him, & broughte the men in to Josephs house.

When they were broughte in to Josephs house, they were asayed, and sayde: We are broughte hither because of the money, that came agayne in our sackes: we are as if we were a quail with vs, and to lye in the charge to our charge, and to take vs for bondes for usages with our Assis.

Then came they to I man, that was 144 ruler of Ioseph house, and called to him as the doer, and sayde: 'Ye came downe as the first to bye fode, and whan we came in the June, and a pained our fackes, he holde, every mans money was in his sacke: muche with full weighe: thes foue have we broughte in with vs agayne, & have broughte other money with vs also, to bye fode: but we can not sell, who put our money in our fackes.'

He sayde: Be contente, feare you not, your God even I God of youre fathers hath geuen you to assure in your fackes, I had you to money, And he broughte forth Simon unto them, and led them in to Ioseph house, and gave them water to wash their feet, & gave them their Asses pender.

145 And they made readye y^e perfume, agaynst Ioseph came at noon: for they herde, y^e they shoulde fynde there. And whan Ioseph men came to the house, they broughte him home y^e perfume: thes they had, and full boorne to the gronde before him. But he welcomed them carrefully, and sayde: 'Ja youre father, (that olde man which ye tolde me of) is good health.' 'Ja he yet alive?' They answered: 'Thy seruante cometh father in in good health, and is yet alive. And they bowed them selves, and full boorne before him.

146 And he lifte up his eyes, and sawe his brother Ben Jamin his mothers sonne, and said: 'Ja this youre youngest brother, that ye tolde me of? And he sayde moreover: 'God be mercifull unto the my sonne. And Ioseph made haste for the gronde of beakers man bynded towarde his brother: and soughte how he might wepe, & wente in to his fathers, and wept there.

147 And whan he had washed his face, he wente out, and refraigned him self, and sayde: 'bied (on the table.) And they broughte him out agayn by him self, and unto them by the silens, and to the Egipcians also forth into them, by them silens. For the Egipcians bare not care to bied with the Hebrewes, that is an abhominacion unto them. And they were set out agayn by him, the first borne accordinge to his first byrth, and the youngest after his youth. They marvailed at it amonge them silens, and there were broughte them sundrye meates from his table. But Ben Jamin parte was thus cnycke more then the other. And they bowed, and were away with him.

2 The XLIII. Chapter.
And Ioseph commaunded the ruler of his house, and sayde: 'Yll the men sackes with fode, as much as they maye carry, and put every mans money in his sacke mouth, & put in y^e silver cuppe in the sacke mouth of the youngest with the money for y^e wayes. He byd so Ioseph had sayde. And on the morrow whan it was daye, they led y^e men go with their Asses.

And whan they were out of the cite, and not come farre, Ioseph sayde to the ruler of his house: 'Up, and followe a farr the we, and whan thou overtakest them, saye unto them: 'Wherfore have ye rewarded me ill for good?' 'Jo not that it, that my lord hath sayde one of: and that he prophecieth withall.' 'Jes will bene of ye, that ye have done.

148 And whan he had overtake them, he sayde the same wordes unto them. They answered him: 'Wherfore sayest my lord such wordes? God forbid, that thy seruantes shoulde do any such thinge: Beholde, the money that we founde in our fackes mouthes, that broughte us unto the agayne, one of the land of Canaan house shoulde we then have stolten rather silver or golde out of thy lordes house? I oke by whom it shall be founde amonge thy seruantes, let him bye: yet and we also will be my lordes bondmen. He sayde: 'Ja so be, as ye have spoken. I oke by whom it shall be founde, let him be my seruante, but ye shalbe handsele.

And they made haste, and toke boorne every man his sack to the gronde, and every man opened his sack: And he searched y^e baggane at the greatest unto the youngest, and the cuppe was founde in Ben Jamin sacke. Then rente they their clothes, and every man laide the turken upon his Ass, & wente agayne unto the cite. And Juda wente with his brethren unto Ioseph house (for he was there yet) and they fell before him on the gronde. Ioseph sayde unto them: 'What maner of dede is this, that ye have done? Knowe ye not, that I sayd a man as I am, can prophete?'

Juda sayde: 'What shall we saye unto my lord? to how shal we speake: and what offence shal we make?' 'God hath founde out y^e wickednesse of thy seruantes. Beholde, we and he, by whom the cuppe is founde, are my lordes seruantes. But he sayde: 'God forbid that I shoulde do so. The man by whom the cuppe is founde, shall by my seruante, but ye be up in peace unto your father.

149 He stepe Juda unto him, and sayde: 'My lord, let thy seruante speake one word: we be my lordes my lordes, be not displeyd at and maintenance, and expenses by the way, and gave them all, unto every one a change of raiment: but unto Ben Jamin he gave the purple and fine robe, and five change of raiment. As for his father, he sent him ten Asses laden with goodes out of Egypt, and ten Asses with come and barie, and vntayles for his father by 3 wayes. So he sent away his children, and sayde vnto them: Serue not by the waye.

¶ Then they departed out of Egypt, and came to the lande of Canaan vnto Jacob their father, and tolde him, and sayde: Thy sonne Joseph is yet alive, and is a lord in all the lande of Egypt. But his heart was reioysed, for he beleved them not. The tolde they him all the wordes of Joseph, which he had sayde vnto them. And when he sawe 3 charrettes char Joseph had sent to fetch him, his spirit was reioysed, & he sayde: I haue enough, thae my sonne Joseph is yet a liue. I will go, and se him, before I dye.

¶ And Jacob took his journey with all that he had. And when he came to Bethel, he offered offeringes vnto 3 God of his father Isaac. And God spake vnto him in a vision by night: Jacob Jacob, he sayde here am I. And he saide: I am fringed with God of thy father, he not afrayed to go in to Egypt, for there will I make a greace people of thee. I will go downe with thee, and will bringe thee vp also. And Joseph shall laye his hande vpon thine eyes.

¶ Then Jacob gat him vp from Bethel, and 3 children of Isaac caried Jacob their father with their children and wyues vpon the charrettes that Pharo had sent to carry him. And they toke their cattell & substance which they had gotten in the lande of Canaan, and so came in to Egypt: Jacob & all his kin with him, his children & his childrens children with him, his daughters, and the daughters of his children, & all his kin.

¶ These are 3 names of the children of Isaac, which came into Egypt, Jacob & his sonnes. The first borne sonne of Jacob: Ruben. The children of Ruben: Hanoch, Pallu, Hezon and Charmi. The children of Simoe: Jemuel, Jamin, Oshai, Jachim, Zebai and Gadi the sonne of the Canaanish woman. The child of Levi: Gerson. Cahath & Menasie. The child of Iuda: Er, Onan, Sela, Phares & Serub. But Er and Onan dyed in the lande of Canaan. The child of Phares: Herson and Hamul. The children of Jachar: Thola, Phua, Job & Semion. The children of Zabulon: Serach, Elon and Jachiel. These are the children of Lea, which she bare vnto Jacob in Mesopotamia with his daughter Dinah. These all together with sonnes & daughters make thre & thirtie soules.

¶ The children of Rachel Jacobs wife: Joseph and Ben Jamin. And when Joseph in 3 lande of Egypt were borne Manasse and Ephraim, whom Asenath the daughter of Phospher priest of On bare vnto him. The children of Ben Jamin: Bela, Becher, Ischer, Sera, Naama, Rebi, Reu, Napim, Gidon and Aro. These are the children of Rachel, which were borne vnto Jacob, seuenne soules altogether.

¶ And he sent Iuda before him vnto Joseph, to shew him the waye to Gosen. Then Joseph bended his charrette so, and wente to meete Isaac his father vnto Gosen. And when he sawe him, he fell aboue his neck, & wept vpon his neck. Then sayde Isaac vnto Joseph: I know am I content to dye, for so much as I haue seene thy face, that thou art yet alive.

¶ Joseph sayde vnto his brethren, & to his fathers he said: I will go vp, & tell Pharo, & saye vnto him: My brother and my fathers house are come vnto me out of the lande of Canaan, and are keepers of cattell (for they are men that deale with cattell) their small & greace cattell, and all that they haue, haue they broughte with them. Now if Pharo shall call you and saye: what is your occupation? then ye shall saye: Thy seruantes are men 3 haue deale with cattell from ouer yomb vp vnto this daye, we & our fathers, that yemas

him his two sonnes Manasse and Ephraim. Then was it tolde Jacob hey bed, & sayde vnto Joseph: The Almighty God appeared vnto me, at Ebro in y lande of Canaan, & blessed me, & saide vnto me: Behold, I will cause y to growe & increase, & will make a multitude of people of y, & will geue this lande vnto y, & after y for an everlastsonnes Manasse & Ephraim (which were borne vnto the in Egypte, in fore I came hi-be named with the names of thy brethren in their inheritance.

And Israel loded vpon Josephs sonnes, & sayde: What are these? Joseph answered: They are my sonnes, which God hath geuen me here. He sayde: Buryge the hither me, & I maye be blest. For I finde eyes were heavy for age, & he coude not see. And he emburied her vnto him. So he blessed them, & emburied her: And vnto Joseph: Behold, I haue seen y face, which I thought not:
Ie, God hath caused me to see y face. And Joseph take them from his lappe, and they fall downe vnto the grounde vpon their face.

Then Joseph take them both, Ephraim & in his right hande cometh Israel left hade, and Manasse in his left hande cometh Israel right hande, & brough the vnto him.
Then Israel stretch out his right hande, & layde it vpon y heade of Ephraim, & yegest his left hande vpon Manasse heade, & do so sayingly vnto his handes, see Manasse was y first borne. And he blessed Joseph, & sayde: The God before whome my fathers Abraham & Isaac haue walked: y God y hath ser-ued me, I shal longe vnto this daye, the angell which hath becomen me fr all euill, blese these lodes, & they maye be called after my name, & after y name of my fathers Abraham & Isaac, & they maye growe & multiplye vpon earth. And when Joseph sawe y his father layd y right hande vpon Ephraim hea-de, it displeased him, & he lift up his fathers hande, & remoued it fr Ephraim heade vnto y heade of Manasse, & sayde vnto him: For my fathers, this is y right hande, & y right hande vpon his heade. Therefore his father moode not, & sayde: I knowe it well, my sonne, I knowe it well, this shal be a people also, & shal be greater than yonger brother shal be greater the be, & his shal be full of people. And he blessed them the same daye, & sayde: In y shal Israel be blest, so y shal be sayde: God for the as Ephraim & Manasse.
And so he se Ephraim above Manasse.

And Israel saide vnto Joseph: Behold, I dye, & God shall be with y, & depne y in y lande of yonnes fathers. I haue geuen the a peece of lande, which I haue chosen, in which I yat with my swaier and my boure out of the hande of the Amorites.

The XLIX. Chapter.

And Jacob called his sonnes, & sayde:

Judas is a yongelion, thou art come up by my fence, for the people. He the led down and touched himself as a lion, and a lion's mane will rest him up. Exo. 11. d
Exo. 14. 1

These are the names of the children of Israel that came with Jacob into Egypt: one came in of his house, Ruben, Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Zabulon, Benjamin, Dan, Nephthali, Gad and Aser. And of all the souls that came out of the loynes of Jacob, there were threescore.

As for Joseph, he was in Egypt all ready. And when Joseph was dead, and all his brethren, and all they that were with him, the children of Israel grew, and increased, and multiplied, and became exceeding mighty, so that the land was full of them.

Then came there a new king over Egypt, which knew nothing of Joseph. And he said unto his people: Behold, the people of the children of Israel are many, and mightier than we: Let us deal wisely with them, lest they multiply, and we be overthrown, and we shall serve them. And he set governors over them, to serve them: but he set Joseph over all the land of Egypt. And he set his two sons over him, to be governors of the land.

And he set his two sons over them, to be governors of the land: one over the land of Egypt, and the other over the land of Syria. And he set his two sons over them, to be governors of the land: one over the land of Egypt, and the other over the land of Syria.

Then said he unto his people: Behold, I have set you over the land of Egypt, and you shall be governors of the land: one over the land of Egypt, and the other over the land of Syria. And he set his two sons over them, to be governors of the land: one over the land of Egypt, and the other over the land of Syria.

And the king of Egypt said unto the Egyptians: Behold, I have set you over the land of Egypt, and you shall be governors of the land: one over the land of Egypt, and the other over the land of Syria. And he set his two sons over them, to be governors of the land: one over the land of Egypt, and the other over the land of Syria.

Then the king of Egypt called the Egyptians, and said unto them: Behold, I have set you over the land of Egypt, and you shall be governors of the land: one over the land of Egypt, and the other over the land of Syria. And he set his two sons over them, to be governors of the land: one over the land of Egypt, and the other over the land of Syria.

of the Hebrews are not as the women of Egypt, for they are sturdy women: so that the Egyptians come to them, they are beloved.

Therefore God dealt well with the Egyptians. And the people multiplied, and became exceeding mighty. And so for much as the Egyptians feared God, he made them fruitful. Then Pharaoh commanded all his people and said: All the fowles that are borne, cast in to the water, but let all the dough be alive.

The ii. Chapter.

And there went forth a man of the house of Levi, and took a daughter of Levi. And the wife conceived and bare a son. And when she saw that it was a proper child, she hid him three months. And when she could hide him no longer, she took an Ark of reeds, and daubed it over with slime, and pitch, and layed the child therein, and set it among the reeds by the waters brink. And his sister stood by a fure of, to see what would come of him.

And Pharaohs daughter came down, to wash herself in the water: and his maids walked by the water side: and when she saw the Ark among the reeds, she sent one of her maids, and caused it to be fetched. And when she opened it, she saw a child: and beheld the babe wept. Then had she pity upon it, and said: This is one of the Hebrews children.

Then said she unto Pharaohs daughter: Behold, I go, and call the nurse of the Hebrews woman, to nurse the child: Pharaohs daughter said unto her: Go thy way. The maid went, and called the child Moses. Then said Pharaohs daughter unto her: Let this child, and nurse it for me, I will give thee thy reward. The woman took the child, and nursed it.

And when the child was grown, she brought it unto Pharaohs daughter, and it became his son, and she called him Moses. So she said: I took him out of the water.

Upon a time when Moses was grown, he went forth unto his brethren, and looked upon their burdens, and saw that an Egyptian smote one of his brethren a Hebrew. And he looked round about him, and when he saw that there was no man, he slew the Egyptian, and buried him in the sand.

The next day he went forth also, and saw two men of the Hebrews stry-

But Moses fled from Pharaos, and dwelt in the lande of Madian, and she him by a wells syde.

The pryncesse of Madian had seven daughters, which came to drawe water, and fylled the troughes, to geve their shepethers to drinke. Then came the shepherdes, and dronke the water. But Moses gat him up, and helpeid them, and gave their shepe to drinke. And when they came to Reged their father, he said: How came ye so soone as daie? They sayde: A man of Egypce deluyred us from the shepherdes, and drew unto us, and gave the shepe to drinke. He sayde unto his daughters: Where is he? When the LORD sawe, that he wente his way to se, God called unto him out of the bush, and sayde: Moses, Moses. He answered: Here am I. He sayde: Come not hether, put thy shoes of chy lye, for the place where upon thou stonde, is an holy ground.

And he sayde moore: I am the sonne of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses covered his face, for he was afrayd to lye upon God.

And the LORD sayde: I have sene the trouble of my people in Egypce: & I have heard their crye over thoust that oppresse them. I knowe their sorowe, and am come downe to deluyre them from the power of the Egipcians, and to carrye them out of that lande, in to a good and wyde londe, even in to a londe that floweth with mylke and hony, namely, unto the place of the Canaanites, the Chuzes, Amozites, Pherezites, Hethites, & Jebusites, for so much now is the complaine of the children of Israel, as com before me. I have sene their oppression wherewith the Egipcians oppresse them: So now I wyl save them. I wyl sende the king Pharaos, that thou mayst bringe my people the children of Israel out of Egypce. Moses sayde unto God: Who am I, that I shoulde go unto Pharaos, and bringe the children of Israel out of Egypce?

He sayde: I wyl be with thee, this shall be the token, that I have sent thee. Whan thou hast brought my people out of Egypce, ye shal see the God upon the mountayne. Moses sayde unto God: Beholde, whan I come to the children of Israel, and saye unto them: The God of your fathers hath sent me unto you, & they saye unto me: What is he name: what shal I saye unto them: God saith unto Moses: I am the what? I wyl be. And he sayde: Thus shalt thou saye unto the children of Israel: I wyl be hath sent me unto you. And God sayde moore unto Moses: Thus shalt thou saye unto the children of Israel: The LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, the God of Jacob hath sent me unto you, this is my name for ever, and my memoriall from childe to childe childe. So they wayte they fore, and gather the childe of Israel together, and saye unto them: The LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, the God of Jacob hath appeared unto me, and sayde: I have visited you, and sene what is done unto you in Egypce, and have sayde: I wyl bringe you out of the trouble of the Egypce, in to a londe of Canaanites, Hethites, Amozites, Pherezites, Hethites, & Jebusites: in to a londe that floweth with mylke and hony. And of they haue & now, then shalt thou and the childe of Israel go in to the kynge of Egypce, and saye unto him: The LORD God of f Helmes hath called me. And no garment therefrom they have in ceremony in the wilderness, f we may be sacrificed unto the LORD our God.

E And I knewe, that the Prince of Egypte would not let you go, but thou art a mighty haire. For I will stretch out myne hande, and smite the Egypte with all manner of wonders which I will do therein: after f thou shalt let you go.

A And I will give thee people stronger in the sight of the Egyptians: so that when ye go forth, ye shall not go forth empty: but every wife shall borrow of her neighbour's, and of her that is sojourning in her house, Jewels of silver and golde, and raiment: these shall ye put upon your women and daughters, and shall spoyle the Egyptians.

The iii. Chapter.

Moses answered, and sayde: Beholde, they shall not beleue me, nor heare my voice, but shall saye: The LORD hath not appeared unto thee. The LORD sayde unto him: What is f, that thou hast in thine hande? He saide a staffe. He sayde: Cast it from thee upon the grounde. And he cast it from him: then was it turned to a serpent. And Moses fled from it. But f LORDE saide unto him: Stretch forth thine hande, and take it by the taile. Then stretched he forth his hande, and took it, and it became a staffe againe in his hande. Therefore shall they beleue that f LORDE God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, f God of Jacob hath appeared unto thee.

And the LORDE sayde furthermore unto him: Thurst thine hande in to f bosome. And he thrust it in to his bosome, and toke it out: behold, the was a leper like snowe. And he set his foot in to f bosome againe. And he put it againe in to his bosome, and toke it out: behold, the was returned againe as his flesh. If they will not beleue thee, neither are f wordes of the first tyme, yet shall they beleue the voyce of the second tyme. But if they will not beleue thee, then shall I take of the water of the river, and put it upon the drye lande: so shall the same anker f thou hast cast out of f river, be turned into bloude againe f drye lande.

E And Moses sayde unto the LORDE: Oh my LORDE, I am a man f is not eloquent, from yesternight f yesterdaye, f since thou hast put f thou hast put f into my seruants mouth: f I have a slow speech, f a slow tongue. The LORDE sayde unto him: Who hath made the mouth of man? Or who hath made the deafnes, or the eyes, or the eyes, or the eyes? I have not. The LORDE bene it: Go now thy waye therefore, f I will be f thy mouth, and teach thee what thou shalt saye.

E And Moses sayde: My LORDE, I knowe whom thou wilt sende. Then was the LORDE very angrye at Moses, and saide: He is not f face: then. f thy brother Aaron the Levite is well spoken: And behold, he shall go forth to meet f f when he seeth thee, he shall receive thee from his hande. Then shall he speak unto him, and put the words in his mouth: f I will be with thy mouth, and teach thee what ye shall do: and he shall speak unto the people for thee: he shall be thy mouth, f thou shalt be his God. And take in thine hande this staffe, wherewith thou shalt smite the rockes.

Moses wote, and came againe unto f f his father in lawe, and saide unto him: Let me go f I praye thee: that I maye turne againe unto my kinsmen, which are in the lande of Egypte, and see whether they be yet alive. I have sayde unto him: Go thy waye in peace. The LORDE sayde also unto him in Midian: f f waye, turne againe in to Egypte, for f I am with thee, and thou shalt be fruitful. So Moses came with his wife, and his sonnes, and carried them upon an Ass, and wente againe in to the lande of Egypte, and toke the staffe of God in his hande. And the LORDE spake unto Moses: When thou comest againe in to Egypte, f f then be all the wonders before Pharaoh, which I have put in f hande. But I will harden his heart, f he shall not let the people go. And thou shalt saie unto Pharaoh: Thus saith f LORDE: Israel is my first borne sonne, f I have said unto thee: Let my sonne go, f he maye serve me: If thou wilt not let him go, then will I slay thy first borne sonne.

And as he was by the waye in the lande, the LORDE met him, and would have slayne him. Then tooke Pharaoh a stone, and camouflaged the flesh of his sonne, and conchid his sin, and saide: A bloody byrgme am I thou unto me. The LORDE met him. And he sayde: A bloody byrgme, because of the circumcision.

And the LORDE sayde unto Aaron: Go meet Moses in the wilderness. And he wente, and met him on the mount of God, and kissed him. And Moses tolde Aaron all the wordes of the LORDE, which had sent him: and all the tokens f he had charged him withall. And they wente, and gathered all the children of the children of Israel. And Aaron tolde all the wordes, f the LORDE had spoken unto Moses: that he toke the tokens he sent the people, the people beleue. And when they herde f the LORDE wysed the children of Israel, and lette vpon them trouble, they detored them siluer, and we shal pish.

The V. Chapter.

Afterward the wynter Moses & Aaron, & spake vnto Pharaon: Thus sayeth the LORDE the God of Israel: my people go, & they maye kepe holy daye vnto me in the wilderness. Pharaon answered: What helme is the LORDE, that I must heare his voyce, and let Israel go? I knowe not the LORDE: neither wil I let Israel go.

They sayde: The God of the Egyptians hath called vs. Let vs go no notherwise than daye for daye in the wilderness, & do sacrifice vnto the LORDE God, & there happeneth vnto vs pestilence or sword. He sayde: yf byng of all gyfte vnto the, why make ye y people chuse Moses & Aaron, to leaue their worke: for ye haue to y labour. Pharaon saide mocha: Beholde, y people serue me in y land, and yet wil ye haue them cease from their labour.

After that the same daye therfore byd Pharaon commaunde the workmaisters of the people, and theyd: Ye shal not gather and greue the people any more strawe, to lurre the byrd, as yf yesterday and yf yesterday. Let them go, and gather them strawe thym silles. And the nombor of the byrde whiche they made yesterday & yf yesterday, shal ye laye vpon them a new helme, and mynsh nothinge therof: for they are yble. Therfore crye they and saye: We wil go, and do sacrifice vnto oure God. Let the men be keppe dounne w labour, & they maye haue to be, & not to tume them silles so false wordes.

Then tume the workmaisters of the people: & theyd officers oue, & spake vnto the people: Thus sayeth Pharaon: There shal no strawe be geuen you, go yowre waye yowre silles, and get yow strawe where ye can fynde it. Woe of yowre labo: there shal nothinge be mynshed. Then were the people scattered to all y lande of Egypte, so gather stubble, that the ynghe haue strawe.

C And the workmaisters chastised them for moche, & sayde: Fullfil yf daye worke, like as we haue had strawe. And the officers of y children of Israel, whom Pharaon wold: these had serued them, were beaten, & it was saide vnto them: What for haue ye not fulfilled yf appoynted daye worke to daye and yf yesterday, like as in ymages past?

Then tume the officers of the children of Israel, & theyd vnto Pharaon: What for wil thou beate thes whiche seruauntours?

The vi. Chap.

Thy seruantes haue no strowe geuen the, & yett must we make the byrd chow are appoynted vs. And beholde, thy seruantes are beaten, & thy people are cruelly treated. Pharaon sayde: Ye are yble, yble are ye, therfore saye ye me wil go, and do sacrifice vnto the LORDE. So now ye wane therfore, & wende the shal no strowe be geuen you, but the nombor of byrd shal ye deluyce.

Then saide the officers of the children of Israel, & it was not amended, for it was sayde: yf shal mynsh nothinge of the daye mynsh of the byrd. And whan Moses & Aaron wente from Pharaon, they came forth to meete them, & saye vnto them: The LORDE telle vpon you, & let ge it, for ye haue made the nature of vs to synne be fore Pharaon and his seruantes, and haue greued them a swete in their handes, so slaye vs.

But Moses came agayne vnto the LORDE, and sayde: LORDE, what for dealest thou so cruel w this people? Wherfore hast thou sent me: for since the tyme that I wente in vnto Pharaon, as I spake vnto him in thy name, he hath deale cruel w this people, and thou hast not deluyced y people. The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: I knowe shal thou synne, I wil do vnto Pharaon, for thou art a mightie hande must he lurre them go, thou art a mightie hande must he dreye them from him out of his lande.

The VI. Chapter.

After that God spake vnto Moses, & sayde: I wnto him: I am y LORDE, & I appoynted vnto Abraham, Isaac & Jacob an Almyghtie God: his my name. LORDE, haue I not shewed vnto them: My couenaunt also haue I made wch them, that I wil geue them the lande of Canaan, the lande of their pilgrimage, wherein they haue bene strangers. Moreover I haue beate the couenaunt of the children of Israel, whom y Egyptians oppresse wch labour, and haue tume which my couenaunt.

Therefore saye vnto the child of Israel: I am the LORDE, & wil bringe you out from yf bondage in Egypte, & wil rdyd you from yowre labour, and wil deluyce you thow a stretched out arme: & yowre indignites, and wil reauce you for my people, & wil be yf God: so that ye shal lurre me, that I the LORDE am yf God, which bringe you out from the burthen of Egypte, and wil bringe you in to the lande, whiche I haue sayd: I haue lift up my hande, so geue it vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, & same wil I geue vnto you for a possession. I the LORDE.

¶ Mosese tolde this unto the chylde of Israel. But they hardened not unto him, for they sayng was of spake for fou labour. The spake the LORD vnto Mosese, & sayde: What sayest thou, & speakest vnto Pharaos the kynge of Egypte, for hee the chylde of Israel goeth of his lande. But Mosese spake before of LORD, & saide: Beholde, I chylde of Israel heret nor vnto me, hee shalbe Pharaos the hearer me: And I am also of vncircumcised nose.

So the LORDE spake vnto Moses & Aaron, & gaue the a commaundment vnto the childre of Israel, & vnto Pharao the kynge of Egypte, that they shoulde brynge the childre of Israel out of Egypte.

mānded chens. And Moses was fourscore year old, z Aaron chens z four score years old, when they spak vnto pharao. And z LORDS sayd vnto Moses z Aaron: Wchut pharao synch vnto y: Ehen your vnto ben chens thei chens fye vnto Aaron: Take thy staff, an cast it befor pharao, z it shal turne to a serpen.

Then wote Moshe & Aaron in vnto phara 2, & dyd as the LORDE commanded them.
 And Aaron cast his staff before phara 2, & he forsooke his seruantes, & it turned to a serpent.
 Then phara called for his wysemen & So cietiers. And the Societiers of Egypte alle dyd like wyse with thei Societiers, and eu ry one cast his staff before him, & they turned vnto serpentes. But Aarons staffe deuoured thei staffes. So pharaus hart was harde ned, and he heeded not vnto them, cun as the LORDE had sayde.

And the LORDE sayd vnto Moses: The heart of Pharaos is hardened, he refuseth to let y^e people go. See y^e vnto Pharaos in the mornynge, he bowed he shal come vnto y^e water, nicke the v^e him vnto the waterz bynde, y^e of the Egyptians hath sent me vnto the, y^e in beth y^e worde: Let my people go, that they maye serue me in the myddes: but they to chos weldest not heare.

Temerous shal this token come to passe.

And the LORDE byd so. And there came perious cruel women into Pharao house, into his seruantes houses, & upon all the lande of Egypte: and theye were married with yonge women.

S The called Pharao for Moses & Aaron, & sayde: So yd maye, & do sacrifice unto yd God in y lande. Moses sayde: It is not meete, y ne shalbe so doo, so shalbe we offer y abhorreacion of y Egipcians vnto the LORDE of God. Deholde, yf we shalbe offer the abhorreacion of y Egipcians before thee eyes, shalbe they not stone vs? This daye leauey will we go in the wyldernes, and do sacrifice vnto the LORDE our God: like as he hath sayde vnto vs.

Pharao sayde: I will let you go, yf ye will do sacrifice vnto the LORDE yd God in the wyldernes: onely yf ye gane sacrifice y praye for me. Moses sayde: Deholde, when I am come fith from y, I will praye vnto y LORDE, yf the cruel women maye be taken from Pharao, y from his seruantes, & fro his people, euen euen: onely because me moue, that thou wilt not let the people go to do sacrifice vnto the LORDE.

And Moses make out from Pharao, and prayed vnto the LORDE. And the LORDE byd so. Moses sayde, & toke awaye the cruel women from Pharao, from his seruantes, and from his people, so yf there remained none. But Pharao hardened his heart: and then all o, and let not y people go.

The ix. Chapter.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Go in len Pharao, and speake vnto him. Thus I saye the LORDE God of y Hebrewes: let my people go, y they maye serue me. If thou wilt not, but holde them longer, beholde, the hande of the LORDE shal be vpon thy cattell in the felde, vpon horses, vpon asses, vpon camels, vpon oxen, vpon sheepe: each a very fast pestilence. And y LORDE shall make a diuision betwene the cattell of the Hebrewes & the Egipcians, so yf he be shal not bringe by of all that the diuision of Ihsad beu. And y LORDE appoynted a tyme, and sayde: Temerous shal the LORDE do by the vpon earth.

And the LORDE byd the same on the morrow. And there byd of all manner of cattell of the Egipcians: but of y cattell of y child of y Ihsad there dyed not one. And Pharao sawe that, & beholde, there was not one of the race of y Ihsad dead. But Pharao was hardened, so y he let not y people go. Then sayde y LORDE vnto Moses & Aaron: Take youre handes full of ashes out of the furnace, & let Moses spredde it toward heauen before Pharao, that it maye be dust in all the lande of Egypte, & that there maye be sore & mayne vpon men & vpon cattell in all the lande of Egypte.

And they toke ashen out of y furnace, & stode before Pharao, & Moses spredde it toward heau. Then were there sore and mayne vpon men & vpon cattell, so that the Soicerres might not stand before Moses by reason of the sore. So there were sore vpo the Soicerres as well as vpon all the Egipcians. But the LORDE hardened Pharao heart, so that he hardened not vnto them, eue as the LORDE had sayde vnto Moses.

Then sayde the LORDE vnto Moses: Set the vpon tomorrow by tyme, & stand before Pharao, & speake vnto him: Thus sayeth y LORDE God of the Hebrewes: let my people go, y they maye serue me, else will I at this tyme sende all my plagis in to this land, & vpon thy seruantes & vpon thy people: that thou mayest knowe, y there is none like me (as all looke). For I will now stretch out my hande, & smyte the y by people w pestilence, so yf thou shalt be coued out from the earth. Yet haue y sterch y vp for this cause, euen to shew my power vpon y, & to shewe my name mighte be declared in all landes.

Thou holdest my people yet, & wilt not let them go, beholde, some tyme hence this tyme will I cause a mighty greete hayle to rayne, such as hath not bene in the lande of Egypte, since the tyme that it was gouerned, hitherto. And now sende theen, & thou thy cattell, & all y thou hast in the felde: for all men & cattell that shalbe founde in the felde, & not brought in to the houses, yf the hayle fall vpon them, they shall dye. Now who so feared the word: of the LORDE, o monge Pharao seruantes, caused his seruantes & cattell to flye in to the houses: but those who had not regard to the word of y LORDE, left their seruantes and cattell in the felde.

Then sayde the LORDE vnto Moses: Stretch out thy hande toward heau, that it maye hayle vpon all the lande of Egypte, vpon men, vpon cattell, & vpon all herbes of the felde in the lande of Egypte. So Moses stretched out his staff toward heauen, and the LORDE caused it to thunder & hayle, so yf the fustanne a longe vpon the earth. Then the LORDE hayled & rayned vpon the lande of Egypte, so that the hayle & fustanne laye boord y together, as never was in all the la sch as is male. The firstborne of the Asse shal thou bye out with a shepheard yf thou redeeme it not, then breake his neck. All the firstborne of men amonge thy children shal thou redeeme.

And when thy childer aske the of date of tyme to me: What is this? Thou shal so say vnto him: The LORD broughte me out of Egypte from the house of bondage w a mighty hande: for when Pharaos mas lech to let vs go, the LORD shew all the firstborne in the lande of Egypte, from the firstborne of men vnto y firstborne of the cattell; therefore offer I vnto the LORD all that beatech y in thine hande, and y firstborne of my children I redeeme. And this shal be a signe vnto the in thine hande, and a token to thine eyes upon behest thine eyes, how that the LORD broughte vs out of Egypte with a mighty hande.

Now when Pharaos had lech y people go, God lech thyn not the wye thou oost the lode of the Philistynes, which was y waye: for he thowghen: The people maye repe, and they wotte, and so tyme in a gonne into Egypte. Therefore lech be the people obede, open the waye thowm the wilderness by y road se. And the childer of Israel wote that they had passed out of the londe of Egypte. And Moyses toke Josephs bones with him, for he to be as oost of the childer of Israel, and sayde: God w yll surely wysse you, therefore carry amonge my bones with you from hence.

So they toke their iourney from thence, and pitched their ctee in Etham in y age of the wilderness. And y LORD wote before the by daye in a pillar of a cloude, to lech the y night was yea and by night in a pillar of fyre, that he might shew the light to walke by daye and by night. The pillar of the cloude departed neuer from the people by daye, and the pillar of fyre departed not from the by night.

The XIII. Chapter.

Unto the LORD spake unto Moyses, and sayde: Speake vnto the childer of Israel, and byd them that they tyme aduance, y pitch their tentes before the waye of Syroth, betwixt Migdol and the sea towards Walapheh, and there pitch y tentes righte euer by the sea. For Pharaos shall saye of the childer of Israel: They can not tell how to get out of the londe, the wilderness hath shut them in. And I will harden his heart, y he shal folowe after them, and I will put me before vpon Pharaos, and upon all his power. And y Egyptians shal knowe, y I am the LORD. And they dyde.

D And when it was colde þe kinge of Egyp-te, þe þe people fleth, he her þe his seruantes were turned agaynst þe people, & saide: Why haue we done this, that we haue let Israel go, þe they shalde not serue vs: And he downe de his charrettes fast, and cote his people w him, and cote hise hande chesen charrettes, and the other charrettes besyde these were in Egypce, and the captyues ouer all his: for the LORDE hardened þe hart of Pharaon kynge of Egypce, that he folowd after the children of Israel. And the children of Israel were one with an oþer hande.

C And the Egipcians folowed after the, & overtok the, where they had pitched by þe sea: with hoises and charrettes, and hoisins, and with his power, in the valley of Syraih towards Baal Zephon. And when Pharaon came nye them, the children of Israel lift vp their eyes, and beholde, þe Egipcians were behinde the, and they were fere a fraye, and cried vnto the LORD.

B And sayde vnto Moses: Were there no graves in Egypce, þe thou hast broughte vs awaye to dye in the wilderness? Wherefore hast thou done this vnto vs, that thou hast broughte vs out of Egypce? Is not this, that we sayde vnto the in Egypce: Let vs see the face of the LORD: for it were better for vs to serue the Egipcians, then to dye in the wilderness? Moses sayde vnto the people: Feare you not, stande still, and beholde, whate a salacion the LORDE shal shewe vpon you this daye: for the Egipcians whom ye se this daye, shall ye see it more for euere: the LORDE shal fight for you, onely ye see yore selues.

D The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Wherefore criest thou vnto me? Speake vnto þe children of Israel, þe they go forwarde. But lift thou epe þe staffe, & stretch out thine hande ouer þe sea, & parte it asunder, þe the children of Israel maye go in thowen þe myddel of it vpon the drye grounde. Beholde, I will harden þe hart of the Egipcians, þe they shall followe after you. Thus sayd I yet: when were vpon Pharaon, & vpon all his power, vpon his charrettes and hoisins: and the Egipcians shal knowe, that I am þe LORDE, when I haue gouerned my hande vpon Pharaon, vpon his charrettes, and vpon his hoisins.

E Then the angell of God þe wente before the armie of Israel, remoued, and gaue him bedynde the: and the cloudy piler remoued also from before them, and stode behinde the, and came betwixte the armie of the Egip-ciens and the armie of Israel. It was a bardes doode, and gaue lighte that night, so that all the night longe they and they coude not come together.

Moses now stretched forth his han-de ouer þe sea, the LORDE caused it to passe awaye vpon a mighty easie ynde all that night, and made the sea drye, and þe waue besyde it was as a fender. And the children of Israel wente in thowen the myddel of þe sea vpon the drye grounde: and þe water was an to them as a wall, vpon their right hande & vpon their left. And þe Egipcians folowed, & went in after the, all Pharaons hoises, & cha-rettes, & hoisins, and in to þe myddel of þe sea.

¶ When the morninge was come, the LORDE looked vpon the armie of the Egipcians ouer the piler of fire and þe cloudye, & troubled their armie, and smote the wheles from their charrettes, & smothered them w a flame. Then sayde the Egipcians, Let vs flee from Israel, the LORDE fighteth for the agaynst the Egipcians.

¶ But þe LORDE saide vnto Moses: Stretch þe thine hande ouer the sea, that þe water maye come agayne vpon the Egipcians, vpon their charrettes, and hoisins. Then Moses stretched out his hande ouer the sea, and the sea came agayne before daye on his course and strength, and the Egipcians fled agaynst it. Then the LORDE ouer-threw them in the myddel of the sea, so that the water came agayne, and couered þe reeces and hoisins, and all Pharaons power which folowed after them in to the sea, so that there remayned not one of them. And the children of Israel wente drye thew the myddel of the sea, and the water was vnto them as a wall vpon their right hande and

¶ Then the LORDE dede vnto Israel in þe daye from the hande of the Egipcians. And they sawe the Egipcians deed vpon þe sea be, and the greete hande þe LORDE dede shew vpon the Egipcians. And þe people

I will singe Moses and the childen of Israel thus songe unto the LORDE, and saye you

I will singe unto y^e LORDE, for he hath done gloriously. Howe it chaunceth he ever chaunce in the fe.

The LORDE is my strength, and my son ge. and he becomen my saluacion.

This is my God, I will magnifie him: he is my father's God, I will exalte him.

The LORDE is the right he man of warre, LORDE is his name. The chaunces of pharao to his power hath he cast in to the see.

Howe often carpien was it comen in the red see, y^e depe hath covered them they self to the ground as a stone.

Thy right hande (LORDE)s glorious in power: thy right hande (LORDE) hath slayen the enemies.

And with thy great glory thou hast destroyed thine adversaries: thou hast broken y^e might: it is consumed them, even as stubble.

In the burch of thy might the waters fall together, the floodes wene upon a heape: The depe hath covered together in y^e myd-dest of the see.

The enemies thought: I will followe upon them, and overtake them, and destroye y^e they be, and cast my name upon them.

I will beate out my fowles, and my ban-des shall destroye them.

Thou bleasest with thy might, the see co-mend them, and they sende downe as lead in the myghtie waters.

LORDE, who is like unto the name of y^e goddess: Who is so glorious in his yere, fear full, terrible, and doinge wonders:

When thou stretchest out y^e right hand be, the earth swallowed them up.

Thou of y^e very mercy hast led this people, whom thou hast destroyed, and with y^e strength thou hast brought them unto the dwelling of thy Sanctuary.

When y^e nations herbe this, thy enemyes, forwe come upon the pharao men.

Thou wast y^e prince of wisdom after y^e men: thyng come up y^e mightie of Moses, and all the inhabitants of Canaan weare fowles hated.

Let fowles and verbes fall upon them: cho-use thy great arm, that they maye be as styll as a stone: till thy people (LORDE) be gone chosen, till y^e people whom thou hast gotten, be gone chosen.

The xvi. Chap. Exo. xxx.

Bringe them in, with plants there upon the mountain of thy inheritance, unto y^e place that thou hast made for thyne own dwelling: as thou sayest (LORDE) which thy hande hath purposed.

The LORDE shall be thyng for ever y^e ever.
For pharao wente in to the sea with his armies, and chaunced, and he smen, and the LORDE made the see fall agayne upon them.

But the children of Israel were drye the reer: the mydest of the sea.

And Miriam the prophetesse, Baron sister, toke a cythar in her hande, and all the women followed out to meet her with cythars in a dance. And Miriam sange to the LORDE as she saye: singe unto the LORDE, for he hath done gloriously: man and beast hath be comen thence in the sea.

Moses canied the children of Israel to be parten out from the red see, unto the myd-dest of Exo. y^e they remembred howe in y^e sea barnes, y^e they founde no water. Then came they to Madian, but they coude not drinke y^e water for bitterness, for it was very bitter.
Then Moses was called Madian, y^e is better now. Then y^e people murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron: What shal we drynke? And Moses said unto y^e LORDE, which sheweth him a well: he put in y^e water, and it was sweet.

Then he made the floure, and a lawe, and respect them, and saye: Howe thou wilt hasten unto the voyce of y^e LORDE y^e God, y^e so that which is righte in his sight, and gene care unto his commandmentes, y^e he all his statutes thou sayest I laye upon y^e nome of the softnesse: that I laye upon it: I give in, for I am the LORDE thy saviour.

The xvi. Chapter.

I will chuse unto Elim, where there was two twelve wellles of water, and there they rested by y^e water: from Elim they toke their journey, and the whole congregation of the children of Israel came in to the wil-dernes of Sin (which lyeth betwene Elim and Sinai) upon the fyfth daye of the sonne moneth, a fere that they were departed out of the lande of Egipte. And y^e wole moderate of the children of Israel mumured agaynst Moses and Aaron in y^e well barnes, and saide unto them: Would God we had be in the lande of Egipte by the han-de of the LORDE, when we saye by y^e fleshy potter, and had had ynough on eaten: for y^e hand brought us out in to this wilderness, we can-

¶ Just sayne you had from heauen, and let the people go out, and gather daylye, what they need, that I maye knowe whether they walk in my lawe or noe. But upon the fyfte daye they shal prepare the floure, that they maye bringe in myse as much as they gather daylye.

D ¶ Moyses and Aaron sayde vnto all the chyl dren of Israel: As euen ye shall knowe, that the LORDE hath broughte you out of the lode of Egypte, and in the morninge shall ye see the glory of the LORDE: for he hath ordeyned your gravingge a gainst the LORDE. For what are we, that ye grudge a gainst us?

R. m. 11. d.

¶ Moyses sayde moche: At euen shall the LORDE graue you fleshy to eat, and in the morninge beed yownghe to cast. ¶ LORDE hath ordeyned your gravingge, that ye haue grudge a gainst him. In what are we? Your murmuringe is not agaynst vs, but agaynst the LORDE. And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron: Speake vnto the whole multitude of Israel, that they shall beede your gravingge. ¶ In what are we? Your murmuringe is not agaynst vs, but agaynst the LORDE. And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron: Speake vnto the whole multitude of Israel, that they shall beede your gravingge.

C ¶ And Moyses Aaron spake thus vnto the whole congregation of the chyl dren of Israel, they turned them toward the wyndeste: and beholde, the glory of the LORDE appeared in a clowde, and the LORDE sayde vnto Moyses: I haue ordeyned the murmuringe of Israel vnto you. Tell them: At euen shall ye haue fleshy to eat, and in the morninge shall ye be fylled with beed, ye shall knowe, that I am the LORDE your God.

¶ And as euen the quail came vp, and covered the campe: and in the morninge the beed laye rounde about the campe. And when the beed was fylled, beholde, there laye a change in the wilderness, thyme and small, as the hoefost upon the grounde.

¶ And when the chyl dren of Israel sawe it, they sayde one to another: This is the LORDE. For they seist not what it was. But Moyses sayde vnto them: It is the beed that the LORDE hath geuen you to eat. This is it that the LORDE

DE hath commaunded: Every one gather for himself as much as he can geth, and take a wombe for every beede, accordinge to the number of the soules in his tent.

¶ And the chyl dren of Israel byd hand gathered some more, some lesse. But when it was measured one with another, it was that they gathered much, had more the more: and he that gathered litle, wanted nothinge, but every one gathered for himself, as much as he coude. And Moyses sayde vnto them: Let no man leaue oughte of it vntill the morninge. But they heerd not vnto Moyses. And some left of it vntill the morninge. Then wroth the LORDE against Moyses and Aaron. And Moyses was agrie at them.

¶ And every morninge they gathered for them fleshy, as much as every one needed as soone as it was to beate of the same, it was eaten away. And upon the sixth daye they gathered euen as much of fleshy, as they needed for one. And all the rulers of the congregation came in, and tolde Moyses. And he sayde vnto them: This is it, that the LORDE hath sayde: Tomorrow is the Sabbath of the holy rest of the LORDE: lette whar ye will do, that daye and whar ye will fish, that fish, and that remayne ouer, let it remayne, for it maye be kepte vntill the morninge. And they let it remayne vntill the morow. ¶ Moyses commaunded. Then stande it no more, was there any woman there. The sayde Moyses: Lette that to daye, for to daye is the Sabbath of the LORDE: to daye shall ye fynde no me in the fild. Sixe dayes shall ye gather it, but the seventh daye is the Sabbath, wher in there shall be none.

¶ But vpon the seventh daye there was none of the people to gather, and founde nothinge. Then sayde the LORDE vnto Moyses: How longe refuse ye to heare my commaundmentes and lawes? Beholde, the LORDE hath geuen you the Sabbath, that you vpon the sixe daye be gathered you beed for two dayes: therefore let every man now be at home, and no man go forth of his place vpon the seventh daye.

¶ So the people rested vpon the seventh daye. And the house of Israel called it Sabbath, and it was like the Sabbath of the LORDE, and it was a trespasse synnfull with hony.

¶ And Moyses sayde: This is it that the LORDE hath commaunded: Till a woman there to be kepte for your posterities, the thyme of the bird, wherewith I fed you, when I broughte you out of the land of Egypte. And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron: Take a crane, and a put a Comm full of Men therein, and laye it up before the LORD, to be kept for you in posterities, as the LORDE commaunded Moses. And Aaron laye it up there for a testimony to be kept.

b And the children of Israel ate man fourteene yeares, tyll they came vnto a lande, where people dwellemen vntyll they came to y borders of the lande of Canaan: as they Moses. And Gomor is the certy parre of an ephra.

The XVII. Chapter.

a When the whole multitude of the children of Israel were out of thei iourneys out of the wilderness of Sin (as the LORDE commaunded the y) pitched in Apsidi. And when had the people no water to drynke. And they chode w^t Moses, & sayde: Thus saith the LORD, I will drye the water oute of the lande. And when the people thyr-sted there for water, they murmured agaynst Moses, & sayde: Wherefore hast thou caused us to come out of Egipte: to lye vs, ouer children, and ouer cattell bye of thonges?

b Moses cried vnto the LORD, and sayde: What shal I do vnto people: They are all moost ready to stoneme. The LORDE saide vnto him: Go before the people, & take of the elders of Israel stony, & sette in the m water thy staff, wherewith thou smocest the water, and ge the m. And heholde, I will stande there before the upon a rock in Sorah: where shall thou smyte the rocke, so shall there water come out, that the people maye drynke. Moses byd so before the elders of Israel. Then was that place callen Mossi Ment, because of the drynginge of the children of Israel, and because they templed y LORD. And sayde: Is the LORDE among ge vs or not?

c Then came Amalek, & fought agaynst Israel in Raphidim. And Moses sayde vnto Jesus: Chose vs out men, go out, & fight agaynst Amalek, tomorrow wil I stande vpon the toppe of the hill, & haue y staff of God in my hande. And Joshua byd an Moses habe him, & fought agaynst Amalek. Moses & Aaron & his brethren went up to y toppe of the hill. And when Moses held up his hande, Ji-sah had the victory: when he let downe his hande, Amalek had the victory.

But Moses hande was weary, therefore to ke they a stone, & leyed it vnder him, that he might sye vpon it. And Aaron & his brethren up his hande, the one vpon the one syde, and the other vpon y other syde. So his hande was set fast vnto y Sonne vnto downe.
And Joshua discomfited Amalek, & his people throughte the edge of the swerde.

a And y LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Whye thou for a remembrance in this, & comeyte it vnto y eares of Joshua: for I will rote out Amalek from vnder heauen: so that he shall nomore be remembred. And Moses buyded an altar vnto the LORD, & called it The LORDE My Help, for he sayde: The han-dye of the LORDE shal be agaynst Ama-lek: thowen an hande vnder the defence of God from childe to childe to childe.

LORDE, which hath deliuered you from the hande of the Egyptians and of Pharaoh, (and) that knoweth how to deliuer his people from the Egyptians hande. Now I knowe, that the LORDE is greater the all goddes, because they beate proudly wth them. And Iudas code himselfe for paynes, and offered unto God. Then came Aaron and all the elders of Israel to see him with Moses father in lawe: befall God.

E On the next morrowe saw Moses to iudge the people, and the people stood as dead about Moses from the morning vntill y^e euen. But when his father in lawe sawe all that he dyd wth the people, he sayde: What is this, that thou doest wth the people? Wherefore standest thou alone, and all the people stand aboute from the morninge vntill the euen? Moses answered him: The people came to mee, and counselled at God: for when they heare saye things to be, they come unto me, that I maye iudge betwixt every one & his neighbour, and sheweth them the statutes of God, and his lawes.

His father in lawe sayde unto him: I knowe well what thou doest. Thou receivest thy self, and the people that is wth the. This busynesse is to sore for thee, thou canst not performe it alone. But hearken vnto my voyce, I will geue thee counsell, and God shall be wth the. Be thou vnto the people as God warde, and bringe the cause before God, and present them wth statutes and lawes, that thou mayest shewe the the man wherein they shalbe wth the, and the wth the that they shalbe do.

But let vs amonge all the people, for honest men, that are from Gad, such as are true, & have conuersions: make the rulers ouer them, some ouer thousandes, some hundredes, some fiftie, and ouer ten, that they maye be alwaye iudges to the people. But where there is any greuous matter, that they bringe the same vnto the, and iudge the small causes them selues: so shall it be lighter for the. If thou heare the further wth the. If thou shaldesto this, then mayest thou vnto the thinge that God chargeth the wth the, and all the people maye go peaceably wth the their place.

Moses hearkened vnto the voyce of his father in lawe, and dyd all that he sayde. And he chose honest men out of all Israel, and made them heades ouer the people, some ouer thousandes, some hundredes, some fiftie, and ouer ten, that they might alwaye iudge the people. As for such causes as were hard, they brought them vnto Moses, and iudged the small matters them selues. So Moses let his father in lawe departe vnto his owne londe.

The XIII. Chapter.

In the thirde moneth after that the children of Israel were gone out of Egypt, the londe of Egypt, they came the same dayes to the wilderness of Sinai: for they were departed from Raphidim, and wolde in to the wilderness of Sinai: and there they pitched in the wilderness ouer against the mount. And Moses wente up vnto God.

And the LORDE called vnto him out of the mount, and sayde: Thou shalt the daye vnto the house of Jacob, and call the children of Israel: for I have bene wth the Egyptians, and I have bene wth you wth the Egyptians wynges, & brought you vnto my self: & ye will hearken vnto wth my voyce, and hearken my couenaunt, ye shal be myne amonge before all people: for the whole earth is myne: and ye shall be vnto me: a p^{er}fectly Kingdome, and an holy people. These are the wordes that thou shalt say vnto the children of Israel.

Moses came and called for the elders of the people, and layde before them all the wordes, that the LORDE had com^{mand}ed. And all the people answered together, and sayde: All that the LORDE hath sayde, we will do.

And Moses tolde the members of the people vnto the LORDE agayne. And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Beholde, I will come vnto the in thre dayes, that the people maye heare my voyce, which I speake vnto the, and beate the forer. And Moses shewed the wordes of the people vnto the LORDE.

The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Go vnto the people, and saye vnto the: to daye and tomorrowe, ye shall rest: for the daye is ready agaynst the thre dayes: for upon the thirde daye shall the LORDE come downe vpon mount Sinai: before all the people. And sitte vnto the: for the people, and saye vnto them: Beholde, that ye go not up vnto y^e mount, nor touch y^e border of it: for whoso euer caughth y^e border, shall be y^e death. The XXXIIII. Chapter.

Deu. 34. 1
Deuote the LORD thy God, and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and the sister elern of Iste, and worshippe before of. But let thei see only comen vnto the LORD, and let not them come nye, and let not the people also come vnto with him.

How came and tolde the people of the murder of the LORD, and all the men. Thou answered all the people with one voyce, and sayde, All that wordes that the LORD hath sayde, we will doe.

Then came Moses to all the wordes of the LORD, & gaue him up by hymne unto the LORD, & buylded an altare vnder the mounte, & set vp two stone pillars, according to the enuoye cryes of Israel, & sent wordes to the children of Israel, to offer burnt offerings, and peace offerings, & shew of bullockes unto the LORD.

And Moses toke the half parte of the bloude, and put it in a basin, the other half sprent he vpon the altare: & toke the hebes of the countenaynt, & eted in the eares of the people. And when they had sayde, All that the LORD hath sayde, we will doe, & hearken vnto his voice: toke the bloude, & sprented it vpon the people, & sayde, Beholde, this is the bloude of the countenaynt that the LORD hath made betwixt vs vpon all these wordes.

Then came Moses & Aaron, Nadab & Abihu, & the seventy elders of Israel vp, & stode before the LORD. Under his feet was like a stone worke of Sapphyre, & as the sight of heauen, which is clear, & he was not vnder vnto the pynell of Israel. And when they had sene God, they ate & dranke.

And the LORD sayde vnto Moses, Some meate vnto me vpon the mount, & ramayne there, & I will gaue thee the tables of stone, & I will write vnto thee commaundementes, & I will write vnto which thou shalt teach the. Then Moses gaue him vp, & his minister Josua, & wente up into the mount of God, & sayde vnto the elders: Tarry ye here, vntill we come to you againe: be holie, & Aaron and hee are with you, yf any man haue a matter to do, let him bring it vnto them.

Now when Moses came in to the mount, a clowde covered the mount, & the glory of the LORD abode vpon mount Sinai, & covered it with the clowdes & dayes, & vpon the seventh daye he called Moses out of the clowde. And the vision of the glory of the LORD was a like a consuming fire vpon the toppe of the mount in the sight of the children of Israel. And Moses went in to the myddes of the clowde, and ascended vp in to the mount, and abode vpon the mount foure dayes, & four dayes nyghten.

The xxv. Chapter.

And the LORD called to Moses & sayde, Speake vnto the children of Israel, & they shall make me an hene offering, & take the same of every man, that hath a fre willinge heart thereto. And this is the hene Ony stones & no sylke for the euerdaye coate, & for the brethelappe.

And they shall make me a Sanctuary, that I may dwell amonge them. Like as I shall stonde in a parsonage of the habitation, and of all the ornamentes therof, so shall ye make it.

Make an Arke of sycamore tree cubytes 2 & a half longe, a cubyte & a half brode, and a cubyte & an half hie: & this shall thou overlay with pure golde within & without, & make an hye vnto it a crowne of golde round aboute, and cast foure rynges of golde, & put them in the foure corners of it, so that two rynges be vpon the one syde, and two vpon the other syde. And make staves of sycamore, & overlay them with golde, and put them in the rynges alonge by the spaces of the Arke, to beare it withall: & they shall abyde still in the rynges, & shall not be taken out. And in the Arke thou shalt laye the testamente, that I will geue thee. Upon the make make a table of pure golde, two cubytes and a half longe, and a cubyte & a half brode.

And thou shalt make two Cherubynes of beaten golde vnto both sides of the table of Mercyse, & the one Cherub maye be vpon the one ende, & the other vpon the other ende, & so to beare the Cherubynes vpon the endes of the Mercyse. And the Cherubynes shall spread out their wynges ouer the hye, & they maye couer the Mercyse with their wynges: & they shall be as the faces of the Mercyse.

And thou shalt kepe the Mercyse above vpon the Arke. And in the Arke thou shalt laye the testamente, that I shall geue thee. From the place wher I testifie vnto thee, & call thee with the name of the Mercyse: & the Mercyse shall be vnto the Arke of Mercyse of all that I will commaunde thee vnto the children of Israel.

Thou shalt make a table also of sycamore tree, two cubytes longe, and one cubyte brode, and a cubyte and a half hie, and overlaye it with pure golde, and make a crowne of golde round aboute it, and an overlaye of an helle be helle hye, and a crowne of golde vnto the wynges rounde aboute.

The ii. base of Moses.

And unto it thou shalt make foure rynges of golde, on the foure corners in the foure feet of in harden vnder the wyndowes shall the rynges be, so put in staves and so beare the table wth silk: and thou shalt make the staves of yfure tre, & ouerlaye them with golde, & the table may be borne thurwith.

These spale matres also be diffused, spone poones, and flat peeces of pure golde, to poure out and in. And upon the table then shalt all these be shewred before me.

Syme names upon the one stone, and the syke ether names upon the other stone according to the order of their age. This shalt thou do by the stonegraver that grave signaces, so that 3 stones with the names of the children of Israel to be set rounde abowme with golde: and thou shalt put them upon the two shuldres of the euerbody core, that thare they maye be stones of remembrance for the children of Israel, that Aaron maye beate their names upon both his shuldres before the LORDE for a remembrance.

And thou shalt make thymmen beches, to cover the flesh of their premities, from the loynes vnto their thytes. And Aaron and his sonnes shall haue them so, when they go in to the Tabernacle of wyntest, or go vnto the altare to mynistre in the holy, that they beare not their synne, and dye. This shalbe a perpetual custome for him, and his seed after him.

The XXX. Chapter.

This is it also, that thou shalt do unto them, that they may be consecrated priests unto me. Take a younge bullocke, and two rammes without blemish, unleavened bread, & unleavened cakes myrris wth oyle, and waferes of sweete bread tempered wth oyle: Of whicher flowers shalt thou make them all, and put them in a maulde, & drynge them in the maulde, with the bullocke & two rammes.

And thou shalt bringe Aaron & his sonnes wth the bove of the Tabernacle of witness, & wash them wth water, & take the garments, and put upon Aaron the albe and the myrris, & the ouer body coate, & the busse-lapped of ouer body coate, & shalt gyde him ouer the ouer side upon the ouer body coate, and set the myrris upon his heade, and the holy crowne upon the myrris: and shalt take the anoyntinge oyle, and poure it upon his heade, and anoynte him.

Then shalt thou bringe forth his sonnes also, & put the albes upon them, and gyde both Aaron & them wth gyddles, & set the benecies upon their heades, that they may haue the possession for a perpetuall custome.

And thou shalt fillet the handes of Aaron and his sonnes, and bringe forth the bullocke before the Tabernacle of witness. And Aaron and his sonnes shall laye their handes upon the heade of the bullocke, and thou shalt sleie the bullocke before the LORD, as the bove of the Tabernacle of witness, and shalt take of his bloude, and put it vpon the hornes of the altare wth thy fyngre, and poure all the other bloude vpon the bottom of the altare.

And thou shalt take all the fat that cometh wth the bowels and the neer vpon the leuer, and the two kydneyes wth the fat that is aboute them, and burne them vpon the altare. And the bullockes fleshy, fyrrine and bouge, shalt thou burne wth fyre without the heoff: for it is a synneoffyringe.

The two rammes shalt thou take also, and Aaron wth his sonnes shall laye their handes upon his heade. Then shalt thou sleie him, and take of his bloude, and sprenkle it vpon the altare rounde aboute. And the rammes shalt thou drye in pecus, and wash his bowels and his legges, and laye them vpon the pecus and the heade, and burne the whole ramme vpon the altare: for it is a burneoffyringe, and a sweete sauour of the sacrifice vnto the LORD.

As for the other rammes, thou shalt take him, and Aaron wth his sonnes shall laye their handes upon his heade, and thou shalt sleie him, and take of his bloude, and put it vpon the tyepe of the right eare of Aaron and his sonnes, and vpon the tyepe of their right handes, and vpon the greates toe of their right feet, and thou shalt sprenkle the bloude vpon the altare rounde aboute, and shalt take of the bloude vpon the altare and the anoyntinge oyle, and sprenkle it vpon Aaron and his vestymentes, vpon his sonnes and their vestymentes. So shall he and his clothes, his sonnes and their clothes be consecrated.

Then shalt thou take the fat of the rammes, the tyepe, and the fat that cometh wth the bowels, the neer vpon the leuer, and the two kydneyes wth the fat that is aboute them, and the nyght shoulde (for it is a ramme of consecration) and a synnell of budy, and an oyle cake, and a wafer out of the maulde of the unleavened bread: that thou shalt bringe of LORD, and put all in so the bowels of Aaron and of his sonnes, and waue it vnto the LORD. The take it out of their handes, and burne it vpon the altare for a burneoffyringe, to be a sweete sauour vnto the LORD. So is it the LORDS sacrifice.

And thou shalt take the brest of the ramme of Aaron consecrated, & shalt waue it before the LORD, & shalt be his parte. And thou shalt then haloue the wauchrest & the shoulde: & are waured & heaued of the ramme of the consecration of Aaron & his sonnes. And it shall be a perpetuall custome for Aaron and his sonnes of the children of Israel: for it is an heueoffyringe, and the heueoffyringe shall be the LORDS deweye of the children of Israel, in their headeoffyringes and heueoffyringes which they do vnto the LORD.

And the holy garments of Aaron shall his sonnes haue a fur him, that they may be anoynted therein, & their handes may be filled. Like which of his sonnes shall be first in his state, the same shall purchase on his bowes, and he may go in to the Tabernacle of witness, to minister in the Sanctuary.

And the ramme of consecration shalt thou take, and sleie his fleshy in an holy place. And Aaron wth his sonnes shall take the fleshy of the same ramme wth the budy in the maulde, or the be. of the Tabernacle of witness: for there is an anoyntment made therewith, to fill their handes, that they may be consecrated. So shall they

shal not eate thereof, for it is holy.

But if any of the fleshy of the consecration, and of the bread remaine vntill the morning, thou shalt burne it with fire, and not let it be eaten, for it is holy. And thou shalt eate do with Aaron and his sonnes all that I haue commaunded y. Seven dayes shalt thou fill thine handes, and offer a bullocke daylie for a synne offering, because of them y shall be reconciled. And thou shalt halowe the altare, when thou reuocylest it: & shalt no more it, that it may be consecrated. Seven dayes shalt thou reuocyle the altare, & consecrate it, that it may be an altare of the Most holy. Who so wyll touch the altare, must be consecrated.

And this shalt thou do with the altare: Two lambes of one yeare olde shalt thou offer every daye vpon it: the one lambe in the morning, and the other at euen. And so one lambe a euen deale of wheate flour, mingled with y fourth parte of an eyn of beaten oyle, and y fourth parte of an eyn of wine for a daye offeringe. With the other lambe at euen shalt thou do like a with y men offeringe, and daye offeringe in the morning, for a sweete sauour of sacrifice vnto y LORD. This is the daylie burnt offeringe amonge youre posterities, or the dole of the Tabernacle of wyntesse before the LORD, where I will proteste vnto you, and raise with the. There wil I proteste vnto the children of y Israel, and be sanctified in my glory, and wyll halew the Tabernacle of wyntesse and the altare, and consecrate Aar and his sonnes, to be my priestes. And I wil dwell amonge the children of y Israel, & will be their God: y they shal knowe, howe that I am the LORD their God, which broughte them out of the lande of Egypse, that I might dwell amonge them, when I the LORD be their God.

¶ Thou shalt make also a mince altare, so burne incense, of fyue tre, a cubyt long, & brede, euen foure squared, and two cubytes hye with his house, & shalt ouerlape it with pure golde, the rofe & the wallis of it rounde abowte, and the heuen thereof, & a crowne of golde shalt thou make rounde abowte it, and two golde rynges on the fyde vnder the crowne, that the remaie be staves for them, to beare it with all.

The stauis shalt thou make of fyue tre also, and ouerlape the with golde: and shalt set it before the waye, that hangeth before the Arke of wyntesse, and before the Massy seate y is vpon the wyntesse, from whence I wil proteste vnto the. And Aar shal burne incense the ion euen morning, whil he dusteth the lampes. In like manner whan he lighteth the lampes at euen, he shall burne sode incense also. This shal be the daylie incense before the LORD amonge youre posterities.

Ye shall put no strange incense chyring, offer no burnt offeringe, nor meat offeringe, neither daye offeringe thereon. And so y homes of it shall Aar reconyle once in a yeare, with y bloud of the synne offeringe, which they shall offer that are reconcyled. This shal be done amonge youre posterities for euen is the most holy vnto the LORD.

And the LORD spake vnto Mosés, and so yde: When thou nombrest the headen of the children of y Israel, then shal every one geue vnto the LORD the reconynginge of his soule, & there happen not a plague vnto them, when they are nombred. Every one that is colde in the asemble, shal geue half a Sycke, after the Sycke of the Sanctuary: one Sycke is worth twentye Shekels. This half Sycke shal be y LORDS shee offeringe. Who so is in the nombre from twenty yeare and above, shal geue this shee offeringe vnto y LORD. The ryche shal not geue more, and the poore shal not geue lesse in the half Sycke, which is geuen vnto the LORD to be an shee offeringe for the reconynginge of their soules.

And this money of reconynginge shalt thou take of the children of y Israel, & put it to the Gods seruyce of the Tabernacle of wyntesse, that it maye be a remembrance vnto the children of y Israel before the LORD, that he maye let himselfe reconynged ouer their soules.

And the LORD spake vnto Mosés, and so yde: Thou shalt make a basyn lauer also with a peece of brasse, or woth, and shalt set it betwixt the Tabernacle of wyntesse & y altare, and put water therein, that Aar and his sonnes maye wash their handes and feete thereon, when they go in to the Tabernacle of wyntesse, or to the altare, so myghte vnto the LORD with offeringe intente, y they dye not. This shal be a perpetuall custome for him and his seide amonge their posterities.

And y LORD spake vnto Mosés, and so yde: Take vnto the spyces of the base, fyue hundred Syckles of Myrrour, and of Cynamon half so much, euen two hundred and fyfty, and of Aalme two hundred and fiftye, and of Cassia fyue hundred (after the Sy-cle of the Sanctuary) an oyle of oyle olyue, and make an holy anoyntinge oyle, after the crafte of the Apoecary.

D And there it shalbe thou anoynte the Tabernacle of wyneffe, the Arke of wyneffe, the table with all his apparell, & candlestic-ke with his apparell, the altare of incense, the altare of burnesofferynges with all his apparell, & the lauer with his foote: and thus shalt thou consecrate them, & haue they maye be most holy: for who so touche any of these, must be consecrated. Then shalt anoynte Aaron also, and his sonnes, and consecrate them to be my paster.

And thou shalt speake vnto the chyldre of Israel, and saye: This oyle shalbe an holy anoyntme vnto me amonge y^e posterities: It shal not be poured vpon man a body, nether shalt thou make any body like it, for it is holy: the foire shal be holy vnto you. Who so maketh crye shal be, as geuech a stranger therof, the same shalbe reed out from among his people.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moyses: Take vnto the spycer: Salme, Stace, Galban, and pure frankincense, of one as much an of another, and make incense therof (after the crafte of the Apoecary) mingled together, that it maye be pure & holy. And thou shalt beate it to powder, and shalt put of the same befor the wyneffe in the Tabernacle of wyneffe, from wherof I will present vnto the, but it shalbe holy vnto the for the LORDE. Who so maketh soch to consecrate therwith, shalbe reed out from amonge his people.

The XXXI. Chapter.

D And the LORDE spake vnto Moyses, & said: I haue called by name Bezalel the sonne of Uri & sonne of Hur, of the tribe of Iuda, & haue fylled him with y^e spyce of God, with wysdome and vnderstondyng and knowlege, and to wote with all manner of conynging worke, in golde, syluer, brasse, to graue stones conyngly, and to set them, to carue well in cymbe, and to make all manner worke. And behold, I haue geuen him Ahiahiab the sonne of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan, to be his companyon, and haue geuen wysdome in to the hartes of all the wyse, that they shall make all that I haue commaunded the: the Tabernacle of wyneffe, the Arke of wyneffe, the Tier-cyclete theron, and all the ornaments of y^e Tabernacle: the table and his apparell, the candlesticke and all his apparell, the altare of incense, the altare of burnesofferynges with all his apparell, the lauer with his foote, the mystryng vestmentes of Aaron & paster, and the garnementes of his sonnes to steepe like prestes, the anoyntinge oyle, and the incense of spycer for the Sanctuary. All that I haue commaunded the, shal they make.

And the LORDE called vnto Moyses, & said: Speake vnto the chyldre of Israel, and saye: Kepe my Sabbath, for it is a token betwene me and you, and youre poste-rities, that ye maye knowe, howe that I am the LORDE which haloweth you: therfore kepe my Sabbath, for it shalbe holy vnto you. Who so vnhaloweth it, shall dye the death: for who so doth any worke therin, shalbe reed out from amonge his people.

Six dayes shall man worke, but vpon the seventh daye is the Sabbath: the holy rest of the LORDE. Who so doth any worke vpon the Sabbath daye, shall dye the death.

Therfor shal the chyldre of Israel kepe the Sabbath, that they maye kepe it also amonge their posterities for an everlastinge conenante. An euerynginge totem is betwixt me and the chyldre of Israel. For in six dayes made the LORDE heauen & earth, but vpon y^e seventh daye he rested, and was refreshed.

And when the LORDE had made an ende of talkinge with Moyses vpon the mount Sinai, he gaue him two tables of wyneffe, which were of stone, and wyrtten with the frynger of God.

And he toke them of their handes, & fashion'd it to a grayer. And they made a molten calfe, and sayde: These are thy goddes (O J^erael) that brought the one of the lande of Egypte.

11-104 c

25 When Aaron sawe that, he buylded an altare before him, and caus'd it to be proclaimed, and sayde: Tomorrow is the LORDES feast. And they arose vp early in the morninge, and offer'd burnt offeringes, and broughte dea¹⁰ b offerrynges also: Then the people sat them downe to eate and drynke, & rose vp to playe.

But the LORD E sayde vnto Moyses: Get thee downe, for thy people whom thou broughtest out of the lande of Egypte, haue married all they are foone gone out of the waie, which I commaunded them. They haue made them a molten calfe, and haue worshipp'd it, & offer'd vnto it, & sayde: These are thy goddes (O J^erael) that brought the out of the lande of Egypte.

And the LORD E sayde vnto Moyses: I see that it is a stiffnecked people, and now suffer me, that my wrath maye be wroth wth them, & that I maye consume them, so that I make a greaue people of the.

But Moyses besought the LORD E his God, & sayde: Wh^{er} LORD E whatfore wilt thou marke wth wroth ouer thy people, whom thou hast brought out of the lode of Egypte wth greaue power: & a nighthe hader: Whatfore shaldest thou speake, & saye: I haue brought the out for their myschaunce, to slaye them in the moontaynes, and to destroye the Remember thy seruantes Abraham, Isaac, and J^erael, vnto wh^{om} thou hast sworn by thyme owne self, and saydest: I will multiplye your side an the starres of heauen, and all the lande that I haue promysed you, will I geue vnto your side, & they shall inherite it for euer. Thus the LORD E expremed of the euill, which he sayde he woulde do vnto his people.

Moyses turned him, & tooke downe from the mount, and in his hande he had the two tables of wynter, which were wynter vp on boch the sydes, and were Gods worke, & the wynter was a th^e wynter of God therein. Now when Josua herde the noyse of y^e people, as they shoute, he sayde vnto Moyses: This is a noyse of warre in the host. He answered: It is not a noyse of cheut that haue che wth eery, and of cheut that haue the wth, but I haue a noyse of syngeing as a daunce.

When he came nye vnto the host, and sawe the calfe, and the dauncyng, he was moued wth wrath, and cast the tables out of his hande, and brake them beueth the mount. And he toke the calfe that they had made, and bene it wth fyre, and stamp'd it wth his poolden, and strowed it in the water, & gaue it vnto the chyldren of J^erael to drynke, & sayde vnto Aaron: What dyd this people vnto the, that thou hast brought so greaue a synne vpon them?

Aaron sayde: Let not the wrath of my lorde be feared: thou knowest, that this is a wickid people. They sayde vnto me: Make vs goddes to go before us, for we can not tell what is become of this man Moyses, & brought vs out of the lande of Egypte. I sayde vnto them: Who so hath golde, let him placit it of, and geue it vnto me: I cast it in the fyre, that of came this calfe.

Now when Moyses sawe, that the people were naked, for Aaron, when he set them up, made them naked to their shame: he toke aro the gate of the host, and sayde: who so belongeth vnto the LORD E, let him come hither vnto me. Then all the chyldren of Leui gathered them selus vnto him, and he sayde vnto them: Thus saithe the LORD E the God of J^erael: Every man put his sword by his syde, and go thorow in and ouer from one gate to another in the host, and slaye euery man his brother, frende, & neyghbour.

The chyldren of Leui dyd, as Moyses sayde vnto them. And there fell of the people the same daye th^e chyldren men. The sayde Moyses: Circumcise youre handes this daye vnto the LORD E, euery man vpon his frende and brother, that the praye maye be greuous ouer you this daye.

On the morow Moyses sayde vnto the people: We haue done a greaue synne. Now I wil go vp vnto the LORD E, yf peradventure I maye make an attonement for youre synnes.

Now when Moyses came agayne vnto the LORD E, he sayde: Wh^{er} this people haue done a greaue synne, & haue made them goddes of golde. Now for geue them their synne yf not, the wth me out of y^e lode, that thou hast wth me. The LORD E sayde vnto Moyses: What synne that synne agaynst me, and I wyte out of my, beke. Where y

The xxxiii. Chapter.

AND the LORDE sayde vnto Moyses: Go, departe hence, thou and the people, whom thou hast brought out of the lande of Egypte, vnto y londe that I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and sayde vnto y sone wil I geue it, and I wil sende an angel before the, and cast out the Canaanites, Amorites, Hethites, Pherezites, Gonites and Jebusites: in to the londe that floweth with mylke and hony, for I wil not go ap with the: for thou art a hard-nedded people, I must consume the by the waye. When the people herde this enell tydinge, they sorrowed, and no man put on his best rayment.

AND the LORDE sayde vnto Moyses: Speake vnto the children of Israel: Ye are a styf-nedded people, I must once come sodrily vpon the, and make an ende of the. And now passe y by goodly ayses from the, y I may knowe whay to do vnto the. So the children of Israel sende their goodly ayses from the,

Moyses toke the Tabernacle, and pitched it without a fars of from y hoost, and called it the Tabernacle of testimony. And who so euer wolde asen y question at the LORDE, went out vnto the Tabernacle of testimony before the hoost. And when Moyses wente out vnto the Tabernacle, all the people rose up, and stode eueny one in his owne doir, and looked after Moyses, tyll he was gone into the Tabernacle. And when Moyses entered in to the Tabernacle, the cloudy pylar came downe, and stode in the doir of the Tabernacle, and he talked with Moyses. And all the people sawe the cloudy pylar stonde in the doir of the Tabernacle, and rose up, and wooshipped, eueny one in his owne doir.

AND the LORDE spake vnto Moyses face to face, as a man speaketh vnto his frende.
And when he turned agayne to the hoost, y yonge ma Josua y sone of Nun his minister, departed out out of y Tabernacle. And for the boies vpon the one syde of the habitation, and fyve vpon the other syde, and fyue behynde towaie the west; and made the barres to shure thowen the boies, from the one ende to the other, and ouerlaid the boies with golde. But their rynges made he of golde for the barres, and ouerlaid y barres with golde.

And made Cherubynes vpon the heugge with broderd woite, of yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, ⁊ wythe twyned sylke. And made for the same, foure pilers of fyre tree, and ouerlaid them with golde, and their knappes of golde, and cast foure sockets of syluer for them.

And made an hanginge in the Tabernacle doore, of yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, and wythe twyned sylke, of needle worke, and fy-ue pilers thereto with their knappes ⁊ ouer-laid theie knoppes and whopes with golde, and fyue sockets of brass thereto.

The XXXVII. Chapter.

And Bezalel made the Ark of fyre tre, two cubites and a half lōge, a cubyte and a half brode, and a cubyte ⁊ a half hye, and ouerlaid it with fyne golde within and without, and made a crowne of golde vnto it rounde aboute, and cast for it foure rynges of golde to the foure corners of it, vpon every syde two. And made flauours of fyre tree, and ouerlaid the with golde, and put them in the rynges a longe by þe fyres of the Ark, to beate it withall.

And he made y Mercyseate of pure golde two cubytes and a half longe, and a cubite and a half brode, ⁊ made two Cherubynes of fyne beaten golde vpon the two endes of the Mercyseate: One Cherub vpon the one ende, and the other Cherub vpon the other ende: and the Cherubynes spredde out their wynges aboute an hye, and covered y Mercyseate therewith: and thair faces shode one ouer agaynst the other, and looked vnto the Mercyseate.

And he made y table of fyre tree, two and a hye a longe, a cubyte brode, and a cubyte ⁊
 a half hye, and ouerlaid it with fyne golde, and made thereto a crowne of golde com-be aboute, and made vnto it an wychope of an hande bredth hye, and made a crowne of golde rounde aboute the wychope. And for it he cast foure golde rynges, ⁊ put them in the foure corners by the seche side by the wycho-pe, that the flauours myght be therin, to beate the table withall: ⁊ made the flauours of fy-re tree, and ouerlaid the with golde, to beate the flauours withall. And the wyche vpon the table made he also of fyne golde: the dis-shes, spoces, flat peeces and pottes, so poure in and out withall.

And he made the candlestick of fyne bea

14 A golden altar upon was the she first brass cups, rupper, knoppes, & flowers. Sixe brazen cups were made out of y^e fyve a cherof, upon either syde the brass chert: vpon every brasse were the cuppes like allmōdes, wth knoppes and flowers. Upon the candlestickes self were foure cuppes with knoppes and flowers, vnder every two brasses a knoppe. The knoppes & brasses therof proceeded out of it, and were all one peece of fyne beaven golde. And he made the seven lampes with their snuffers & outquenchers of pure golde. Of an hundred weight of golde made he it, and all the apperell therof.

D He made also the altar of incense, of Syre: a cubits longe and brode, caven foure squared, and foure cubits hye rounde the houses of it, and overlaid it with fyne golde, the toppe and the sides of it rounde aboute, and the besma therof, and made a crowne w^{ch} it rounde aboute of pure golde, & two golde rynges vnder the crowne on both the sides, to put the staves therein, and to beate it withall: but the staves made he of Syre tre, and overlaid them with golde.

And he made the holy anoyntinge oyle, & the incense of pure spycio, after y^e craft of the Apoecary.

The XXXVIII. Chapter.

15 And the altar of burnt offrynges made he of Syre tre, fyve cubits longe & brode, caven foure squared, & the sides hye. And made foure houses, which proceeded out of the foure corners therof, and overlaid it with brass. And he made allmōdes of vessels for the altar, raulbrens, shovels, bakens, flesholders, and colupannes all of brass. And vnto the altar he made a brasen gridiron of net worke rounde aboute, from vnder vpon the myddest of the altar, & cast foure rynges in the foure corners of the brasen gridiron, for the staves: which he made of Syre tre, and overlaid them wth brass, and put them in the rynges by the sides of the altar, to beate it withall, and made it beate wth beates.

And he made the Laver of brass, & his foure albs of brass vpon the place of y^e doore, the last before the doore of the Tabernacle of wyrtess.

16 And he made the court on y^e fourth syde, hangynges an hundred cubits longe, of wherewynab sylke, with the twenty pilers therof, and twenty sockets of brass: but the knoppes and whoppes of syluer. In like maner vpon the north syde an hundred cubits wth twenty pilers, and twenty sockets of brass, but their knoppes & whoppes of syluer. Vpon the west syde fyfte cubits wth ten pilers and ten sockets, but their knoppes and whoppes of syluer. Vpon the east syde fyfte cubits. Juste cubits vpon either syde of the court dore, the pilers and their sockets: So that all the hangynges of the court were of wherewynab sylke, and the sockets of the pilers were of brass, & their knoppes and whoppes of syluer: their beates were overlaid wth syluer, & all the pilers of the court were wherewynab beate wth syluer.

And the hangynges in y^e court gate made he wth net worke, of yallowe sylke, scarlet, purple, & wherewynab sylke, twenty cubits longe, & fyve cubits hye, after the measure of the hangynges of the court: foure pilers also thereto, & foure sockets of brass, and their knoppes of syluer, and their beates overlaid, and their whoppes of syluer. And all the males of the habitation and of the court rounde aboute, were of brass.

This is now the summe of the habitation of wyrtess: (which was counted at the commaundment of Moyses to y^e gods seruice of the Levites vnder the habde of Jethamar the sonne of Aaron the prest) which Bezalel the sonne of Uri, the sonne of one of the crybe of Iuda made, all as the LORDE commaunded Moyses. And is hun Thalaia y^e sonne of Abisamady of the crybe of Dan, a cownyng grauer, to make the net worke, & yallowe sylke, scarlet, purple, & wherewynab sylke.

All the golde y^e moongaghe in all this worke of the Sanctuary (which was grauer of the Wyrtess offrynges) was vnto x c c c c hundred weight, seven hundred & threty Syckles, after y^e Syckle of y^e Sanctuary. The syluer y^e came of the congregacion, was fyve score hundred weight, a thousand seven hundred, fyve and threty Syckles, after y^e Syckle of the Sanctuary: y^e many beates so many half Syckles, after the Syckle of the Sanctuary, of all that were nombred from threty yeare olde and aboute, even fyve hundred and fifty.

Of the fyve score hundred weight of syluer, were cast the sockets of the Sanctuary, and the sockets of the vyle, an hundred sockets of the fyve score hundred weight, an hundred weight to every socket. Of the thousand, seven hundred and fyve and threty Syckles were made the knoppes of the pilers (and their beates overlaid) and their whoppes.

The ii. boke of Moyses.

So for the same offeringe of brasie, it was senten hundred weight two thousand and foure hundred Syckels: Wherof were made the sockets in the doore of the Tabernacle of wyrtesse, and the basen altare, and the basen gredyon thereto, and all the vessels of the altare, and the sockets of 3 court countre aboue, and the sockets of 3 court gate, all y nales of the habitation, and all y nales of y court countre aboue.

The XXXIX. Chapter.

3 If the yalowe sylke, scarlet, and purple, they made Barons mynstrange vestimenten, so be seruyce in the same may, as 3. I. O R D E commaunded Moyses.

And he made the ouer body cote, of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke, and brete the golde in to thynne plates, and cut it in to wayes, that it might be wrought amonge the yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte sylke, and made it so, that 3 ouer body cote camt together by the edges on both the sydes. And his gyrdel was a fere the same craze 7 wrought of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke, as the I. O R D E commaunded Moyses.

And they wrought two Ony stones, set rounde aboue each golde, grauen by the stone grauer with the names of the chyldren of Israel, and fastened them vpon the shulders of the ouerbody cote, that they might be stones of remembrance vnto the chyldren of Israel, as the I. O R D E commaunded Moyses.

3 And they made the busshappe a fere the craze 7 worke of the ouerbody cote: of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke, the thicke reas foure square 2 cubite, an hantre breeth longe, and brede, and fylled it with foure women of stence. The first reyn was: a Sardis, a Topais, and a Sema ragde. The second was: a Ruby, a Saphyre, a Hyamonde. The thurde: a Agnyris, Achne, and an Amatis. The fourth: a Turcas, an Ony 2 a Jaspis: closed rounde aboute with golde in all the rounde. And the stones stode after the twoules names of the chyldren of Israel, grauen by the stone grauer, euery one with his name, a cotinge to the twoules trybes.

And vpon the busshappe they made twythen cherynes of pure golde, and two hokes of golde, 2 two golde rynges, and fastened the two rynges vpon the two edges of the busshappe: and 3 two wyrtchen cherynes put they in the two rynges vpon the corners of the busshappe. But the two endes of y twythen cherynes put they to the euerbody cote, 2 fastened them vpon the corners of the ouerbody cote, one cutt agaynst another.

And they made two other rynges of golde, 2 fastened them to the other two corners of the busshappe by the edge of it, that it mighte hang vpon the our syde of the ouerbody cote. And they made yet two other golde rynges, which they put betwixt vpon the two corners of the ouerbody cote, one came agaynst another, where the ouerbody cote ioyneth together, that the busshappe mighte be fastened by the rynges vnto 3 rynges of the ouerbody cote with a yalowe lace, that it mighte lye close vpon 3 ouerbody cote, and not be leuysed from 3 ouerbody cote, as the I. O R D E commaunded Moyses.

And he made the tynge vnto the ouerbody cote, wrought all of yalowe sylke, 2 the hole thereof aboue in the myddel, 2 a double faldt coge the rounde a bout the hole, that it shulde not rente. And betwixt vpon 3 hemme of it, they made pomgranates of yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, 2 whyte twyned sylke: 2 they made belles of pure golde, which they put betwixt 3 pomgranates rounde aboue vpon the hemme of the tynge, a bell 2 a pomgranate, a bell 2 a pomgranate countre aboue, so do seruyce in, as the I. O R D E commaunded Moyses.

And they made altes also wrought of 3 whyte sylke for Aaron 2 his sonnes, 2 3 myxt of whyte sylke, and the goodly bonettes of whyte sylke, and burches of twyned whyte lynen, and the gyrdels of noble woitment of whyte twyned sylke, yalowe sylke, scarlet, and purple, as the I. O R D E commaunded Moyses.

They made the forhede plate also 3 holy crowne, of pure golde, and wrought therein with grauen woitment the holyenes of the I. O R

D^r, and finished a yellowe lace theron, to rye it vnto the myster above, as the LORDE hath commaunded Moses.

Thus the whole worke of y^e habitation of y^e Tabernacle of wyrtesse, was finished. And the childre of Israel dyd all that the LORDE commaunded Moses, & brought the habitation vnto Moses: the Tabernacle & all the apperall therof, the barres, borders, barres, pillars, sockets, y^e conuerynge of recks shymme of rammes, the conuerynge of doo shymme, & the wayle, y^e Arke of wyrtesse wth the shauen therof, the Myrcystace, the table wth all his apperall, & the shewbrote, the candle stick, wth the lampes prepared, and all his apperall, & oyle for the lightes, the golden altar, the anoyntinge oyle & incense, the hangin ge in the Tabernacle door, the busin attire, & his busin girt vnto his stature, & all his apperall, y^e lauer wth his soote, the hangynge of y^e court wth the pillars & sockets after of, y^e hangynge in the court gate wth his pillars & nales, & all the ordynance for the seruyce of the habitation of y^e Tabernacle of wyrtesse, y^e mystrynge vestmentes of Aarⁿ & y^e prestes do for oyle in y^e Sanctuary & the garnices of his shawme, y^e they myght execute y^e prestes office. Accordinge vnto that y^e LORDE commaunded Moses, wth so dyd the childre of Israel in all this seruyce. And thus sawe all y^e worke, & they dyd wth it as y^e LORDE had commaunded, and he blessed them.

The XL. Chapter.

NUM^o 170 y^e LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde In the first daye of the first moneth shalte thou set up y^e habitation of y^e Tabernacle of wyrtesse, and shalte put the Arke of wyrtesse therin, and hangge the wayle before y^e Arke. And thou shalt hunge in the cable, and garnish it, and layge in the candlestick, and put the lampes theron. And y^e golde altare of incense shalte thou set before y^e Arke of wyrtesse, & hangge up the hangynge in the borders of the habitation. And the altare of burntoffer gates thou set before the door of the habitation of the Tabernacle of witness: & the inner bewricke the Tabernacle of witness and the altare, and put water there, & set the course rounde aboute, and hange vp the hanginge in the course gate.

23 And thou shalt take the anoyntinge oyle, and anoynte the habitatione and all that is there in: and shalt consecrate it, and all of apparell therof, that it maye be holy. And thou shalt anoynte the altare of burntofferings and all his vessels, and consecrate it, that it maye be most holy. The latter also thou shalt consecrate.

24 And thou shalt bynge Aaron & his sonnes vnto the door of the Tabernacle of witness, and wash them with water, & put the holy vestimentes vpon Aaron, and anoynte him, and consecrate him, that he maye be my priest. And thou shalt bynge his sonnes also, and put the albes vpon them, and anoynte them, so thou haste nymed their father, & they maye be my priests. And this anoyntinge shall they haue for an everlastinge priesthoode amonge their posterities. And Moses did all as the LORDE commaunded him.

25 Thus was the Tabernacle set vp in the seconde yeare vpon the first daye of the first month. And when Moses reared it vp, he fastened yf skettes and the boordes, and beatus, and set vp the pilers, and spread out the rent ouer the habitation, and put the coneyntinge of the rent aboue anye, as the LORDE commaunded him. And he tolde the wyntesse, and layde it in the Arke, and put yf sinnes in the Arke, and sette the seecynges aboue vpon the Arke, and broughte the Arke into the habitation, and hanged the wayle before the Arke of witness, as the LORDE commaunded him.

And he set the cable in the Tabernacle of witness, in the corner of the habitation vpon the north syde with out the wayle, and prepared him theron before yf LORDE. as the LORDE commaunded him.

26 And he set in the compassed alse, euen ouer a gant the cable, in the corner of the habitation on the south syde, and put the lampes thereon before yf LORDE, as the LORDE commaunded him. And the golde alse sette he in also before the wayle, and burnettes incense thereon, as the LORDE commaunded him. And he gaged vp the hanginge in the Tabernacle door. As for the altare of burntofferings, he set it before the door of the habitation of yf Tabernacle of witness, and offered burntofferings and made offeringe to thereon, as the LORDE commaunded him.

And the latter set he bewricke the Tabernacle of witness and yf altare, and put water there to wash withall. And Moses, Aaron and his sonnes washed their handes and feet: that as for the yongste to wash the wayles they wente in to the Tabernacle of witness, when they wente vnto the altare, as the LORDE commaunded him.

And he set vpon the course rounde aboute the habitation and the altare, and hanged vp yf hanginge in yf course gate. Thus Moses finished the whole worke.

Then a cloude covered yf Tabernacle of witness, and the glory of the LORDE fylled the habitation. And Moses coulde seege in to the Tabernacle of witness, whyle the cloude abode thereon, and the glory of yf LORDE fylled the habitation.

And when the cloude removed from the habitation, then wente the children of Israel forth, as oft as they rode their iourney. But yf the cloude remoued not, then toke not they their iourney, yll the daie that it remoued: for in the daye tyme was the cloude of the LORDE vpon the habitation, & in the night season was fyre therein, in yf sight of all yf house of Israel in alle their iourneys.

lyeth vpon the fyre on the altare. But the bowels and y legges shal be washed with water. And y pise shal be offered altogether, and burne it vpon y altare for a burnt offering. This is an offeringe of a sweete sauour vnto the LORDE.

But yf he will offre a burnt offeringe of y foules vnto the LORDE, then let him offre it of the turtall doves or of y yonge pigeons. And the prest shal drynge it vnto the altare, and wynges the neck of it a funder, that it maye be burnt vpon the altare, and let the bloude of it runne out vpon the sydes of the altare, and the croppe of it with the feathers shal be cast vpon the heape of ashyes beynde the altare toward the east, and he shall dryde the wynges of it, but not keate the cleane of. And thus shall the prest burne it vpon the altare, euen vpon the wood that lyeth vpon the fyre, for a burnt offeringe. This is an offeringe of a sweete sauour vnto the LORDE.

The iiij. Chapter.

When a soule will offre a meat offeringe vnto the LORDE, then shal it be of fine flour, and he shal poure oyle vpon it, and put frankincense thereon, & so drynge it vnto Aaron sommes the prestes. Then shal one of them take his handfull of the same flour, and oyle with all the frankincense, and burne it for a remembrance vpon the altare. This is an offeringe of a sweete sauour vnto the LORDE. Also for y remembrance of the meat offeringe, it shal be Aarons and his sommes. This shal be y most holy of the offeringe of the LORDE.

But yf he will drynge a meat offeringe of that which is baken in the oven, then let him call sweet cakes of wheate, mixte with oyle, and vntermedd wafers annoynted with oyle. Wherofeas yf thy meat offeringe be any thinge of that which is fryed in the panne, then shal it be of fine sweete flour mixte with ayle. And thou shalt cut it in pecen, & poure oyle thereon; so is it a meat offeringe. But yf thy meat offeringe be oughte butyled on the grebowyn, then shalt thou make it of fine flour with oyle. And the meat offeringe that thou wilt make of sody thynges for the LORDE, shal thou drynge vnto y prest, which shal drynge it vnto the altare, & shal heave up the same meat offeringe for a comendacion, and burne it vpon the altare. This is an offeringe of a sweete sauour vnto the LORDE. Also for the remembrance, it shal be Aarons and his sommes. This shal be the most holy of the offeringe of the LORDE.

All the meat offeringes that ye will offre vnto the LORDE, shal ye make without salt. For there shal no leuit nor hony be burne in an offeringe vnto the LORDE. But for the offeringe of the firstlings shal ye a sarch vnto the LORDE. Wherofeas they shal come vpon the altare for a sweete sauour.

All thy meat offeringes shal thou offer salt. And thy meat offeringes shal neuer be without yf salt of the covenant of thy God; for in all thy offeringes shal thou offer salt.

But yf thou wilt offre a meat offeringe of the first frutes vnto y LORDE, then shal thou drye that which is grene, by the fyre; leate it small, and so offre the meat offeringe of thy first frutes. And thou shal put oyle vpon it, and laye frankincense thereon, so is it a meat offeringe. And then shal the prest beate it, and burne of the ayle with all the frankincense for a remembrance. This is an offeringe vnto the LORDE.

When yf his offeringe be a beebofferi- ge of greute cattell, whether it be ox or cowe; then shal he offre such as is without blemish before the LORDE, & shal laie his hande vpon the heade of it, and kill it before the doore of the Tabernacle of witnessse. And the prestes Aarons sommes, shal sprenkle the bloude rounde aboute vpon the altare, and shal offre of y beebofferiunge vnto the LORDE; namely, all the fat that is within, and the two kyndenes with the fat that is thereon vpon the loynes, and the mass on the leuer vpon the kyndenes also. And Aaron sommes shal burne it vpon the altare for a burnt offeringe, euen vpon the wood that lyeth on the fyre. This is an offeringe of a sweete sauour vnto the LORDE.

If his beeb offeringe be of small cattell, whether it be male or female, it shal be without blemish; If it be a lamber, then shal he drynge it before the LORDE, & shal laie his hande vpon the heade of it, and shewe it before the Tabernacle of witnessse. And Aaron sommes shal sprenkle his bloude rounde aboute vpon the altare, and so offre of the beeb offeringe vnto the LORDE; namely, the fat of it, all the rompe with the backe, and the fat that couereth the bowels, with all y fat that is within, and the two kyndenes with the fat that is thereon vpon the loynes, & the recte on the leuer vpon the kyndenes also. And the prest shal burne it vpon the altare, for y meate of the offeringe vnto y LORDE.

But yf his offeringe be a goat, and but geat it before the LORDE, he shal laie his hante upon the heade of it, and tyll it before the Tabernacle of wyneffe. And Aaron somas shal pille the bloude rounde aboute vps the altare, & shal offer thereof a sacrifice vnto the LORD Enamel, the fat þe come wth the bowels, and all the fat þe is within, shewen bydneye with the fat chaci on theron upon the loynes, & the net on the liver upon the pylone ye. And the prest shal burne it vps the altare, for the meate of the sacrifice to a sweetsauoure.

12 All the fat is the LORDES. & et this be a perpetual lawe amonge y^e possitens in all youre dwellinges, that ye eate no fete, & ner blende.

The iiii. Chapter.

13 AND the LORD spake vnto Moyses, & saye: Speake vnto the childre of Israel, and saye: Whana soule synneth ehoowynnesse in any commaundment of the LORD, which he oughte not to do: & o namely, yf a prest wch is a noyced, synne, that he make the people do anyfse, he shal brynge for þe synne that he hath done, a yonge bullocke withoute blemyshe vnto the LORD for a synnoffyringe. And the bullocke shal be brynged to the doore of the Tabernacle of wyneffe before the LORD, & laie his hande vps his heade, & tyll him before þe LORD.

14 And þe prest his noyced, shal take of his bloude, & brynge it in to the Tabernacle of wyneffe. And he shal dyppe his synger in to the bloude, & spenke therewith seuen tymes before the LORD, towards the vyle of þe hely. And he shal pte of the same bloude vpon the hornes of the altare of incense, & stondeb before þe LORD in the Tabernacle of wyneffe: & all the bloude of the bullocke shal he poure vpon the botome of the altare of burntofferings, & stondeb at the entrynge in of þe Tabernacle of wyneffe. And all the fat of the synnoffyringe shal he cture up: namely, the fat þe cometh the bowels, & all the fat þe is within, & moof yeneo such the fete chaci on theron vpon the loynes, and the net on the liver vpon the pylone also (like as he sheweth it hem the oxe in the beaddoffyringe), and shal burne it vpon the altare of burntofferings. But the synne of the bullocke, and all the flesch, with the heade & legges, & the bowels and the bouge, shal he carrye all together one of i^e hoofes to a cleane place, wher e þe asches are poured out, & shal burne it vpon wood with fyre.

Whan the whole congregacion of Israel synneth ehoowynnesse, & the peple be behynde from their eyes, so þe they do ought agaynst any of the commaundmentes of the LORD, which they shulde not do, & come afeirmade to the knoulege of the synne, chaci they haue done, they shal brynge a yonge bullocke for a synnoffyringe, and set him before þe doore of þe Tabernacle of wyneffe. And the elders of the congregacion shal laye their handes vpon his heade before the LORD, & tyll þe bullocke before the LORD. And þe prest þe is noyced shal brynge of y bullockes bloude in to the Tabernacle of wyneffe, & dyppe ther in with his synger, and spenke therewith seuen tymes before the LORD, eue be fore the vyle of the hely. And shal pte of the bloude vpon the hornes of the altare, & stondeb before the LORD in the Tabernacle of wyneffe: & all þe bloude shal he poure vps the botome of þe altare of burntofferings, & stondeb before the doore of þe Tabernacle of wyneffe. And all his fat shal be cture up, & burne it vps the altare: & shal do with this bullocke, as he doth with þe bullocke of the synnoffyringe: & he shal prest shal make an attemente for him, & it shal be forgiven them. And the bullocke shal be brynged withoute hoofes and burne him, as he burne þe first bullocke. This shal be synnoffyringe of the congregacion.

Whan a prince synneth, & doth agaynst the commaundment of the LORD, & Ged, & he oughte not to do, & offendeth agaynauely, & commaundeth the knoulege of his synne þe he hath done, he shal brynge for his offeringe an he goat withoute blemyshe, & laye his hande vps the goates heade, & slaye him in þe place wher þe burntofferings are slayne before þe LORD. The shal þe prest take of þe bloude of þe synnoffyringe in his synger, and put it vpon the altare of burntofferings, & poure the ether bloude vpon the botome of the altare of burntofferings. But all the fat of it shal he burne vps the altare, like as the fat of the healthoffyringe. And so the prest shal make an attemente for his synne, and it shal be forgiven him.

Whan a soule of y^e common people synneth agaynauely, doinge any thinge agaynst the commaundment of the LORD, & he oughte not to do, & offendeth, & cometh to þe knoulege of the synne þe he hath done, he shal brynge for his offeringe a she goat withoute blemyshe, for the synne þe he hath done, and shal to y^e he heade vpon the heade of the synnoffyringe, & slaye it in the place of the burntofferings. And the prest shal take of the bloude in his synger, & put it vpon the hornes of þe altare of burntofferings, & poure all the bloude upon the becom of the altar. For all the fat of it shal be eaten awaye, like as he eateth awaye the fat of the beu-offeringe, and shal burne it upon the altar for a sweete sauour vnto the LORDE. And so shal the priest make an accoment for him, and it shal be forgiven him.

C But if he bringe a lambe for a syn-offeringe, then let him bringe a female without blemish, and laye his hande vpon the head of the syn-offeringe, & kill it for a syn-offeringe, in the place where the beu-offeringe is slain. And the priest shal take of it bloude wth his finger, & putte vpon the beu-ner of the altar of beu-offeringes, & poure all the bloude vpon the becom of the altar. But all y^e fat thereof shal he take fild, like as he doth the fat of the lambe of the beu-offeringe, & shal burne it vpon y^e altar for the LORDES sacrifice. And so y^e priest shal make an accoment for the synner that he hath done, and it shal be forgiven him.

Whan a soule synneth, y^e he heare a cusinge, and is wthness: therefor hath sinned, or knowe it, & telleth it not, he is guilty of a trespass. Or whan a soule couereth any vnclennes, whether it be y^e car-ron of an vnclenne beast, or cattell, or wthme, & was not aware of it, he is vnclenne, and hath offended. Or whan he couereth an vnclenne man: whan vnclennesse so euer a man is defiled wth hall: & was not aware of it, & afterwarde cometh to y^e knowlege thereof, he hath offended in one of these.

Now whan it is so, y^e he hath offended in one of these, & is informed thereof, & hat he hath synned, he shal bringe vnto y^e LORDE for his trespass of this his synne y^e he hath done, a female from the flocke, either a yewe, or a fye goat, for a syn-offeringe: shal the priest make an accoment for him concernyng his synne. But yf he be not able to bringe a shepe, then let him bringe vnto y^e LORDE for his offence that he hath done, two curiall bones, or two yonge pigeons: one for a syn-offeringe, the other for a beu-offeringe, and bringe them to the priest: which shal make the first a syn-offeringe, and first winge the neck of it, so that the plucke it not cleane of, and sprete wth the bloude vpon the sides of the altar, and let the residue of the bloude blede out vpon the becom of the altar: this is the syn-offeringe. As for the other, he shal make it a beu-offeringe, after the maner thereof. And thus shal the priest make an accoment for him concernyng the synne that he hath done, & it shal be forgiven him. But yf he be not able to bringe two curiall bones, or two yonge pigeons, then let him bringe his offeringe for his synne, a tenth deale of an Ephah of fine flour for a syn-offeringe. But he shal poure no oyle thereon, nor laye frankincense vpon it, for it is a syn-offeringe. And he shal bringe it vnto the priest, & y^e priest shal take his hand full of it for a remembrance, and burne it vpon the altar for an offeringe vnto the LORDE. This is a syn-offeringe. And so shal the priest make an accoment for him, concernyng his synne that he hath done, & it shal be forgiven him. And the remnant shal be the priests, like a meate-offeringe.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moyses, & saye: If a soule trespass, so y^e person ignorantlye be possessed in any thinge y^e is halowed vnto the LORDE, he shal bringe his trespass-offeringe vnto the LORDE, euen a ewe, or from y^e flocke without blemish, wthout the Syckle of sycor, after the Syckle of the Sanctuary, for a trespass-offeringe: and so let it be: he hath offended in the halowed thinge, he shal make restitution, & geue the fifth parte more thereto. And he shal be yewe it vnto y^e priest, which shal make an accoment for him in the name of the trespass-offeringe, & it shal be forgiven him.

Whan a soule synneth, and hath ought agaynst any commaundment of the LORDE, y^e he shal be not be, & is informed thereof, he hath trespassed, & is guilty of the synne. And he shal bringe from the flocke a ramme, or a blemish, which is wth a trespass-offeringe: y^e priest, which shal make an accoment for him concernyng his ignorance, which he doth, and was not aware, and it shal be forgiven him. Thon the trespass-offeringe, because he trespassed agaynst the LORDE.

And y^e LORDE & tolde wth Moyses, and saye: Whan a soule synneth, & trespasseth agaynst the LORDE, so that he denieth wth his neyghbours that which he hath done to him, or that was put vnder his hande, or that he hath violently taken awaye, or gotten wth righteously, or founde that was lost, and denieth it wth a fals oath, what so euer it be, wherein a man synneth agaynst his neyghboure. Now whan it cometh to 140 so possit, that he synneth a free this manner, & trespasseth, he shall receive a gayne that he to it violently awaye, as gas wrongeously, or that was given him to kepe, or that he hath founde, or whar so ever it be abowte y which he hath sworne falsely, he shall restore it againe untoke altogether, and geue the fifth parte more thereto, cometh him that it belongeth vnto, the same daye that he geueth his trespass offering. But for his trespass he shall bringe for the LORD (even vnto the priest) a ramme from the flocke without blemish, that is a worth a trespass offeringe. Then shall the priest make an atonement for him before the LORD, and alle that he hath synned in, shall he forgiue him.

The vi. Chapter.

141 Unto the LORD speake vnto Moyses, and saye: Commande Aaron and his sonnes, and saye: This is the lawe of the burnt offeringe. The burnt offeringe shall burne vpon the altare all night vntill the morninge. Doe the fyre of the altare be only shal burne thereon. And y priest shal put on his linnen albe, and his linnen breeches vpon his flesh, and shal take vp the asphers, that the fyre of the burnt offeringe vpon the altare hath made, and shall poure them besyde the altare. Then shall he put of his sayment, and put on other sayment, and carry out the asphers wicheurthe hoost, into a cleane place.

The fyre vpon the altare shal burne, and neuer go out. The priest shal fynde wood ther on eate y morninge, and duste i the burnt offeringe apon it, and burne the fat of the deere offeringe thereon. The fyre shall leue burne vpon the altare, and neuer go out.

142 And this is the lawe of the meacofferinge, which Aaron's sonnes shall offe before the LORD vpon the altare. One of them shal haue his hand full of fyne flour of y meacofferinge, and of the oyle, and alle the frankincense that lyeth vpon the meacofferinge, and shall burne it vpon the altare for a sweete sauour a remembrance vnto the LORD. As for the remanure, Aaron and his sonnes shal eate it, and vnto the priest they shall eate it in the holy place, namely, in the court of the Tabernacle of wyntesse. With lesk shal they not take their portion, which y haue geuen them of thy offeringe. It shall be vnto them most holy, as the synofferinge and trespass offeringe. All the males amonge the children of Aaron shal eate of it. For this is a perpetuall lawe for your posteritie in the sacrifice of the LORD.

No man shall touch it, excepte he be consecrated.

And the LORD spake vnto Moyses, and saye: This shall be the offeringe of Aaron and of his sonnes, which they shall offer vnto the LORD in the daye of their anoyntinge. The tenth parte of an Ephah of fyne flour for a meacofferinge daylie, the one half parte in the morninge, the other half parte at euen. In the panne with oyle shal thou make it, and bringe it in syn, and in peeces shal thou offer it for the sweete sauour of the LORD. And the priest which amonge his sonnes shall be anoynted in his stead, shall do this. This is a perpetuall duty vnto the LORD. It shal be burnt altogether: for all the meacofferinge of the priest shall be consumed with the fyre, and not be eaten.

And y LORD talked with Moyses, and saye: Speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes, and saye: This is the lawe of the synofferinge: In the place where thou layest y burnt offeringe, shal thou laye the synofferinge also before the LORD. This is most holy.

The priest that offereth the synofferinge, shal eate it in the holy place, in the court of y Tabernacle of wyntesse. No man shal touch y flesh thereof, excepte he be halowed. And yf any garment be sprenten with the bloude of it, it shal be washed in the holy place. And the carth pot that it is in, shal be broken. But yf it be a brasen pot, it shal be sowed, and reded with water. All y males amonge the priestes shal eate thereof, for it is most holy. Yet withstandinge all y synofferinge whose bloude is brought in to the Tabernacle of wyntesse make an atonement, shall not be eaten, but burne with fyre.

The vii. Chapter.

143 Unto this is the lawe of the trespass offeringe, and it shal be most holy. In the place where the burnt offeringe is layed, there shall of his bloude be sprenten rounde aboute vpon the altare. And all his fat shal be offered: the rumpe, and the fat y connereth the bowels, the two kidneys with the fat y is theron vpon the lynes, and the nee on the leuer vpon the kidneys also. And the priest shal burne it vpon the altare for an offeringe vnto the LORD. This is a trespass offeringe.

All the males amonge the priestes shal eate it in the holy place, for it is most holy: euen as the synofferinge, it shal be the trespass of-feeding be also, they shall both have one law: and it shall be the priestes, that receive the flesh thereof. And which priest offereth any burnt offering, the slaying of the same burnt offering, that he hath offered, shall be his. And every meat offering, that is eaten in the house, shall be upon the golden altar, as fire in the house, shall be the priestes, that offer it. And every meat offering, is mingled with oyle, or wine, shall be eaten in all Aarons houses, as well as another.

Moses.

And this is the law of the health offering, that is offered unto the LORD. If they will offer a sacrifice of thanksgiving, then shall they offer unleavened cakes mingled with oyle, and sweet wafers, baked over with oyle, and seved cakes of fine flour mingled with oyle. This offering also shall they bring upon a cake of leavened bread, as the thank offering of his health offering: and of them all he shall offer one for an health offering unto the LORD. And it shall be the priestes, that sprinkle the blood of the health offering. And the flesh of the health offering in his health offering, shall be eaten the same day that it is offered, and there shall be no change of lefe over until the morning.

Leviticus.

And whether it be a woman or a freewill offering, yet shall be eaten the same day that it is offered: if ought be left over until the morning, yet may it be eaten. But loke what seemeth unto you, if by the day of the flesh that is offered, it shall be burnt with the fire. And if any man upon the third day, eat of the flesh of his health offering, he shall not be accepted that offered it. Neither shall it be retained unto him, but it shall be refused. And loke which soul eateth thereof, he is guilty of a mynde.

And

And the flesh that toucheth any uncleanness, shall not be eaten, but burnt with the fire. And who so ever is cleane of body, shall eat of the flesh: and the soul that eateth of the flesh of the health offering which belongeth unto the LORD, his uncleanness be upon him, and he shall be cut out from among his people.

And when a soul toucheth any uncleanness, whether it be an unclean man, catell, or any other abomination that is, and eateth of the flesh of the health offering, that belongeth unto the LORD, the same shall be cut out from among his people.

And the LORDE speaketh with Moses, and sayde: Speake unto the children of Israel, and saye: Ye shall have no fire of oxen, lambs, and goates: nevertheless the fat of it that hath a lome, and of such as is come of wythe beastes, that maye ye occupy to all manner of wits, but ye shall not eat it.

For who so ever eateth the fat of a beast that is given unto the LORD for an offering, the same soul shall be cut out from his people. Moreover, ye shall have no blood, neither of catell, nor of foules, when so ever ye dwell. What soul eateth any blood, the same shall be cut out from his people.

And the LORDE speaketh with Moses, and sayde: Speake unto the children of Israel, and saye: Who so will offer his health offering unto the LORD, the same shall also bring with all, that belongeth unto the health offering for the LORD. And he shall bring it with his hande for the offering of the LORD: namely the fat upon the breast shall he bring, with the breast, to be a wave offering before the LORD. And the priest shall burne the fat upon the altar, and the breast shall be Aarons and his sonnes.

And the right shoulder shall they give unto the priest for a gift of their health offering. And let the right of Aarons sonnes of fresh the blood of the health offerings, and the fat, the same shall have the right shoulder for his parte. For the Wavebreast and the Right shoulder have I taken of the children of Israel, and of their health offerings, and have given them unto Aaron the priest and unto his sonnes for a perpetual dewtye.

This is the offering of Aarons and of his sonnes, of the offerings of the LORD, in the daye when Moses presented them to be priestes unto the LORD, what ever as the LORDE commanded (in the daye when he anointed them) to be given them of the children of Israel for a perpetual dewtye, and unto all their posterities. And this is the lawe of the burnt offering, of the meat offering, of the sin offering, of the trespass offering, of the offering of consecration, and of the health offering, which the LORDE commanded Moses upon mount Sinai, in the daye when he gave him the commandement unto the children of Israel, to offer their offerings unto the LORD in the wilderness of Sinai.

The viij. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake unto Moyses, & sayde: Take Aaron and his sonnes with him, & their vestimentes, & the anoyning oyle, and a bullocke for a synofferynge, two rammes, and a manbe with enlaided back, and call the whole congregation together, because the dore of the Tabernacle of mynysse. Moyses dyd as the LORDE commaunded him, and gathered the congregation together unto the dore of the Tabernacle of mynysse, and sayde vnto them: This is it, that the LORDE hath commaunded to do.

B And he toke Aaron and his sonnes, and washed them with water, and put the albe vpon him, and girded him with the girdell, and put vpon him the ynwore carycle, and put the outbody coer vpon him, and girded him vpon the outbody coer, & put the breest lappeleron, and m & byssappe light and perfectensse: And so the myter vpon his heade. And upon the myter was above his face heade, put he a place of golde on the holy crowne: as the LORDE commaunded Moyses.

And Moyses toke the anoyning oyle, & anoynted the Tabernacle, and all that was therein, and consecrated it, and sprentled therewith fenne vnto the altare, and anoynted the altare with all his vessel, the laver with his sope, that is might be consecrated: and poured the anoyning oyle vpon Aarons heade, and anoynted him, that he might be consecrated.

E And he brought Aarons sonnes, and put albe vpon them, and girded them with the girdle, and put bonettes vpon their heades, as the LORDE commaunded him.

And he cauld bynges a bullocke for a synofferynge, and Aaron with his sonnes layed their handes vpon his heade, and then was he slayne. And Moyses toke of the bloude, & put it vpon the hornes of the altare rounde aboute with his finger, and pacified the altare, and poured the bloude vpon the botome of the altare, and consecrated it, that he might recomyte. And toke all the fat vnto the bowels, the liver vpon the liver, and the two kidneys with the fat theron, and burned it vpon the altare. But the bullocke of his slaynt, flesh & donge burned he with fyre without the hoost, as the LORDE commaunded him.

And he brought a ramme for a burnofferynge. And Aaron & his sonnes layed their handes vpon his heade, & then was he slayne. And Moyses sprentled of the bloude vpon the altare rounde aboute, bewet the ramme in pece, and burnt the heade, the peare, and the feet. And washed the bowels and the legges with water, and so burned the ramme vnto the altare. This was a burnt offerynge for a sweete savoure, and a sacrifice vnto the LORDE, as the LORDE commaunded him.

He brought also the other ramme of the offerynge of the consecracio. And Aaron with his sonnes layed their handes vpon his heade, and then was he slayne. And Moyses toke of his bloude, and put it vpon the eppes of Aarons righte eare, and vpon the eppes of his righte hande, and vpon the greates eare of his righte foot.

And he brought Aarons sonnes, and put of the bloude vpon the eppes of the righte eare of them, and vpon the eppes of their righte handes, and vpon the greates eares of their righte feet, and poured the residue of the bloude vpon the altare rounde aboute. And he toke the fat and the rempe, and all the fat vpon the bowels, and the liver vpon the liver, the two kidneys with the fat theron, and the righte shulder. And out of the manbe of the enlaided back, and a case of oyled back, and a wafer, and layed them vpon the fat, and vpon the righte shulder, and put altogether vpon the handes of Aaron and of his sonnes, and washed it for a waferofferynge before the LORDE.

And afterwarde toke he allagayme from their handes, and burned it vpon the altare, even upon the burnofferynges: for a waferofferynge of consecracio for a sweete savoure, and a sacrifice vnto the LORDE. And Moyses toke the buff, and washed it with waferofferynge before the LORDE. Of the ramme of the offerynge of consecracio the same was Moyses parte, as the LORDE commaunded

Moses. And Moses took of 3 anoyntinge oyle, & of the bloude vpon the altare, & sprenkled it vpon Aaron & his vestimentes, vpon his sonnes & vpon their vestimentes, and so consecrated Aaron & his vestimentes, his son-nes and their vestimentes with him.

- C And he sayde vnto Aaron & his sonnes Stand 3 flesh before the doore of the Tabernacle of witness, & there eate it, & the bierd in 3 maner of the consecration offerings, as it is commaunded me, & sayde Aaron & his sonnes shall eate it. As for 3 which remaineth of the flesh & bierd, ye shal burne it with fyre. And in seuen dayes shal ye not departe from y doore of the Tabernacle of witness, vntill the dayes, 3 the dayes of y^e consecracion offerings be at an ende: for seuen dayes must y^e handes be consecrated, as it is commaunded to do it, that ye might be reconceiled. And ye shal carry before the Tabernacle of witness dayes and night seuen dayes long, & shal kepe y^e watch of y^e LORDE, that ye do ye not, for thus am I commaunded. And Aaron with his sonnes dyd as hath 3 LOR-DE commaunded by Moses.

The X. Chapter.

- AND vpon the eight dayes Moses called Aaron and his sonnes, and the ELders in Israel, and sayde vnto Aaron: Take vnto the 3 yonge calves for a synofferin-ge, and a ramme for a burnt offering, both without blemish, and bryng them before the LORDE, and spake vnto the children of Israel, and saye: Take an he goate for a synofferin ge, and a calf, and a shepe, both of a yeare olde, and without blemish for a burnt offering: and an ore and a ramme for an healeboffering, that we maye offre before the LORDE: and a meate offering mingled with oyle. For to daye shal the LORDE ap-peare vnto you.

- B And they toke when Moses commaunded before y doore of the Tabernacle of wit-nesse, and the whole congregacion came nye, and stood before the LORDE. Then sayde Moses: This is it, which the LORDE commaunded that ye shulde do, and then shall the glory of 3 LORDE appeare vnto you.
And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Go vnto 3 altare, and 3 offe thy synofferin ge and thy burne offering, and make an accoment for the and for the people. Then offe the peoples offering, and reconceile them also, as the LORDE hath commaunded.

And Aaron wente vnto the altare, and sleue 3 calf for his synofferin ge, & his son nes brought the bloude vnto him. And he dipped his finger in the bloude, and put it vpon the hornes of the altare, and poured y^e bloude vpon y^e become of the altare. As for the fat and the kidneys & the net vpon the luer of the synofferin ge, he burnt the vpon the altare, as the LORDE commaunded Moses. The flesh also and the hye bierd he sue without the hoost.

Afterwarde he sleue the burnt offering, and Aaron sones brought the bloude vnto him, & he sprentled it rounde about vpon the altare. And they brought him the burnt offering in peeces, & the heabe: & he burnt it vpon the altare. And he roasted the bowels and the legges, and burnt them about vpon the burnt offering on the altare.

Then brought he the offering of the people, and toke the goate, that synofferin-ge of the people, and sleue it, and made a synofferin ge thereof, as of the first. And brought the burnt offering, and dyd as the same is: and brought the meate offering, and toke his handfull, and burnt it vpon the altare, before the burnt offering of the monyng.

Afterwarde sleue he the ore and the ram for the healeboffering of the people.
And his sonnes brought him the bloude, which he sprentled vpon the altare rounde about. But the fat of the ore & of the ram-me, the rompe, and the fat that couereth the bowels, & the kidneys, & the net vpon the luer, all such he laid they vpon the hye, and burnt the fat vpon the altare. But the bierd and the tigh shoulder heauen Aaron for a meate offering before the LORDE, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

And Aaron lift up his hande ouer the people, and blessed them, and came downe from the mount of the synofferin ge, burnt offerin-ge, and healeboffering. And Moses and Aaron wente in to the Tabernacle of wit-nesse. And when they came out agayn, they blessed the people. Then appeared the glory of the LORDE vnto all the people.
For there came a fyre from the LORDE, and vpon the steare. It consumed the burnt offering and the fat. When all the people saw that, they reioysed, and fell vpon their faces.

The X. Chapter.

AND 3 sonnes of Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, toke ether of the hye censur, & put fyre therein, & layd incense vpon it, and brought strange fyre before the LOR-DE, which he commaunded them not. Then create there out a fyre from ꝑ LORDE, and consumed them, so that they dyed before the LORD E. Then sayde Moyses vnto Aaron: Thou seest, the LORD E sayde: I wil be sanctified vnto them that come nye me, and before all the people and I be glorified. And Aaron heare his peace.

B Moyses called Eliazar and Eliphaz the sonnes of Eliazar, and sayde vnto them: What do, and carry youre brethren out of the Sanctuary, without the hooff. And they heare, and caried them forth in their albes without the hooff, as Moyses sayde.

C Then sayde Moyses vnto Aaron & to his sonnes Eliazar and Jehonath: Ye shall not uncover youre heades, nor reme y^r clothes, that ye dye not, and the wrath come vpon the whole congregation: Let youre bunches of the whole heale of Israel becompe this burninge, which the LORD E hath vnto. As for you, ye shall see go out from the doore of the Tabernacle of myntesse, lest ye dye for the anyntinge oyle of the LORD E vpon you. And they dyd as Moyses sayde.

E Then the LORD E spake vnto Aaron, & sayde: Thou & thy sonnes whiche shal drinke no wyne nor stronge drinke, when ye ga in to the Tabernacle of myntesse: that ye dye not. Let this be a perpetuall lawe vnto all y^r posterities: ꝑ y^e me ye haue knowlege to discerne, what is holy and vnholy, what is cleane & vncleane: & that ye maye teach the children of Israel all the lawes, which the LORD E hath spoken vnto you by Moyses.

B And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron, and vnto Eliazar and Jehonath his sonnes that were left: Take the remnant of the meacofferinge in the sacrifices of ꝑ LORD E, and eate it without leuen beyde the altare, for it is most holy, euen in a holy place shal ye eate. For it is chy butyre and chy sonnes butyre in the sacrifices of the LORD E: for thusme I commaunded. But the Woundress and chy householde shal not eate, and chy sonnes and chy daughters with the in a cleane place. For this butyre is given vnto the and chy children in the dedificatione of the children of Israel. For the householde and the Woundress to the offeringe of the fat, shalbe brought in, that they maye be reuised for a Woundress before the LORD E. Therefore is it thine and chy childrens for a perpetuall butyre, as the LORD E commaunded.

B And Moyses stughe for the goats of the synofferinge, and founde it burne. And he was angrie at Eleazar and Jehonath & sonnes of Aaron, which were left alive, and sayde: Wherefore haue ye not eaten the synofferinge in the holy place? for it is most holy, & be hath given it you, that ye might beate of fyre of the congregation, to make agremet for them before the LORD E. Beholde, the bloude as it came nee in to the Sanctuary, ye shalbe hane eaten it in the Sanctuary, as I was commaunded.

Aaron sayde vnto Moyses: Beholde, this butyre haue they offered their synofferinge & their burnt offeringe before ꝑ LORD E. And it is chaunced in a harsh manner. And shalbe I ease of the synofferinge so butyre, to be merry before the LORD E? When Moyses herde that, he was content.

The XI. Chapter.

B Then the LORD E talked wth Moyses & Aaron & sayde: Speak vnto the children of Israel, and saye: These are the lawes which ye shal use amonge all y^e keestes vpon earth: What so ever hath hooffe, & dryeth it in two clawes, & churweth and amonge the beestes, that shal ye eate. But let what churweth and hath hooffe, & dryeth it not, as the Camell, the same is vncleane vnto you, & ye shal not eate it. The Conyng churweth, but they dryeth not the hooffe in two clawes, therefore is they vncleane vnto you. The hare churweth and also, but dryeth not y^e hooffe in two clawes, therefore is he vncleane vnto you. And the Swyne dryeth y^e hooffe in two clawes, but they dryeth not the churweth, therefore is it vncleane vnto you. Of the flesh of these shal ye not eate, nor touch their carcases, for they are vncleane vnto you.

B These shal ye eate of all that are in the waters: What so ever hath fymer and scales in the waters, sea & ryuer, that shal ye eate. But what so ever hath not fymer and scales in the sea and ryuer, amonge all y^e more in the waters, & of all that y^e in the waters, it shalbe an abomination vnto you, so that ye eate not of their flesh, and that ye abhorre their carcases. For all that haue not fumes, & scales in the waters, shall ye abhorre.

C And these shall ye abhorre amonge: ſ foules, ſo that ye eate them not: The Eagle, the Oſtrake, the Cormorant, the Vulture, ſ Aye, and all his kinde, and all Ravens, & their kinde: the ſtork, ſ the Eghearon, the Coot, the Sparrow hawk with his kinde, the hille Oule, the Scoule, the greete Oule, ſ the chace, the Pollycorn, the Swaine, the Pye, the Heron, ſ Jaye with his kinde, the Lap wyng, and ſ Swallowe. And what ſo euer creepeth amonge the foules, and goeth upon foure feet, ſhall be an abhominacion vnto you. Yet theſe ſhall ye eate of the foules that creepe and goe upon foure feet: euen thoſe that haue no nayle aboute vpon ſ legges, to hop with all vpon earth. Of theſe maye ye eate, as thereto the Lord ſaith with his kinde, and the Scalam with his kinde, & the ſargol with his kinde, & the Hagab with his kinde. But what ſo euer els hath foure feet amonge the foules, it ſhall be an abhominacion vnto you, and ye ſhall eate it for vncleane. Who ſo euer toucheth the carcaſe of ſuch ſhall be vncleane vntill ſ euen: and who ſo euer beareth the carcaſe of any of theſe, ſhall waſh his clothes, and ſhall be vncleane vntill the euen.

That foue every beaſt that hath hoſſe, and bearyeth it not in to two clawes, & cheweth not cud, ſhall be vncleane vnto you. Who ſo euer toucheth ſuch, ſhall be vncleane. And what ſo euer goeth upon handes amonge ſ beaſtes that goe upon foure feet, ſhall be vncleane vnto you. Who ſo euer toucheth the carcaſe of ſuch, ſhall be vncleane vntill euen. And he ſ beareth their carcaſe, ſhall waſh his clothes, and be vncleane vntill he eate. For ſuch are vncleane vnto you.

C Theſe ſhall be vncleane vnto you alſo, amonge the beaſtes that creepe vpon earth: ſ Weſell, the Moyle, the Tode, every one with his kinde, the Hedgehogge, the Skille, the Lacerre, the Snake, and the Moyle, theſe are vncleane vnto you amonge all the ſ crepe. Who ſo euer toucheth the deere carcaſe of theſe, ſhall be vncleane vntill the euen. And what ſo euer eny ſuch deere carcaſe falleth vpon, ſhall be vncleane, what ſo euer veſſell of wood it be, or ſayment, or ſteyne, or bagge. And every veſſell that eny thinge is occu- pyed withall, ſhall be put in the water, and is vncleane vntill the euen, and then ſhall it be cleane. All manner of earthen veſſell that eny ſuch carcaſe falleth in to, ſhall all be vncleane ne that therein is, & ye ſhall breake it. All mee- to which is eate, that eny ſuch meere cometh in to, is vncleane: & all manner of veyre that is wrought in all manner of ſuch veſſell is vncleane. And what ſo euer eny ſuch carcaſe falleth vpon, it ſhall be vncleane, whether it be once or twell, ſo ſhall it be broke, for it is vncleane, and ſhall be vncleane vnto you: & euen theſe ſome dayes, well, & poundes of water are cleane. But who ſo euer toucheth theſe carcaſes, is vncleane.

And though the deere carcaſe of eny ſuch ſell vpon the ſeas that is ſonne, yet is it cleane. But when there is water pouced vpon the ſeas, and afterwarde eny ſuch deere carcaſe falleth thereon, then ſhall it be vncleane vnto you.

When a beaſt dyeth that ye maye eate, he that toucheth the deere carcaſe thereof, is vncleane vntill euen. Who ſo toucheth eny ſuch carcaſe, ſhall waſh his clothes, and be vncleane vntill the euen. Likewiſe he that beareth eny ſuch carcaſe, ſhall waſh his clothes, and be vncleane vntill the euen.

What ſo euer creepeth vpon earth, ſhall be an abhominacion vnto you, and ſhall not be eaten. And what ſo euer creepeth vpon ſ hely, or all that goeth vpon foure or moſe feet, amonge all that creepeth vpon earth, ſhall ye not eate, for it ſhall be an abhominacion vnto you. Make not your ſoules abhominable, and deſile you not in them, to ſlaye your ſelues: for I am the LORD your God. Therefore ſhall ye ſanctifie your ſelues, that ye maye be holy, for I am holy. And ye ſhall not deſile your ſelues in any manner of crying beaſt, that creepeth vpon earth: for I am the LORD, which broughte you out of the lande of Egypte, that I might be your God: other ſort ſhall ye be holy, for I am holy.

This is the lawe ouer ſ beaſtes and foules, & all manner of ſcales of creeping beaſtes in the waters, and all manner of foules that creepe vpon earth that ye maye knowe to diſcerne what is vncleane & cleane, and what manner of beaſtes are to be eaten, and what are not to be eaten.

The xij. Chapter.

AND the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, & ſayde: ſpake vnto the children of Iſrael, and ſaye: When a woman hath conceived, and beareth a manchild, ſhe ſhall be vncleane ſeven dayes, ſo longe as ſhe ſuffereth his diſeaſe, and in ſ eighth daye ſhall ſ fleſh of his ſoule ſayme to be eate. And ſhe ſhall bye at home thre and thirtie dayes in ſ blood of hir purifying: as the ſhal each no be y thinge, nor come in to y. Sane any, yll be y baies of hir purgynge be out.

Doe yf she is a maybedolde, she shal she be uncleane two wykes, so longe as she is fresh but of case, and she and the soone baies shal she be at home in the wykes of hir purgynge.

B And when the dayes of hir purgynge are out, for the synne of for the brought, she shal bringe a lambe of one yere olde for a burnt offering, and a yonge pigeon or a turt all dove for a synnofferinge to the bare of y Tabernacle of wyttesse unto y prest, which shal offere it before the LORDE, and make an assement for her, and so shal she be clen sed from hir bloodyssue. This is the lawe for her that beareth a manchild or maybe childer.

k And yf she be not able to bringe a shepe, then let hir take two curtell doves, or two yonge pigeons, the one for a burnt offeringe, the other for a synnofferinge, then shal the prest make an assement for her, so that she shal be cleane.

The xliij. Chapter.

3 WHEN Y LORDE spake unto Moyses & Aaron, he sayde: When there cometh up any change in the skynne of a mans flesch, whether it be scabbe or a gylfyringe whyte (as though there welde be a leprosy in y skynne of his flesch) he shal be brought unto Aaron the prest, or to one of his sonnes amonge y prestes. And when the prest seeth the plage upon the skynne of the flesch, that the hayres be turned to whyte, and is seme deper in that place than the other skynne of his flesch, then is it surely a leprosy, therfore shal the prest lade upon him, and iudge him uncleane.

But when there is any whyte plect in the skynne of his flesch, and yet seme no deper than the other skynne of the flesch, and the hayres be not turned to whyte, the shal the prest shew him up seven dayes, and on y seventh daye lode upon him: yf the plage seme unto him as afore, & hath freer no deper in the skynne, then shall the prest shew him up yet seven dayes me. And when he lokech on him agayne upon the seventh daye, and syndech, then the plage be darfish, and hath freer no deper in the skynne, the shal he iudge him cleane, for it is but a yllise, and he shal wash his clothes, & then is he cleane.

B But when the scabbe freeteth further in the skynne (after that he is sene of the prest, and iudged cleane,) and he be now sene of the prest agayne: when the prest seeth the, y the scabbe hath freer farther in the skynne, he shal iudge him uncleane, for it is surely a leprosy.

When a plague of leprosy is upo a man, he shal be brought unto the prest. When he seeth and syndech, that there is whyte ry sen up in the skynne, and the hayres turned unto whyte, and there be now flesch in the skynne, it is surely an olde leprosy in y skyn ne of his flesch, therfore shal the prest iudge him uncleane, and not shew him up, for he is uncleane already.

But when the leprosy breaketh out in the skynne, and couereth the whole skynne, from the heade vnto the feet, all that the prest can se, So when the prest lokech upon it, and syndech, that y leprosy hath couered all the flesch, he shal iudge him cleane, for so much as he is turned all in to whyte upon him, for he is cleane.

C And when a plague of flesch is there, in the day: when he is lokech upon, che to be uncleane. And when the prest seeth y roue flesch, he shal iudge him uncleane, for he is uncleane, & it is surely a leprosy. But yf the roue flesch change agayne, and be turned in to whyte, then shall he come unto the prest. And when the prest lokech upon him, and syndech, that the plage is turned to whyte, he shal iudge him cleane, for he is cleane.

When there is a byle in the skynne of any mans flesch, and breaketh agayne, and af terward in the same place there arys up a ny whyte thinge, or a gylfyringe whyte sen where the byle, he shal be sene of the prest. So when the prest seeth, that it appeareth to be lower than the other skynne, and the hay res turned to whyte, then shal he iudge him uncleane, for it is surely a plague of leprosy broken out of the byle. But yf the prest se and syndech, that the hayres are not whyte, and is not lower than the other skynne, and is darfish, he shal shew him up seven dayes.
If it hath freer far then in the skynne, then shal he iudge him uncleane, for it is surely a plage of leprosy. But yf the gylfyringe whyte abyde still, and freeteth no farther, the is it but a pynne of the byle, and the prest shal iudge him cleane.

When the skynne of any mans flesch is hurt with syn, and the pynne of the burne ge be ready to whyte, and the prest lokech upon him, and syndech, the hayres turned to whyte upon the mark of the burnynge, & it appeareth deper than the other skynne, the

is there freely a leprosy broght out of þe prynces of þe burninge: therefore shal þe priest iudge hit vncleane, for it is a plague of leprosy. But yf the priest is and fynde, that þe boye upon the prynces of the buttes geis not turned vnto whete, & is so lower then the other sayme, and is darerish also, he shall shute him up for a daye.

And upon the seventh daye he shall loke vpon him: yf it hath frete farther in yf sayme, then shal he iudge him vncleane, for it is a leprosy. But yf it stode styll vpon the marke of the burnyng, and frete no farther in the sayme, and is darerish, then is it a sore in þe marke of the burnyng: & the priest shal iudge him cleane, for it is but the prynces of the burnyng.

E When a man or woman is stricken vpon the heade or beere, and the priest seith the marke, and fyndeth that it appeareth deeper then the other sayme, and the haye be the re golde and chynas, then shal he iudge him vncleane: for it is a sayse of leprosy as the haye or of the beere. But yf the priest is that þe sayse apone no depur the the sayme, and that the haye is not of a pale colour, he shall shute him up for a daye. And vpon the seventh daye when he lokech, and fyndeth, that the sayse hath frete no farther, and that he is no golde haye there, and that the sayse appears no deeper then the other sayme, then let him be shaven: but so that he shawe not of the scabbe, and the priest shall shute him up yet seven dayes moe. And vpon the seventh daye reb he lokech, and fyndeth that the sayse hath frete no farther in the sayme, and that it appears no deeper then the other sayme, then shall the priest iudge him cleane. And he shall wash his clothes, for he is cleane. But yf the scabbe frete farther in the sayme (after þe he is iudge cleane) and the priest lokech, and fyndeth, that the scabbe hath frete farther in the sayme, then shal he seite nome for golden haye, for he is vncleane. Wherefore yf he seith that the scabbe stodech styll, & that pale haye is there yf en apen, then is þe scabbe holi, and he is cleane, therefore shall þe priest iudge him to be cleane.

Whiche there is any pluckinge whete vpon þe sayme: of the flesch of a man or woman, and the priest seith that the glisteringe whete is darerish: then is it but a whete scabbe risen vpon þe sayme, & he is cleane.

When the haye fall out of the heade of a man or woman, so that he is balde, the sayme is cleane. If they fall out of his fore hea-

de, then is he fore heade balde & cleane. But yf there be a whete scabbe sore in the balde heade, or balde fore heade, then is there a leprosy risen vpon the balde heade or balde fore heade: therefore shal þe priest loke vpon him. And when he fyndeth the whete scabbe sore risen vpon his balde heade or balde fore heade, then shal þe sayme of the flesch be a leprosy, therefore is he a leprosy man and vncleane. And the priest shall iudge him vncleane, because of þe same fore vpon his heade.

Whoso now is leprosy, his clothes shal be rent, and the hea be bare: & the clothes mofled, and shall in any wyse be called vncleane. And so longe as the soe is vpon him, he shal be vncleane, dwell alone, and haue his dwellinge without the hoof.

What the plague of leprosy is in a cloth, whether it be wollen or linnen, in the warpe or weft, whether it be linnen or wollen, or in a sayme, or in any maner thinge that is made of sayme. And what a plague is pale or darerish in the cloth or sayme, either in the warpe or weft, as in any maner thinge that is made of sayme, the same is surely the plague of leprosy, therefore shall the priest loke vpon it. And when he seith the plague, he shall shute it up for a daye. And vpon the seventh daye when he seith that þe plague hath frete farther in the cloth, in the rent or weft, in a sayme or in any maner thinge that is made of sayme, then is it a stricken plague of leprosy, and is vncleane. And the cloth shal be burnt, either warpe or weft, whether it be wollen or linnen, or any thinge made of sayme, & he is in any such plague. So it is a plague of leprosy, and shal be burnt & fye.

But yf the priest is that the plague hath frete no farther in þe cloth, either in the warpe or weft, or in any thinge made of sayme, then shal he commaunde to wash the thinge that the plague is in, and shall shute it up after seven dayes. And when the priest seith (after that the plague is washed) yf the plague is soe charged before his eyes, and hath frete no farther also, yet is it vncleane, & shal be burnt & fye: for it is deeper in more, and hath made the sayme. Wherefore when the priest seith that the prynces is darerish after the washinge of it, then shall he rent it out of the clothes, and of the sayme, out of the warpe or weft. But yf it appeare any more in the cloth (either in the warpe, or in the weft) or in any maner thinge made of sayme, then is it a stricken plague and with fye shal it be burnt that any such plague is in. So for the cloth, either warpe or weft, or any out an chynge made of slayme that is musthe, and the place be departed from it, it shalbe washed once a daye, & then is it cleane.

This is the laste cure the plague of leprosy in clothes, whether they be wollen or tynne (whether in the warpe or in the wefte) and in any manner of thinge made of flanne, to wiche theym cleane or vndeane.

The XIII. Chapter.

AND the LORDE spake vnto Moyses, and sayde: Thus is the lawe ouer þe leper, when he shalbe clefied. He shall come vnto þe prest, and the prest shal go out of the host, and loke howe the plague of leprosy is healed vpon the leper. And he shal commaunde him that is to be clefied, to take two luynges byrden, which are cleane, and Cedar wode, and purple wolle, and syppe, and shall commaunde the one byrde to be tyld in an earthen vessell ouer sprayyng water. And he shall take the luynges byrde with the Cedar wode, the purple wolle, and syppe, and byppe them in the bloudes of the same byrde vpon the sprayyng water, and sprinkle it seven tymes vpon him that must be clefied from þe leprosy. And so clefied him, and let the luynges byrde flye at libertie in to the fynde.

But he that is clefied, shal wash his clothes, and shawe of all his haye, and bathe him self with water, so he be cleane. Afterward let him go in to the host, yet shall he tarye without his tent seven dayes. And vpon the seventh daye shal he shawe of all þe haye vpon his heade, nps his beard, vpon his browes, so that all the haye be shawen of, and he shall wash his clothes and bathe his fleshy in water, then is he cleane.

And vps the eight daye shal he take two lambes without blemyshe, and a shepe of a yere olde without blemyshe, and thre tenth boles of fyne floure for a meate offeringe, mingled with oyle, & a Logg of oyle. The prest shall the prest present him that is clefied, and these thinges before the LORDE, before the doore of the Tabernacle of witnesseth, and shal take of þe one lambe, and offre it for trespass offeringe, with the Logg of oyle, & shall waue them, before þe LORDE, and afterwarde shall he slaye the lambe, where the synofferynge and burnt offeringe are slayen, namely, in the hely place. For as the synofferynge, so is the trespass offeringe the priestes also, for it is most holy.

C And the prest shall take of the blende of the trespass offeringe, and put it vpon the eys of þe right eare of him that is clefied, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, and vpon the greute too of his right fore. Afterward shall he take of the oyle out of the Logg, and poure it in to his awne left hande, and byppe his righte finger in the oyle that is in his left hande, and spenle the oyle with his finger seven tymes before the LORDE. And for the remanent of the oyle in his hande, he shall put it vpon the cyppe of the right eare of him that is clefied, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, & vpon the greute too of his right fore, even aboue vpon the Monte of the crespase offeringe. And the remanent of the oyle in his hande, shall he poure vpon the heade of him that is clefied, and make an anointment for him before the LORDE. And he shall make the synofferynge, and receaue the oyle that is clefied, because of his vndeemesse. And afterward shall he sleie the burnt offeringe, and shal offre it vpon the altare with the meate of frynyng, and make an anointment for him, & then is he cleane.

But yf he be poore, and getteth noe so much rich his hande, shal let him take one lambe for a trespass offeringe, & waue it, & make an anointment for him, and a tenth boile of fyne floure mingled with oyle for a meate offeringe, and a Logg of oyle, & two curyll homes, or two yonge pignons which he is able to gett with his hande, let the one be a synofferynge, the other a burnt offeringe, and let him bringe them vpon the eight daye of his clefyinge vnto the prest before the doore of the Tabernacle of witnesseth before the LORDE.

Then shall the prest take the lambe for the synofferynge, and the Logg of oyle, and shall waue them all before the LORDE, and sleie the lambe of the trespass offeringe, and take of þe blende of the same trespass offeringe, and put it vpon the cyppe of the righte eare of him that is clefied, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, and vpon the greute too of his right fore, and poure of the oyle in to his awne left hande, and with his righte finger spenle the oyle that is in his left hande, seven tymes before the LORDE.

And for the remanent of the oyle in his hande, he shall put it vpon the cyppe of the righte eare of him that is clefied, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, & vpon the greute too of his right fore, even aboue vps þe blende of the trespass offeringe. The other oyle in his hande shal he poure nps þe heade of him that is clefied, & make an anointment for him before the LORD. And afterwarde of the one of the curill booke of yonge pigrons: according as his handes are able to get: he shal make a syn offeringe, of 3 ether a bullock offeringe, with the meate offeringe: and so shal the prest make an atonement for him: thus is cleinsed he before the LORD.

Let this be the lawe for the leper, which is not able with his hande to get, that shal graue unto his cleinsing.

S And the LORD spake unto Moyses and Aaron, and sayde: Whan ye see come in to the lande of Canaan, which I geue you to possesse: and yf there happen a plague of leprosy in any house of youre possession, then shal he that oweth the house, come and tell the prest, and saye: Me thynte there is as it were a plague of leprosy in my house. Then shal the prest commaunde to rydde all thyngs out of the house: or euer the prest go in to se 3 plague, lest all that is in the house be made vnclene. Afterwarde shal 3 prest go in, to se the plague.

Now whan he loketh, and syneth, 3 the rebe holme strakes yallowe or reddysh in the wallen of the house, 2 they come to the lower the a the wall besyde, then shall he go out of the dore of the house, and shut up the house for seven dayes. And upon the seventh daye whan he cometh, and seeth that the plague hath streyn farther in the wallen of the house, the shal be commaunde to beate ouer the stokes wher the plague is, 2 to cast the in a foule place without the cite, 2 the house to be scraped within 3 ounte a boure, and the dust yis scraped of so be pouerd without 3 cut in an vnclene place, 2 to rate ether stokes, and paterhem in the place of the other, and to rate ether playster, and playster the house.

O Whan the plague then cometh agayne, and beatech forth in the house, a fete 3 the stokes as a boold one, the playster scraped of, and the house playsterd of chene, the shal the prest go in: and whan he seeth that the plague hath streyn farther in the house, then is there surely a freynge leprosy in the house, and is vnclene: herfore shal the house be bueten downe, both the stokes, and 3 cumber and all the doft of the house, and shal be caried out of the cite in to an vnclene place. And whis so goeth in to the house, whyle it is there up, is vnclene vntyll yf com. And he 3 seeth theria, or toucheth them, shal wash his clothes.

But yf the prest is (whan he goeth) seeth that the plague hath streyn farther in the house, se, after that the house to new playster, the shal be adage it to be cleane, for the plagi is healed. And to a syn offeringe for the house, he shal take two bydes, Cedar wood, 2 people wool, and yspes, and slaye the one byde in an erthen vessil upon spraynginge water, and shal take the Cedar wood, the purple wall, the yspes, and the spraynginge byde, 2 bypethem in the bloude of the slaine byde upon the spraynginge water, and sprenke the house with all these thyngs: and so shal he purifie the house with the bloude of the byde, with the spraynginge water, with the spraynginge byde, with the Cedar wood, with the yspes, and with the purple wall. And the spraynginge byde shall be as libertye one of the towne in to the sube, 2 make as a atonement for the house, and then is it cleane.

This is the lawe ouer all maner plagess of leprosy: 2 synes, euer yf leprosy of clothes, and of houses, ouer sauen, scabbes, and gyls, ringe wher, that is moze be knowen, what any thinge is vnclene or cleane. This is 3 lawe of leprosy.

The XV. Chapter.

S And the LORD called vnto Moyses and Aaron, and sayde: Speake to the children of Israel, and saye vnto them: Whan a man hath a runninge yllie from out of his flesch, 3 same is vnclene: but the is he vnclene by the cause of this yllie, whan his flesch is streyn of yf yllie or wounde. Every ked where on he lyeth, 2 what he toucheth, shal be vnclene.

And he that toucheth his bed shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vnclene vntyll the euen.

And he 3 stretcheth wher he sat, shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vnclene vntyll the euen. Who so toucheth his flesch, shal wash his clothes, 2 bathe him self with water, and be vnclene vntyll the euen. Whan he stretcheth upon him that is cleane, yf same shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, 2 be vnclene vntyll the euen.

And the saddell and what so euer he toucheth up, shal be vnclene. And who so toucheth any thinge the he hath bene vnto him, shal be vnclene vntyll the euen. And who so beareth any such, shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vnclene vntyll the euen. And whom so he toucheth, and washeth not his handes first, the same shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vnclene: vntyll the euen. Whan he toucheth an erthen vesseil, it shal be vnto her the reem vesseil shal be reuend w water. And whil he is clea re of his yssue, he shal nombe viij. dayes af ter. The he make cleane, & wash his clothes, & bathe him self w spynnyng water, & he is cleane. And upon the eighth daye shal he take two small bones, or two yonge pigeons, and bringe them before the LORDE before the doore of the Tabernacle of mynstre, and give them vnto the priest. And the priest shal make of the one a synofferynge, of the other a burnt offerynge, and make an atonement for him before the LORDE, as a concurreyng his yssue.

C When a manys seide departeth from him (in slepe, the same shal haue all his fleshy w water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen. And all clothes, and every thyng that is stained with such seide, shal be washy with water, it be vncleane vntyll the euen. A woman, by whom such one lyeth, shal bathe herself w water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen.

When a woman hath the bloude yssue of hir fleshy, she shalbe put a parte vij. daies in to a sinuile place. Who so euer toucheth her, shal be vncleane vntyll the eue. And all that she lyeth vpon (as long as a she is put aparte) shalbe vncleane. And that she lyeth vpon, shalbe vncleane. And who so euer toucheth hir bed, shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen. And who so euer toucheth her manner thinge that she hath sytten vpon, shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, and be vncleane vntyll the eue.

D And yf a man lyeth with her (while she is put a parte) he shalbe vncleane seven dayes, and the bed that he laye vpon, shalbe vncleane.

E What a woman hath hir bloude yssue a longe season, not onely at the tyme of hir naturall course, but also out of the tyme of hir naturall course, then shal she be vncleane so longe as she hath the yssue: eue as she is at the tyme when she is put aparte, so shal she be vncleane here also. What so euer she lyeth vpon all the tyme of hir yssue, shalbe as hir bed, when she is put aparte.
And all that she sytten vpon, shalbe vncleane, as is hir vncleannesse, when she is put aparte. Who so euer toucheth any of them, shal be vncleane, and shal wash his clothes, and bathe him self with water, & be vncleane vntyll the euen.

F What yf she be cleane of hir yssue, she shal she nombe seven dayes, afterwarde shal she be cleane, and vpon the eighth dayes shal she take two small bones, or two yonge pi geons, and bringe them vnto the priest before the doore of the Tabernacle of mynstre.

And the priest shal make of the one a synoff erynge, of the other a burnt offerynge, and make an atonement for her before the LOR DE, as a concurreyng the yssue of hir vncle annesse.

Thus shal ye see that the childre of Ihsu despe them selves from their vncleannesse, that they dye not in their vncleannesse, when the y desyle my habitation, which is amonge you.

This is the lawe ouer him that hath a runnyng soie, & him whos seide departeth from him in slepe, so that he is vncleane ther of. And ouer her that hath hir bloude yssue, and who so euer hath a runnyng soie, whe ther it be man or woman, and when a man lyeth with her charyng and cane.

The xvi. Chapter.

And the LORDE spake vnto Mosco. A (after that Aaron had shewed me his beeh, when they offered before the LORDE) & sayde: Spake vnto Aaron thy brother, he go not at all tymes in to the Synner Sanctuary, within the vate before the Altare, which is vpon the Arke, & he dye not: for I will appeare in a cloude vnto the Altare. And herewith shal he go in, euen such a yonge bullocke for a syn offerynge, and such a ramme for a burnt of ferynge, and shal put on the holy linnen clo be, and haue linnen breeches vpon his fleshy, and gird him with a linnen girdle, and haue the linnen miter vpon his heade.

For these are thy holy garments: & he shal bathe his fleshy with water, & put them on:
& of the congregation of the childre of Ihsu he shal take two he goate for a synofferynge, and a ramme for a burnt offerynge.

And Aaron shal bringe the bullocke his owne synofferynge, and make an atone ment for himselfe, and his house: and a farrme de shal he take the two goates, and pfecte them before the LORDE, euen before the doore of the Tabernacle of mynstre, and shal cast lottes vnto the two goates: the lee of the one goate for the LORDE, and the other for the fire goate. And the goate that the LOR DE eslell vpon, shal be offre for a synoff erynge. But the goate, that the fire goate let fall vpon, shal he pfecte at ynter: before the LOR DE, to make an atonement for him, and so let the fire goate go vnto the wyldernes. And so shal he bringe the bullocke of his synoff erynge, and make an atonement for him and his householde, and shal tyl him.

And he shall take a censor full of coales from the altar that standeth before the LORD, and his hand full of beaten incense, and bring them in within the vail, and put the incense upon the fire before the LORD, that the cloude of the incense may cover the Mercyseat, which is upon the mercyseat, that he dye not. And he shall take of the bloude of the bullocke, and sprenkle it with his finger towards the Mercyseats on the forehead. And likewise shall he sprenkle of the bloude thyn with his finger before the Mercyseats. The shall he kill the goat which is the peoples synnoffer, and bringe in of his bloude within the vail, and shall do with his bloude, as he dyd with the bloude of the bullocke, and sprenkle therewith also on the forehead towards the Mercyseats, and so shall he reconcile the Sanctuary from the uncleynesse of the children of Israel, and fro their trespasses in all their synnes. This shall he do once the Tabernacle of witness, which is the habitation with them among their uncleynesse.

¶ And when he shall be in the Tabernacle of witness, when he goeth in to make an attonement in the Sanctuary, until he go out: and so shall he make an attonement for himself and his house, and for the whole congregation of Israel. And when he goeth forth into the altar that standeth before the LORD, he shall reconcile it, and shall take of the bullockes bloude, and of the goats bloude, and put it upon the horns of the altar round about. And with his finger shall he sprenkle of the bloude thyn seven tymes, and he lome it, and consecrate it from the uncleynesse of the children of Israel.

¶ And when he hath made an ende of reconciling the Sanctuary, and the Tabernacle of witness, and the altar, he shall burne the lynnge goats.

The shall Aaron laie both his handes upon the head of him, and censeit over him all the mysdoes of the children of Israel, and all their trespasses in their synnes, and shall laie the upon the head of the goat, and by some mans hande, shall hee lome him in to the wilderness: the goat maye be beate all their mysdoes upon him in to the wilderness, and he shall laie him in the wilderness.

And Aaron shall go in to the Tabernacle of witness, and put of the linnen clothes, which he put on when he came in of the Sanctuary, and shall leave them there, and bathe his flesh with water in the holy place, and put on his quirt royment.

The viij. Chap.

And he shall go forth, and make his burne offering, and the burne offering of the people, and make an attonement both for himself and for the people, and burne the fat of the synnoffer upon the altar. And he shall carry out the fat goat, shall wash his clethes, and bathe him self with water, and then come into the hoost.

The bullocke of the synnoffer, and the goat of the synnoffer (whose bloude was brought in to the Sanctuary to make an attonement) shall be carried out of the hoost, and burnt with fire, both their synnes, flesh, and bones. And he that burneth them shall wast his clethes, and bathe him self with water, and then come in to the hoost.

And this shall be a perpetuall lawe unto you: Upon the tenth daye of the seventh moneth shall ye humble youre selves, and do no worke, whether it be one of youre selves, or a stranger amonge you. For in this daye is youre attonement made, that ye maye be cleansed from all youre synnes before the LORD: therefore shall it be a fre Sabbath unto you, and ye shall humble youre selves. And this shall be a perpetuall lawe.

But the priest that is anointed, and whose handes was fylled to be put in his fasten strap, shall make this attonement, and shall put on the linnen clothes, namely the holy vestmentes, so shall hee reconcile the holy Sanctuary, and the Tabernacle of witness, and the altar, and the people, and all the people of the congregation. This shall be a perpetuall lawe unto you, that ye reconcile the children of Israel from all their synnes once a yeare. And Moses dyd, as the LORD commaunded him.

The XVII. Chapter.

¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, and sayde: Speake unto Aaron, and his sonnes, and to all the children of Israel, and saye unto them: This is that the LORD hath commaunded: What so ever be of the flesh of Israel, whether an ope, or laie, or goat in the hoost, or out of the hoost, and bringeth it not before the doore of the Tabernacle of witness, that it maye be broughte unto the LORD for an offering, before the habitation of the LORD. The same shall be gile of bloude, as though he had shed blood, and such a man shall be rector out from amonge his people.

Therefore shall the children of Israel bringe their offerings (that they will offie upon the wyde felde) before the LORD, even before the doore of the Tabernacle.

their offeringes unto the LORD. And the priest shall sprinkle the bloude upon the altare of the LORD. And for the bene of the Tabernacle, of thyselfe, and burne the fat for a sweete sacrifice unto the LORD. And they shall offer thei offeringes nomore unto Idols, which whome they go on whoringe. This shall be a perpetuall lawe unto them among their posteritie.

C Therefore shalt thou saie unto the: Whoe man so euer be of the house of Israel, or a stranger amonge you, which offereth a burnt offeringe or any other offeringe, and bringeth it not before the doore of the Tabernacle of wynter, so offer it unto the LORD. He shall be reuocd out from among his people.

12. c And what man so euer it be (either of the house of Israel, or a stranger amonge you) that catch my manner of bloude, agaynst him will I set my face, and wil reue him out from amonge his people: for the soule of y body is in the bloude, and I haue geuen it you for the altare, that your soules maye be reconcyled therewith: For the bloude that is in the soule maketh accompt. Therefore haue I saye unto the childe of Israel: To soule amonge you shall eate bloude, no nor any stranger that dwelleth amonge you.

D And what man so euer it be amonge you (whether he be of the house of Israel, or a stranger amonge you) that at the huntinge catcheth a beest or foule which maye be eaten, he shall poure out the bloude of the same, & waxe it with earth: for all fleshy lyueth in the bloude.

13. a And I haue sayd vnto the childe of Israel: Ye shall eate the bloude of no body for the life of all fleshy is in his bloude. Who so euer eateth it, shall be reued out. And what so euer soule eateth that which dyeth alone, or y was come of wythe beestes (whether he be one of your felowes or a stranger) the same shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself with water, and be vncleane vntill the even, and then is he cleane. But yf he wash not his clothes, nor bathe himself, then shall he deare his fyne.

 Thou shalt not lye with a woman's Then shalt lye with a woman of beast, to have to do with a beast, for it is abomination.

 ¶ Thou shalt defile yowre selues in none of the se thinges. For if ye heiden, whom I wil cast out before you, haue slayned them selues in all thes, and the londe is defiled there thro-row. And their much crueltie, I wyll not chere, so that the londe shall spue out the in-dwellers therof. Therefore kepe ye my statutes and lawes, and do not one of thes abhominations, neither one of yowre aunces selues nor the stranger amonge you: for all such abominacions haue I people of this londe done which were before you, & haue defiled the lande: that the lande spue not you out all so, whan ye haue defiled it, as it spewed out the heithen, that were there before you. For

The XIII. Chapter.

¶ And the LORD talked with Moses, and he said: Speake to the whole congregation of the children of Israel, and saye unto them: Ye shall be holy, for I am holy, & thus saith the LORD yowre God. Leue ry one of you his father and his mother. Re-pe my holy dayes: for I am the LORD yowre God. Ye shall not curse yowre selues with idle words, for ye shall make you no gods of metall: for I am the LORD yowre God.

¶ And whan ye wyll offer healethefferinges unto the LORD, then shall ye offer them, that be meate: be mercifull unto you, & whan ye shall eate them the same daye that ye offer them, and on the morrow: what so remaine left of the eate the daye, shall be burne with fy-re. But if any man eate therof vpon the thirde daye, then he is unholy, and shall not be accepted, and the same eate shall beare his synne, because he hath unhallowed the Sanctuary of the LORD, and such a sinner shall be roud out from amonge his people.

¶ Whan thou reape thy londe, thou shalt not reape downe the veruost borders of it rounde aboute, nor gather in all cleane op.
 Leane so likewise thou shalt not plucke thy nympede cleane also, nor gather in the gryn-pe that are fallen downe, but shalt leane them for the poore and stranger: for I am the LORD yowre God.

¶ Ye shall not sweare falsly by my name, for so to unhallowe the name of thy God: for I am the LORD.

¶ Thou shalt do no wronge to thy neighbour, neither shalt thou lye with him. The woman labourer shall not byde with the vnyll the morninge.

¶ Thou shalt not curse the deaf. ¶ Thou shalt not assemblinge blockes before thy house, but shalt feare thy God: for I am the LORD.

¶ Ye shall not scale wrongeously in iudgment, neither shalt ye accept the person of the poore, nor honoure the person of the grace, but thou shalt iudge thy neighbour righteously.

¶ Thou shalt kepe a prey, & a captiue go amonge the people. ¶ Neither shalt thou steale away thy neighbour's bloude: for I am the LORD.

¶ Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thine heart, but shalt tell thy neighbour his fauour, that thou beate not thyne soule in fault.

¶ Thou shalt not avenge thy self, nor beare enuill: will agaynst the child of thy people.

¶ Thou shalt loue thy neighbour, as thy self: for I am the LORD.

¶ Thy shewe shall be kept, that thou let not thy shewe be with defile of another synne: neither shalt thou sette with vnglyed feet. And let no garment come vpon the,
 which is mixt with wollen and linnen.

 hath to do with her, which is a labourer man, and hath bene madded withall of another man, but not loosed out, nor hath pray-ned freidome, it shall be purgified, but they shall not suffre death, because she was not fire.

And Moses spake thus vnto Aaron & to his sonnes, and to all the children of y^e Israel.

The XXX. Chapter.
And the LORDE called vnto Moses, & 2 sayde: Spere vnto Aaron, & to his son-nes, & they absteyne from y^e halowen thinges of the children of y^e Israel, which they haue halowed vnto me, & y^e they vnhaloue not my holy name: for I am y^e LORDE. Saie now vnto them y^e their p^{ro}phetes: Who so euer he be of yo^r sibe, y^e cometh nye vnto the holy thinges, which the children of y^e Israel halowe vnto the LORDE, & so defyleth him self vpon: he same, his soule shal perish before my face: for I am the LORDE.

Who so euer of the sibe of Aaron is a priest, or hath a runninge yssue, shal not coof the holy thinges, yll he be cleand. Who scauerth any uncleane thinge, or who se be departeth from him by night, or who so toucheth any woman that is uncleane unto him, or a man his uncleane unto him, & what so ever defileth hi, let what so ever toucheth any such, be uncleane untill the even. & shall not eate of the holy thinges, but shall first bath his flesh with water. And what if some man is gone downe, and be cleane, then maye he eate thereof, for it is to his good. Like what of such alone, or is rent of wynde bestien, shall be no eate, if he be not widene thereon: for I am the LORD. Therefore shall they kepe my lawes, if they late not synne upon them, & by them, when they unhalowe them selues in it. For I am the LORD, I halowe them.

B A stranger shal not eate of the holy thin ge, ne a non beloued gift of the priest, ne an hyed strange. But yf a prest bye a seile for his money, I saue maye eate thereof. And like who is borne in his house, maye eate of his bred also. Therwith also yf the prests daughters be a strangers wife, she shal not eate of the holcofferinges of holynes. But yf she be a wedde, or deuorced, or haue no fide, & commeth agayne to hir fathers house as a seile, when she was yet a mayden in hir fathers house: then shall she eate of hir fa thers bred. But no stranger shal eate thereof.

Who so els eatech of the halowed thyng es, on wyngly, shal put a fyth parte the re unto, and geue it unto the prest with the halowed thinge, that they unhalowe not the halowed thinges of the children of Israel, which they haue up unto the LORD, lest they late them selues with in doynge and treason, when they eate their halowed thyng geu, for I am the LORD which halowe the.

C And the LORD said vnto Moyses, & saide: Speake vnto Aaron & his synnes, & to all the chylde of Israel: What so ever Israelite or stranger in Israel will do his offeringe, whether it be their owne, or of fre wyl, that they will offre a burncofferinge unto the LORD, to reconcile them selues, it shal be a male, and without blemish, of the oxen, or lambe, or goatce. What so ever hath any blemish, shal they not offre, for they shal syn de no synours therwith.

And who so as yf offre an heilcofferinge unto the LORD Eco separate out a wene, or of fre wyl, oxen or shepe, it shalbe without blemish, & it maye be accepted. If shal ha ue no deformite. If it be blynde, or deade, or wounded, or haue a wen, or styrye, or scab bed, they shal offre none such unto the LORD

And put an offeringe of any such vnto the altare of the LORD.

And oxen or shepe: I haue myshappt men buis, or no rempe, maye then offre of a fre wyl: but of a wene it maye not be accepted.
Thou shal offre also unto the LORD no thinges: it is blynde, or deade, or rent, or cut out, & ye shal do no such in yours house. If ouer ye shall offre no bred unto youre God of a strangers hande: for it is marred of him, and he hath a deformite, therefore shal it not be accepted for you.

And the LORD spake vnto Moyses, & say vnto: What an eye, or labe, or geate is brought forth, it shal be seuen dayes with the name, and upon the eighth daye it shall sterke mane be offered vnto the LORD, & it is accept ed. Whether it be oxen or lambe, it shal not be layne with his yonger one daye.

But what ye will offre a the offeringe vnto the LORD: it maye be accepted, ye shal eate it the same daye, & kepe nothinge ouer untill the morninge: for I am the LORD. Therefore kepe now my commandementes, and do them: for I am the LORD, & ye unhalowe not my holynesse, & that I maye be halowed amonge the children of Israel. For I am he that halowe you, & the LORD, which brought you out of the land of Egypt, I might be ye God: I am the LORD.

The XXII. Chapter.

AND the LORD talked with Moyses, & he sayde: Speake vnto the children of Is rael, and say vnto them: These are the feastes of the LORD, which ye shal call bo ly dayes. Sixe dayes shal they worke, but the seventh daye is the rest of the Sabbath, and shalbe called holy. Ye shal do no worke therein, for it is the Sabbath of the LORD, where so ever ye dwell.

These are the feastes of the LORD, & are called holy, which ye shal call your festi uall: Upon the firste daye of the firste month at even, is the LORDS E. after. And upon the fifte daye of the same month is the feast of unleued bread of the LORD. Then shall ye eate unleued bread seuen dayes.

The firste daye shalbe called holy amonge you, ye shal do no worke of bondage therein, firste daye shal ye offre vnto the LORD. The seventh daye shalbe called holy likewise, when ye shal do no worke of bondage.

And the LORD talked with Moyses, & sayde: Speake to the children of Israel, & say vnto them: When ye come into the lande, & I shall geue you, and receyue downe your har

And þe same daie that ye sheaf is waied, shal ye offre a burnt offeringe vnto the LORDE, of a lamb be whiche is muche our blessing and of one yeare olde, wth the meate offeringe, two tenth deales of fyne flour mingled wth oyle, for an offeringe of a sweete sauoure vnto the LORDE: the drynt offeringe also, and the fourth parte of an ekin of wine.

C And ye shall eate neither bread, nor calke, nor furreweye (of new corne) vntill the same daye that ye bringe an offeringe vnto youre God. This shalbe a lawe vnto youre posterities, wher so euer ye dwell.

100. 12. b Then shal ye nomine from the nexte daye a fere the Sabbath, whan ye bringe in wth the sheaf seven whole sheaves, vntill the nexte daie after y^e sheaf is waied, namely, siue daies, shal ye nomine, and offre new meate offeringes vnto the LORDE. And out of all youre dwellinges shal ye offre, namely, two waine loaves of two tenth deales of fyne flour leued, and baken for the first frutes vnto y^e LORDE. And wth youre bread ye shal bringe seven lambs of one yeare olde wth out blemish, and a yonge bullocke, and ewe ramme: this shalbe the LORDES burnt offeringe, meate offeringe, and drynt offeringe. This is a sacrifice of a sweete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

D Moreover ye shal offre an he goate for a syn offeringe, and two lambs of a yeare olde for an healt offeringe. And þe prest shal waie it vpon the bread of the first frutes before the LORDE wth the two lambs. And they shalbe holy vnto the LORDE, and shal be the prestes. And thei daies shal ye proclame, for it shalbe called holy amonge you: no seruaile wth the shal ye do therein. A perpetual lawe shall it be amonge y^e posterities, wher so euer ye dwell.

E When ye reape doome y^e harvest of yoare londe, ye shal not cut it cleane doome wth the sickle, ner gather up all, but shall leaue it for the poore and straungers. I am the LORDE youre God.

100. 12. a And þe LORDE called Moyses, and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye: Vpon the first daye of the seventh moneth shal ye haue the holy rest of the eoman biuance of blowinge, wherin ye shal do no seruaile worke, and ye shal offre sacrifices vnto the LORDE.

E And the LORDE spake vnto Moyses, and sayde: Vpon the tenth daye in this seventh moneth is the daye of reconcyng, which shalbe an holy conuocation wth you. Ye shal humble youre soules therein, and offre vnto the LORDE, and shal do no seruaile worke in this daye; for it is the daye of accoment, that ye maye be reconciled before the LORDE youre God. For what shalbe so euer him bleth not himself vpon this daye, the same shalbe reed out fram amonge his people. And what soule so enter docten wth this daye, the same wth I destroye from amonge his people: therefore shall ye do no worke. This shalbe a perpetual lawe vnto youre posterities, wher so euer ye dwell. In the rest of youre Sabbath, that ye maye humble youre soules. Vpon the ninth daye of y^e moneth, whan ye kepe this holy daye from the euen southe vntill the euen agayne.

100. 12. c And the LORDE talked wth Moyses, and sayde: Vpon the fifte daye of the seventh moneth, is the feast of Tabernacles seven dayen vnto the LORDE. The first daye shal be an holy conuocation: no seruaile worke shal ye do therein. Seven dayes shal ye offre vnto the LORDE. The eighte daye shalbe an holy conuocation vnto you also, and yeshal offre vnto the LORDE: for it is the daye of gatheringe together: no seruaile worke shal ye do therein.

These are the holy daies of the LORDE, which ye shall proclame and helpe for holy conuocations, that ye maye offre vnto the LORDE burnt offeringes, meate offeringes, drynt offeringes and other offeringes, eury one accordinge to his daye, besyde y^e Sabbathes of y^e LORDE, and youre giftes, and tomes, and frey offeringes, that ye offre vnto the LORDE.

So vpon the fifte daye of the seventh moneth, whan ye haue brought in the increase of the londe, ye shall kepe the LORDES feast seven dayen longe. The first daye shalbe kepte holy daye, and the eighthe daye shalbe kepte holy daye also. And vpon the first daye ye shal take of y^e goodly frutesfull trees, boughes of palme trees, boughes of chibbe trees, and willowes of the brooke, and shal dayen shal ye be merry before y^e LORDE youre God: and thus shal ye kepe the feast vnto the LORDE seven dayes in the year. This shalbe a perpetual lawe amonge youre posterities, that they kepe holy daye thus in y^e seventh moneth. Seven dayes shal ye dwell in boches. Wher so euer ye an Israelite boche, shal dwell in boches, that they which come after you, maye knowe, howe that I made y^e children of Israel to dwell in Bethus, when I brought them out of the land of Egypt. I am the LORD your God. And Moyses tolde the children of Israel these holy lawes of the LORD.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

AND the LORD spake unto Moyses, saying: I will name the children of Israel, that they bring pure oil of beaten olives, that it may be allway put in the lampes, and burn before the vyle of witnessen the Tabernacle of witness. And Aaron shall dress it allway as when it is in mounting before the LORD. Let this be a perpetual lawe unto your posterity: so. And the lampes shall be dressed upon the pure table before the LORD perpetually.

AND thou shalt take fine flowers, and be revolve cakes thereof into seven beales: shall every cake have, & thou shalt laye them six on a table upon the pure table before the LORD. And upon the same shalt thou laye pure frankincense, that it may be bred of remembrance for an offering unto the LORD. Every Sabbath shall be prepared the before the LORD allway, and receive them of the children of Israel for an everlasting covenant. And they shall be Aaron & his sonnes, which shall eate them in the holy place, for this is his most holy of the offerings of the LORD for a perpetual lawe.

AND there wente out of Israel: a woman of Egypt, among the children of Israel, and strove in her hood with a man of Israel, & named the name of God blasphemy, & cursed. Then brought they him unto Moyses, his mother's name was Selomich, the daughter of Dibin, of the tribe of Dan. And they put him in prison, & all they were informed by the mouth of the LORD.

And the LORD spake unto Moyses, and saye: Bring him that cursed, one of the heathen, and let all the people see it, so ye shall handes upon his heade, and let the whole congregation stone him. And saye unto the children of Israel, Who so ever blasphemeth his God, shall beare his synne: and he that blasphemeth the name of the LORD, shall dye the death. The whole congregation shall stone him. The stranger, so shall he of the household be also. If he blasphemeth the name, he shall dye.

He that slayeth a man, shall dye by death, but he that slayeth a beast, shall paye for it. Soule for soule. And he that mayneth his neighbour, it shall be done unto him, even as he hath done: breake for breake, eye for eye, tooth for tooth: even as he hath mayned a man, so shall it be done unto him: agayne, so that, who so slayeth a beast, shall paye for it: But he that slayeth a man, shall dye. There shall be one manner of lawe among you, so I am the LORD your God.

Moyses tolde the children of Israel. And they brought him that had cursed, out of the heathen, and stoned him. Then dyd the child of Israel as the LORD commaunded Moyses.

The XXV. Chapter.

AND the LORD talked with Moyses upon mount Sinaï, and sayde: Speake to the children of Israel, and saye unto them: When ye come into the lande, I shall give you, the lande shall rest unto the LORD, so that thou sowe thy silde six yeares, and six yeares cut & vyne, and gather in the fruit. But in the seventh year the land shall have his Sabbath of rest for a Sabbath unto the LORD, wherein thou shalt not sowe thy silde, nor cut thy vyne.

Let what groweth of it self after thy harvest, thou shalt not reape it. And the grapes that growe without thy labour, shall thou not gather, for so much as it is the year of the lande rest: But the rest of the lande shall thou kepe for thy intent, that thou mayest eate thereof thy servants, thy mayde, thy byrlinge, thy guest, thy stranger with thee, thy cattell, and the beastes in thy fowles. All the increase shall be meate.

And thou shalt number seven of these years Sabbath, that seven years may be tolde seven times, and so the time of the seven years Sabbath make nyne and fourety yeares. Then shalt thou let the blast of the borne go thowder all your lande, upon the seventh daye of the seventh moneth, even in the daye of accomment. And ye shall halowe the seventh yeare, and shall call it a seven yeare in.

londe, for all them that brell therein: for it is the yeate of Jubilee. Then shall euery one amonge you come agayne to his possession and to his kynne: for the fiftiech yeate is the yeate of Jubilee. He shal not sowe ner reape it: that groweth of it himselfe gather the grapes, that growe without labour. For the yeate of Jubilee shall be holy amonge you. But loke what the felde beareth, that shall ye eate. This is the yeate of Jubilee, wherein ye shal come agayne euery man to his owne.

¶ Now when thou shalt ought unto thy neyghboure, or byest any thinge of him, there shal no man of you oppress his brother: but accordinge to the nombre of the yeate of Jubilee shal thou bye it of him: and a countinge to the nombre of the yeates of increase shall he sell it unto the. Accordinge to the multitude of the yeate shal thou rayse the price, and accordinge to the fewnesse of the yeate shal thou mynish the price: for he shall sell it unto the accordinge to the nombre of the increase. Therfore let no man defraude his neyghboure, but feare y God. For I am the LORD your God. Wherefore doo ye not my statutes, and kepe my lawes, so y ye be them that ye may dwell safe in the lande. For the lande shal geue you hir frute, so that ye shal haue enough to eate, and dwell safely therein.

¶ And yf ye wolde saye: What shall we care in the seventh yeate, in as much as we shal not sowe, nor gather in our increase? I wyl send my blessinge vpon you in the seuer yeate, that it shal bringe forth frute for thre yeates, that ye shal sowe in y eighthe yeate, and eate of the olde frute vntill the nyenthe yeate, that ye maye eate of the olde vntill new frute come agayne. Therfore shal ye not sell the lande for ever, for the lorde is myne. And ye are straungers and sojourners in the lande. And in all youre lande shall ye geue the lorde to lorde.

¶ When thy brother mayeth poore, and selleth y his possession, and his neygh kynsmen remember to him, y he maye redeeme it: then shal he redeeme that his brother sold. But when a man hath none to redeeme it, and cometh to me with his hande, so to redeeme our parte, then shal he be redeemd by many yeares: he shal be sold by the nombre of the yeate, and the remnant shal be redemed vnto him to whom he sold it, y he maye come agayne to his possession. But y his hande can not geue so much, as to haue our parte agayne, the shal it y he sold be sold in the hande of the buyer vntill y yeate of Jubilee: In y same shal he go out, and retorne to his owne agayne.

¶ He that selleth a dwellinge house within the walles of the cite, hath an whole yeare tyme to lorde it our agayne: that shal in the tyme, wherein he maye redeeme it. But yf he redeeme it not afore the whole yeate be out, then shal he that bought it, and his successors kepe it for ever, and it shal not go out lowe in the yeate of Jubilee. ¶ Likewise yf it be an house in a village, that hath no wall aboute it, it shal be counted like unto the felde of the countree, and maye be redeemd and shal go out in the yeate of Jubilee.

¶ The cities of the Levites, and the houses in the cities that their possession is in, maye all waye be redeemd. ¶ Who so purchaseth ought of the Levites, shal leave it in the yeate of Jubilee, whether it be house or cite that he hath had in possession. And the houses in the cities of the Levites are their possession amonge the children of Israel. But the felde before their cities shal not be sold, for it is their owne for ever.

¶ When thy brother mayeth poore, and selleth in deaite thyselfe, thou shal receave him as a stranger, or guest, that he maye live by the: and thou shal take no vntury of him, nor more then thou hast geue, but feare thy God, that thy brother maye live before the. For thou shalt not lend him money upon usury, nor buye him thy meate upon vantage. For I am the LORD thy God, which haue brought you out of the lande of Egypte, to geue you the lande of Canaan, and to be your God.

¶ When thy brother mayeth poore before the, and selleth himselfe from the, then shal he not be sold as a bond man: as an hired seruante and as a sojourner shal he be with the, and serue the vntill y yeate of Jubilee. Then shal he be parced lowe from the, and his children with him, and shal retorne to his owne father, and to his fathers possession: for they are my seruantes, whom I brought out of the lande of Egypte. Therefore shal they not be sold like bondmen. And thou shal not raigne ouer them with crudelty, but shal feare by God. But yf thou wylt haue sold seruantes and maydnes, thou shal buye them of the heathen, that are rounde abowt you: of the children of the seruantes and strangers amonge you, and of their generacions with you, and that are borne in your lande, the same shal ye haue for bond seruantes, and shal possesse them, y youre children after you: for an everlastinge possession, thei shal be y bondmen. But ouer ye are to be merciful to the children of Israel, there shal none of you raigne ouer another with crueltye.

When a stranger or sojourner waspeth ryght by the, and thy brether waspeth poore beside him, & selleth him self unto a stranger or sojourner by the, or to any of his kynne, then thou shalt haue right: a fter that he is sold he shall be redeemed agayn. And any of his brethren maye loue him out: or his wife or his kinde sonne, or any other kynsmen of his kinde: & if his awne hande getteth so much, he shall loue him self out, and shall redeem with him that bought him, from a yea-re that he sold him self, vntill the yere of Jubylie. And a money shall be counted a cor-dinge to the nombre of the yeres that he was sold, and his wages of the wholye ym-me shall be rekened withall.

If there be yet many yeres vnto a yea-re of Jubylie, then shall he (accordinge to the same) geue the more for his redemption, therafter as he is sold. If there remaine but few yeres vnto the yere of Jubylie, then shall he geue agayne thersafter for his redemption. And his wages from yere to yere shall be rekened withall, and thou shalt not let the other salue cruelly ouer him in his sight. But if he dye not than self out after this manner, then shall he go out free in the yere of Jubylie, and his disail with him: for the children of Israel are my seruantes, whiche I haue broughte out of the lande of Egypt. I am the LORD your God.

Thou shalt make you no Idols or ymage, and ye shall reare you up no pile, nor set up any mart stone in your lande, to worke youre sins thereto. For I am the LORD your God. A sepmey Sabbathes, and stande in awe of my Sanctuary. I am the LORD.

The xxvi. Chapter.

If ye will waite a doo in my statutes, and kepe my commandmentes and do them, then will I geue you a yne in due season, and a lande shall geue her increase, and the trees of a feld shall bringe forth their fruite. And the thinges whiche ye shall reache vnto the wyne harvest, and the wy-ne harvest shall reache vnto the sowinge tyme. And ye shall eate ye fruite in plenteousnes, and shall dwell safe in youre lande. I will geue peace in youre lande, so that ye shall sleepe, and no man shall make you a wayte.
I will geue euell bestes out of youre lande, and there shall no sworde go thorow youre lande.

Thou shalt chase youre enemies, & they shall fall into a swerde before you. & you of you shall doe as an hart: & an hart of hart ye shall chase them thousande. For your enemies shall fall in to the sword before you.

And I will geue me vnto you, and will case you to graue and increase, and will set up my covenante with you. And ye shall eate of the olde store, and shall let go the olde sorrowfulness of the new. & I will haue my dwelling amonge you, and my soule shall not refuse you. And I will waite amonge you, and will be youre God, and ye shall be my people. For I am the LORD your God, whiche broughte you out of the lande of Eg-ypte, that ye shoulde not be their bondmen.
And I haue broght the ceter of youre yoke, and caused you to go up right.

But if ye wil not hearken vnto me, nor do all these commandmentes, and will despise my statutes, & ye will not do all my com-mandmentes, & shall let my covenants stande, then will I do thus agayne vnto you. I will refuse you shortly with swellnges and fevers, which shall destroye a yere, & consume awaye a part. & shall sowe ynto the in vayne, and your enemies shall eate it up.

And I will set my face agaynst you, and ye shall be slayne before youre enemies. And they that hate you shall haue dominion ouer you. & ye shall flye, whan no man chaunceth yow.

But if ye will not hearken vnto me for all this, then will I make it yet sener vnto me more, to punyssh you for youre synnes, that I maye be proued of youre strength, and will make youre heauen lyke yron, and youre earth as a besse: and youre trauels and labor shall be lost, so that youre lande shall not geue her increase, and the trees in the lande shall not bringe forth their fruite.

If ye walke yet agaynst me, and will not hearken vnto me, then will I make it yet sener vnto me more, to punyssh you because of your synnes: & will sende wynde besse and moge you, which shall robbe you, and besse your cattell, and make you sterre, and youre hye wayes shall become wast.

But if ye will not yet be reformeb here withall, and will walke contrary vnto me, then will I make contrary vnto a yon also, & will punyssh you yet sener synnes for youre synnes. And I will bringe vpon you a iwe-nde of vengeance, which shall avenge my Testament. And though ye gather you together in to youre cities, yet will I sende the pestilence amonge you, and will deliuer you in to the handes of youre enemies. For I will destroye youre prouynce of best, so that men shall take youre best in one omen, and your ched shal be deliuered out by might. And whan ye see, ye shall not be inough.

E If ye wyl not yet for all this harden vnto me, I wyl make contrary vnto me, then wyl I also make contrary vnto you in much full displeasure, and wyl punish you sevenfold because of youre synnes. So that ye shal see the fleshe of youre synnes and brought in.
 And I wyl destroye youre hye altars, and rote out youre images, and wyl cast your bodies upon the bodies of youre Idols, and my soules shal abhorre you. And youre cities wyl I make wast, and buyng your churches to a laugh, and wyl not smell your sweete odour.

Thou wyl I make the lande desolace, so that your enemies shall dwell therein, and make it wast: but you wil I seuer amonge the heythen, and brayne out the worde after you, so that your lande shal be wast, & your cities desolace.

Then shall the lande reioyse in his Sab-bathes, as long as it lyeth wast, and ye be in the enemies lande. And then shal the lande keep holý daye, and eadys in his rest, as long as it lyeth wast, because it coude not rest in youre Sabbathes, whan ye dwelt therein.

And as for them that remaine of you, I wyl make them synne barred in the lande of their enemies, so that a shallinge leaf shall chase them. And they shall flye from it, as though a swerde persecuted them, and shal fall noman followinge upon them. And they shall fall one upon another (as it were before the swerde) and noman yet charynge them. And ye shall not be so bolde, as to withstande youre enemies, and shal perishe amonge the heythen, and the lande of youre enemies shal see you up.

And they that are left of you, shall pyce awaye in their mysdede, euen in the enemies lande, and in the mysdedes of their fathers shal they consume awaye. Then shall they knowelege their mysdedes, and the mys-dedes of their fathers in the trespase, wher with they haue trespased agaynst me, and walked contrary vnto me. Therefore wil I also make contrary vnto the, and wyl bryn-ge them in to the enemies lande.

Then shall theye remember of heres became. And then shall theye ende their mys-dedes. And I shal thinke vpon my couenaunt with Jacob, and vpon my couenaunt with Isaac, and vpon my couenaunt with Abraham, and wyl charynge vpon the lode. And for the lande, whan it shal be left of them, shal reioyse in his Sabbathes, euen then, when it lyeth wast, and theye eyle is at rest. And they shall make an omenture for their mysdedes, because theye despyed my lawes, & their sales refused my statutes. Moreover I haue not so refused them, that they shalde be in the enemies lande: neither haue I so verryly abhorred them, that I wold buyng them in naught, and brayne my couenaunt out of them: for I am I LORDE their God. And for their sake I wyl remember my first couenaunt, and I brought them out of the lande of Egypte in the sight of the heythen, & I might be chere God. Amen I the LORDE.

These are the estatutes, statutes and lawes, which I LORDE made betwixt him and the children of Israel vpon mount Sinai, by the hande of Moyses.

The XXXVII. Chapter.

AND the LORDE called with Moyses, & sayde: Speake to the children of Israel, & saye vnto them: If any man make a speciall vowe vnto I LORDE, so & he paye foule, then shal he be the valuation: A ma-of euerie yeare olde vnto the then foule yere, shal thou set as fiftie silver Syckles, after the Syckle of the Sanctuary: but a woman as thretyne Syckles. If he be fyve yeare olde or euen yeare, then shal he set as euen Syckles, whan he is a man childe: but a woman as ten Syckles. If he be a moneth olde vnto fyve yeare, then shal he set as fy-ue Syckles of silver, whan he is a man childe: but a woman as thus Syckles Syckles. If he be thes foure yeare olde and olde, then shal thou set him as fiftene Syckles: whan he is a woman as ten Syckles. If he be to yonge so to set, the les than payen himselfe & prest, & prest shal value him. And wher he shal value him, a condinge as & haue of him then wored, in able to get. And yf he be best & maye be offred vnto I LORDE, all & is offred vnto I LORDE of such, in holy: shal not be altered nor chaunged, a good for a bad, or a bad for a good. If any man chaunge it, and be best for another, then shal theye both be hly vnto I LORDE. But yf & best be in cleane which maye not be offred vnto I LORDE, shal shal it be set, before & prest, and & prest shal value it, whether it be good or bad, & it shal sonde as the prestes valoyng. But yf any man wil bye it out, he shal geue the fift part more, to that it was set at.

Whan myn sanctified his house vnto the LORDE for a Sanctuary, the prest shal value it, whether it be good or bad. And as the prest volueth it, so shal it sonde. And yf be y sanctified it, wyl redeeme it, he shal geue y fiftieth parte of ysluer therefor, above that it was first set at. So shal it be his.

C If any man halowe a peece of londe of his heritage vnto the LORDE, it shalbe set accordyng to yte beareth. If it beare an homer of syluer, it shalbe valued at fifty Syckles of syluer. But yf he halowe his londe immediately from the yere of Iubilee forth, then shal it be set accordyng to y value thereof. If he haue halowed it e first the yere of Iubilee, then shal the price be set, accordyng to y yeres y remayne vnto y yere of Iubilee, & there first shal be set the lower.

But yf he y sanctified the londe, wyl redeeme it agayne, then shal he geue the fiftieth parte of syluer therefor, above that it was first set. So shal it be his. If he wil not leaue it out, but it lieth vnto a nocher, then shal he redeeme it no more: but the same londe whan it goeth out for is y yere of Iubilee, shal be holy vnto the LORDE, as a dedicated felde, and shalbe the prestes inheritance.

D If any man buye vnto the LORDE a felde, whiche he hath bought, and is not his inheritance, then shal y prestefor it, what it is worth vnto the yere of Iubilee, & the same dayes shall he geue the price that it is set at. vnto the LORDE for the Sanctuary. But in y yere of Iubilee it shal returne vnto him that bought it, & it maye be his inheritance in the londe. All manner of purgynge shalbe made accordyng to the Syckle of the Sanctuary. One Syckle maketh x. Geras.

E The first borne amonge y cattell, which belongeth vnto the LORDE shall no man sanctifie vnto the LORDE, whether it be ox or shepe, for it is the LORDES all ready. But yf there be any vndeane thynge vpon the beast, the shal it be lowed out there free as it is worth, and the fiftieth parte shalbe geuen more therefor. If he wil not redeeme it, the leme it be sold, as it is worth.

F There shall no dedicated thynge be sold nor boughte out, yf any man dedicated it vnto y LORDE, of all yf he is his good, whether it be man, cattell or londe. For every dedicated thynge is most holy vnto y LORDE. There shall no dedicated thynge of man be boughte out, but shal be the deathe. All they then is the londe, both of the felde of the londe, & of y frutes of the trees, are the LORDES, & shal be holy vnto the LORDE. But yf any man wil redeeme his felde, he shall geue the fiftieth parte more therefor. And all the tithes of oxen & shepe, & that goeth vnder the oke, the same is most holy vnto the LORDE. It shall

These are the generacions of Aaron & Moses, when & the LORD spake unto Moses at & same tyme upon mount Sinai. And these are & named of the sonnes of Aaron. These are & kynodes of Gerson: The Libnites and Gemitres, the summe was founde in nombre, seven thousand and five hundred, of all that were males of a month olde and above. And the same kynodes of the Gemitres shal piched behind the & habitation on the west syde. The iiii. Chapter.

When the heof breatheth up, Aaron & his sonnes shall go in, and take downe the wayle, and cover the Arke of witness therewith, and laye the coveringe of doo slaynes upon it, and spreden whole yallowe cloth above thereon, and put his staves theron. And upon the shewe table they shal spede a yallowe cloth also, and set theron the dysches, spoones, flatterpes and pottes to poute oute nide, and the bayle bled shal lyve upon it, and they shal spede a purple cloth therover, and cover it with a coveringe of doo slaynes, and put the staves of it theron.

And they shal take a yallowe cloth, and cover the candlestick of light therewith, and his lampes, with his shoofers and ornaments, and all the oyle vessels that belonge to the sanctuary, and above all this shal they put a coveringe of doo slaynes, and put it upon staves.

So shal they shaden yallowe cloth ouer the golden nicare also, and cover the same with a coveringe of doo slaynes, and put it upon staves. All the vessels that they occupye in the Sanctuary shal they make, and put a yallowe cloth therover, & cover them with a coveringe of doo slaynes, and put them upon staves. They shal sweep the altars also from the altars, and spede a cloth of stacles ouer it, and set all his vessels thereon, that they occupye upon it: calpurnes, stibbes, shewels, doomes, with all the apparel of the altars, and they shal spreden coveringe of doo slaynes thereon, and put his staves theron.

Now when Aaron and his sonnes have done this, and have covered the Sanctuary & all the ornaments thereof, when the heof breatheth up, then shal the children of Aahar go in, that they maye beate nide, and the Sanctuary shal they not coude. If they dye, this is the charge of the children of Aahar in the Tabernacle of witness.

The iij. booke of Moses.

And Eleazar the sonne of Aaron y^e prest shall haue the office, to prepare the oyle for the light, and the spices for the incense, and the sacrifice of sweete mynre, and the anoyntnaments thereof.

And the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron, saying: Ye shall not desire the eyes of the people of the Zaphnathim, as the Egyptians, but: this shall ye do unto them, if they maye live to a daye, if they coude the most holy. Aaron and his sonnes shall go in, and appoynte every one unto his office & charge. And they shall not go in, unless they be fullye clothed wth Sanctuary, lest they die. And the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron, saying: Take the summe of the children of Gerson also, a firstborn fathers house & buried, from thirtie yeare & above, unvulgar yeare, & appoynte them all & are more for aye reuer, to haue an office in the Tabernacle of witness.

This shall be the office of the tyndes of the Genitors, and to serue to beare. They shall beare the curraigne of the habitacons and of the Tabernacle of witness, and his coveringe and the coveringe of doo Synnes, that is about theron, and the hanginge in the doore of the Tabernacle of witness, and the hanginge aboute the court, which growe aboute the habitacons and the altare, and their cedars, and all the instruments of sime force, and all that be delongeth to their acceptaunce. Accordinge unto the worde of Aaron and of his sonnes, shall all the office of the tyndes of Iheron be done, what so far they shall be to receiue and occupye. And yet shall se, that they were yppe on all their daye. This shall be the office of 3 tyndes of 3 child of 3 Genitors in 3 Tabernacle of witness. amonge them. And 3 children of Israel dyd so, and put them out of the hoose, as 3 LORD DE byd hye vnto Moyses.

And the LORD called vnto Moyses, and sayde: Speake vnto the children of Israel & saye vnto them: When a man or woman doth a synne to any body, and offendeth ether with agaynst the LORD E, then hath that soule a trespass vpon it. And they shall knowlege their synne, that they haue done, and shall make amendes for their trespass, euen with the whole summe, and paye 3 fifth parte more thereto, and geueth vnto him, agaynst whom they haue trespassed. But yf there be no man to make the amendes vnto for the offence, if he hath trespassed agaynst him, then shall the conscience synge be made vnto the LORD E for the puse, beyden the ramme of scke attonite, wherewith he shall be reconcyled.

Also all the heereofferynges of all that the children of Israel haue vnto the LORD E, and offer vnto the puse, shall be hye. And who so haue doeth any thing, it shall be hye. And who so geueth the puse any thing, he shall be hye.

And the LORD called vnto Moyses, and sayde: Speake to the children of Israel, and saye vnto them: When any man or woman goeth asyde, and trespassed agaynst him, or any mā hye with her fleshye, and the thinge be yettyd from his eyes, and is not come to lighte that she is defiled, and he enu bryge no woe nest agaynst her: for she was not take ther in, and the spere of gelousy kyndled him, so that he is gelous ouer his wife: wherther she be vncleane or not vncleane, then shall he brynge her vnto the puse, and bryngge an offering for her, euen the tenth parte of an ephyn of bartye meale, and shall poure no oyle thereon, nor put frankensence vpon it: for it is an offering of gelousy, and an offering of remembrance, that remembreth synne.

Then shall the puse beynge her, and set her before the LORD E, and take of the holy water in an earthen vessel, and put of 3 duste that is on the floore of the habitation, in to the water. And he shall set the wife before 3 LORD E, and uncover his head, and the offering of remembrance, which is an offering of gelousy, shall he laye vpon his handes. And the puse shall come in his hande bytter cursing water, and shall curse the wife, & saye vnto her: If no man haue lyt with the, and thou hast not gone asyde from thy husbonds, so beyle thy self, then shall not the bytter cursing water hurt the. But yf thou hast gone asyde from thy husbonds, so that thou art defiled, and some othe man hath lyen with the, beyle thy husbonds: then shall the puse curse the wife with this curse, and shall saye vnto her: The LORD E take the to a curse, and a cursation amonge thy people, so that the LORD E make thy eye roote, and thy wombe to burst. So go this curse vnto in to thy body, that thy wombe burst, and thy thye rote. And the wife shall saye: Amen Amen.

So the puse shall reuise this curse in a byll, and wash it out with the water, and shall geue the wife of the bytter cursing water to drinke. And when the cursing water is gone in her, so if it is bytter vnto her, then shall the puse take the gelousy offering out of the wyues hande, and moue it for a meate offering before the LORD E, and offer it vpon the altare: namely, he shall take an handfull of the meate offering for his remembrance, & burne it vpon the altare, & then geue the wife the water to drinke. And when she hath dronken the water, yf she be defiled, and haue trespassed agaynst her husbonds, then shall the cursing water go in to her, and be so bytter, that her wombe shall burst, and her eye shall roote, and the wife shall be a curse amonge his people. But yf the same wife be not defiled, howe is cleane, then shall it do her no harme, so that she maye be with childe.

This is the lawe of gelousy, when a wyfe goeth asyde from her husbonds, and is defiled: when 3 spere of gelousy kyndled a man, so that he is gelous ouer his wife, if he brynge her before the LORD E, and that 3 puse don't to her accordinge vnto this lawe. And 3 man shall be guilelesse of the synne, but the wife shall beate his mysdoe.

And the priest shall make the one a synofferynge, and the other a burnofferynge, and make an accoment for him, because he defiled him self vpon 7 dead, and so shall he be allowed his heade the same daye, that he maye holden the tyme of his abstynenche vnto the LORDE, and he shall bringe a lambe of a yere olde for a trespassofferynge. But 3 daies alose shall he be lost, because his abstynenche was of fiele.

C And the same day the habitation was set up, a cloud covered it vpon the Tabernacle of witness, & at euen there was a similitude of fire vpon the habitation until the morning. So came it to passe alwayes, the cloud covered it by day, & the similituwas take up from the habitation, then the children of Israel went on their journey.

And when the cloud was on the habitation, then the children of Israel pitched their tentacles according to the worde of the LORD toke the children of Israel their journey, and according to his worde pitched they their tents. So long as the cloud abode vpon the habitation, they lay still. And when the cloud was taken up, then the children of Israel went on their journey.

D And when it chaunced that the cloud abode vpon the habitation in space of dayes, then pitched they according to the worde of the LORD, & after the mode of the LORD went they on their journey. When the cloud was there from the evening vntill the morning, and so was taken up, then went they on their journey and wher it was take up by day or by night, they journeyed.
But when it taried vpon the habitation two dayes, or a moneth, or a longer season, then lay the children of Israel, and journeyed not; and so was it was taken up, they went on their journey. For according to the mouth of the LORD they lay, and after the mouth of the LORD they jouraccording to the worde of the LORD by Moses.

they shall take their journey. But when the congregation is to be gathered together, ye shall blow, and not trump. This blowing is to be trumped, that the sonnes of Aaron, the priests do. And it shall be for ever among you for posterities.

When ye go to a battayle in your land against your enemies, & ye go you, ye shall trump with the trumpets, that ye may be remembered for the LORD your God, and delivered from your enemies.

Like wise when ye are merry, and in your Vpon the euening day in the seconde fulfilled in dede, or no:

And Moses went out, and tolde the people y^e worde of the LORDE, and gathered the seventy men amonge the Elders of the people, & set them rounde about the Tabernacle. Then came the LORDE downe in a cloud, & stode vpon him, & toke of the spurs of his feet, & was vpon him, & put it vpon the seventy Elders. And when the spurs rested vpon them, they prophesied, and could not cease.

3 But in the booke there remaineth yet two men, of whom the one was called Eliab, of reber Eliab, & the space referred vnto them. for they were mistaken also, & yet were they not gone out vnto the Tabernacle, and they prophesied in the booke. Thus can the sale be, & colde Eliab, & I saye: Eliab and Mesab prophesie in the booke. Then ariseth reber Iohas, & sonnes of Iun Eliab situate te Eliab, for bydde them. Thus Eliab toyes vnto him: Art thou gladd for my sake? wol be God, & all the people & IORDE can be prophesie, and thus & IORDE to loue them his spere. Thus Eliab and the li-bers of Israel haten them to the booff.

Ynt Miriam & Aaron spake agaynst Moses because of his wife the Mo-had called a Tisbathite to wife, and they sayde Unto the LORD speake onlye thow to Mo-

Then came the LORD downe in the clow were out. And he sayde: I haue my wordes: If any man be a prophete of the LORD, he speake vnto him in a dreame. Whoe see in my seruante Mose, whiche is faithful in Wherefore will he not asseyre them to spea-

The XIII. Chapter.

¶ To the LORDS spake vnto Moses, & seyde: Gods commandment is thus: ¶ landes of Canaan (which I will geue vnto y^e children of Israel) of euery tribe of theise is there a man, and let them all be such as are capteynes amonge them. Moses sent the out of the wilderness of Paran, accordinge to the worde of the LORDE, such as were all heade men amonge the children of Israel, and theise are their names:

Samuella the sonne of Zacur, of the tribe of Ruben. Saphur the sonne of Houi, of the tribe of Simeon. Caleb y^e sonne of Iephunne, of the tribe of Iuda. Igal the sonne of Joseph, of the tribe of Iachar. Hosia the sonne of Nun, of y^e tribe of Ephraim. Pal the sonne of Reupha, of the tribe of Ben Iamin. Gadul the sonne of Gedi, of y^e tribe of Zabulon. Gadai the sonne of Gusi, of the tribe of Joseph. Of Manasse. Ammal the sonne of Gemalli, of the tribe of Dan. Sathur y^e sonne of Michael, of the tribe of Assir. Mabeai the sonne of Baphsi, of the tribe of Naphtali. Ouel the sonne of Mithai, of the tribe of Gad. These are the names of the men, whom Moses sent forth to spye out the landes of Canaan, he sayde vnto thei: Go vp thither arde, and get you vnto the mountaynes, and loke vpon the lande howe it is: and the people that dwell therein, whether they be stronge or weake, some or many: and what maner of lande it is: whether they dwell in, whether it be good or bad: & what maner of cities they be: whether they dwell in, whether they be fenced with walles, or not: and what maner of lande it is, whether it be fat or leane, and whether there be trees therein, or not. Be of a good courage, and bringe of the frutes of the lande. It was euen aboue the tyme, that grapes are first ripe.

They wente up, & spied the lande, from y^e wilderness of Sin, vntill Rehob, as mt go vnto Hemath. They wente vp also toward the south, and came vnto Hebron, where Adaman was, and Sebai and Chalmai, the children of Ena. Hebron was builded seven yeares before Soan in Egipce.)

C And they came to the ryuer of Iscol, and there they cut downe a cluster of grapes, and caused two so beare it vpon a staffe, pomegranates also and figges. The place is called the ryuer of Iscol, because of the cluster of grapes, which the children of Israel cut downe there.

And when they had spied out the lande, they turned backe againe after fourety daies, and wente, and came to Moses and Aaron, to the whole congregacion of y^e children of Israel in y^e wilderness of Paran, cal vnto Cadus, and brought them worde agayne, and to the whole congregacion. Hei said: And let them se the frute of the lande, and colour them, and sayde: We came into y^e lande, whither ye sent vs, where it floweth with mylke and hony, and this is the frute thereof: I sawynge that stronge people dwell therein, and the cities are excedynge stronge and greate. And we sawe the children of Ena: there also. The Amalechites dwell in the south countre, the Hethites, and Jebusites and Amonites dwell vpon the mountaynes, but the Canaanites dwell by the sea, and aboute Iordane.

So when Caleb skylled y^e people that was agaynst Moses, and sayde vnto them: Let us go vp, and conquire the lande, for we are able to overcome it. But the men that wente vp with him, sayde: We are not able to go agaynst that people, for they are to stronge for vs. And of the lande that they had searched, they broughte up an euill report amonge the children of Israel, and said: The lande that we haue gone thither to spye out, eatech vpon the inhylidnes thereof: and all the people that we sawe therein, are men of great stature. We sawe giants there also. We sawe the children of Ena, and we seemed in oure sighte as y^e gresheoppers, and so dyd we in their sighte.

The XIII. Chapter.

And when the whole congregacion toke on y^e night, and the people wept y^e night. And all the childen of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron, and the whole congregacion sayde vnto them: Oh that we had dyed in the lande of Egipce, or that we mighte dye yet in this wilderness. Wherefore bringeeth the LORDE vs in to this lande, that oure wyues shalde fall thorow the sword, and oure children be preyed? Is it not better, that we go agayn into Egypte: And they sayde one to another: Let vs make a captiue, and go in to Egypte agayne.

But Moses & Aaron fill vp their faces before y^e whole congregation of the multitude of the childen of Israel: And Josua & sume of Eliaz & Caleb & sume of Jephune (which also had spyed out the land) reuce their clothes, & spake to the whole congregation of the childen of Israel: The land y^e we haue walked throughe so spye it out, is a very good lande. If the LORD haue last vnto vs, he shal bringe vs into the same lande, & geue it vs, which is a land that floweth with mycke & honey. But in anye wyse rebel not ye against the LORD, & state not y^e people of this lande, for we wil saye the up as bad. Their defence is departed fro them, & but the LORD is wth vs, let not ye feare of them.

And all the people, had stoned them & stoned. Then appeared the glory of the LORD in the Tabernacle of witness vnto all the childen of Israel, & the LORD sayde vnto Moses: How longe shal this people blaspheme me? And how longe wil it be, as they bidde me, for all the tyme that I haue shewed amonge them? I wil smyte them with pestilence, & destroye the, and make of the a great & mighty people then this is.

But Moses saye vnto y^e LORD: Then shal y^e Egyptians hate us for thy power hast thou brought this people fram amonge the, so shal it be eolde the inhabytens of this lande also, which haue herbe, & thou LORD art amonge this people, & thou art sent from face to face, & that thy cloude standeth ouer them, and that thou goest before them in the clouby piler on the day tyme, and in the nyte piler as the nyghte season. If thou shaldest now slaye this people in one mane, then the Egyptians haue had so good expone of the, shaldest thou: The LORD was not able to bringe the people into the lande, that he swaured them, then for he hath he slayn them in the wilderness.

So see the power of the LORD now be great, according as thou hast spoken and sayde: The LORD is of long sufferance and of great mercy, and forgaueth synne and erapace, and leaueh no man innocent, & visiteth the myschaunce of the fathers upon the children in to the thirde and fourth generation. Be gracious now vnto the synne of this people according to thy greuous mercy, lit as thou hast forborne this people also, from Egypte vnto this place. And the LORD sayde: I haue forgaued it, as thou hast saide. But as truly as I lyue, all y^e word be shalbe full of my glory. For of all y^e men that haue sene my glory & my tokens, which I shew in Egypte and in the wilderness, and tempted me wth vs: then thou, & haue not berken vnto my voyce, there shall not dwelle the lande that I swaure vnto, their fathers: neither shal any of them that haue blasphemed me, dwell. But my servants Caleb, be cause there is another man that followeth him, & because he hath followed me, I shal wil I bringe into the lande, which he hath gone thorow, & his sibe shal conuene, and y^e Amalechites also, and the Canaanites, that dwell in the same countreys. I am now to turne you, and geue you the wilderness, in the waye towards the red sea.

And y^e LORD spake vnto Moses & Aaron, & sayde: How longe shal this euill multitude murmur agaynste me? For I haue herbe the murmuringe of the childen of Israel, & they haue murmured agaynste me. Tell them therefore: An swaie as I lyue, saith y^e LORD: I wil do vnto you, euen as ye haue spoken in myne eares: Your carcases shal lye in this wilderness. And all ye that are now now back from twentye yeare and aboue, which haue murmured agaynste me, shall not come into the lande, & concerninge the which I sware vnto my hyde, & I will let you dwell therein, saith the LORD: y^e summe of Jephune, and Josua the sonne of Nun.

Nowe childen, of whom ye sayde: They shal be a spoyle, then wyl I bringe in, so y^e they shal knowe the lande, which ye haue refused. But ye with youre carcasses shal lye in this wilderness, and y^e childen shal dwell in this wilderness fouretye yeares, & beare y^e whoredome, tyll y^e carcasses be manifest in the wilderness, accordinge to the number of y^e fouretye dayes, wherun ye spyed out the lande. A daye for a yeare, so y^e fouretye yeares ye shall beare youre myschaunce, that ye maye knowe what it is, when I thus visite my hande. Euen y^e LORD haue sayde it, & wil do it: in bedde vnto all this euill congregation, that haue lift vp their sibe agaynste me, in this wilderness, shal they be consumed, and there shal they dye.

So there byde and more plagued befoire the LORD all them, whom Moses sent to spye out the lande, & came agayne, & made the whole congregation to murmur agaynste him, because they brought vp a mysreporte of the lande, that it was euell. But Josua the sonne of Nun, and Caleb & sume of Jephune we were left almye, of the men that wente to spye out the lande. And Moyses spake these wordes vnto all the children of Israel. The LORD the people greatesoome.

3 And they arose early in the morninge, and wente vnto the toppe of the mountayne, and sayde: Lo, here are we, and will ge vnto the place, wherof the LORD hath sayde: for we haue sinned. But Moyses sayde: wherfore go ye as this manner beyonde the wordes of the LORD? Ye shall not perseuer with you: for noe up: for the LORD is not amonge you. Ye be not slayne before your enemies. For the Amalechites and Canaanites are there before you, ye shall fall thorow the sword, because ye haue turned your face from the LORD, and the LORD shall not be with you.

But they were bounden to go up to the toppe of the mountayne: neither heareth the LORD the covenants: and Moyses came not out of the heale. Then came downe the Amalechites and Canaanites which dwelt vpon that mountayne, and smote them and beewed them, euen vnto Hoima.

1 And the LORD called with Moyses, and sayde: speake to the child of Israel, I saye vnto them: When ye come in to the lande of your dwellinge, which I shall geue you, and wil do sacrifice vnto the LORD, whether it be a burnt offeringe, or an offeringe for a speciall vowe, or a freewill offeringe, or youre feast offeringe, that ye maye make a sweete savoure vnto the LORD, of oyle or of shepe.

2 And Moyses answered Moyses, and sayde: I will offer now his gifte vnto the LORD, shall bringe for the meate offeringe a cleve deale of fyne flour mingled with oyle of the fourth parte of an eyn, and wyne for the burnt offeringe the fourth parte of an eyn also: the burnt offeringe, or any other offeringe, when a lambe is offered. But when the is a ramme offered, thou shalt make the meate offeringe vnto each deale of fyne flour mingled with oyle, of the thirde parte of an eyn, and the thirde parte of an eyn of wyne also: for a burnt offeringe: this shalt thou offer for a sweete savour vnto the LORD.

3 But if thou wilt offer an oxe for a burnt offeringe, or for a speciall vowe offeringe, or for an heate offeringe vnto the LORD, thou shalt bringe to the oxe, the meate offeringe, euen the tenth deale of fyne flour mingled with half an eyn of oyle, and half an eyn of wyne for a burnt offeringe. This is an offeringe of a sweete savoure vnto the LORD. Thou shalt thou do with an aye, with a ram me, with a lambe, and with a goat. And bringe as a the meate of the offeringe, is, thereafter shall the meate of the meate offeringe, and burnt offeringe be also.

And that is one of youre fleshe, shall be this, that he maye offer a sacrifice of a sweete savoure vnto the LORD. And if there be a stranger with you, or a stranger you be bynselfe, and wil do an offeringe vnto the LORD for a sweete savoure, the same shall do as ye do. And there be one sacrifice for the whole congregation, both vnto ye and to the strangers. And perpetuall statute shall it be vnto youre posterities, that the stranger be not as ye be: but as the LORD. One lawe, and one ordinance shall be vnto you and to the stranger that dwelleth with you.

And the LORD called with Moyses, and sayde: speake to the children of Israel, and saye vnto them: When ye come in to the lande, to which I shall bringe you, so that ye eate the bich of the lande, ye shall becom an heate offeringe vnto the LORD, namely, a cake of the firstlinge of youre beest shall ye geue for an heate offeringe: as the heate offeringe of the barne, and so shall ye geue the firstlinge of youre beest vnto the LORD, for an heate offeringe amonge youre posterities.

And when ye knowe ignorance over feare of the commandementes, which the LORD hath spoken by Moyses, and all the LORD hath commanded you by Moyses (from the daye that the LORD began to commaunde for youre posterities) and the congregation be oughte ignorant, that shall the whole congregation offer a yong bullocke from amonge the greates cattell to the burnt offeringe, for a sweete savoure vnto the LORD, with his meate offeringe and burnt offeringe as the manner is, and an hegoate for a syn offeringe. And so shall the priest make an attonement for the whole congregation of the children of Israel, and it shall be forgiven them: for it is an ignorance. And they shall bringe their gifte for an offeringe vnto the LORD, and the priest shall bringe before the LORD for their ignorance, and it shall be forgiven the whole congregation of the children of Israel, the stranger also, that dwelleth amonge you, for so moche as all the people is in such ignorance.

If one sinle synne knowe ignorance, in the same shall bringe a she goate of a year elde for a syn offeringe. And the priest shall make an attonement for such an ignorant sinle with the syn offeringe for the ignorant

And every one toke his censur, and put fyre thereon, and layed it on the censur, and came before the doore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and Moses and Aaron also. And Coath gathered y whole congregacion agaynst the beside the doore of the Tabernacle of witnesse.

But y glory of the LORDE appeared beside y whole congregacion. And y LORDE spake vnto Moses & Aaron, & sayde: Separate ydome selues fro this congregacion, y I maye shortly consume them. And they fell upon their faces, & sayde: O God, thou God of the spottes of all flesh, yf one man haue synned, wouldest thou therfore be wroth ouer the whole congregacion? And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Speake to the congregacion, and saye: Come up from y dwelling of Coath, and Aaron, and Abiram.

And Moses stode up, & went vnto Dauidan & Abiram, & the elders of Israel folowed him, & he spake to y congregacion, & sayde: Depart fro y tentes of thei vngoodly me & to daye we chunge y in them, y ye perishe not in myght of thei sinnes. And they gat them up from the dwelling of Coath, Dauidan, & Abiram. But Dauidan and Abiram came out, and stode in the doore of their tentes, with their wyues, and families and children.

And Moses sayde: O Lord, thou shalt see that the LORDE hath sene me, to do all these thynges, and that I haue not done them of myne awnynge. If these men dye the common death of all men, or be wysered as all men are wysed, then hath not the LORDE sent me. But yf the LORDE make a new thyng, and the earth open hit mouth, and swalowe hem with all that they haue, so y they go downe quicke in a hel, thei shall knowe, that thei senn haue blasphemed the LORDE.

Deu. xvi.
W. 15. b.
Paul. 15. b.

And when he had spoke out all this word, y ground cleue asunder vnder thei, & the earth opened hit mouth, & swallowed thei, with their houses, & all the me y were in Coath, & all their substance, and they went downe quicke in to the hell, with all that they had.

And the earth closed up thei, & thei perished from amonge y congregacion. And all Israel y were aboute thei, fled at y crye of thei, for they sayde: What y earth swallowe not we also. Therefore thei fled, & thei came out fro the LORDE, and comforted thei two hundred, and fiftye men, that offered thei in censur.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: Speake to Eleazar y sonne of Aaron y priest, y he take up y censur ouer of y burninge, & scatter y fyre here & there. For thei censur of thei synners are halowed, & thei soules y they maye be beate into thurme places, & fastened vpon y altare, for they are offered beside y LORDE, & halowed: and they shal be a token vnto y children of Israel.

And Eleazar the priest toke y diagen censur which they y were burnt, and offered, & bet thei to places, so fasten thei vpon y altare for an euenement vnto y children of Israel, y no stranger (and he that is not of y son of Aaron) come nye to offre incense beside the LORDE, for he happed not vnto him as vnto Coath and his companye, & eueninge the LORDE sayde vnto him by Moses.

On the nexte morow mounted y whole congregacion of y children of Israel agaynst Moses & Aaron, & sayde: Thou hast slayne y people of y LORDE. And when thei congregacion was gathered agaynst Moses & Aaron, they turned thei towardes y Tabernacle of witnesse. And beholde, thei clowde covered y Tabernacle, & y glory of y LORDE appeared. And Moses & Aaron wete in before y Tabernacle of witnesse. And y LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: See you out of this congregacion, I wil shortly consume thei. And they fell upon their faces. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Take thei censer & put fyre therein fro of the altare, & laye in incense thereon, & go some to the congregacion, & make an atonement for thei. For the wrath is gone out from the LORDE, and the plague is begonne amonge the people.

And Aaron yd as Moses sayde, & came in the myddest amonge y congregacion. And beholde, y plague was begonne. And he burnt incense & made an atonement for the people, & the plague ceased. But there were fourtyne thousande, and six hundred dyed in the plague, beside them that dyed aboute thei synnes of Coath. And Aaron came agayne vnto Moses beside the doore of the Tabernacle of witnesse. And the plague ceased.

The XVII. Chapter.

uer, rich synne, and co dyer: But the Leuītes shal do the seruyce in the Tabernacle of wit ness, & shal beare the synne, for a perpetuall lawe amonge youre posterites. And they shal inherite none inheritance amonge the children of Israel. For y^e riches of the child of Israel, which they geue vnto y^e LORD, ha ue I geuen vnto the Leuītes for an herita ge. Therefore haue I sayde vnto them, that they shal inherite no inheritance amonge the children of Israel.

And y^e LORD called vnto Moyses, & saide: Speake to the Leuītes, & saye vnto them:
Whā ye take of y^e children of Israel y^e riches, y^e I haue geuen you of the for y^e inheritance, ye shal take an heuofferinge of the same vnto the LORD, euen the tenth of the tithes.
And the same y^e heuofferinge shal ye re fer, as though ye haue come out of the bar ne, and fullnesse out of the wynepress.

Thus shal ye geue an heuofferinge vnto the LORD of all y^e riches, which ye take of the children of Israel, y^e ye moie geue the same heuofferinge of y^e LORD, vnto Aarō y^e prest. And all y^e ye geue of y^e tithes, & ha loue vnto y^e LORD for a gifte, y^e same shal be his of the best. And saye thou vnto them: Whā ye thus geue vnto y^e fat thereof, it shal be eate vnto the Leuītes as the mearce of the barne, and as the increce of the wine press. And ye maye use it in all places, ye & ye children: for it is youre reward for you re seruyce in the Tabernacle of witness: and ye shal not beare synne vpon you in the same, whā ye thus geue the fat thereof, and vnhaloue not the halowe thinges of the children of Israel, and ye shal not dye.

The XIX. Chapter.

And the LORD spake vnto Moyses & Aarō saye: This custome shal be a lawe, which the LORD hath comman ded, saye: Speake vnto y^e children of Is rael, y^e they buyng vnto y^e a reed cow with one speck, wherū is no blemish, & vpon whō there came neuer yōt: and ye shal geue her unto Aarō the prest, which shal beate her without the boole, and canse her to slayne there before him.

And Aarō y^e prest shal take of y^e fat de with his synger, and y^e prest is y^e fann mer straight comar be the dūm of the Tab ernacle of witness, and canse the cow to be burne before him, both his fenne and his flesh, and his bloude also with his dūm.
And the prest shal take Leuē weed and pe, and purple wool, and cast it vnto the cow as she burneth, & he shal washe his clothes, and bathe his body with water, and the go is to the hoof, and be vncleane vntill y^e eue.

And he that burneth, shal wash his clothes also with water, and bathe his body in water, & be vncleane vntill y^e eue. And one y^e in cleane shal gather vnto the asphes of y^e cow, and poure them without the boole in a cleane place, that they maye be kepte then, for sprentunge water to the congregation of the child of Israel, for it is a synofferin ge. And he that hather vnto the asphes of the cow, shal wash his clothes, and be vnc leane vntill the euen. This shalbe a perpe tuall lawe vnto y^e children of Israel, and to the strangers that dwell amonge you.

Whō so now toucheth a dead mē, shal be vncleane thre dayes: the same shal puri fye himselfe with, on the thirde daye, and on the seuenth daye, and then shall he be cleane.
And yf he puriye not himselfe on the thirde daye, & on the seuenth daye, the shal be not be cleane. But whā any mē toucheth a dead performe, and wil not puriye himselfe, the de filyeth the dwellynge of the LORD, and the me soule shal be rotyd out of Israel, becau se the sprentunge water is not sprented vpon him: and he is vncleane, as longe as he le ueth not himselfe be poured therof.

This is the lawe. Whā a mē dyeth in y^e tente, who so euer goeth in to the tente, and all y^e in the tente, shal be vncleane thre dayes.
And every open vessel that hath in it y^e not conseruinge, is vncleane. And who so toucheth one y^e is slayne wth the swerde vpon y^e fildes, or any echer beest, or a dead mane be ne, or a grane, y^e same is vncleane thre dayes.

So now for the vncleane performe, they shal take of y^e asphes of this burnynge ringe, & put sprentunge water thereon in an vessel, and a cleane mē shal take y^e vessel dippe it in the water, and sprentle it vpon the cente, and vpon all the vessels, and all the soules that are therein, & likewise also vpon him, y^e he that toucheth a dead mane, or a slayne performe, or a dead body, or a grane.

Num 21 21 And when Arah the kynge of the Canaanites (which dwelle toward the south syde, that Israel came in by) waite y the spyas had founde out, he foughte agaynst Israel, and take some of them prisoners. Then vntoed Israel a vowe vnto y LORD, and sayde: If thou wilt geue this people vnder my hande, I will vtraly despoile their cities. And the LORD haue y voyces of Israel, and deliuered them the Canaanites, and they vtraly despoiled them in their cities also. And he called the place Horma.

Deut. 1 Then departed they fro mount Hor on y waye toward the red see, that they might ga aduente the lande of the Amorites. And the soules of the people synned by the waie and they spake agaynst God and agaynst Moyses: Wherefore haue thou brought vs out of the lande of Egypt, to slay vs in the wilderness? For here is neither kyd nee water, and oure soules lokech for lighte meate.

Num 21 22 Then sente the LORD frise ieremes amonge the people, which bore the peple, so that there yad much peopple in Israel. The came they vnto Moyses, and sayde: We haue synned, because we haue spoken agaynst the LORD, and agaynst the. Praye thou vnto the LORD, that he take awaye the serpentes from vs. And Moyses prayed for the people.

4 Re 11 Then sayde the LORD vnto Moyses: Make the a brasin serpente, and sette it up for a token. Who so ever is bitten, and lokech vpon it, shall lyue. Then made Moyses a serpent of bras, and sette it up for a token: and when a serpent had bitten any man, he behelde the brasin serpente, and recovered.

Num 21 23 And the children of Israel departed, and pitched in Obery. And from Obery they went on, and pitched in Jym by Maran in the wilderness ouer agaynst Moab, in the land of Moab. From thence departed they pitched by the ryuer of Sared. From thence departed they, and pitched on the land of Amora, which is in the wilderness, and as much as in the coastes of the Amorites. Amora is the border betwene Moab and y Amorites. Wherefore it is spoken in the booke of the warres of the LORD: And go with violence both on the ryuer of Amora on the founteyne of the river, which bounde do we make to dwell at Ar, & leauech them, so be the border of Moab.

And from thence they came to the well. This is the well, wher of the LORD spake vnto Moyses: gather the people together, I wil geue them water. Then sange Israel the songe, and they singe eue a ster another ouer the well: This is the well, that the paynyn bygged the nobles amongst the people beca digged in thowen y teacher and their schollers.

And from this wilderness they went vnto Marhana, & from Marhana vnto Labael, and from Labael to Bamoch, and so Bamoch vnto the valley that lieth in y lode of Moab at the toppe of Pisga, and as much as be the wilderness.

And Jinel sent messengers vnto Sihon the kynge of the Amorites, & caused to saye vnto him: Let me go thorow y lande, for we wil not trespasse in to y felde nor in to the wynde beca: meth will we destroye the wynde of the willes, y hye strete wil we go, all we be pass the borders of thy countre.

For he Sihon wolde not geue the dytoun of Israel licence to go thorow the coastes of his lande, but gathered all his people together, and went out agaynst Israel in the wilderness. And when he came to Jabez, he fought agaynst Israel. Wherechless Israel smote him with the edge of the swerde, and conquered his lande from Arnon vnto Iabod, and vnto the children of Ammon. For the borders of the children of Ammon were stryde. So Israel toke all the se cities, and dwelle in all the cities of y Ammon, namely at Hesbon, and in the countre belonging thereto. For Hesbon the cite was Sihon the kynge of the Amorites, and he had foughten before with the kynge of the Moabites, and conquered all his lande from him vntyll Arnon.

Wherefore it is sayde in the psonerbo: Came vnto Hesbon, let us dryle and putte y cite of Hesbon. For there is a fyre gone out of Hesbon, and a flamme from the cite of Sihon, which hath consumed Ar of y Moab

The XXII. Chapter.

¶ And when Balac & sonnes of Biphor the Moabitess the Moabitianes: I tell you as we are sicke vnto the grettest in the side.

(And Balac & sonnes of Biphor: was tynge

And be first our messengers woe. Bebe able to smyte them, and to buye them out of the lande. See I wote, that whom thou blessist, he is blessed, and whom thou cursest, he is cursid.

2 And the Elders of the Moabites went

And God came unto Balaam, & sayde What wendeest thou, which art witch of Balaam? wherunto answered Balaam 3 Some of pharisee thought of the Masseires such fine wonderment: Behold, there is a people come out of Egypt, and covereth the face of the earth, come now therefore, I curse thee, if peradventure I maye be able to fight with them, to destroye thee out. But God sayde unto Balaam: I do so with them, I curse not that people for they are blessed.

Then rest Dalaar up in the morninge, C suffer me to go wch you.

And the princes of Iffozabites gat the up, came to Balac, & said, Balacm reſpect to come to vs. Then ſent Balac yet a greater company of princes, & more honorable than they. When they came to Balacm, they tolde him Balac & ſonne of Zophar ſerued by this worde: Wher ſaſt not he come unto me, ſet I will promote the wite by honoure, & will do what ſo ener thou ſo ſet unto me. Co me I will do the caſe me this people.

Balaam answered, & sayd unto y^e seruants of Balac: If Balac wolde giue me his house full of silver & golde, yet coulde I not go beyonde y^e worde of the LORDE my God, nor be lide of grace. Then they sayd ye heretofore night, y^e I maye weate, what shal the LORDE will saye me vnto morrow. Then came God to Balaam by nyght, & sayd vnto him If the men are come to call the, get the up then, and go with the: but what I shal saye vnto the, that shal thou do.

Then rose Balazars up in the morning, & b sailed his Ass, & wente at the paynes of 9 Moabites. But the wrath of God was reb

Then stode the angel of the LORD in 3 pathe by the wywardes, where there were wallis on both sides. And when þe 3rd saide the angel of the LORD, she wrosted into the wall, & thrust Balasam fere into the wall. And he fince her agayne. The wote the angel of the LORD farther, & stode in a narrow place, where there was no waye to turne, neither to the righte hande nor to the left. And when the 3rd saide the angel of the LORD she fell downe under Balasam. Then was Balasam a wach furious, & fince the 3rd with a staffe.

Then opened the LORD the mouth of 3rd & she saide unto Balasam: What haue I done unto thee, that thou hast smitten me now with thy rymes? Balasam saide unto 3rd 3rd: Because thou hast mocked me. Oh 3rd I had a sworde now in my hande, I wolde kyll the. The 3rd saide unto Balasam: Alas me I chine 3rd, which thou hast rydden upon in 3 ryme unto this daye. Was I ever wrosted so to into the 3rd sayde. Lo.

Then opened the LORD the eye of Balasam, & he sawe 3 angel of the LORD standing in 3 waye, & a sworde sworde in his hand. And he enclined himselfe, & bowed downe to his face. And the angel of the LORD saide unto him: Wherefore hast thou smitten 3rd now with thy rymes? Beholde, I am come unto thee as a sister 3, for 3 waye is from me, & contrary unto me. And 3rd saide me, & awayed fro me the rymes: so as if she had not turned a side fro me, I had slayne the, & saved the 3rd alive.

Then saide Balasam unto 3 angel of 3 LORD: I have synned, for I wyll not, that thou stodest in the waye agaynst me. And now if it displeaseth 3, I wil turne agayne. The angel of 3 LORD saide unto him: So wiche the me: but thou shalt speake nothunge els, eyn 3 I shal saie unto 3. So Balasam wote forth to the pynce of Balac. When Balac herde 3 Balasam come, he wote out so me him (in the cite of the Moabites) & lych on the coaste of Arnon, which is on 3 westmost bocker. 3 saide unto him: Dyd not I sende for 3 to call the? Wherefore comest thou unto me thus? Thine I thou 3 I am not able to pynce 3 unto hand: Balasam answered him: Lo, I am come unto 3. But how can I saie any thunge els, the 3

The xiiij. Chapter.

And in the morning, Balac toke Balasam, and they wote up to the hye place of Baal, that from thence he might see unto the westmost parte of 3 people. And Balasam saide unto Balac: Wyldest thou seven altars, and pynce me here seven bullockes, and seven rammes. Balac dyd as Balasam saide. And both Balac and Balasam offered, on every altare a bullocke & a ramme. And Balasam saide unto Balac: Seeste thou by 3 burnes offrynges, I ned go, yf haply the LORD wil mee me, & call me, 3 I maye tell the, what I shal see the me. And he wote his waye, as he saide.

And 3 LORD met Balasam. And Balasam saide unto him: Seven altars haue I prepared, and offered on every altare a bullocke and a ramme. The LORD put 3 words in Balasam mouth, and saide: O Balac, I am unto Balac, and saie on this wise. And when he came agayne unto him, beholde, he stode by his burnes offrynges, with all 3 pynce of the Moabites.

Then toke he up his parable, & saide: Balac the kynge of the Moabites hath comde to firmest of Syria from the medaynes towards the west, & saide: Come, curse me Jacob: come, curse me Israel. How shall I curse, whom God curseth not? How shall I be fye, whom 3 LORD be fye not? For 3 3 coppe of 3 stonye rockes. I shal him, & from the hilles I beholde him. Beholde, 3 people shal dwell by the felow, & shal not be destroyed: a wiche the heide. Who can tell the lust of Jacob, & the nombre of the fourth parte of Israel? I wyll bise of death of 3 rightheas, and my ende be as the ende of the.

The saide Balac unto Balasam: What dost thou unto me? I comde to see 3 fere curse myne enemies, & beholde, thou blyst the. He answered 3 saide: Wyldest thou tell 3, which the LORD puteth in to me mouth? Balac saide unto him: Come thou me unto another place, so I wiche thou mayest see 3 westmost parte of the, & curse them all, and curse me them here.

And he toke him up to a fere place, out to the coppe of pynce, & blyst him from altars, & offered on every altare a bullocke & a ramme. And he saide unto Balac: Seeste the word in his mouth, & sayde: Go & gayne unto Balac, & saye as this wyse. And when he came to him agayne, beholde, he stode by his buterflyng with the prynces of the Moabites. And Balac sayde unto him:

What hath the LORDE sayde?

And he tolde up his parable, & sayde: As se up Balac & heare, make my testimony in thine eares: thou sonne of Bithon. God is not a man: he shalde lye, nec a mans childe he eny thinge shalde repute him. Shalde he saye and noc do: Shalde he speake & not make it good? Beholde, I am broughte hither to blishe. I blishe, I can not go backe there ther eny labour in Israel. The LORDE his God is wth him, & the bynges crompe is amst his strenght is as of an Unicorne. For the re is no Sottery in Jacob, & no Sooth say be saine vnto Jacob, & to Israel, what God doeth. Beholde, the people shal rise up as a Lyoness, & heare up him self as a Lyon. he shal not lye downe, eyll he eate of the pray, and byrthe the blisde of the slayne.

Then sayde Balac vnto Balac: Thou shalt neither curse him nee blisse him. Ba laam answered, & sayde vnto Balac: Hane I not tolde the: All & the LORDE speaketh, I must I do: Balac saide vnto him: Wh come, I will byrge & to another place, yf it maye happely please God, & thou mayest curse the there. And he brought him up to the toppes of mount Peor, & boweth towards the syl uerneff. And Balac sayde vnto Balac: Byrde me here: when alcare, and prayde me seven bullockes and seven runnen. Ba

And he sette vp his parable agayne, & sayd: Alas, who shall lye, who shall doo thee chief? And shalpe out of Sions shall subdue Asur and Idder, he shal lye also shall perishe verily. And Dauid gat him up, and departed, and came againe vnto his place, and Dauid wrote this in y psalms.

Unto Israel dwelle in a Sierim, and the people beganne to contrarye whordome with the daughters of the Midianites, which called the people vnto the sacrifice of their goddess. And the people are and worshipped their goddess, and Israel submyred him self vnto Baal peor. Then the wrath of the LORD wased whose upon Israel, and he sayde vnto Moses: Take all the rulers of the people, and hange them vp vnto the LORDS agaynst y Soane, I haue the verily wrath of the LORDS maye be turned awaye from Israel. And Moses sayde vnto the rulers of Israel: Every man laye his capayne, that haue submyred them selues vnto Baal peor.

Unto hebelde, one of the childen of Israel was in agaynst his brother, & layned him self to a Midianitish woman, in y seghe of Moses & of the whole congregation of y childen of Israel, which weped before the doore of y Tabernacle of mynesse. Whan Phineas y sonne of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron y prest sawe y, he rose vp out of the congregation, & toke a sword in his hande, & wente after the man of Israel in to the whore house, & thrust the pointe, both the man of Israel and the woman, and sooe the bely of her. Then ceased the plague from the childen of Israel, and there were slayne in the place foure and twentie children.

Unto y LORD spake vnto Moses, & said: Phineas the sonne of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron y prest, hath turned my wrath awaye from the childen of Israel, because he was zelous for my sake amonge them, & I shalld not consume the childen of Israel in my gellousy. Wherefore saye hebelde, I geue him my covenant of peace, and he shal haue it, & his seed after him, and the covenant of an everlasting presthode, because he was zelous for his Godes sake, and made an accoutment for the childen of Israel.

The man of Israel that was slayne with the Midianitish woman, was called Simri the sonne of Salu, a capayne of the house of the father of the Simeonites. The Midianitish woman also the man slayne, was called Cozbi, y daughter of Sur, which was a ruler of the people of a kynne amonge the Midianites.

And the LORD spake vnto Moses, & sayd: Vnto the Midianites, & slaye them, for they haue vexed you with their wykes, whereby they haue brylled you throughe Peor, and throughe their sister Cozbi the daughter of a capayne of y Midianites, which was slayne in the daye of the plague, for Peor was sate, and the plague came after.

The xxvi. Chapter.

Unto when the gylty blood was shed, the LORD sayde vnto Moses: Vnto Eleazar y sonne of Aaron y prest take the summe of the whole congregation of the childen of Israel from twentye years & aboue, after their fathers houses, all y able to go fowth to the warre in Israel. And Moses & Eleazar the prest spake vnto them (in the felde as y Midianites beside Jordan) ouer agaynst Jericho, namely vnto all the chieft were twentye years olde & aboue, as the LORD commaunded Moses. And these are y childen of Israel, that came out of Egypt.

As for the other halfe which Moyses deuoyed vnto the children of Israel 3 men of warre: namely 3 halfe thes sell to the congregation: it was also thre hundred thousande, and seuen and thire hundred shepe, 3 fyue hundred shepes, six and thire hundred oxen, thire hundred Asses 3 fyue hundred Asses, and six hundred women foule.

And of this halfe of the children of Israels Leuites one of every fyfte, both of the men 3 of the women, and gaue them vnto 3 Leuites, that wente vpon the habitacons of the LORDE, as 3 LORDE commaunded Moyses.

And the captaynes out 3 thousande of the hoost, namely they that were ouer thousande and six hundred, came forth vnto Moyses, and sayde vnto him: Thy seruantes haue taken 3 summe of 3 men of warre, that we were ouer our hands, and there lacked me one: therfore drynge me a present vnto the LORDE, what every one hath foule of 3 vale of golde, the men, be calices, ringes, and ringes, and eches, that our seruantes may receyue before the LORDE.

And Moyses and Eleazar 3 prest toke of them 3 golde of all maner manerment. In all the golde of the heuofferynge that they gaue vnto the LORDE, was fyue thousande and seven hundred and fyue Syckles, of the captaynes out thousande and hundred. For loke: what every one had spoyle, that was his wone. And Moyses 3 Eleazar the prest toke the golde of the captaynes out thousande and hundred, and broughte it in to the Tabernacle of witness for a remembrance of the children of Israels before the LORDE.

The XXXII. Chapter.

The children of Ruben and the children of Gad had an exceeding great multitude of cattell, and sought the landes of Jaser and Gilead, 3 it was a good place for cattell, and came 3 spake vnto Moyses and to Eleazar the prest, and to the captaynes of the congregation: The landes of Aroch, Dibon, Jaser, Teme, a, gilead, Gilead, Sebam, Nebo, 3 Beon, which the LORDE sith before 3 congregation of Israels: these landes for cattell, and thy seruantes haue many cattell. And they sayde moouer: If we haue founde pasture before the, thy gyf thy seruantes this lande in possession, and we wyll ne go ouer Jordan.

Moyses sayde vnto them: Beare withen shall go to the warre, and wyll ye saye: Wherfore turne ye 3 heres of the children of Israel, that they shalbe not go ouer into the lande that the LORDE shall geue them? Thus dyd your fathers also, when Jaser them out from Caden Bernea, to fyue out lande. And when they were come vnto 3 river of Ecol, and thre 3 lande, they made the herten of the children of Israel, so they wolde not in to the lande which 3 LORDE wolde haue gyuen them.

Deu. 19. 1 For if mynch any man do an yow mansp, & he dye, the same is a murderer, & shal dye the death. If he cast at him w a stone (wherewith any man maye be slayne) & he dye therof, then is he a murderer, and shal dye the death. If he smyte him w an hand or a peme of wood (wherewith any man maye be slayne) that he dye, then is he a murderer, and shal dye the death. The awenger of bloude shal bringe & murderer to death. When he synneth him, he shal slay him. If he chaunce at him of hate, or cast ought at him with a stone of watre, or smyte him of enuye w his hande, that he dye, then shal he chaunce slayne him, & dye the death: for he is a murderer. The awenger of bloude shal bringe him to death, as soone as he fyndeth him.

Deu. 19. 2 But if he chaunce him by chaunce, & not of enuye, or helle ought at him without any layinge of watre, or cast at him with a stone (wherof a man maye dye, & sware it not) & he dye, it is not his enemie, neither ought him any evil, the shal the congregacion iudge betwene him & hard charytyed & slayn, and the awenger of bloude, in such cases. And the congregacion shal belyne the deed slayer from the bande of an awenger of bloude, & shal let him come a gayne to the fire cite, whiche he was fled: there shall he abyde a yere & death of the hye priest, which was awyned with & hely opt. But if the deed slayer go out of the borders of his fire cite, that he was fled unto, and the awenger of bloude fynde him without & borders of his fire cite, and kill him, he shal not be gylty of bloude. For he synne hase bydden in his fire cite wthyl & death of the hye priest, & after & hye priestes death to come a gayne unto the londe of his inheritaunce. His shal be a flaine of the lawe come you amonge youre posterites in all your dwellingen.

Deu. 19. 3 The deed slayer shal be slayne as if moche of witnessen. One witness shal not answere over a soule to death. And ye shal receave none accomentes out of the soule of the deed slayer (for he is gylty of death) but he shal dye the death. And ye shal receave none accomentes of him, which is fled to the fire cite, & he shal be come a gayne to dwell in the londe, & all the hye priestes dye. And the sience ye of londe wher he dwelleth, & he who is gylty of bloude, be slyeth the londe: and the londe can not be slyethed so from the bloude that he slyeth therin. But only thowen the bloude of him that slyeth it. Despye not ye the londe that ye dwell in, wherein I dwell also, for I am the LORDE, which dwell amonge & dwelle of Israel.

The xxxvi. Chapter.

Deu. 20. 1 And these fathers of the tynde of the children of Israel & some of the children (which was the sonne of Manasse) of the tynde of the children of Joseph, came forth, and spake before Moyses, and before the captesnes amonge the chyldren of the children of Israel, and saide: Syn, the LORDE hath commaunded, that ye shal be geue the londe by lot unto the chyldren of Israel to inherite. And thou my leue hast commaunded thowen the LORDE that the inheritaunce of & dochter Zelaphead shal be geue unto his daughters. Now if my men out of the tynde of Israel take thou to wyves, then shal oure fathers inheritaunce be lesse, and as much as the wyves shal come unto & inheritaunce of the rybe that they come unto. Thus shal the lott of oure inheritaunce be mynished. So when the tynde of Judah cometh unto the chyldren of Israel, the shal the inheritaunce cometh & inheritaunce of the rybe, wher they are. Thus shal oure fathers inheritaunce be mynished, as much as they be so.

Moyses charged the chyldren of Israel (as he bing to the commaundment of the LORDE) and saide: The rybe of the chyldren of Joseph hath syle righte. This is it that the LORDE commaundeth the daughters of Zelaphead, and so yeche: Let them marry as they like best, onely that they marry in the rybe of the rybe of the fathers, that the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Israel fall not out of the rybe to another. For every one amonge the chyldren of Israel shall cleve to the inheritaunce of the rybe of his father: & every daughter that possesseth any inheritaunce amonge the rybes of the chyldren of Israel, shal be marryd unto one of the tynde of the rybe of his father: & every one amonge the chyldren of Israel maye enioye his fathers inheritaunce, and that the inheritaunce fall not from one rybe to another: but that every one maye cleve to his owne inheritaunce amonge the rybes of the chyldren of Israel.

As the LORDE commaunded Moyses, & the daughters of Zelaphead, Manasse, Zebulun, Issachar, & Gad were marryd unto their fathers docters synnes, of the rybe of the chyldren of Manasse the sonne of Joseph. So the inheritaunce amonge the rybe of the tynde of their father.

From whan we were departed from berthen the children of Israhel, these dwelt upon mount Sear, by the waye of the felde from Elath: & upon gaber, we cammed us, & wente by the waye of the wyldernes of y Moabites. Then sayde the LORDE vnto me 25 "Thou shalt not see the Moabites, nor promoueth thynto battayle, for I will not geue the of their londe to possesse. For Ie haue I geuen into the children of Atoe in possession. " The Enimite dwelt there before syne, which were a greates stronger people, & 30 they y^e stature, as the Enimite and were taken for glaukes, like as y^e Enimite. And y^e Moabites called them Enimite. " The Enimite also dwelt in Seir afore syne, & y^e children of Israhel dwelt there out, and destroyed them before syne, & dwelt in their feilde: like as y^e land byt in y^e lode of his possession, that the LORDE gaue them.

¶ Up you vp now, 2 ho ouer the ryuer Sa-red. And we went ouer. The syns that we were goinge bye Cobes Barne, vyl we came ouer the ryuer Sacred, was eight 2 thyrty yeares: vyl all the men of warre were waſſhed out of the hooſt, as the LORD ſware into them. The hande of the LORD alſo was againſt them, co deſtroye that one of the hostes, yll they were confirmed.

And when all the men of warre were confirmed so þe they were deed amongst the people, the LORDE spake vnto me, and sayde thus vnto thee: thou shalt go to the coast of þe Moabites by Ar, & shalt come nye vnto þe children of Ammon, whom thou shalt not were nor provoke. For I will not geue thee of the lode of the children of Ammon to possess, for I haue geue it vnto the children of Reuben in possession. It was a cake for a lode of giuyn was also, & giuyn was twice therein a foretyme. And þe Ammonites calleth Gambinnim, which was a people that was greuous, many, and of hye stature, as the Enathims.

D And the Þ LORDE destroyed before the, and let them possess the same, so that they dwelt in their steads. - Let as he byd with the children of Israhel, which dwell vpon mount Seir, when he destroyed the houses before them: and let them possess the same, so that they haue dwelt in their steads vnto this daye. And the Caphtorims came out of Capphar, and dwelt by þe Ar (þe dwells at Asarim euen vnto Gaza) & there dwelt they in their steads.

After you are now, and departe, and go ouer the ryuer Arnon. Beholde, I haue geue Giljon þe ryng of the Ammonites at Hebbon in to thy handes: go to and conqure, and proue him vnto battayll. This daye will I begynne, so that all nacions vnder all the heauens, shall feare & drede þe: In so much that they heare of the, they shall tremble and quake for thy commynge.

E Then saie I in my thought from þe mylber nisse of the East vnto Giljon the ryng of Hebbon - do peaceable wordes, and cause to saye vnto him: I will go but thow to þe lode, I will go a longe by the hye waye, I will neither come to the ryghte hode nor to þe lefte. Thou shalt sell me mace for money, that I maye eate: & water shalt thou sell me for money, that I maye drinke. Wherfore I came go thow by foot, as the children of Israhel (which dwell at Seir) byd vnto me: and the Moabites that dwell at Ar: vntill I be come ouer Jordane, in to the londe which the LORDE ouer God shal geue vnto me.

But Giljon the ryng of Hebbon wolde not let me go by him: for the LORDE & God hardened his mynde, & made his heart tough, that he mighte destroye him in to thy handes, as it is come to passe this daye.

And þe LORDE sayde vnto me: Beholde, I haue begynne to destroye Giljon with his londe before the: go to and conqure, and possess his lode. And Giljon came out to all his people to fight agaynst me at Jahsa. But the LORDE ouer God destroyed him in to our handes, so that we smote him with his children and all his people.

Then toke we all his cities at the same tyme, and destroyed utterly all the cities, men, women, and children, and let none remayn save the cattell, which we caught to our felowes, & the spoyle of the cities that we tooke from Arnon, and from the cities on the ryuer syde of Arnon, and from the cities on the ryuer vnto Gilead. There was no cite that coulde defende a falshe from vs: the LORDE ouer God destroyed vs all beside vs. - But vnto the londe of the children of Ammon thou comest not, nor to all that was on the ryuer Jabok: nor to þe cities vpon þe mountaynes, nor vnto what so euer the LORDE ouer God shal bid vs.

The iiij. Chapter.

After we came to vs, & wrote vpon þe mace vnto Basan. And Og þe kynge of Basan, came out to all his people to fight agaynst vs at Edrai. But the LORDE sayde vnto me: He is not afeard of him, for I haue destroyed him & all his people: he has lode in to thy handes: & thou shalt be to him, as the vnto the Þ Giljon ryng of þe Ammonites, which dwelt at Hebbon. Thus þe LORDE ouer God destroyed Og þe kynge of Basan in to our handes also with all his people: so that we smote him, yll there was nothinge left ouer vnto him.

Then wrote we at the same tyme all his cities, & there was no cite that we coulde not from him, men that come vnto us, the whole region of Argob in the ryngdom of Og at Basan. All the cities were stronge, with hye walles, gates, and battes, beset many ocher vnto the towres.

And we utterly destroyed them, as we byd with Giljon the ryng of Hebbon. All the cities destroyed we utterly, the men, women, and children. But all the cattell and spoyle of the cities caught we for our felowes.

Then toke we at the same tyme the sonde out of the hende of the reuer Jordane of the Ammonites beyonde Jordane, from the ryuer of Arnon vnto mount Hermon (which the Sidonians call Sidon, but the Ammonites call it Senir: all the cities vpon the playnes, and all Gilead, and all Basan vnto Gad and Edrai, the cities of the ryngdom of Og at Basan. For onely Og the kynge of Basan remayned ouer of the giuynnes. Beholde,

Thy londe conquered me at the same ty-Jair the sonne of Manasse toke all the regions of Argob vnto the coastes of Gessupoch Jair after his owne name. vnto this daye: But vnto Machir I gaue Gilead, And vnto the Rubenites and Gabdites I gaue one parte of Gilead vnto the ryner of Ammon, and the myddes of the byngdom I bereaved vnto the ryner Jabbot, which is the badow of the children of Ammon: the felde also, and Jordan which is the coaste from Chemath vnto the see in the felde, namel y, 3

And I commaunded you at the same tyme, and sayde: The LORDE your God hath gyuen you this londe to take possession of it, So your waye forth therfore hath yf be for yere brethraen the children of Israel, all ye shal be merre for the warre. As for your rynes, and children and cattell (for I knowe that ye haue much cattell) let them remayne in your cities, which I haue gyuen you, & neer the LORDE your God haue broughte ye herther to rest also as well as you, that they also maye take possession of the londe, which 3 LORDE your God shal geue the beyonde Jordan: and then shal ye haue a gynne to your owne possession, which I haue gyuen you.

And I warned Iosua at the same tyme, and sayde vnto him: I haue sent all that the LORDE your God hath done vnto this daye byngge: and so shal the LORDE do also vnto all 3 byngdomes whither thou goest.
Flee them not, for the LORDE your God shal fight for you.

And I besoughte the LORDE at the same tyme, & sayde: O LORDE LORDE, thou hast begyuen to hym 3 forsworne thy greatnesse and thy mighte haue. For where is there a God in heauen & earth, that can do after 3 wordes and after thy power: O let me go 2 let 3 good londe beyonde Jordan, 3 goodly byr water, and Libanus.

The iiii. Chap. Ho. lxxx.

But the LORDE was angry with me for your sake, and wold not heare me, but sayde vnto me: De content, speake now to me o felde matter. For the 3 pte the toppes ward the west, and square the north, and comard the south, and comard 3 eastward go ouer this Jordan, And geue Iosua his charge, and charge hem, and bolde hem, for he shal gaue Jordan before the people, and shal dryde vnto them the londe, that they shal see. And so me abode in the wylde auct agaynst the host of peas.

The iii. Chapter.

And now heiden Iosua vnto the ordi-nacion and lawe, which I teach you that ye do them, 3 ye maye lyue, and come in, & take possession of the londe, which the LORDE God of ys fathers geith vnto you. 3 shal put nothinge vnto the wordes which I commaunde you, neether daughte there from, that ye maye kepe the commaunt bermentes of the LORDE your God, which I commaunde you. Howe a ye haue seie what the LORDE hath done w Jhal Peor all them that walked vsur Jhal Peor, hath the LORDE thy God destroyed from amonge you. But yet that cleue vnto the LORDE ys God, are all alme this daye. Beholde I haue taughte you aduallies and lawes, for as the LORDE my God commaunded me, that ye shal do euil so in the londe, in as 3 wch ye shal come, to possess it.

Kepe them ne in ther fore and do them, for that is your wysdome and vnderstan-dinge in the sight of all nacions, which aye they haue herde all these aduallies wches, shal for where is there so excellent a nation, that hath goddes so nye him, as the LORDE vpon him: And where is there so excellent a nation, that hath so righteous ordinaunces and lawes, as all his lawes which I haue sore you this daye.

Take hede to thy selfe now, and kepe well thy soule, that thou forget not the charynges which thine eyes haue seie, and that they be parte not out of thy hert all the dayes of thy lyf. And thou shalt teach them thy chi-that I maye make them heare my wordes, that they shal make of each their dylligent.

And ye came nye ⁊ stode vnder ⁊ mount.
But the mounte burnt euen vnto the myddes of heuene, and there was darke as night, and myght. And ⁊ LORDE spake vnto you out of the myddes of the fyre. The voyce of his wordes ⁊ herbe, neuertheless ye sawe no ymage, but hearde the voyce onely. ⁊ And he declared vnto you his covenante, which he commanded you to do, namely, the ten verſes, and wrote them vpon two tables of stone.
And the LORDE commaunded me at the same tyme, to teach you ordinances ⁊ lawes that ye mighte do therafter in the lande, in to the which ye go to possesse it.

¶ Depe well youre soules therfore, for ye sawe no maner of ymage, in the daye whā the LORDE spake vnto you out of the fyre vpon mount syon, ⁊ that ye destroye not youre sel-ues, and make you any ymage, that is like a man, or woman, or best vpon earth, or feeth-red foule vnder the heauen, or worne vpon the grounde, as fyssh in the water vnder ⁊ earth: ⁊ shoulde not vpon thine eyes coma-de heauen, and seeke Some and the Moone ⁊ the starres, and the whole host of heaue, and be bidden, and worshippye, and serue them: in which the LORD ⁊ God hath made to serue all nacions vnder ⁊ whole heaue.

But ye hath the LORD taken, and broughte you out of the yron fornaue, namely, out of Egipte, that ye shoulde be the people of his inheritance, as it is come to pasſe this daye. And the LORDE was angry with me for yodis sake, so that he swore, ⁊ I shoulde not go ouer Iordane, ner come in to that good lande, which the LORD thy God shall geue the inheritance. As for me, I must dye in this lande, and shal not go ouer Iordane: But ye shal go ouer, and shall haue that good land in possession.

Take heede therfore vnto youre salues, that ye forget not the covenante of the LORDE your God, and that ye make no ymages of any maner of fashion, as the LORDE thy God hath commaunded, for the LORD thy God is a consuming fyre and a gloued God.

¶ If when ye haue begotten children, and childrens children, and haue dwelt in the lan-de, ye marre youre selues, ⁊ make you ymages of any maner of fashion, and do euill in the sight of ⁊ LORDE your God, to prouoke him: I call heauen and earth to reseede ouer you this daie, that ye shal shortly revise for the lande, in to ⁊ which ye go as Iordane to possesse it. Ye shal not be all together therein, but shal vnto the best of you. And ⁊ LORDE shal scaue you amonge ⁊ nacions, and ye shal be left v small people amonge ⁊ herthen, whither the LORD shall bringe you. There shal ye serue goddes, which are wordes of mens handes, euen vnto ⁊ stone, which neither se ner heare, ner eate ner smell.

But yf ye do seke the LORD ⁊ God when ye shal fynde him, ye yf ye shal fynde him ⁊ shal rehoie here and with all ⁊ soale. When ye shal be stracely troubled, ⁊ whā all the thynges shal come vnto the in ⁊ latter daye, then shal the Lord come agayne to ⁊ LORD thy God, and be obediēt vnto his voyce.
For ⁊ LORD ⁊ God is a mercifull God, he shal not forsake the, ner destroye the: ner shall he forget the covenante which thy fathers, which he sware vnto them.

¶ Ye are after the tyme past, which haue bene before the, shā the daie ⁊ God created man vpon earth, from one ende of the heaue vnto the other, whither there was eue any sch greater thyng done, or any sch like before, that a people hath had ⁊ voyce of God speake out of the fyre (as thou hast heretofore yet heard) whā heherth God assured to geue te vnto him a people out of ⁊ myddes of a nation, the tow nationes, thow woldst thow woldst wonders, thow woldst warre, ⁊ thow mightie handes, ⁊ thow a stretched out arme, and thow great wisde, accordinge to all as the LORD your God hath demonstrated vnto you in Egipte before thine eyes.

¶ Than hast thou ⁊ thou mightest know that the LORD is God, and that there is no other but he onely. Out of heauen made he the to heare his voyce, that he mighte be comte the: and vpon earth he shewed the his great feare, ⁊ out of ⁊ fyre thou herdest his wordes: because he loved ⁊ fathers, ⁊ did their sde a fere the. And he broughte ⁊ out of his presence thow vnto his mightie power out of Egipte, ⁊ he dyne out before the: nation greater and mightier then thou, and he bringe ⁊ in, ⁊ he might geue the their liberte inheritance, as it is come to possesse this daye.

¶ Therfore shal the thow knowe this daye, I turne it into thine heere, ⁊ that the LORD is God above in heauen, and beneath vpon earth, and that there is no god. ⁊ As he is nacione therefore and commaundementes, which I commaunde the this daie, the shal be good to the and thy children a fere the, so that thy life shal longe endure in ⁊ lande.

all þe the LORD our God sayeth, and telle we hear and do. When the LORD herder the voyce of y^e wordes which ye spake unto me, þe saye unto me: I haue heide þe voyce of the wordes of this people, which they haue spoken unto þe. It is all good that they haue spoken. But who shal geue them such an herre. þe they maye feare me, and kepe all my commaundementes as longe as they ly-ue, þe it maye go well with them, and make their chylde for euer. So I saye unto them Get you in to y^e tentes agayne. But thou shalt stand here before me, that I maye tell the all the commaundementes, and ordinaun-ces and lawes which thou shalt teach them þe they maye do them first in the lode, which I shal geue the to possesse. Take hebe me therefor that ye do, as the LORD is y^e God hath commaunded you, and turne not of-but walke in all þe wayes which the LORD your God hath commaunded you, that ye maye lyue, and that remaie go well with you, and þe maye lyue longe in þe londe which ye shall haue in possession.

The vi. Chapter.

The first of the commaundementes, ordinances, and lawes which þe LORD y^e God hath commaunded, þe ye shalte teche them, and do them, in the londe whiche ye go to possesse it, that thou mayest feare the LORD y^e God, and kepe all his ordinaun-ces and commaundementes, which I commaunde the, thou and þe children, and þe chyldees children, all þe dayes of your life, that ye maye ly-ue longe. Thou shalt heare the wordes of the LORD hede, þe thou do them feare, þe it maye go well with þe, that thou mayest multiplie greatly, as þe LORD God of þe fathers hath pro-myssed the as longe þe slowach as myghte I homeare. And I saye, the LORD our God is one, which I commaunde the this daye, shalte thou take to hart, and shalte weare them upon þe children, and shalte teache of them, whiche thou steeste in thine house, and when thou walkest by the waye, when thou restest downe, and when thou risest up. And thou shalt bynde them for a signe upon thine hande, and they shal be a token of remembrance before thine eyes, and thou shalt weare them upon the postes of thine house, and upon thy gates.

Now when þe LORD y^e God shal bring the in to þe londe whiche he swore unto þe fathers Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and shal geue the greater and goodly lode, which thou hast not buyde and hast full of fall goodnes, which thou hast not filled: a big good lode which thou hast not dugged, and wyne trees and oyle trees, which thou hast not plu-red, so þe thou takest and art full: then bene-te that thou seigest me the LORD, which broughte the out of the londe of Egypt, sit the house of bondage: but thou shalt feare the LORD y^e God, and him only shal thou serue, and swear by his name. And y^e shal not folowe the other goddes of the nations which are aboute you (for the LORD thy God is a gelous God in the myddes of the) that the wrath of the LORD thy God maye not be kindled agaynste the, and destroye the from the earth.

Ye shal not tempte þe LORD your God, as ye tempted him at Massa: but kepe the commaundementes of the LORD y^e God, and his seruises, his ordinaunces, which he hath commaunded the, that thou mayest do that which is right and good in þe sighte of the LORD, þe thou mayest prosper, and þe thou mayest go in and conques that goodlode, which the LORD swore unto þe fathers, that he maye geue the all thine enemies before the, as the LORD hath saye.

Now when the sonne of man the eodege cometh, and sayeth: What meane thes reuerse, ordinaunces and lawes, that the LORD our God hath commaunded you: Then shalte thou saye unto thy some: We were pharaos bondmen in Egypt, and the LORD broughte us out of Egypt with a mighty hande, and the LORD did great miracles and wonders in the gyfte vnto pharao and all his house before our eyes, and broughte us from thence, to bringe us in and to geue us þe londe, that he swore unto our fathers. And therefore hath the LORD commaunded us to do as he hath said unto all the ordinaunces, that we might feare the LORD our God, that we might prosper all the dayes of our life, as it is come to possesse the daye. And it shal be righte wisedome unto us before the LORD our God, yf we kepe and do all the commaundementes, as he hath commaunded us.

The vii. Chapter.

When þe LORD y^e God bringeth the in to þe londe where in to thou shalt come to possesse it, and reuerce some nations before the the heethen, Gergasies, Amorites, Canaanites, pherezites, Gittites, and Jebusites, and the nations which are grete:

and led the with Maria (which thou and thy fathers knewe not) to make the knowe, that man lyeth not by land onely, but by all that proceedeth out of the mouth of the LORDE. Thy clothes are not waxed olde upon the, and thy feet are not swollen thus forty years.

25 Understande therefore in thine heart, that as a man nurtured by his sonne, men so hath the LORDE thy God awared the. Receyve therefore the commandementes of the LORDE thy God, that thou walste in his waye, and spare him. For the LORDE thy God kyngmed the in to a good londe: A londe where in are ryuers of water, fountaynes and springes, which flowe by the hilles and valleys: A londe wherein a wheate, barley, vine, figge trees, and pomegranates: A londe where in growe Olyue trees and pome: A londe where thou shalt noe care be in fear come, and where thou shalt lacke nothinge: A lode where y stones are yron, wher thou shalt digge brasse out of hilles: That wher thou shalt eate and are fylled, thou mayst praise the LORDE thy God, for the good londe, wher he hath gyven the.

C Remember now therefore, that thou forgettest the LORDE thy God, that thou woldest not kepe his commandementes, and his ordinaunces, and lawes, which I commaunde the this daye: that when thou hast eaten and are fylled, and hast buylded goodly houses, and dwellest therein, and in han thy bestes and shepe, and siluer, and golde, and all y thou hast, increaseth thyne here: esse not thou, and thou forgett the LORDE thy God (which brought the out of the londe of Egypte, fro y house of bondage, and led y therow this greute & terrible wyldernes, where were serpentes that spouteth fyre, and Scorpions, & dyouch, and where there was no water, and brought the water out of the hard fynyte, and led the in the wyldernes with Maria wherof y fathers knewe not, that he might chastise the, and proue the so do the good as I commaunde, and lest thou saye in thine heart, My power and the myght of myne arme hath done all this good: But that thou thynste upon the LORDE thy God. For it is he, which geueth the power to everye strength, that he maye pursue the ceaseles waye, which he shewe unto thy fathers, as it is come to passe this daye.

D But yf thou shalt forget the LORDE thy God, and in thine other goddes, and serve them, and worshippe the, I testifie over you this daye, that ye shall shortly perishe. I testifie of the gathering together.

And after the forty dayes and fortye nighers, I LORDE gaue me 3 two tables of stone, namely 3 tables of the couenaunt, and I wrote vnto me: vp, I got 3 I wrote quyt ly from hence, for thy people whom thou broughtest out of Egipt, haue married the daughters of the people gone out of the waye, which I commaunded them, and haue made them a wicked image.

And the LORDE said vnto me: I see this people, that it is a stiffnecked people, let me alone, that I maye destroye them, and put out their name from vnder heauen. I will make of the people mightier and greater than this is.

And as I turned me, I wente downe fro the mount which beate in face, I had 3 two tables of the couenaunt in both my handes, I leet, & beholde, ye had synned agaynst I LORDE of God, so I ye had made you a molten calfe, I were I were turned one of 3 woe which the LORDE had commaunded you.
Then toke I the two tables, I cast them one of both my handes, & brake the before you reyn, & I fell before the LORDE. (as an act he first tyme) forty dayes & fortye nigh-ers, neither ate I bread, nor drinke water, because all your synnes which ye had synned, when ye dyd soch euell in the sight of the LORDE, to provoke him vnto wrath, for I was a frayd of the wrath and indignacion, wherewith the LORDE was angrye w you.
And the LORDE
herde me at that tyme also.

Mordecai the LORDE was very angrye w Zaron, so that he molde haue destroyed him, but I made intercession for Zaron also at 3 same tyme. As for your synne, namely, the calfe that ye had made, I eate it, and burnt it with the fyre, and sent it a sunder, & ye eat it in peeces, rauen vnto best, and cast the draff in to the brooke that descended from the mount.

And I dispensed the LORDE also, at Tabernacle, and at Masse, and at the Iugurmes, and I beheld the sent you from Cabes Barne, and sayde: Go up, and conquere the lande which I haue geuen you. And ye were disobeyed vnto the mouth of the LORDE, ye did not obey, and I beheld none on him, and be-lieued not me his voyce: for ye haue been disobedient vnto the LORDE, as long as I haue bene with you.

And I said before of LORDE forty dayes and fortye nighers, which I laye here, for 3 LORDE sayde, he wold destroye you. And

The x. Chap. Ego. lxxx.

I made intercession vnto the LORDE, and sayde: O LORDE, destroye not 3 people and thine inheritance, which thou hast brought out of Egipt with a mighty hade. Remember thy seruantes Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Lorde, not vpon the stubble, and vpon the thynne, and vpon the people (that the lande whereof thou hast brought us, saye not: The LORDE was not able to bringe them in so the lande, that he promysed them, and because he hated them, therefore hath he brought them out, to de-stroye this in the wilderness: for they are thy people & thine inheritance, which thou hast brought out of thy greater power, and with thy stretched out arme.

The X. Chapter.

At the same tyme sayde the LORDE vnto me: How 3 two tables of stone like vnto the first, and come up vnto me to the mount, and make 3 an Altar of wood, and in the tables I will write the wordes, that were in the first, which thou brakest, and thou shalt laye them in the Altar. So I made an Altar of yfere tre, and bound two tables of stone like as the first were: I wrote up into the mount, and 3 two tables were in my handes.

Then wote he in 3 tables (accordinge as the first writings was) these wordes, which the LORDE spake vnto you out of the fyre vpon the mountayne, at the tyme of the ga-theringe together. And the LORDE gaue this vnto me. And I turned me, I wente downe from the mount, and layd the tables in the Altar which I had made, that they might be there, as the LORDE commaunded me.

And the child of Israel departed from Bereth & Dine Jack an into Mosera (there I dyed Zaron, & there was he buried) & I saw how some became priest in his steade, & I thought they departed from Gadgad, from Gadgad to Iarhab, a lande of tygers & mordecai. And the same season the LORDE separated out the crye of Leui, to beare the tre of the LORDES couenaunt, and so I wrote before the LORDE, to mynister vnto him, and to praye his name vnto this daye. Therefore shal the Leuites haue no possession nor inheritance with their brethren: for the LORDE is their inheritance, as the LORDE thy God hath promised them.

And I turned vnto the mount like as a father for forty dayes and fortye nighers, and the LORDE herde me at that tyme also, and would not destroye the. And he sayde vnto me: Up, & get the south, & thou mayest go be fore the people, & they may come in, and conquer the land, which I sware unto their fathers to give them.

E Now I said, what requyrest the LORDE thy God of thee, but & thou feare the LORDE thy God, and that thou walke in all his wayes, & love him, & serve the LORDE & God with all thy heart, with all thy soules, and & thou kepe the commandmentes of & LORDE, & his ordinaunces, which I commaunde the this daye, & thou mayest prosper. Beholden, the heauen & the heauen of all beastes and the earth, and all & is therein, is & LORDE & God. And hee hath a pleasure unto & fathers, to love them and hath chaste their sibe after thee, namely you, above all nations, as it is com to passe this daye.

D Circumcise therfore & foregynne of yb here, & be nomore shyfmed. For the LORDE thy God is God of all goddes, & LORDE over all lordes, a gyfte God, myghte & victory, which rageth no personne, & taketh no gifte, and doeth righte unto the fatherlesse and weake, and loatheth the stronge, to geue him sibe & to myne. Therfore shal ye love a stranger, for ye your selves also were strangers in the land of Egypte.

Thou shalt sware the LORDE thy God, him only shalt thou serve, unto him shalt thou cleave, & sweare by his name. Herby prayest & God, which hath done for & the greatest & terrible thinges, & thine eyes haue sene. Thy fathers were do wene in to Egypte, & thence they sould, but now hath & LORDE thy God made the as & starres of heauen in multitude.

The XL Chapter.

Therfore shalt thou love the LORDE thy God, & kepe his commandmentes, his ordinaunces, his lawes, & his preceptes all & life lye. And understande this daye, that which ye are childen of some now which haue not sene the horrible of the LORDE thy God, & his greatnesse, & his myghtie hande, & his stretcht out arme, & his coken and aces whiche he dyd amonge the Egyptians, unto Pharaos the kynge of Egypte, & to all his lande, what he dyd to the power of & Egyptians, & unto chaile basles & charrettes, whan hee booght the maces of the reed for up them, as they soulden to set you, & how & LORDE hath broughte them to naughte unto this daye: & what he dyd unto you in the wilderness, untill ye came unto this place, what he dyd unto Dauid and Abime, the children of Eliab some of the house of Abime, how the earth opened his mouth and swallowed them with their householdes & all their good that they had in the myddes amonge all Israel.

For yeare & ye have sene the greates workes of & LORDE, which he hath done. The sene shal ye kepe all the commandmentes which I commaunde you this daye, that ye maye be stronge to come in, and to conquer the lande, whiche ye go to possess it, & that ye maye lye longe in the lande, which the LORDE sware unto your fathers, to geue unto them and to their sibe, and a lande that floweth with mylke and hony: for chelene be whiche thou comest in, to possesse it, is not as the lande of Egypte, whence ye came out, where then sowedest thy sibe, and waterdest it as thy sowe as a garden of herbes whiche hath halles and valleys, which dryeth twice of the same of heauen, a lande that the LORDE thy God careth for. And the eyes of the LORDE thy God are allwaye therein from the begynnynges of the years in to this ende.

If ye shal hearken therfore unto my commandmentes, which I commaunde you this daye, & ye love the LORDE your God, and serve him, with all your heart and with all your soules, then will I geue you unto your sibe in due season, early and late, that then mayest gather in thy come, thy wine and thine oyle: and I will geue grasse unto thy sibe for thy cattell, that ye maye eat & be fylled.

Not beware, & your heart be not deceived, that ye go as yet, & is not other goddes, nor worship them, and then the wrath of the LORDE waxe whome up you, and hee shal up the heave, that there come no tyme, and the earth geue not his increase, & ye perish shortly from the good land, which the LORDE hath geuen you.

Now ptherfore shall ye markes in your herces and in your souldes, and bynde them for a signe upon your handes, & they may be a token of remembrance of best of eyes and teach them your children, for hee shal talkech of, whan thou sittest in thine house, as thou walkest by the waye: whan thou lye downe, and whan thou risest up: and wryte them upon the peeces of thine house, and upon thy gates, that thou and thy children maye lye longe in the lande, which the LORDE swaith unto thy fathers to geue them, as longe as the dayes of heauen endure upon earth.

So if ye shal kepe all these commandmentes mines which I commaunde you, so that ye be not a curse, that ye love the LORD your God, and walk in all his wayes, and cleve unto him, then shall the LORD be true unto all these nations before you, so that ye shall be greater and mightier nations then ye your selves are.

D All the places that the fles of your feet create upon, shall be yours, from the wilderness, and from mount Libanus, and from the river Euphrates unto y^e uttermost see, shall your coast be. The Toman shall be able to stand before you. The LORD your God shall let the feare and dread of you come upon all y^e lordes wher in ye go, like as he hath promysed you.

Behold, I lay before you this daye the blessing and the curse. The blessinge, if ye be obedient unto the commaundmentes of the LORD your God, which I commaunde you this daye. The curse, if ye wyl not be obedient to the commaundmentes of the LORD your God, but turne out of the waye, which I commaunde you this daye, so that ye walke after oother goddes, whome ye knowe not.

When y^e LORD y^e God hath broughte in to the lande, whither thou comest in to possesse it, then shalt thou give the blessinge upon mount Garisim, and the curse upon mount Ebal, which are beyonde Jordan the waye towards the goinge downe of the Sonne, in the side of the Canaanites, which dwell in y^e playne falsche over agaynst Gilgal, beside the Elde greene of Itton. For ye shal go over Jordan, that ye maye come in to take possession of the lande, which the LORD your God hath given you, to conquire it, and to dwell therein. Take heede now therefore, that ye do as comynge unto all the commaundmentes and lawes, which I laye before you this daye.

The xiiij. Chapter.

These are the ordinaunces and lawes which ye shal keepe, that ye do them after in the lande, which the LORD your God of Iherusalem hath given you to possesse, as long as ye lyue upon earth. Destroye all the places, wher in y^e heathen which ye shal conquer, have served their goddes, whither it be up to y^e mounte yns, up to hille, or amonge great trees. And overthrowe their altars, and breake downe their pilers, and burne their grones with fyre, and hewe downe the images of their goddes, & burne the names of them to naughte out of the lande. Ye shal not do so unto the LORD.

Ye your God dwelle in the place, which y^e LORD your God shal chuse out of all y^e tribes (that he maye be his name, dwell there) shal ye sette, and come thither, and thither shal ye bringe your burnt offerings, & your other offeringes, and your tithes, and the heues offeringes of your handes, and your vowes, and your frewill offeringes, and the first borne of your oxen and sheepe, and there shal ye eat before the LORD your God, and reioyse over all that ye and your houses have sent with your handes, because the LORD your God hath blessed the. Ye shall do some of the thinges, y^e we do here this daye, every man wher semeth him good in his owne eyes. For ye are not yet come to rest, nor so y^e enhardnes which the LORD your God shal geve you.

But ye shal go over Jordan, and dwell in the lande y^e the LORD your God shal dwelle over unto you, & he shal geve you rest from all your enemies rounde aboute, and ye shal dwell safe. I told you when the LORD your God hath chosen a place, to make his name dwell there, ye shal bringe thither all y^e I have commaunded you, namely, y^e burnt offerings, your other offeringes, your tithes, the heues offeringes of your handes, & all your fre vowes, which ye shall vowe unto y^e LORD, and there shal ye eat, and reioyse before the LORD your God, ye and your sonnes, and your daughters, and your servants, and your maytes, and the Levites that are with you, for they have no portion nor inheritance with you.

Take heede unto thy selfe, that thou offer not thy burnt offerings in what so ever place thou seysthine in the place which y^e LORD shall have chosen in one of thy tribes, where shal thou offer thy burnt offerings, and do as that I commaunde the. To standinge thou mayest kill and eat flesh within all thy gates, after all the desire of thy herte, accordinge to the blessinge of the LORD thy God, which he hath geve thee: both the cleane and uncleane maye eat it, as of the Beo and beere, only the blood shal thou not eate, but pour it out as water upon the earth.

But within thy gates mayest thou not eat of the cybes of thy cowe, of thy sheepe, or of thy oxen, or of y^e first borne of thine oxen, and of thy sheepe, or of any of thy vowes which thou hast vowed, or of thy frewill offeringes, or heues offeringes of thy handes, but before the LORD thy God shal thou wordes, which I commaunde the, for it maye go well with thee, and thy children after thee er, when thou hast done what which is righte and acceptable unto the sighte of the LORD thy God.

When the LORD & God hath reed out the children before thee, whither thou com-conquered them, & bowed in their forbe, bow rethen, & then fall not in the snare of their to whom they are destroyed before thee: & that thou art not after their goddes, & sayest as these nations haue said their goddes, so will I do so. These shal not do so unto the LORD thy God, for all these abomisame haue they done unto their goddes. For they haue burned euen their finnes and their high places with fire unto their goddes.

All that I commaunde you, shal ye kepe, that ye do thereafter. Ye shal put nothing thereto, nor take oughte there from.

The XIII. Chapter.

Lift up thy voice as a prophet on manner amongst you, and give this token a wonder, and that token or wonder which he spake of, come to passe, and thus saye: Let vs go after other goddes (whom thou knowest not) and let vs serve other goddes Shall not hearken unto the wordes of such a prophet or dreamer.

Joe 3 LORDE yours God protect you, to meet in heaher ye leave him with all your heart, to wish all your soul. For ye shall not be after the LORDE yours God, and stem him, and kepe his commaundementen, & then him into his voyce, and feret him, and demer him him. As for the prophet or dreamer, the shall ye be for he hath refused to turn you awaye from the LORDE yours God (which broughte you out of the lande of Egypte), and deliverey you from the hande of bondage; to turne the one of the waye, which the LORDE the God commaunded the to walke in, and so shall he be as with the small fowle.

As thy brother, the sonne of thy moother, or thine own sonne, or thy daughter, or thy neighbour, or thyne, or thyne friend, which is unto the as thine own soule, enuie the secretary, and say: Let me go and seeke out goodes (wherein thou knowest not, nor yet thy father, which art amongst the nations) rede aboute you, whiche they desire more of farr from the, from the one side of the earth unto the other: conference aduise him, and hekd not unto him. T hine eye also shal not ptey him, and thou shalt be oue a compassion upon him, my tepe his secret, his labie cause him to be slayne, cause him to be fast upon him, to cause him to be slayne, and then the handes of all the people. Es shal be slayed death, because his meritade of Elgizer from the house of debase: f all Israel may heare, and farr him, and be-nourish fode spell amonre you.

¶ If then hee rest in any city which I LOC DESH God hath giue the rodde in, that itis sayde: There are certayne men, the chil dren of Belial, come out from amonge you, and haue distressed the inhabitants of that city, and saye thus vs god, and some other god bes, whom ye knowe not. Then shall the LORD make search, and enquire diligently,

And if it be founde of a truth, that it is so in dede, & such abominacion is wrought amongst you, then shall thou smyte the inhabitants of the same cite and their caitell, with the edge of the sword, and burne the cite with all that is therein: and all the spoile thereof shalt thou gather together in the myddes of the streets of it, and burne with fyre, both the cite and all the spoile thereof together vnto the LORDE & God, that it maye lye vpon a heape for ever, and neuer be builded any more. And let nothing be of the damned thinge cleue vnto thy han-de, in the LORDE maye be turned from the iniquitee of his wrath, and growne the more, and haue compassion on the, and multiplye the (so he hath sworn vnto thy wayer of the LORDE thy God, so kepe all his commandementes, which I commaunde the this daye, so that thou dost the thinge which is right in the sighte of the LORDE thy God.

The XIII. Chapter.

These are the children of the LORDE your God, the which ye shall not forsake, for it make you no baldnesse betweene you and eyes vnto my dead. For thou art a holy people vnto the LORDE thy God. And the LORDE hath chosen the to be his ayme peca-le people, from amongst all the nacions that are vpon the earth.

Thou shalt eate no abominacion. These are the bestes which ye shall eate: Oxen, sheepe, Goats, hares, Koe, Bugle, wyde goate, Unicorne, Onyssa, and Camelion. And euery best that is deuydeth his clawe, & chemeeth cadd, shall ye eate. Yet nevertheless the fish ye not eate of them that are cleue cadd, and deuyde not the haffe in crosse clawes. The Camelion, the bayle, & the conye, for though they cheme cadd, yet deuyde they not the haffe, therefore shall they be uncleane vnto you. The swyne, though he deuyde the haffe, yet chemeeth he not cadd, he shall be uncleane vnto you: ye shall not eate of the flesh of the, and their dead carcases shall ye not couche.

This is that ye shall eate of all that is in the water: All that hath fynnes and scales, shall ye eate. But what so ever hath no fynnes nor scales, that shall ye not eate, for it is uncleane vnto you.

Eate of all cleane fowles. But these are they whereof ye shall not eate: The Eagle, & Gylshewe, the Commonwee, the Jern, the Vulture, the Zee wech with his fynde, & all Rauens which fynde, the Elstriche, the Widge crowe, the Cooen, the Sparrow hawk, with his fynde, the hake Owle, the great Owle, & Dode, the Zeyra, the Gnomme, the Pullicane, the Pye, the Stork, the heron, the Jaye with his fynde, the Lapwing, & Clea-me. And all fowles & creepes, shall be unclean vnto you, and ye shall not eate the.

Ye shall eate of no chynge & drinke alenoe thou mayest geue it vnto & strange with in & gate, that he eate it, as he will it, & a stranger, for then are an holy people vnto & LORDE thy God. Thou shalt not sech a rydd, whyle it yet sacrefyth his mother.

Thou shalt kepe a care of the eye of all the increase of thy fynde, & cometh out of & fynde euery yere: thou shalt eate it before & LORDE & God: in & place whiche the dreyth, & his name wynter, wold thet, namely of & rynde of thy corn, of thy wyne, of thy oyle, & the first borne of thine oxen, and of thy shepe, & thou mayest seme to spare the LORDE thy God, all thy life longe.

But if the waye be so much for & , and the place, whiche & LORDE thy God hath chosen to set his name there, be so farre from the: & thou canst not carrye thar & LORDE thy God hath blessed the withall. Then genouit for money, & carrie & money in thyne han-de, and geue vnto the place whiche the LORDE thy God hath chosen, and geue the money for all that thy soule desireth, whether it be oyle, shepe, wyne, stronge drynte, or for what so ever thy soule desireth, and eate there before the LORDE thy God, and be merry, thou 13 And when he is in for upon the store of his kingdome, he shall take of the priestes the Leuites, the secondes same, and cause it to be written in a booke, and that shall he have by him, and he shall rule them all the dayes of his life, that he maye learne to feare 3 LOR DE his God, so kepe all the wordes of this lawe, all these ordinances, so that he be ther-after. He shall not lise up his hande above his brethren, and shall not turne a side from the commandement: neither to the right hande nor to the left, that he maye protect his dayes in his kingdome, he and his children for ever.

The XVII. Chapter.

1 he priestes, the Leuites, all the crybe of 3 LEU shall have no parte nor inheritance in 3 Israel. The offeringes of 3 LORDE 3 his experiances shall they sate. Therefore shall they have no inheritance amonge their brethren, because the LORDE is their inheritance, as he hath said unto the this shall be 3 priestes byrde of the people, of the charge, whether it be ope or shipe, so that they give unto the priest the shulter and both the cheekes, and the brest. And the first frutes of thy corne, of thy vyne and of thy oyle, and the first of thy shepe flockinge.
2 For the LORDE thy God hath choise him out of all thy crybes, to stande and mynster in the name of the LORDE, he and his son-nes all the dayes of their life.

3 As a Levite come out of any of thy gates out of any place of all 3 Israel, where he is a guest, and cometh unto all the desire of his shale, unto the place which the LORDE hath choise to mynster in the name of the LOR-DE his God, like as all his brethren 3 Leui-shall he have the portion of meate with the other: before that which he hath of the sol-4 When thou comest into 3 lande which the LORDE thy God shall give 3, thou shalt not learne to do 3 abominacions as these na-cions, that there be not founde amonge you, dayes, or that tegeth the fowles crynges, or a witch, or a conjurer, or sorcerer, or an expounder of rebones, or 6 a seer any thing of these doings.

7 For who so dar doch soch, is an abomination unto the LORDE: and because of such an abominacion doth the LORDE 3 God turne the out before the. And then shall he purse with the LORDE 3 God, for these na-cions whom thou shalt conquer, whom the LOR-DE thy God hath given thee, heretofore do choise out of dayes, and so the people saye: but so shall not thou do unto the LORDE thy God.

8 A prophet, like unto me, shall the LORDE thy God raise the up even out of thy, from amonge thy brethren, unto him shall ye believe, accordinge as thou desiredst before the LORDE thy God in 3 shoch, in the dayes of gatheringe together: 9 saydest: As we hea-me, and so remove this greave from me: they bye not. And 10 LORDE shall unto me: They have well spoken. 11 And raise them up a prophet from amonge their brethren like unto the, and wyl put my wordes in his mouth: he shall speak unto them all that 3 shal com-mande him. And who so dar saye not but can vnto my wordes, which he shall speak in my name, of him wil 3 requyte it.

12 But if a prophet presume to speake ought in my name, which 3 have not commanded him to speake, and he that I have not name of other goddes, 13 I sam prophet shall bye. But if thou saye in thine heart: How can 14 I knowe what wordes the LORDE hath not spoken? Then when the prophet speaketh in the name of 3 LORDE, and the things soloweth not, and cometh to passe, 15 I same is the worde, 16 the LORDE hath not spoke. The prophet he shal speake in premantly, therefore be not a feyde of him.

The XIX. Chapter.

1 When 3 LORDE thy God shall have sorely out 3 nation, whose lande 2 LORDE thy God shall give thee, the thou hast conquered them, and dwellest in their cities and houses, thou shalt appoy-nt the one thre cities in the myden of the de. 2 the LORDE thy God shal give 3 to pos-sist. Thou shalt prepare the waye, and prepare the coastes of 3 lande, which 3 LORDE thy God shall drayde out unto thee in the partes, that in hostiles hath commytted be the cause, that whosoever hath commytted slaughter, maye see thy childer, and live.

The XX. Chapter

¶ When ther was one layne founde in y londe whiche y LORD & God shall geue y to possesse it, & lyeth in y felde, & it is not knowen who hath slaine hym, then shal thy Elders & iudges go forth, and meas from the layne unto the cite whiche he cometh abowde. & the which cite is the nyere, y Elders of the same shal take a ydge couer, which hath not bene laboured, nor hath binde in the ydce, & they shal brynge her in co a valley, where as a mother carrie not valley.

Then shal the prestes y children of Levi come forth. For the LORD thy God hath chosen them, to setue him, and to praye his name: and at his mouth shal all pcees and strykes be tryed. And all the Elders of the same cite shal come forth unto the layne, & wash their handes ouer y yonge couer, who he heade is stricken of in the valley, and shal answere and say: Our handes haue not shed him blood, neyth we haue cure eyes fene. We land, whiche thou hast deliuered. & laze no innocent bloods unto thy people of y land the bloods. Thus shalte thou put awaye the innocent bloude from the, in that thou dost the thinge whiche is righte in the sighte of y LORD.

When thou goest forth to warre agaynst thine enemies, & the LORD thy God deliue-reth them in to thine handes, so that thou carriest awaye their persons, and sell the ge the captives to a bewyfull woman, & have thy self unto her to take her to thy wife, & brynge her home to thine house, and let her shewe hir heade, and pare hir nayles, and pare of hir clothes that she was a taken prisoner in, and let her sit in thine house, and comme for hir father or no mother a moneth long after that she cometh, and marry her, and whither she will, and not to sell her, nor to disshonoured her.

If a man haue two wyues, one chari-the inheritance was his children, then can he not make the same of y beloved full borne be fore the first borne same of the beloved, but he shall knowe the same of the beloved for y first borne, so that he geue him the ble of all that is at hande: for the same is y begynnyng of his strength, & the first born

¶ If any man haue a stubborne and disbe-lievinge sonne, which hateth not his mothe the voyce of his father, and mother, and when they teach him moztore, wyl not folow him, then shall his father and mother cate him, and brynge him to y Elders of the cite, and to the gaue of the same place, and saye unto the Elders of the cite: This our sonne is stubborne and disobedient, and hurteth not unto our voyce, and is a rynt and a diant arte. Then shal all the men of y same cite stone him to deathe: and thus shal the put awaye the evell fro the, that all y rael maye heare and feare.

If a man haue commytted a synne y is worthy of deathe, and is put to deathe, so that he is hanged on tre, then shal not his bodye mayme all nyght on tre, but shen shal burye him the same daye: For curbid is he of de-thee he hangeth: that thou desire not thy linde, which the LORD thy God geueth thee in heritance.

The XXII. Chapter.

When thou goest out to fight agaynst thine enemies, kepe the from all wickednesse. If there be any man amonge you which is uncleane, so that any thinge is denounced to him by nighthe, the same shall goe out of ⁊ house: wher he hath bashed himselfe with water before even: and when the Sonne is gone downe, he shall come in to the house agayne.

And withoute the house thou shalt have place to resort vnto for necessity, ⁊ then shalt have a shewell vnder the gyble: and when thou art wile ⁊ become wretched, thou shalt vygge thy way: and when thou hast done thine easment, thou shalt come that which is separated from the. For the LORDE thy God walketh in thine house, to deliuer the, and to geat thine enemies before the. Therefore shall thy house be holy, that he be no uncleane thinge in the, and so name himselfe from the.

The XXIII. Chapter.

When a man taketh a wife, another, which he hath, the father shall not be in his eyes because of any sinne, the shall he wete a byrd of Donoement, and geat her in his house, and sende her out of his house. If when she is gone out of his house, she go, and be another mans wife, and the same sonne be made her ally, wete a byrd of Donoement, and geat her in his house and sende her out of his house. If the same sonne be made her ally, wete a byrd of Donoement, and geat her in his house and sende her out of his house. If the same sonne be made her ally, wete a byrd of Donoement, and geat her in his house and sende her out of his house.

When a man hath newly taken a wife, he shall not go a warre, neither shall he be charged withall. He shall be free in his house one yeare longe, that he maye burye his wife which he hath taken.

Thou shalt not take ⁊ nighthe, and permitte any synne to pledge, for he hath ⁊ his synne to pledge.

If any man be founde that stealeth any of his brethren, from amonge the childen of Israel, and sendeth him to pledge, or selleth him, so that the shall dye, that thou shalt put away the enill from the.

If thou lendest ⁊ brother any deet, thou shalt not go in to his house, and take a pledge, but shalt stand withoute: and he, to whom thou lendest, shall bringe out his pledge to thee. But if it be a poor body, thou shalt not laye downe to sleep, with his pledge, for that deliuer him his pledge againe, when the Sonne goeth downe, that he maye sleepe in his owne rayment, and blesse the, so shall the same be reckned vnto the for righte cause before the LORD thy God.

Then shalt thou not Michdrame the hye of y meye and poore amonge thy brethren, as stranger that is in thy londe, or in which thy gate, but shalt geue him his hye: the same boye, that the Sonne geue not downe in the son, for so much as he is in meye, and his life susteyned therewith: that he coll not vpon the LORD thy God, and it be synne vnto the.

The father shall not vnto the father the childre, nor the child for the father, but eery one shall dye for his owne synne.

Thou shalt not reuise the rightes of the stranger and of the fatherlesse. And y meye: rayment shalt thou not take to pledge: for thou shalt remember, that thou wast a stranger in Egipte, and how that y LORD thy God deliuered the from thence, therfore commaunde y the to do this.

When a poor houlde caped downe thine haruest in the fild, and hast forgotten a sheaf in the fild, thou shalt not turne agayne to fetch it, but it shall be for the stranger. y fatherlesse and the widow, shall the LORD thy God maye blesse the in all thy doings of thy hande.

When thou hast plucked thine Olive tree, thou shalt not plucke them up cleane afterwarde: that be for the stranger, the fatherlesse and the widow. When thou hast gathered thy wyngarde, thou shalt not gather it up cleane afterwarde: that be for the stranger, the fatherlesse and the widow. And thou shalt remember, that thou wast a seruante in the londe of Egipte: therfore commaunde y the to do this.

The XXV. Chapter.

When there is a stryfe betwene men, they shall be brought before y lorde and iudges: and the iudges shall iustifye the righte one, and condemne the wrong. And yf thy wrongfully haue destruced thyne, the iudges shall commaunde to take him downe, and they shall beate him before him, as theyng to the measure and nombre of his trespass. When they haue geue him forty stripes, they shall beate him anymore, lest yf there be mo stripes geuen him: he be beaten comode, and thy brother be horrible before thine eyes.

Then shalt thou mofell the mouth of the oppressor: and treade out the corne.

The xxv. Chap. Ho. lxxxv.

When brethren dwell together, and one of them dye without children, then shall one of his wife of the brethren take a strawe of man with out, but his synne shall go in vnto her, and take her to wyfe: and the first sonne that she beareth, shall be set up after the name of his brother which is dead, that his name be not put out of Israel.

But yf the man wyl not take his wyfe, then man shall his kinsman go vnto ruber the gate to the Elders, and saye: My wyfe maner saith he of set up a name vnto his brother in Israel, and wyl not take me. Then shall the Elders of the cite coll him, and commaunde him. If he stande then and saye: y wyl not take her, then shall his kinsman come and steppe forth vnto him before the Elders, and leaue a shewe for his fee, and spee in his face, and shall answer, and saye: Thus shall it be done vnto my man, that wyl not haue his brother's house. And his name shall be called in Israel, the mans shod house.

Two men stryue together, and the wyfe of one of them to, to deliuer his husbande from the hande of his brother synner him, & put forth his hande, and take him by the seueres, then shalt thou reue of his hande, and thine eye shall not pitie her.

Thou shalt not haue in y bagge two measures of weightes, a greate and a small. Neither shalt thou haue in thine house buyng measures, a greate and a small. Thou shalt haue a perforce and iust measure, and a perforce and iust weight, that thy life maye be longe in the londe, which the LORD y God shall geue the. For moe sauer doch doch: all they that do such are abhominacion vnto the LORD thy God. Remember what the Amalechites did vnto the by the waye, when ye were departed out of Egipte, how they bukked with the by the waye, and smote thy hymn, even all: that were sible, which came after the which thou wast weary and faint, and they feared not God. Let us haue the LORD thy God byng with the, to tell the all thine enemies counte aboute in the londe which the LORD thy God geue the for inheritance to possesse, then shalt thou put out the remembrance of the Amalechites from vnder heauen. the LORD thy God: The Egyptians wolde hain to Egypte, and was a stranger there with a small folk, and became there a nation grealayed a hard bondage vpon vs. Then cried we vnto I LORD E, the God asoure fathers.

And the LORD E herde our cryenge, and lo-great terrible mighte thow wroughte and wo-thy God hath geuen thee, and thynne house: thou and the Lewite, and the stranger that is with thee.

3 When thou hast broughte together all thy frutes of thine increase in the thirde yeare, which is a year of tithes, thou shalt geue it vnto the Lewite, to the stranger, to the sa-shalt saye before the LORD E thy God: I ha-stranger, the fatherlesse, and the wedow, according to all thy commandment which thou hast commaunded me. I haue not trangressed thy commandmentes, nor forgot-cessite. I haue not geue thereof vnto the dede, I haue bene obedient vnto the voyce of the LORD E my God, and haue done all as he hath commaunded me. Lete become from u, mayest thou a prayse vnto the LORD E thy God, that he shal be thy God, and I thou woldest make in all his wayes, and kepe his ordinances, his commandmentes, and his lawes, and do them vnto his voyce. And the LORD E promysed the vnto the same daye, that thou shouldest be his amonge people, like as he hath saye vnto the LORD E thy God that he shal be thy God, and I thou woldest make the thy in prayse name and hon-

I thou mayest come in to the sonde, which the LORD E thy God shall geue thee, a sonde that floweth with mylke and hony, as I LORD E thy God of thy fathers hath promysed the.

6 Now when ye go ouer Jordan, ye shall set up these stones, wherof I commaunde you this daye: vpon mount Gual, and playster them with playster: and there shalt thou write vnto the LORD E thy God an act of stone, wherupon thou shalt liue no more.
Of whiche stones shalt thou builde chaas of Dofan, came out agaynst vs unto bat-tall, and we fought them, and toke their lon-de, and gaue it to inheritance vnto 3. Au-berites and Gadites, and to the halfe try-be of the Manafſſes. And now therefore the widows of this couenaunt, and do ther-after, that ye maye haue understandinge in all that ye do.

In ſonde this daye all befor the LORDE your God, the chiefe rulers of your trybes, your Elders, your officers, every man in Iſrael, your children, your wyues. 3. ſtraun-gers that are in thine haſt, ſrom the bower of 3. wodde vnto 3. diuerſe of 3. water: that thou ſhouldeſt enter in to the couenaunt of the LORDE thy God, and in to the ooth which the LORDE thy God maketh with the this daye, that he mighte ſet the vp this daye to be a people vnto himſelf, and chaſe he mighte be thy God, as he hath ſayde vnto the, and as he ſware vnto 3. fathers, Abiham, Iſaac and Jacob.

For I make no thes couenaunt and this ooth with you onely, but both with you 3.
are here this daye, and ſtande with vs befor the LORDE our God, and alſo with them that are not here with vs this daye. For ye knowe how we haue dwelt in the ſonde of Egipte, and how we came thither in the wy-des of the ſeyther, whom ye paſſed by, and ſawetheir abhominacion and theire Idols, woodd and ſtone, ſyluer and golde, which we re with them: Leſt there be amonge you man or woman, or an houſhold, or a trybe, which cometh awaye him here this daye from the LORDE our God, to go and to ſerue 3. god-des of theſe nacion: and leſt there be amonge ye you ſerue ſome, that beareth gall & worme wedd: ſo that though he heare the wode of of this curſe, he bleſſe him ſiſte yet in his heart, and ſaye: Twiſh, it ſhal not be ſo well.
I will make a ſer the ſeruyage of myne aunt here, that the deunt maye perſe with the trybe.

Then ſhal not the LORDE be meciſſull vnto him, but his wrath and yelouſy ſhal ſmote ouer ſuch a man, and all the curſes that are wyrt in this boke, ſhal lighte vpon him: and the LORDE ſhal put out his name ſrom vnder heauen, and ſhal ſpit a-er him vnto euell oue of all the trybes of Iſ-rael, no thinge vnto alle the curſes of the couenaunt, that is wyrt in the boke of this lawe.

And the poſt riles of your children which ſhal riſe up after you, and the ſtrangers that come out of ſarre countres, ſhall ſee when they ſee the plagen of this lawe, and the diſtaſes wherewith the LORDE hath ſmyten it: that he hath bene vp all this lawe with hymſelfe and ſale, ſo 3. it can not be ſonne, nor is freefull, neether geueth there any groſſe eberin. Like as the dems, Gomer, Abarna and Zeborn are curſed, which the LORDE curſed them in his wrath and anger.

Then ſhal all nations ſaye: Wherfor hath the LORDE done thus vnto this lawe. be: Wher greates woorthfull diſpleaſure is this: Then ſhal he ſaye: It is becauſe they haue forſaken the couenaunt of 3. LOR-DE God of their fathers: which he made with them whome he broughte them out of the ſonde of Egipte: and they were, and ſerued other goddes, and worſhipped the, and ſuch goddes as they knewe not, and whom he had not deuyed vnto them. Therefore the wrath of the LORDE was vnto them this lawe, to bringe vpon it all the curſes that are wyrt in this boke. And the LOR-DE chaſt them out of their lawe to great wrath, indignacion & diſpleaſure: & hath caſt them into another lawe, as it is come to paſſe this daye.

Theſe are the ſerues of the LORDE: 3. re God, which we o pented vnto vs and our children for ever, 3. we ſhould do all the wes of this lawe.

The XXX. Chapter.

Now when all this cometh vpon 3.
the, wher he is he the bleſſing or 3. curſe which I haue layed before the, and how goſt in to thine heart, bringe and ge the ſerchin, whether the LORDE thy God hath chaſt the, and thou turneſt vnto the LORDE 3. God, ſo that thou beſt vnto his voyce, then and thy children with all 3. hat and with all thy ſoule, in alle that I commaunde the this daye, then ſhal the LORDE thy God turne thy captiue, and haue compaſſion vpon the, and ſhal ge the thy congregacion agayne ſrom amonge all the nations, whiche the LORDE thy God hath ſcattered the.

And though thou weſt theſe ſerues the vnto theſe part of the heauen, yet ſhal the LORDE thy God gather the ſrom there, and ſrom thence ſhal he ſerch the, and ſhal bringe the into the ſonde, which thy fathers haue poſſeſſed, and thou ſhale enioye it, and he ſhal do the good, and multiplye the ſerues thy fathers.

The v. booke of Adosa. The xxxi. Chap. Ho. lxxxviii.

And the LORD Ehy God shall circum-cise thee here, and the heart of thy side, that thou mayest love the LORD Ehy God with all thy heart and with all y soule, that thou mayest love. But all these curses shall the LORD Ehy God laye upon thine enemyes, and upon them that hate the and persecute the. But thou shalt turne, and hearken unto the voyce of the LORD Ehy God, to do all his commandementes, which I commaunde the this daye. And the LORD Ehy God shall make the pience as in all the wordes of these haides, in the frute of thy body, in the frute of thy castell, in the frute of thy lande to good.

For the LORD Ehy shall come, to reioy-se over the to good, so he reioysed over thy father, so that thou hearken unto the voyce of the LORD Ehy God (to kepe his com-mandementes and ordinaunces, which are written in the booke of this lawe) and turne unto the LORD Ehy God with all thy heart and with all thy soule.

For the commandement which I commaunde y this daye, is also to wonderfull for the, ner to faile, ner yet in heauen, that thou wouldest saye: Who wil go up see us in to heauen, and bringe it unto vs, that we maye heare it, and doe it. Whether it is beyonde the for, that thou also desire to see: Who wyl go over the see for vs, and send it vs, that we maye heare it, and doe it. For the word is: o we rmye unto the, tal in thy mouth and in thy heart, that thou do it.

Beholde, I haue layed before you this daye, life and good, death and euill. For I commaunde the this daye, to love the LORD Ehy God, and to walk in his wayes, and to kepe his commandementes, ordinaunces, and lawes, that thou mayest lyue and multiplye, and that the LORD Ehy God maye blesse the in the lande, whither thou goest to possesse it.

But yf thou turne awaye thine heart, so that thou wilt not heare, but fall awaye, as wouldest thou goddes and to serue them, I certifie you this daye, that ye shal perishe, and not lyue longe in the lande, whither thou goest ouer Iordan to possesse it.

To the heauen and earth this daye to recorde ouer you: I haue layed before you life and death, blessinge and cursinge, that thou mayest chuse life, and that thou and thy side mayest lyue, yf ye maye love the LORD Ehy God, and hearken unto his voyce, and cleue unto him: For he is thy life and thy lyge age: that thou mayest dwell in the lande, which the LORD Ehy sware unto thy fathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to geue them.

The XXXI. Chapter.

AND MOSES came, and spake these wor-des to all Iſrael, and saide vnto them: I am this daye a hundred and twen-tye yeres olde, I can no more go out and into the LORD also hath sayde vnto me: Thou shalt not go out this Iordan. The LORD Ehy God himselfe shall go before the e-uer Iordan: and he himselfe shal destroye these nationes before the, that thou mayest conquere them: and Iesus he shall go out before the. As the LORD hath sayde, And the LORD shal do vnto them, as he dyd vnto Sihon and Og the tygones of the Amoritee and vnto their hoes, which he destroyed.

Now when the LORD shal deliuer the before you, ye shal do vnto them accordinge vnto all the commandementes which I haue commaunded you. Be manly and feare not, and be not affrayed of them. For the LORD Ehy God himselfe shal go with the, and shal see thy face, and shall saie the.
And Moses called Iosua, and sayde vnto him before all Iſrael: Be stronge and bolde, for thou shalt bringe this people in to the lande, which the LORD Ehy sware vnto their fathers to geue them, and thou shalt parte it amonge them by lot. Now the LORD himselfe that goeth before you, euen he shal be with the, and shal see thy face, and shall saie the: Feare not, and be not affrayed.

And Moses vnto this lawe, and deli-uered it vnto the prestes the children of Le-ui, which bare the Ark of the covenante of the LORD Ehy: and vnto all the elders of Iſrael.

And he commaunded them, and sayde: At the ende of seven yeres, in the ende of the six yeres, in the feast of Tabernacles when all Iſrael come to appeare before the LORD Ehy God, in the place that he shall chose, thou shalt cause this lawe to be reade vnto before all Iſrael in their eares, namely, before the congregation of the people, boch of men, women, children, and thy straungers which are within thy gates: that they maye heare and leme to feare the LORD Ehy God, and be diligente to do all the wordes of this lawe: and that their children also which knowe nothinge, maye heare and lame to feare the LORDE y^e God, all y^eour lyue dayes: which ye lyue in the lande, whither ye go ouer Iordane to possesse it.

D And the LORDE sayde vnto Moyses: Beholde, thy tyme is come that thou must die, call Josua, and stande in the Tabernacle of witness, that I maye geue him a charge. Moyses went with Josua, and stode in the Tabernacle of witness. And the LORDE appeared in the Tabernacle in a cloudy pylle: and the same cloudy pylle stode in the doore of the Tabernacle.

With the LORDE sayde vnto Moyses: Beholde, thou shalt sleepe with y^e fathers, and this people will rylle vp, and go a whorng after strange goddes of the lande in to the which they come, - and will forsake me, and breake the covenante which I haue made wth them. And then shall my reache wth thee agaynst them, at the same tyme, & I shall forsake the, and hyde my face fro them, that they maye be consumed. And so what moche aduersitee & trouble cometh vpon the, they shall saye: Is not all this enell come vpon me, because God is not with me? But I shall hyde my face at the same tyme because of all the euill that they haue done, in that they haue turned vnto oether goddes.

Wrote now this s^ong this s^ong, & teachte the children of Israel, and put it in their mouth, that this s^ong maye be a witness vnto me amonge the children of Israel. For I wil brynge them in to the lande which I sware vnto thy fathers, that I would geue it vnto thee, and thou shalt see, that I shall teene vnto oether goddes, and serue them, and blasphememe, and breake my covenante.

And so when moche myschefe and tribulation is come vpon them, this s^ong shall answer before them for a witness. It shall not be forgotten out of the mouth of their side: for I haue the ymaginacion, that they go abence euery daye, before I brynge them in to the lande, which I sware vnto them.

So Moyses wrote this s^ong at the same tyme, and taughte it the children of Israel. And the LORDE gaue Iusua the s^ome of this charge, and sayde: Beholde, thou shalt brynge the children of Israel in to the lande, which I sware vnto them, and I wil be with the.

When Moyses had sayen out all the wordes of this booke in a booke, he commaunded the Leuites (which bare the Ark of the LORDES commaundment) and sayde: Let the booke of this booke, and laye it by the side of the Ark of the covenante: & the LORDE your God, that is maye be there a witness agaynst the: for I knowe thy stubbornnes, and thy hardnes. Beholde, it is I, Jamyng alwaye wth you this daye, yet haue bene wth you obedient vnto the LORD: & them moche more after my death.

When a com vnto me all the Elders of youre crybes, and youre officers. & I will speake these wordes in their eares, - and take heauen and earth to recorde agaynst them, for I am sure that after my death ye shall mooue youre selues, and turne agayn one of the waye, which I haue commaunded you: and so shall myschaunce happen vnto you after, because ye haue done euill in the sight of the LORD: in prouokinge him thow the wordes of youre haades.

So Moyses spake these wordes at this s^ong: euery one of the Elders, in the eares of all the congregacion of Israel.

The XXXII. Chap.

Ethen (O ye heares) I will speake, and let the earth heare the wordes of my mouth.

I will booyne the toppe as breche here, and my speech shall flowe as doche the stream.

Euen as the raine vpon the grasse, and as the dew vpon the herbe.

For I wil call vpon the name of the LORD, & geue ye the glory vnto oure God.

Perfect are the wordes of the Saint, for all his wayes are righteous.

God is true, and no medecine is there in him, righte as a aduise is he.

The forwarde and encheyned generation hath matted them selues to him with, and set not his children, because of their desympte.

Thenkest thou the LORD & God so, thou foolish and vnwysse people?

Is not he thy father and thy LORD? hath hee not made the, and prepared the?

Remembre the dayes that are past, and see the yeres of the generacions after thy me.

Wre thy father, he shall shewe the thyne Elders, & they shall telle the.

When the most wysest benyded y^e clowns and scarded the children of men.

Then set ha the borders of the nation, & a cordinge to the nombre of the children of Israel.

For the LORDES parte is his folk.

The v. booke of Adosa. The xxxij. Chap. Ho. lxxxij.

Jacob is the mercuri of his enheritaunce, he founde him in the wilderness, even in the dry desert where he coucheth.

he led him a booke, and gaue him understanding: he kept him as the apple of his eye.

As an eagle stretch up his nest, and sto-reth over his yonge: Euen so stretcheth he over his fathers, and toke him: and bare him on his wings.

The LORD Ench was his gyde, and there was no strange God with him.

he caried him over y heighe of the earth, and led him with the incrust of the silde.

he caried him such honoure of the coe-te, and oyle out of the hard stone.

Breast of the byne, and myke of the she-pe, with the fat of the lambes, and tammes of the sonnes of Masan, and begotten with the fat of the bymyn, and wheate: And gaue him drynte of the very blood of grapes.

And when he was fat and had yonghe, he waxed wanton.

he was fat, and chide, and smote, and hath leuen God no, that made him, and despised the rock of his saluacion.

he hath provoked him to indignacion, thou art strange goddes, and there is abhominacion hath he angered him.

They offered vnto selde deuils, and not unto char God.

Unto goddes whom they knewe not, and was new goddes, y came newly up, whom their fathers honoured not.

The rocke hath begat y, hast thou cyp-siond host forgotten God that made the.

And when the LORD sawe it, he was moued into wrath over his sonnes, and his deuils.

And he sayde: I will hyde my face from them, I will se what their ende shal be: for in a forward generation, they are childe in whom is no faith.

They haue provoked me in it that is not God: in their vanities haue they angered me.

And I gaue me to provoke them, by the sathanes are no people: by a foolish nation and I anger them.

I sette fire in Synbold in my anoth, and shal burne vnto y: not her most hell, and shal consume the londe with the increase thereof, and set the foundacions of y mountaynes in fire.

I will heape my chasten vpo them, I will spede all myne accours at them.

They shal pyne an aye thowen hunger, and be consumed of the sturcs, and of byres sicknesses.

I will finde amonge them y ecce of bas-ses, and furious serpentes.

With me shall the sword robbe them, and fear in the chambers, both the yonge man and yonge woman, the self yonge children of the grey bearded man.

I will saye: Where are they? I shall make their remembrance to cease from among men.

As the wrath of the enemies were not gathered, lest their enemies shoulde be proude, I might saye: Where haue they, and the LORD hath not done all this.

For it is a people, wherein is no counsell, and there is no understanding in them.

What they were wyse y understood them, that they woulde cōfite what shoulde happē vnto them hereafter.

How cometh it, y one shall chace a thou-saunde of them, and y cove shal put ten thou-saunde to flight.

Is it not so, when because their rocke hath sold them, and because the LORD hath geuent them over?

For euer rocke is not as their rocke, of all this are once enemies and geue them silens.

Their wyne is of the wyne of Godden, and as the felde of Gomora: their grapes are the grapes of gall, they haue byres dust there.

Their wyne is the poison of Diagona, and the furious gall of Adosa.

Is not this bid with me, and scaled up in my treasure?

Deuillance is myne, and I will remember in due season. Their face shall styde, for the wyne of their destruction is at hande, and the thinge that is to come vpon them, maketh haile.

For the LORD shall iudge his people, and shal haue compassion on his seruantes.
For he shal confute that their power is a noise, and that it is gone with them, which were shut up and remayned over.

And he shal saye: Where are their god-des, their rocke when they trusted?

Of whose sacrifices they are y fat, and blande the wyne of their deuyllousmyghe: As them self up and helpe you, and be your protection.

Se now that I am, and what there is none as ther God but I.

I can bylland make as you: what I haue

The v. booke of Iudaea.

Job 18:10 I forgetten, that can I heale: and there is no man able to deliver out of my hande.

For I will liue vpon my hande so heauen, & will saye: I lyue yet.

And when I vnderstande my sword, and my hande catcheth of iudgement, then will I avenge me on myne enemies, and reward them after their doings.

I will make myne arrows broken with clouds, and my sword shall eat flesh and the blood of the slayne, and eate the captyuitie, and in that the enemies haue shall be discovered.

And ye ye hearken with his people: for he will avenge the blood of his seruantes, and will avenge him on his enemies, and will be mercifull vnto the londe of his people.

And Iudaea came and spake all the wordes of this song in the eares of the people, he said: Iesus this sonne of Man. Now when Iudaea had made an ende of speakinge all these wordes vnto all Israel, he sayde vnto this: Take heed to all the wordes, which I testifie vnto you this daye, that ye commaunde your children, to observe and do all the wordes of this lawe. For it is no aune waite vnto you, but it is ye lif: & this waite shall prolonge your life in y^e londe, whether ye go out to warre, or to conquer it.

And the LORD spake vnto Iudaea y^e same daie, & sayde: Get the vnto this mount Zion, vpon mount Iherusalem, which I saye in y^e lawe of the wordes: ever agaynst Ierusalem, & beholde the londe of Canaan, which I shall geue vnto the children of Israel in possession. And by then vpon the mount, when they are come ap, and be gathered vnto thy people, like as Aaron thy brother dyed vpon mount Sinai, and was gathered vnto his people. Because ye receyved agaynst me a charge the children of Israel by the waie of Ierusalem: at Cedar in the wilderness of Sin, and sanctified me not amonge the children of Israel. For thou shalt see the londe oer agaynst the which I geue vnto y^e children of Israel but thou shalt not come into it.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

And in the blessinge, wherewith the LORD blessed the man of God Iudaea y^e children of Israel before his death, and said: The LORD came from Sinai, and rose vnto the mount Sion. Iudaea commaunded wth the lawe, which is the enheritaunce of the congregation of Jacob. And he was in the midst of the synagoge, & helde y^e rulers as y^e people together, with the crye of Iudas. Let Iudas saye, and let him be helpeful to his people.

Then in the blessinge of Iudas, he sayde: LORD I beseech the voyce of Iudas, and bringe him vnto his people: Let his blood be witness: p^{ro}phete him, and let him be helpeful to his enemies.

And vnto Levi he sayde: Thy perswasion and y^e lighte be a counsaile vnto the man of thy mercy, which thou hast compassed as Iudas, when ye shewe by the waie of Ierusalem. He that sayeth vnto his father and to his mother: I se him not: and to his brother, I knowe him not: and to his sonne, I am not of him: he shall be observed thy mother, and keepe y^e commaundmentes which I shall teach Iudas thy iudgements, and I shall thy lawe: they shall be in the house of thy altar, & be offerings vpon thine altar. LORD, bless thou his power: & accept the wordes of his lawe: I praye the lawe of them y^e synners agaynst him, & of them that hate him, that they shal not vnto them helpe.

And to Ben Iamin he sayde: The blessinge of the LORD shall dwell in hope on him: all the daye long: shall he waite vpon him, and shall dwell betwixt his shoulders.

And to Joseph he sayde: In the blessinge of the LORD, that is a noble fruite of hisauen, of the dew, and of the dewe that lyeth vnto: There are noble frutes of the increase of the Sonne, and noble frutes frutes of y^e monethen: And of y^e toppe of the mountaynes of olde, and of the hills alwaies, and of the noble frutes of y^e earth, and of y^e fulnesse of the. And vnto Zabulon he sayde: Aioyos y^e balon of thy ewegynge: but aioyos the Iudas of thy sences. They shall call people unto þe hill, and there ſhal they offre þe offerings of righteouſnes. For they ſhal ſee the abundance of the ſea, and the trea-ſure hye in the ſonde.

And to Gad he ſayde: Bleſſynge haue Gad, which maketh conuene the bridle as a lyon, and ſpyleth the arme and the coppe of the ſabat. And he ſaw his begynnyng, that þe heape of the readders laye hyde he re, and came with the rulers of the people, and created the righteouſneſſe of the LORD, and his iudgment on Iſrael.

And to Dan he ſayde: Dan a yonge lyon, he ſhal ſtorme from Baſan.

And to Eſeph he ſayde: Eſeph ſhal haue abundance of pleaſure, & ſhalbe full of the bliſſynge of the LORD: his poſſeſſion ſhalbe toward the weſt and ſouth. And to Aſer he ſayde: Aſer be bleſſed wth ſonnes, accepted be he with his brethren, and byppe his ſees in ayle. Zyon and buſſe be on thy ſhooes. Thine age be as thy youth.

There is no God as the God of the iſrl.
He that ſtretcheth upon heauen, be thy helpe.
And his glory is in the cloudes, that is the blyſſynge of God from the begynnyng, and under the armes of the worlde. And he ſhal driue out thine enemy before the, and ſaye: Be deſtroyed. And Iſrael ſhall dwell ſafe alone. The eye of Jacob ſhalbe upon þe ſonde where come and waite, heauen alſo ſhal

The XXXIII. Chapter.

And Moſes came from the ſelbe of þe Moabites vp vnto mount Aſibo, vpo þe toppe of mount Balgo ouer agaynſt Jericho. And the LORD ſhewed him all the lande of Galaad vnto Dan, and all Eſeph li, and the ſonde of Eſeph and Manafſe, and all the ſonde of Iuda, vnto þe ſtreame of the playne of Jericho the cite of the palme trees even vnto Zor. And the LORD ſayde vnto him: This is the lande that I ſware vnto Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, and ſayde: I will gene it vnto thy ſibe. Thou haſt ſene it with thine eyes, but thou ſhalt not go ouer thither.

So Moſes ſeruaunt of the LORD bid there in the lande of the Moabites, a cordo-ge vnto the weſte of þe LORD. And he entered him in a valley, in the ſonde of the Moabites ouer agaynſt the heape of Peon. And no man enemye of his graue vnto this daye.
And Moſes was an hundred and threetye yeare olde when he dyed: his eyes were not dimmed, and his chaſes were not ſolien. And the children of Iſrael wept for Moſes in þe felde of the Moabites thretye daies, and the dayes of the wepyng and mourninge for Moſes were fulfilled.

And Joſua the ſonne of Nun was filled with þe ſperez of wyſdome: for Moſes had layed his hande vpon him, and the children of Iſrael pertened vnto him, and vnto as the LORD commaunded Moſes. And there was ſene no prophete more in Iſrael, ſince vnto Moſes, whom the LORD enemye ſaw to ſace in all coteas and wonders (which the LORD ſent him to do in þe lande of Egipt, vnto Pharaoh, and to all his ſeruantes,

The first Chapter.

After the death of Moses the seruante of the LORDE, spake the LORDE vnto Iosua
& some of Manasses saym: My seruante Moses is dead, up now, and geaue

this Iordane, & all this people in to the lande that I haue giuen the children of Israel. All the places that the soles of your feet shal in treade vpon, haue I giuen vnto you, as I sayde vnto Moses: from the wyldernes, and this Libanus vnto the greene water of Euphrates: all the lande of the Ch-aldees vnto the greene see toward the west, shal be your border. There shall no man be able to withstande y all thy life longe. And like as I was with Moses, so wil I be with the also. I wil not faile the neither forsake the. Be stronge and bolde: for vnto this people shalte thou be a father, & geue it them.

3. The firste that sawe and very bolde, that then mayest feare and be sure thyng ac-cordinge to the lawe, that Moses my seruante commanded the. Take me a syde from it, neither to the righte hande nor to the lefte, y thou mayest deale wysly whither so euer the goest. And let not the boke of this lawe departe out of thy mouth, but exercethy selfe therein daie and nyght, that thou mayest feare and be sure thyng accordinge to it that is wyse: I therin: Then shalte thou prosper in thy wayes, and deale wysly. So, I haue commanded the to be stronge and bolde. Feare not, and be not a frayde: for the LORDE thy God is with y, whiche soeuer thou goest.

Then commanded Iosua the officers of the people, and sayde: Gather now the heedles, & charge y people, and saye: Prepare you vnto this daye, for ouer this daye shal ye go ouer this Iordane, that ye maye come in and take possession of the lande, which the LORDE your God shal geue you.

And so the Rubenes, Gadites, and the the halfs of Manasse, sayde Iosua Thyng vpon the worde, that Moses the seruante of y LORDE spake vnto you, and sayde: The LORDE y God hath broughte you to this, and geue you this lande. Let your wyues and children and cattell remaine in y lande, that Moses gaue you on this syde Iordane: But ye your selves (as mi-nyas be sayenge nien) shal go forth before your brethren in battell, and helpe them, till the LORDE haue broughte your brethren to rest also, as well as ye: that they al maye take possession of the lande, which the LORDE y God shal geue them: Then shal ye turne agayne into the lande of your possession, that ye maye enioye it, which Moses the seruante of the LORDE hath giuen you on this syde Iordane toward y East. And they answered Iosua and sayde:
All that thou hast commanded vs, wil we do: and whiche so euer thou sendest vs, we wil go thither. Like as we haue obeyed Moses, so wil we be obedient also vnto the:
Only that the LORDE thy God be with y like as he was with Moses. Wha so euer thou shalt saye, we wil do, and whiche so euer
thou shalt saye, we wil do, and whiche so euer
thou shalt saye, we wil do, and whiche so euer thou shalt saye, we wil do.

The .ij. Chapter.

3. Iosua the sonne of Nūn sent out two spyers secretly from Gezim, and sayde vnto them: Go ye now, & take upon the lande and Jericho. They wente forth, and came in to y house of an harlot, called Rahab, and laye there. Then was it told the kynge of Jericho: So, there are men come in this nyght from the childre of Israel, to spy the lande. Then sent the kynge of Jericho vnto Rahab, saying: Delmyne the men forth that are come vnto the in to thy house, for they are come to spy out the whole lande. And so for the two men, the woman had hyde them, and sayde: There came men in vnto me in nyght, but I knowe not whence they were. And as the shewynges be of the mornynge it was darke, they wente out. So I can not tell whither they be going: so euer soone as I see them, I wil shew the. But she had caught them to clym me up vnto the house toppe, and had them under the flak of flaxe, that she had prepared her vnto the toppe of the house, from bene the men followed after them in y mornynge.

towarde Iordane, then unto the ferye: and whan they that folowed upon them were gone forth, the gate was shut.

B And as enter the men layed them downe to slepe, she wente up to them unto the house to slepe, and sayde unto the. I knowe that the LORD shal deliuer you the lande, for the state of you is fallen upon vs, and all the inhabitants of the lande are discoraged at youre commynge. For we haue herde, how the LORD dryed up the water in the reed see before you, whā ye departed out of Egipt: and what ye byd vnto the two kynges of the Amoritcs, Sihon and Og beyonde Iordane, how ye roted them out, and destroyed them. And since we haue therof, are here hath failed vs, neither is there a good stomache more in any man, by the reason of youre commynge. For the LORD yd God is both the God aboue in heauē and beneath upon earth.

E Swaere now then vnto me. then by the LORD (for so much as I haue deale mercifully with you) that ye wyl also swaere me vpon my fathers heuē: and geue me a true token, that ye wyl let my father lyue, and my mother, my brethren, and my sisters, and all that they haue, and deliuer oure soules from death. The men sayde vnto her: If we shew no mercy and faithfulness vpon the, whan the LORD geueth vs the lande, then let oure soules bye for ye, as farre as thou betrayest nor oure deuyce. Then let she them downe thowen the wyndowe by a coat dy: for his house was in the wall of the cite, and in the wall was her dwellynge. And she sayde vnto them: Go youre waye vp to the mountaynes, lest they mete you that sellowen vpon you: and hyde youre selowes there this dayes, tyll they be come againe: I folowme as fer youmnd then geue you yente waye.

D Doe the men sayde vnto her: As for this oath that thou hast taken of vs, we wyl be witharged of it whan we come in to y lande, excepte thou entrest in the wyndowe y lyne of this rosecoloured rope (y thou hast lette us downe with all y gatherest vnto y in to the house, thy father, thy mother, y brethren, & all thy fathers house. And loke who so ever geeth oute the doore of thy house, his bloude be layd vpon his owne head, and we guilelesse. But of all those y are in y house, yf a hande be layd vpon the, their bloude shalbe vnto y heade. And yf thou betrayest any of this deuyce of oore, thi wil we be discharged of the oath y then hast take of vs. She sayde: As we be so as ye say, and she let the go. And they wente their waye, but she kepte the rose coloured lyne in the wyndowe.

They wente on their waye, and came in the mountaynes, and remained there thre dayes, tyll they that folowed vpon them were come a gaynes: for they soughte y hem the reuerye strete, & yet they founde them not. So the two men turned agayne, and departed from the mountaynes, and passed ouer Iordane: and came to Iosua the suter of Elun, and tolde him every thinge, as they had founde it, & they sayde vnto Iosua: The LORD hath geue vs all the lande in oure handes, and all the y that dwell in the lande be as they are stayed of vs.

The iij. Chapter.

And Iosua rose up early, and they departed from Seuen, & came vnto Iordane, he and all the children of Israell, and remained there all night, as they had cōfessed to ouer. But after the dayes wente the offerer a thowen y haue, and commanded the people, and sayde: Whan ye se the Arke of y cōuenenace of the LORD your God, and the prestes from amonge the Lewites becomge it, departe ye then out of youre place, and folowme a fere: for that there be come betwene you and it y two thowen the cabins, & that ye come not nye it: y ye maye knowe wher maye ye shulde go: for y wote more than maye y a fere.

And Iosua sayde vnto the people: I leave youre selowes, for com ouer shal y LORD: De betwene wonderous chynge to passe and geue you. And vnto the prestes he sayde: Burye ye the Arke of y cōuenenace, and go before the people. Then bare they the Arke, and wente before the people. And the LORD sayde vnto Iosua: This daye wyl I begynne to make the greates in the sighte of all Israell, that they maye knowe, how that I am I I was with I Ioseph, so am I with the chylde. And commande the y the prestes that be in the Arke, and saye: Whan ye come before in the river of Iordane, stande still.

The vii. Chap.

And he became like water. And so Iosua he rente his clothes, and fell upon his face vnto the earth before the Altar of the LORD, and all the evening, with the Elders of Irael, and cast dust vpon their heades.

And Iosua saide: Oh LORD LORD, wherefore hast thou broughte this people out of Iordan, to deliuer us into the handes of the Amorites to destroye vs? What we had euen becom Iordan, as we begine. Oh my LORD, what shal I saye, whyle Irael smecth his backe vpon his enemies? What the Canaanites heare of this, they shal compass vs round about, yet and yet out eare nomes from of the earth. What wylt thou do thou vnto thy greace name?

Then sayde the LORD vnto Iosua: Stande vp, why lyest thou so vpon thy face? I reul hath offinde, and traiggesed ouer my couenant, which I commaunded the. They haue taken al of the thinge that was comma, and haue stolen, and dyssembled, and layd it amonge their sinmentes. The children of Irael are not able to stande before their aduersaries, but must turne their backes vpon their enemies: for they are cursed. I wyl not be with you from hence forth, yf ye put not out the damned from amonge you.

Then saide he: Sanctifie the people, and saye: Sanctifie yow selues agaynst tomorrow for thus sayeth the LORD God of Irael: There is a damned thinge in the midst of Irael, therefore canst thou not stande before thine enemies, yll ye put not out the damned from amonge you. And ye shal saye vp earely, one trybe after another: and loke whiche trybe euer the LORD Eateh, the same shal come forth, one bynted ofter another: and loke which trybe the LORD Eateh, the same shal come forth, one house after another. And loke what house the LORD Eateh, the same shal come forth, one house after another. And who so euer is founde in y curse, the same shal be burnt in the fire with all theye that be with him: because he hath gone beynd the couenante of the LORD, and committed folye in Irael.

Then Iosua gat him vp by tymes in the morninge, and broughte forth Irael, one trybe after another, and sayde of Iuda was taken. And when he had broughte forth the trybe of Iuda, he bynted of the Serapites was taken. And when he had broughte forth the trynted of the Serapites, one house holde a fowr another, Sabti was taken. And when he had broughte forth his house, one house holde after another, Achan the sonne of Chormi: y forme of Sabti the sonne of Chormi of the trybe of Iuda, was taken.

And Iosua saide vnto Achan: My sonne, geue the glory vnto the LORD God of Irael, and geue him the praise, and tell me, what thou hast done, and howe manynges frome.

Then answered Achan vnto Iosua, and sayde: Verely I haue sinned agaynst the LORD God of Irael, thus I thanke him: I saue amonge y spoiles a costly Babylonish garment, and two habrich Sydes of siluer, and a tange of golde, worth fifty Syden in weight, vnto the which I had a lust, and he is: and beholde, it is hyd in the greute in my tent, and the syluer vnder it.

Then Iosua sente messengers thus, which ranne to the tent, and he holde it was hyd in his tent, and the syluer vnder it. And they toke it out of the tent, and broughte it vnto Iosua, and to all the children of Irael and poured it before the LORD. Then Iosua and all Irael with him, toke Achan the sonne of Chormi with the siluer, the garment, and golde tange, his sonnes, and daughters, his euen and asses, and shepe, and all that he had broughte they in to y valley of Achan.

And Iosua saide: For so much as thou hast troubled vs, the LORD reeble the thy daye. And all Irael stoned him, and burnt him with fire with all that he had. And when they had stoned him, they made out him a greace heape of stones, which remaineth vnto this daye. in to thy hande, the kynge of Hai with his people on his cite 2 comere. And thou shalt do with Hai and the kynge of it, as thou dodest with Jericho and the kynge thereof, savinge that ye shal deale amonge you their spoyle 2 carrell: but set thou a perry watch behynde the cite.

Then Iosua arose, and all 3 men of warre so go up unto Hai: and Iosua chose thirtie thousand fightinge men, and sent them out by night, and commaunded them, and so yede: Take heed, ye shal be 3 perry watch behynde the cite, but go not so farre from the cite, and so that ye be readye altogether. And for me and all the people that is with me, we will make us to the cite. And when they come forth agaynst us (* as a fowle) we will flye before them, that they maye followe us as fowles, yll we have persecuted them forth of the cite: for they shal thinke that we flye before them, like as we 3 first. And whyle we flye before them, ye shal get you up out of the perry watch, and wynde the cite. For 3 LORDE your God shal deliuer it unto your handes. But when ye have wynde the cite, let flye upon it, doinge 3 ordinges unto the worde of the LORD DE Deholdes, I haue commaunded you.

So Iosua sent them on waye, 2 they went into the place of the perry watch, and laye betwixte Bethel and Hai, on the west syde of Hai. But Iosua abode there nighte amonge the people. And in the morninge he arose early, and set the people in order, and went up with the Elders of Israel before the people towarde Hai: and all the men of warre that were with him, wente up, 2 gat them forth, and came ouer agaynst the cite, and pitched their tentes on the north syde of Hai, so 3 there was but a valley betwene them and Hai.

He had taken abande a fyve thousande men, and set them in the hynder watch betwene Bethel and Hai, on the west syde of the cite, and they aduised the people of the whole host: that was on the north syde of the cite, so that the utmost of the people reached vnto the west ende of the cite. So Iosua wente the same nighte in to the myddes of the valley.

But when the kynge of Hai sawe that, he made haist, and gat him up early, and he went out of the cite to meete Israel: 3 batayll, with all his people, even nighte before the sile: for he wist not that there was a perry watch behynde him on the backe syde of the cite. But Iosua and all Israel were side before them, and fled by the waye to 3 wilderness. Then cried all the people in the cite, that they shal followe vpon them, wher they folowed after Iosua and enshibed out of 3 cite, so that there remayned not one man in Hai and Bethel, which wente not out to followe vpon Israel, and they left the cite standinge open: that they mighte persecute Israel.

Then sayde 3 LORDE vnto Iosua: Reach out the speare that thou hast in thine hande, towarde Hai: for I will deliuer it in to thy hande. And when Iosua reached out the speare that was in his hande, towarde 3 cite, 3 hynder watch bane p out of that place, and ranne: when he had streched out his hande: and came in to the cite, and mounted, and made haist, 2 set fyre vpon it. And the men of Hai cunne them, and looted behynde them, and the smole of the cite wente up towarde heauen, and they had no place to fle unto, neither higher nor ther: and the people that fled towarde the wilderness turned abacke, to followe vpon them.

And when Iosua and all Israel sawe, 3 the hynder watch had wonne the cite: for 3 smole of the cite ascended: they turned agayne, and smote the men of Hai. And they in the cite came forth also agaynst them, so 3 they came in the myddes amonge Israel on both the sydes, and they slew them, so that there was not one man of them left: euen as Iosaph: and they toke the kynge of Hai alive, and broughte him vnto Iosua. And when Israel had slayne all the inhabitants of Hai, which had folowed vpon them in the sile: and in the wilderness: and when they were all fallen thow the edge of the sword, yll they were destroyed, they carried all Israel vnto Hai, and smote it with the edge of 3 sword. And of all them which fell: that baye from man vnto woman, there were twelue thousande, be all men of Hai.

But Iosua withdrew not his hande: wher with he reached out the speare: yll all the inhabitants of Hai were utterly destroyed, savinge the canell and the spoyle of 3 cite, byd Israel parte amonge themselves, accordinge vnto the worde of the LORD which he commaunded Iosua. And Iosua burned vp Hai, and made an heape thereof for ever, which is there yet vnto this daye. And the kynge of Hai caused he to be hanged on a tree vntill the even.

But whā the Sonne was gone downe, he commaunded to caue his body from the tree, and to cast it under the gace of the cite,

When builded Iosua an altare vnto the LORDE God of Israel vpon mount Ebal according as Moses the seruante of LORDE commanded the children of Israel, as it is written in the booke of the lawe of Moses a can an altare of whole stone, wherupon they re wnt an yron leuad: and he offered burnt-offerings and bealch-offerings, and there vpon the stones he wrote the seconde lawe of Moses, which he wrote before the children of Israel.

And all Israel with their Elders and officers and iudges stode on both the sydes of the Arke, right ouer agaynst the prestes & dees the Arke of the couenante of the LORDE, the stranger as well as one of them selfe, the one halfe besyde mount Gerizim, and the other halfe besyde mount Ebal. -as Moses the seruante of the LORDE commaunded a foie, to blesse the people of Israel. Afterwarde caused he to proclame all the wordes of the lawe of the blessing and cursinge, as it is written in the booke of the lawe. There was not one worde that Moses com manded, but Iosua caused it to be procla med before all the congregation of Israel, and before the men, and children, and stral gers which walked amouge them.

The ix. Chapter.

Wherupon the inhabitants of Gibeon herde, wher Iosua had done with Jericho and Hazai, they drede craftely, wnt on their waie, and made a message, and roke olde sackes vpon their asses, and oldenates wnt boote, and olde mended shyes vpon their feet, and put on olde and peed garmettes, and all & bech of their veytailes was harbe and moul be, and they wnt vnto Iosua in to & hoost at Gilgal, and sayde vnto him, and to every man in Israel: We are come out of a farre countrey, ther fore make now a couenante with vs. Then sayde every man in Israel vnto & heuyre: Peraduenture they dwellest amonge vs, how can I then make a couenante with the:

They sayde vnto Iosua: We are & israelites. Iosua sayde vnto them: Wher are ye, & whence come ye: They sayde: The israelites are come out of a very farre countrey, because of the name of the LORDE thy God: for we haue herde the repore of him, and that he dyd in Egypte, and all that he doth vnto the chyl dinges of the Ammonites in the Jordan, wher the kynges of the Ammonites in the tyme of Dabai, which dwelt a thyside. Therfore sayde we wnt to Iosua and all the inhabitants of our countrey: Telle vs wiche way for your countrey, and geue man them, and saye vnto them: We are your seruantes, ther fore make now a bond with vs: This our bred that we eate out of our houses for: our fode, was now vnto us, & of Iourney towarde your bre now lo, it is harbe & moulde. Then the capteynes toke their veytailes, and axed not the mouth of the LORDE, & Iosua made peace with them, and made up a couenante with them, that they shoulde be saued alwey, and the rulers of the congregation swore vnto them. But the day after that they had made a couenante with them, they herde, that they were thei myghte, and dwelt amonge them: So in the children of Israel went forth an iourney, they came on the thirde day vnto the cities, which are called Gibeon, Captha, Beeroth, and Kirath Jearim, and smote the not, because that the rulers of the congrega cion had sworne vnto them by the name of the LORDE the God of Israel.

But wha all the congregacion wente agaynst the rulers, all the rulers sate vnto the whole congregacion: We haue sworne vnto them by the LORDE the God of Israel, therfore may we not touch them. But this wil we do vnto them: Let them lyue, the thes come no waych vpon vs, because of the oth that we haue made vnto them.

And the rulers sayde vnto them: Let them lyue, that they may be a trewe of good and bearene of euill for the whole congregacion, as the rulers haue sayde vnto them. Then Iosua called them, and com mended with them, and sayde: Wherfore haue ye betrayed vs, and sayde, that ye wnt farre from vs, where as ye dwell amonge vs: Therfore shall ye be cused, so that if you euer shall not cease seruante

They answered Iosua: & sayde: It was surely seruantes, that the LORDE thy God commanded thise his seruantes, that he shoulde geue you this whole lode, and that he woulde bestowe all the inhabitants of the lode before you: as he hath done for a fray of our synes before you, and thus haue we done. But now lo, we are in thy handes: let what thou thinkest good and righte to be done wth us, that be.

And he wthd euen so vnto them, and deliuered them from the children of Israels hand: that they shoulde not slaye them. So wth the same daye Iosua made them beuers of wynd and water beuers for the congregation, and for the aleare of the LORDE vnto this daye, in the place that he shalldoyle.

Therefore sent he vnto Hoham the kynge of Hebron, and to Pithen the kynge of Jarmuth, and to Iaphia the kynge of Lachis, and to Dabie the kynge of Eglon, and caused to sue vnto them: Come vnto me, and helpe me, that we maye fyny in Gibeon, for they haue made peace wth Iosua and the children of Israel. Then spake Iosua vnto the LORDE (the same daye that the LORDE gaue ouer the Amorites before the children of Israel) and sayde in the passioe of Israel: Some hol be fyrl at Gibeon, and then Moone in the valley of Aialon.

Then the Moone he dyd styll, and y^e Moone stode, tynyll the people had aunged the place on their enemies. Is not this wth our in the booke of the righte ones? And there was no waye like vnto this (neither hestert nor a farr) wth the LORDE he staid vnto the voyce of some man: for the LORDE foughte for Israel. And Iosua wente a gayne to Gilgall in to the riuen, and all Israel wth him. And for the fyre kynge, they were fled, and had byrde the siluue in the caue at Matreba.

Then was it tolde Iosua: We haue feild be the fyre kynge byrde in the caue at Matreba. Iosua sayde: Kille greates stones then before the hole of the caue, and set men there to kepe them.

And for you, stande not ye styll, but followe after your enemies, and synce they be byrde, and let them not come in their cities, for the LORDE your God hath deliuered the into your hande. And when Iosua and y^e children of Israel had ended the sores greates slaughter vth them, so y^e they were broughte to nought, the remynance of them came in to the stronge cities.

Then Iosua and all Israel with him departed fro Malesda vnto Zibna, & foughte agaynst it. And the LORDE gaue it with y^e bynge therof inco the hande of Israel: and smote it: and all the foules that were therein, with the edge of the swerde, and let not one remayne in it: and yd vnto the bynge therof as he had done vnto that bynge of Jericho.

3 Afterwarde wente Iosua and all Israel with him from Zibna vnto Lachis, and layed siege vnto it, and foughte agaynst it. And the LORDE deliuered Lachis also in to the hande of Israel: so that they wanne it vpon the seconde daye, and smote it with y^e edge of the swerde, and all the foules that were therein, accordinge to all as he had done vnto Zibna. The selfe same tyme Iosua & bynge of Gathay wente vnto helpe Lachis. But Iosua smote him with all his people, tyll there remayned no one.

And Iosua wente with all Israel from Lachis, vnto Gylon, and layed siege vnto it, and foughte agaynst it, and wanne it the same daye, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and damned all the foules that were therein the same daye, accordinge vnto all as he had done vnto Lachis.

After that wente Iosua with all Israel from Gylon vnto Hebron, and foughte agaynst it, and wanne it, and smote it with y^e edge of the swerde, and the bynge of it, and all the cities therof, and all the foules that were therein, and let none remayne: and yd vnto all as he had done vnto it, and damned it, and all the foules that were therein.

Then turned Iosua agayne with all Israel towards Debir, and foughte agaynst it, and wanne it, with the bynge of it, and all the cities therof, and smote them with the edge of the swerde, and damned all y^e foules that were therein, and let not one remayne. Then as he had done vnto Hebron, and Lachis, with their bynges, so yd he also vnto Debir, and the bynge therof.

Thus Iosua smote all the lande vpon the mountaynes, and towards the fenshe, and the lowe countrees, and by the ryuers, and all their bynges, and let not one remayne: and damned all that had been, as the LORD God of Israel had commaunded. And Iosua smote them from Cadis Berma to Gaza, and all the lande of Gosen was broken, and rote all these bynges with the edge of the swerde: for the LORD God of Israel foughte for Israel. And Iosua was agayne with all Israel to the rentes in Gulgai.

The XI. Chapter.

18 Sam Jabin the bynge of Ashtorbe this he sent vnto Jacob the bynge of Madosan and to the bynges Samron, and to the bynge of Achaph, as to the bynges that dwelt towards the mountaynes, and in the playnes the southside of Ciserech, and in the lowe countrees, and in the lordshippes of Dun the fise yd vnto the Cananites towards the east and west, to y^e Amorites, Gethites, Iteites, and Jebusites, vpon the mountaynes and to the Gethites, vnder mount Gath: and the lande of Ithipha. These wrote out with their armies, a greates people, as many as y^e foules of the fise, and y^e cattel as many as y^e felues, and charrettes. All these bynges gathered felues, and came, and pitched together in y^e water of Merom, to fighte with Israel.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Iosua: See them not, for to morowe aboute this tyme I will deliuer them all in thyne hande, for the name of Israel: thou shalt lame their charrettes, and burne their charrettes with fire. And Iosua came suddenly vpon them, and all the water was with him by the water of Merom: and he fell vpon them. And the LORDE deliuered them inco y^e handes of Israel, and they slew them, and chased them vnto greates and to the warme water, and to the playne of Iherusalem: & I cast and smote them, & they there remayned not one.

Then beate Iosua with them as þe LORD. He had smote vnto hem, & lamed thes hoyses, & bent their charrettes. And he turned backe at the same tyme, & warne Iosua, & smote þe kynges of it to the swerde: for Iosua was a fo te tyme yf he had cite of all thes kyngdomes) and smote all the foule that were there: & the edge of the swerde, and damned it, & les nothinge remayne that had beene, & damned Iosua with fyre. All the cite of thes kyngdomes were Iosua also, and smote the with the edge of the swerde, and damned them, accordinge as Moses the seruante of the LORD commaunded.

So Iosua toke all this lode vpon þe moor tyme, & all þe fere towarde the south, & all the londe of Gosen, and the londe cauntee, & the playne felde, and the mountayne of Iherusalem with the valley therof, from the mountayne that paretch the londe up towarde Ser, vnto Baalgab, in the playne of mosse Libanus betwixt mounte Hermon. All the kynges toke he, and smote them, and put the to death. Somtyme he warred a longe season in thes kynges.

¶ Yet more there not one cite, that yelded it selfe peaceably vnto the children of Israel (excepte the Gentes, which dwelt at Gibe on) but they warne them all with battayll. And this was done of the LORD that thus he was so hardenid, so come agaynst the children of Israel with battayll, yf they myghte be dauid, & so fauoure to be shewed vnto them, but so he destroyed, as the LORD commaunded Moses.

¶ At the same tyme came Iosua, and coeth vnto the Enathim from þe mountayne, from Sehon, from Debir, from Anab, from every mountayne of Iudea, and from every mountayne of Israel, and damned the with chein, and let none of the Enathim rema-

¶ Then Iosua conquered all the londe accordinge vnto all as the LORD sayde vnto Moses, & gave it vnto Israel to inheritaunce, vnto ever yere his portion, and þe lode be rested from man.

The xii. Chapter.

¶ These are þe kynges of the londe, whiche the children of Israel smote, & conquered their lode, beyonde Jordan, eastward, fro the water of Arnon, vnto mounte Hermon, and vnto all þe playne subiect betwixt the east. ¶ Siben the kynges of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon, and had dominion from Arnon that lieth by the water fide of Arnon, and vnto the myddes of þe mar: and ouer halfe Seled, vnto the water of Jabbok, which is the border of the children of Ammon: and ouer the playne felde, vnto the see of Symaroth eastward, and vnto the sit of the playne felde, namely the Galt: so towarde the east, the waye vnto Beth Jesimoth: and from the south beneath by the ryuers of mounte Pisga.

¶ And the border of Og the kyng of Basan, which remayned yet of Raphaim, and dwelt at Ashtaroth and Edrei, and had the dominion ouer mounte Hermon, ouer Seled, and ouer all Basan vnto the border of Gessen: & Maachati, & of halfe Seled, which was the border of Siben the kynges at Heshbon. ¶ Moses the seruante of the LORD, and the children of Israel smote them. And Moses the seruante of the LORD gave it vnto the Rubenites, Gadites, and to the halfe tribe of Manasse in possession.

¶ These are the kynges of the lode, whom Iosua & the children of Israel smote on this syde Jordan westward, fro Baalgab vnto the playne of mounte Libanus, vnto þe moute that paretch the londe up towarde Ser, & that Iosua gave vnto the ryuers of Israel in possession, vnto every one his part, what

These are one and thirte kynges.

The xliij. Chapter.

When Iosua was olde and red striden in age, the LORD sayde vnto him: Thou art olde & well agyd, and yet remainest yet moche of the land to conquer, namely all Gath of the Philistynes, and all Gessuri, from Sihon which floweth before Egypte, vnto the border of Ebron, northwarde, which is reched vnto the Canaanica: fyer lordes of the Philistynes, namely the Gathes, the Asdodites, the Ascalonites, the Gazites, the Ekronica & the Gathes. But from the north it is all 3 lande of the Canaanica, and Maara of the Sidonians vnto Apher, even vnto the border of the Amotica. Moreover the lande of the Githica eastwarde, from Baalgad vnder mount Hermon, vnto a come vnto Hamath. All they that dwell upon the meane, from Libanus vnto the warme waters, and all the Sidonians. I wyl buye them out before the children of Israel: Only let them be deales out amonge Israel, as I haue commaunded the.

Beynde chaun this lde new to ahericall as amonge the myneryes and 3 halfe trybe of Manasse. For the Rubenica & Gadica with 3 halfe trybe of Manasse, haue recoued their enheritaunce, which Moses gaue the beyonde Iordan eastwarde, accordinge as Moses the seruant of the LORD gaue them the same, from Aroer which lieth by the water syde of Arnon, and the eie in the myddes of the water, & all the coast of Mada vnto Dibon, and all the cite of Sihon the kynge of the Amotica, which dwelle at Gessiba, vnto the border of the children of Ammonians Gilead and 3 beynde of Gessuri and Maadach, and all mount Hermon, and all Dofan vnto Salcha: all 3 kyngdomes of Og at Basan, which dwelle at Astaroth and Eder, that remained yett of Raphaim. But Moses smote them and deuie them out.

The children of Israel bene not out the Gessures & Maadachites, but both Gessur and Maadach dwelt amonge the childen of Israel vnto this daye. But vnto 3 trybe of the Reuies he gaue no enheritaunce for the offeringe of the LORD God of Israel to their enheritaunce, a couding eate hath promysed them.

So Moses gaue vnto the trybe of 3 children of Ruben after their kynreds, so that their border was Aroer, which lieth upon the water syde of Arnon, and the cite in the myddes of the same water, with all the playne felde vnto Mada: Gathes, and all the cite thereof which lye in the playne felde Dibon, Dameri Baal, 2 Beth Baal Meon, Jabza, Edermoth, Mephath, Kiriataim, Sibama, Zeritha Gahar, upon mount Eneth Beth Peor: the ryces by Pissa, and Beth Jesmeth, and all the cite upon the playne, and all the realme of Sihon kynge of the Amotica, which dwelle at Gessiba, vnto whom Moses smote with the prynces of Madian, Eui, Rekem, Zur, Hur, & Reba the myghty men of kynge Sihon, which were inhabiters of the lande. And Balaam the sone of Beor the prophete, vnto the childen of Israel kill with the sword amonge the othe that were slayne: and the border of 3 childen of Ruben was Iordan. This is the enheritaunce of the children of Ruben amonge their kynreds, citis and trylages.

Vnto the trybe of the children of Gad amonge their kynreds gaue Moses, so that their border was, Jaheser and Altheima in Gilead, and the halfe lande of the children of Ammon, vnto Aroer, which lieth by the Rabbath: and from Gessiba vnto Ramath Mispe & Betonim: and from Mahanaim vnto the border of Debir. And the alley, Beth Haram, Beth Tema, Shoch and Zaphon: which remaineth yett of the realme of Sihon kynge of Gessiba: and was by Iordan, vnto the eie of the Ier of Gynorah, on this syde Iordan eastwarde.

¶ And the halfe trybes of the children of Manasse after their bynames, gave to Joseph, for that their border was fro Ithasane unto all Basan, all the kyngdomes of Og kynge of Basan, and all the townes of Jair which lye in Basan, namely thus come they. And halfe Gilead, Ashareb, Eden, the cities of the kyngdome of Og as Basan, were the children of Machir the sonne of Manasse.
Thus is the halfe portion of the children of Machir after their bynames.

Ther is it that I Iose desire out vpon for the LORDE God of Iseal is ther en-them, according as the LORD commanded in his law to give unto the nymy tribes, and I hath sent into the two tribes and the half by Moses gene inheritance beyond the Jordan.

* But unto the Levites he gave no inheritance amongest them. * For of the children of Joseph there were two tribes, Manasse and Ephraim. Therefore gave they the Levites no portion in the land, but cities, to dwell therein, and suburbs for their cattle and goods, thus as the LORD commanded Moses, so do the childre of Israel, and dwelt in the land.

Then goeth it up to the valley of the fount of Ginnam, a longe beynde the Jebusite that dwelleth from 3 founte, that is Jerusalem and commeth up unto the toppe of the mount which lyeth before the valley of Ginnam from the westward, that becometh on the edge of the valley of Raphaim towards the north.

E Then commeth it from the toppe of the same mount unto the water well of Ephraim, and commeth out unto the cities of mount Ephraim, and cometh towards Baala, that is Ariath Jarim, and stretcheth a 60 passie abonde from Baala westward unto mount Seir, and goeth by the north syde of the mount Jarim, that is Chesalfen, and cometh downe to Beethseme, and stretcheth towards Thimna, and beareth out on the north syde of Aron, and stretcheth forth towards Sicran, and goeth over mount Baala, and commeth out unto Jabul, for that thar becometh border to the seir.

The weste border is the gresser see. This is the border of the children of Juda round about in their kynreds. Caled the same of Iephune had his poision geat him and ge the children of Juda (as the LORD Ee maunde) Josua) namely: Bariatbarba of the father of Enak, that is Hebron.

And Caleb cometh from thence the thre fountes of Enak Seia, Abimam, and Thalmas begotten of Enak. And seemeth he wente up to the inhabitants of Debit, for Debit, it was called Ariath Sepher as the same. And Caleb sayde: Who so synneth Ariath Sepher and synneth is, I will geat him my daughter Achisat to myse. Then Achisat the fount of Beenothe brother of Caleb wanne it and he gaue him his daughter Achisat to myse.

And it fortuned when they were in that she was conceived of her husbande, so are a pece of londe of his father. And she fell downe from the ass. Then sayde Caleb unto her: What ayleth the? She sayde: Gue me a blessing, for thou hast geat me a founte (and saye) londe geue me welles of water also. Then gaue he her welles aboute and beareth.

This is the inheritance of the tribis of Juda amonge the kynreds. And the cities of the tribis of the children of Juda, from one to another by the coastes of the Ebro-mites towards the south, were these: Cabzeel, Eder, Jagur, Aina, Dumma, Abata,

These are nye and twenty cities that they dwell in.

But in the lower countree was Eshphai, Jera, Aina, Sateah, Engannin, Thera, Enam, Jaemeth, Beuliam, Socho, Aize, Saacaim, Abudaim, Gedra, Giderayim. These are fountene cities & their villages. Geni Gadaba, Migdal Gad, Dulan, Migdal, Jerubel, Achele, Daykarah, Esh, Bethdon, Lachma, Chiblio, Gedereth, Bethdagon, Maama, Molada. These are fountene cities and their villages.

From Eder unto the see, all that redeth unto Afer and the villages thereof. Afer with his daughters and villages thereof. Bethon my his daughters and villages unto the meete of Egypte. And the grates in is his border.

But upon the mount was Samir, Jera, Socho, Dama, Ariath Sama, that is Debit, Anah, Eshphai, Anin, Gofra, Solen, Gula. These are eleven cities and their villages. Maon, Carmel, Sibb, Juna, Jatai, Jadda, Soneah, Aina, Gila, Thoma. These are ten cities and their villages. Halhal, Berthas, Gedra, Maacoch, Beth Anoth, Eshelton. These are five cities and their villages. Ariath Baal (that is Ariath Jarim) Hazodba, two cities & their villages. And in the wilderness was Bethmala, Middin, Gedachas, Tithen, and the Sale cite, and Engabul. These are five cities and their villages. But the Jebusites dwelt at Jerusalem, and the children of Juda coude not dwelt thert awaye. So the Jebusites remoyne with the children of Juda at Jerusalem unto this daye.

The XVI. Chapter.

And the loe fell unto the children of Ephraim for Josabane our agard of Jericho, unto the water on the east side of Jericho, and the wilderness. I geat up from Jericho thowen the mountaine of Bethel, and commeth out from Bethel unto Aina, and goeth thowen the coast of Aclanaroch, and stretcheth downe westward.

beside the coast of Iapheth to the border of the lower Berchoon, and unto Gazer: and the coast thereof is by the greatest. This the children of Joseph (Manasse & Ephraim) received to inheritance.

The border of the children of Ephraim among their tyrreds of their inheritance from the east, was nearoch Abaz unto the upper Berchoon, & goeth out westward by the river Jordan: that is to say, towards the north, there stretcheth it a compass towards the east side of the cite Chaanath Sido, and goeth thence thence from the east unto Janoba, and cometh down from Janoba unto nearoch and Maanacha, and berach on Jericho, and goeth out at Jordan from the south side westward unto Maanacha, and the out goinge of it is to the sea.

This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Ephraim among their tyrreds. And all the borders, cities with their villages of the children of Ephraim lay scattered among the inheritance of the children of Manasse. And they diene not out of Canaan, which dwelt at Gazer. So the Canaanites remained among Ephraim unto this day, and became tributaries.

The VII. Chapter.

YEHOSHUA fell upon the tribe of Manasse (for he is Josephs last sonne) and he fell upon Machir the first sonne of Manasse the father of Gilead: for he was a man of armes, therefore had he Gilead and Basan. He fell also unto the other children of Manasse, namely unto the children of Zabie for the children of Zabie, the children of Zifn, the children of Sechem, the children of Zepher, and the children of Semida: These are the children of Manasse the sonne of Joseph, males, among their tyrreds.

But Zelapheah the sonne of Zepher the sonne of Gilead, the sonne of Machir, the sonne of Manasse, had no sonnes, but bought sons, and their names are these: Mahala, Mos, Sagia, Misca, Tirza, and they came before Zelapheah their father, and before Joshua the sonne of Nun, and before the elders, and sayde: The LORD hath commaunded Manasse, to give us inheritance among our brethren. And so they had inheritance given them among their fathers brethren, according to the commaundment of the LORD.

Then fell upon Manasse ten meetynge places the lorde of Gilead and Basan, which lye beyde Jordan. For y bought sons of Manasse received inheritance among his sonnes: but the other children of Manasse had the lorde of Gilead. And the border of Manasse was this: As far forth unto Midmethach, that is to say, before Sechem, and reacheth unto the right side of them of Ben Tapuah: stretch the lorde of Tapuah fill unto Manasse, and the border of Manasse is unto the child of Ephraim. Then cometh it down to Maanacha towards the south side of the river Aras, which are Ephraim among the cities of Manasse. But from the north is the border of Manasse by the river, and goeth forth by the sea side, stretcheth unto Ephraim, and to Manasse northward, and the sea is his coast. And it shal border on Aser from the north, and on Issachar from the east.

So (among Issachar and Aser) Manasse had Beth Eran and the townes thereof, and Jehlam and the townes thereof, and them of Dor and their townes, and them of Ben Dor and their townes, and them of Eanach and their townes, and them of Maagdo and their townes, and the third part of the cite Tophet. And the children of Manasse could not drive away the inhabitants of these cities, but the Canaanites began to dwell in the same lorde. Sobeit when the children of Israel were able, they made the Canaanites tributaries, and drove them not out.

Then spake the children of Joseph unto Joshua, and sayde: Wherefore hast thou given me but one portion and encreased my inheritance, and I am yet a greater people, as the LORD hath blessed me so largely? Then sayde Joshua unto them: For so much as thou art a greater people, go up therefore into the lorde of the Ephraim and Naphtali, synge night Ephraim is to narrow for thee.

Then sayde the children of Joseph: We shal not be able to attain unto the mountaynes, for there are yon charities among all the Canaanites, that dwell in the lorde of Emek, by whom lye Beth Eran and the villages thereof, and Jisad in Emek. Joshua sayde unto the heads of Joseph, even to Ephraim and Manasse: Thou art a greater people, and for so much as thou art so greater, thou must not have one lot, but the mountaynes where thou art, shal be thine: and out for so shal it be thy out goinge of thy porcion, when thou shalt cast out the Canaanites, which have y^e charozes, & are mighty.

The xviii. Chapter.

¶ And all the multitude of the children of Israel gathered them selfe together vnto Silo, and they set vp a Tabernacle of witness, and the lorde was subdured vnto them. But there were yet seven tribes of the child of Israel, vnto whom they had not deuised their inheritance. And Iosua sayde vnto the children of Israel, how long is it so slowe, to go and conquer the londe, which the LORD God of your fathers hath giuen you: Chose you men out of euery tribe, & I maye sende them, and thus they maye get them ap and go throughe the londe, and descriue it accordinge to the inheritances thereof, and come vnto me.

Deuyde the londe in seven partes, Iudaa shal remayne vpon his borders of the south syde, and the booke of Joseph shal remayne vpon his borders of the north parte: but he scribe ye the lotte in seven partes, and bringe them: vnto me, then shal I cast y^e lot for you before the LORD our God. For the Lewites haue na porcion amonge you, but the pasture of the LORD is their inheritance. So for Gad & Ruben and y^e halfe tribe of Manasse, they haue receaued their inheritance beyonde Iordane eastwarde, which Moses the seruante of the LORD gaue them.

¶ Then the men gat ap, to go their wayes. And when they were aboue to go se to descriue the londe, Iosua commended them, and sayde: So your maye, and make the rove the londe, and descriue it, and come agayne vnto me, that I maye cast y^e lot for you before the LORD at Silo. So the men departed, and wente thow the londe, and describeyd euery fawm partes upon a letter accordinge to the ciues, and came to Iosua in ouer the hooft at Silo. Then Iosua cast the lot ouer them at Silo before the LORD, and there distributed the londe amonge the children of Israel, vnto euery one his partes.

And the lot of the tribe of the children of Ben Iamin fell accordinge to their kynreds, and the border of their lot wente out betwene the children of Iuda & the children of Joseph. from thence towarde Leno, then by the south syde of Leno (that is Bethel) and cometh betwene vnto Nearech B but by the mountayn, which lyeth on y^e south syde of the londe, Bethel. Then betwene it & the mount, and so, cheth a compass vnto the south west quarter from the mount that lyeth ouer agayn. Bethoron towarde the south, and goeth vnto Ramath Bsal, & is Ramath Iudaa, a cite of the children of Iuda. This is the west border.

Of the tribe of Dan foure cities, Elsheph and 3 suburbs thereof, Gibeon and the suburbs thereof, Alalon and the suburbs thereof, Beth Rimmon and the suburbs thereof. Of the halfe tribe of Manasse two cities, Themanah and the suburbs thereof, Gath Rimmon and the suburbs thereof: so that all the cities of the other children of 3 Tribes of Ruben, were ten with their suburbs.

But vnto the children of Gerson amonge the tyentes of the Levites were given, Of the halfe tribe of Manasse two cities, the first cite for the deethlayer, Gola in Basan and the suburbs thereof, Beashtia, and the suburbs thereof. Of the tribe of Issachar foure cities, Asher and the suburbs thereof, Dabnath and the suburbs thereof, Engannam and the suburbs thereof. Of the tribe of Aser foure cities, Mistal, Addon, Helkath and Rehob with the suburbs thereof. Of the tribe of Zephthai thre cities, the first cite Rahab (for the deethlayer) in Galile, Ramoth, Doi, and Rathan with the suburbs thereof: so that all the cities of the tyentes of the Gersonites were thirtene with their suburbs.

Vnto the tyentes of Manari the other Levites were given, Of the tribe of Zabulon foure cities, Jaknean, Aketha, Derna and Tishbalah with the suburbs thereof. Thus all the cities of the Levites amonge 3 possession of the children of Israel, were alyke and fayne with their suburbs. And these cities were so dalye out, that every one had their suburbs rounde aboute, the one as the other.

Then the LORD E gaue the children of Israel all the lande, which he had sworne vnto their fathers to geue: they toke possession of it, and dwelt therein. And the LORD E gaue the rest before all those 3 were aboue them: like as he swore vnto their fathers, & none of their enemies stood agaynst the, but all their enemies deliuered be vnto their hande. good that the LORD E had promysed vnto: the house of Israel, it came to pass.

The XXII. Chapter.

Then Joshua called 3 Rubenites, and 3 Gadites, and 3 halfe tribe of Manasse, and sayd vnto them, Ye haue kept all, that Moses the seruante of the LORD E commaunded you, and haue kepted vnto my voyce in all 3 I haue commaunded you. Ye haue not forsaken your brother: a longe season, vnto this daye, and haue veryd vpon the commaundement of the LORD E your God. For so much now as the LORD E your God hath broughte you hitherto to rest, as he promysed them, came yow now, and ge yowre maye to yowre cities in to the lande of yowre possession, which Moses the seruante of the LORD E gaue you by the Iordane.

But take diligent hede now, that ye do accordinge to the commaundement and lawe which Moses the seruante of the LORD E hath commaunded: That ye lope the LORD E your God, and walk in all his wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, and cleue vnto him, and serue him with all yowre heart, and with all yowre soule. So Joshua blessed them, and let them go. And they went vnto their cities.

Vnto the halfe tribe of Manasse had Moses gaue possession at Basan: vnto the other halfe gaue Joshua amonge their brethren on this syde Iordane westward. And when he let them go to their cities, and blessed them, he sayde vnto them: Ye come hore agayne with greute good vnto yowre cities, with exceeding much cattell, siluer, golde, brasse, iron and raymes, distribute the same to the spoule of yowre enemyes amonge yowre brethren.

So the Rubenites, Gadites, and the halfe tribe of Manasse returned, and wente from the children of Israel out of Gilead (which lieth in the lande of Canaan) to go in to the countrey of Basan to the lande of their possession, that they might possess it, accordinge to the commaundement of the LORD E by Moses.

And when they came vnto the heapes by Iordane, which lye in the lande of Canaan, the same Rubenites, Gadites, and the halfe tribe of Manasse buylded there bysides Iordane, a fayne greute alare. But when the children of Israel heare saye: Behold, the children of Ruben, the children of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasse haue buylded an altare: out agaynst the son, de of Canaan upon the heapes by Iordone on this side the children of Israel, they gathered them thither together with the whole congregation at Gilgal, to go up agaynst the with an army. And (in the meane season) they sent to them so to the londe of Gilead, Phineas the sonne of Eleazar the prest, and with him ten chiefe pryees amonge the howses of their factories, out of every tribe in Israel onc. And they came to the children of Ruben, to the children of Gad, and to the halfe tribe of Manasse in the londe of Gilead, and sayde:

D These sayeth the whole congregation of the LORD vnto you: What trespasses this, y^e haue trespassed agaynst the God of Israel, that ye shalbe turne backe from the LORD this daye, to bulde you an altare, for to fall awaye from the LORD?

NUM 22 • Howe muche enough of the wickednesse of Israel: from the which we are not yet clen sed this daye, and there came a plague amonge the congregation of the LORD: and ye came you backe this daye from the LORD, and this daye are ye fallen awaye from the LORD, that he maye be wroth to daye or tomorrow at the whole congregation of the LORD.

If the londe of youre possession be vncleane, then come ouer in to the londe that the LORD possideth, wherethe dwellynge of the LORD is, and take possession amonge yo and fall not awaye from the LORD: and from we, to bulde you an altare with out the altare of the LORD our God. Did not Ichan the sonne of Gerah trespass in the thinge that was dammed, and the weath came ouer the whole congregation of Israel, and he wene not downe alone for his myddes?

22 Then answered the children of Ruben, and the children of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasse, and sayde vnto the heade and pryees of Israel: The mightie God the LORD, the mightie God the LORD knoweth, and Israel knoweth also, yf this be a trespassinge or trespassinge agaynst the LORD, then let it be not helpe we this daye: If we haue builded the altare, because we wold not come awaye backe from the LORD, so of fre burntofferings or meateofferings: the on, or to make any burntofferings upon it, then let the LORD requyre it: And yf we haue not done it rather for very feare of this thinge, and sayde: To daye or tomorrow mighte youre children saye vnto oure children:

What haue ye to do with the LORD, the God of Israel? The LORD hath said: I will not be a border betwene we and you: yf children of Ruben and Gad, ye haue no portion in the LORD: By this shalbe youre children make oure children to come awaye from the feare of the LORD.

Therefore sayde we: For we wold oure children not alate, nor for sacrifice, nor for burntofferings, but that there it maye be a rule betwene we and you, and oure posterity, that we maye see that the LORD is in the feare with oure burntofferings, deedeofferings, and other offerings: and yf your daye or tomorrow neede not to saye vnto oure children: It haue no portion in the LORD.

And we sayde: But yf they shalbe faithfull vnto us, or to oure posterity to daye tomorrow, then maye we saye: Behold the synallunde of Israel of the LORD, wher our factory made, not for sacrifice, ne for burntofferings, but for a witness betwene we and you.

God saye yode, that we shalbe fall awaye from the LORD, so to turne backe from him this daye, and so buyle an altare for sacrifice, for burntofferings and for any portion, meate, and altare of the LORD our God, that standeth before his habitation.

But when phineas the prest, and the chiefe of the congregation, the pryees of Israel which were with him, heard the wordes, that the children of Ruben, Gad, and Manasse had spoken, they pleased them well. And phineas the sonne of Eleazar the prest sayde vnto the children of Ruben, Gad, and Manasse: This daye we knowe, that the LORD is amonge us, in that ye haue not trespassed agaynst the LORD in this daye. Now haue ye deliuered the children of Israel out of the hand of the LORD.

Then phineas the sonne of Eleazar the prest, and the rulers returned out of helan to Gilead, from the children of Ruben and Gad, vnto the londe of Canaan to the children of Israel, and brought them wordes of the manner.

Then were the children of Israel well content with the thinge. And they praised the God of Israel, and saye nowme that they wold go up agaynst them with an army, to destroye the londe that the children of Ruben and Gad dwelle in. And yf children of Ruben and Gad called the name of the alme. This olde be witness betwene we, that the LORD is God.

The XXXI. Chapter.

AND after a long tyme, when the LORD had brought Irael to rest from all their enemies rounde aboute: and Iosua was now olde and well stricken in age, he called all Irael and their Elders, heales, iudges, and officers, and sayde unto them: I am olde and well aged, and ye haue seen all that the LORD your God hath done vnto all these nacions in youre sightes. For the LORD your God himself hath fought for you. Beholde, I haue parted amonge you f remaine of the nacions whiche were enemy vnto you, and I haue sent you out from Iordan forth, and all the nacions whiche I haue rooted out vnto the greatesse westward.

And the LORD your God shal chynge them out before you, and buye them awaye from you, that ye maye haue their lande in possession, as the LORD your God hath promised you. Be stryde now therfore, that ye maye observe and do all that is wyrtzen in the boke of the lawe of Moyses: for the lawe is not as yette from us, neither is the right is hande not to the left: that ye come not amonge f remaine of these nacions, whiche are with you: And for that ye make no mention nor fwarke by the name of their gods, neither serve them, nor bowe youre shewes vnto them: For denie vnto the LORD your God, as ye haue done vnto this daye: the shal the LORD drive awaye grece and myghte nacions before you, like as thire hath no man bene able to stande before you vnto this daye. One of you shal chace a thousand: for the LORD your God hath sworn for you, according as he promised you. Take diligence thide therefore vnto youre feules, that ye love the LORD your God.

But if ye turne backe, and slyne vnto the fcecher nacions, and make marriages with them, so that ye come amonge them, and they amonge you: ye shal sene that the LORD your God shall no more buye out all these nacions before you, but they shall be vnto you a snare and net, and pynne in youre sydes, and thynnes in youre eyes, vntill he haue destroyed you from the good lode, whiche the LORD your God hath given you.

Beholde, this daye do I ge the trewe of all the words, and ye shal knowe vnto from all your herte and from all youre soule, that thire hath not sayed oue mouth of all the good that the LORD your God promised you. Nowe live as all the good is come that the LORD your God promised you:

The xxxij. Chap. No. xij.

And so shal the LORD cause all these to come upon you, vntill he haue destroyed you from this good lode, whiche the LORD your God hath given you: ye transgresse f commandment of the LORD your God, whiche he hath commanded you. And if ye go to waye and serve ocher goddes, and worshippe the, then shall the wrath of the LORD be kindled against you, and he shal destroye you out of the good lode, f he hath given you.

After the death of Joshua the children of Israel were the LORD, and sayde: Who shall go up & be a captain of warre against the Canaanites? The LORD sayde: Iuda shall go up. Deborah, I have beluyeth the lord to his hande. Then sayde Iuda unto his brother Simen: Go up with me in to my land, let vs fighte against the Canaanites, then will I go agayn with the in to & Ioe. So Simen went with him.
 Now when Iuda went up the LORD beluyeth the Canaanites & the Amorites: & they flew of them under the hande of Deborah: they foughte Abdon Desit at Debit: they foughte against him, and flew of the Canaanites and Amorites. But Abdon Desit fled, and they followed a fere him: and when they had consumed him, they came of the throbbe of his hande and fere.
 Then sayde Abdon Desit: These souldiers and mynges of the members of their hande & five are of, gathered up the meate & was left in under my table. How as I have done, so hath God rewarded me agayne. And he was brought unto Jerusalem, where he dyed.

 But y childre of Iuda foughte agaynste Jerusalem, and were it, and smote it with the rage of the sword, and set fire upon the cite. Then wente the children of Israel wene, to fighte agaynste the Canaanites, & dwelt upon the mount, and toward the south, and in the valley. And Iuda wente agaynste the Canaanites, which dwelt at Hebron. As for Hebron, it was called Amatharba a forerime, and they smote Segai, & Achiman, and Thalmai.
 And from thence he wente agaynste the habitation of Dehor: but Dehor was called Amath Sepher a forerime. And Caleb sayde: He y sayeth Amath Sepher, & myneth, I will geue him my daughter Achis to wife. Then Achish the sonne of Benai, Calebs yongest brother, was it. And he gave him his daughter Achis to wife. And it forcometh & when they were in the man counce of his househous, so are a pece of lonbe of his iacob. And he fell from the offe. The sayde Caleb unto her: What sayest thou? She sayde: Geue me a blessing, for thou hast geuen me a husband & yrloude, geue me also a wery lande. Then gave he her aken be that was wery a boue and teneth.
 And the childre of & Amrie Moises broder in lawe, wente ap out of the palme cite, with the children of Iuda into the wilderness of Iuda, that they on & south syde of the cie Iericho, and wente their waye, & dwelt amonge the people. And Iuda wente with his brother Simen, & they smote the Canaanites at Zepthai, & downed them, & called the name of the cite Sima. Iuda also wente Gasa with the borders thereof, & Alsalon with his borders, & Acocon with the coastes thereof. And the LORD was with Iuda, so that he conquered the mountaynes: but then that dwelt in the valley could he not conquer, because they had yon charettes. And as charettes a Moises had sayde, they gave Hebron unto Caleb, which dwelt ever the ysonnes of Enai. Semeth y childre of Ben Jamin brocome out of Jerusalem, which dwelt in Jerusalem, but & Jephthas dwelt amonge the children of Ben Jamin in Jerusalem unto his daye.
 & Achish the childre of Joseph were up also unto Bethel, & the LORD was with them. And the house of Joseph theyd one Zebul (which a forerime was called Eas) and the Then were the same men wth into y^e coun-tre of the Geshures, & by y^e deth n^e ci-ty, and called it Loo, & so is the name of y^e ci-ty vnto this daye. And it is named so by cause our Beth Sean is the village thereof, nei Thama^h is the village thereof, nei the inhabitants of Beth is the village thereof: nei the inhabiters of Thama^h is the village thereof, nei the inhabitants of Thama^h do the village thereof, and & Canaanites beganne to dwel in the same londe. And when Israel was mightie, he made the Canaanites tributaries, and drave them out.

14. 22, 23

In like maner Ephraim drave not out Canaanites that dwelt in Gaser, but the Canaanites dwelt amonge them as Gaser.

Zabulon also drave not out the inhabitants of Acheron and Thaphol, but & Canaanites dwelt amonge them, & were tributaries.

As for Issachar drave not out y^e inhabitens of Zidon, of Thelab, of Ach-sai, of Helbo, of Aphik & of Rahob, but Issachar dwelt amonge the Canaanites that dwelt in the londe, for they drave the not out.

Triphal drave not out y^e inhabitens of Beth Semai, nei of Beth Anach, but dwelt amonge the Canaanites which dwelt in the londe: howbeit they of Beth Semai and of Beth Anach were tributaries.

And the Amozites subdued the childre of Dan vpon the mountaine, and suffred them not to come downe in to the valley. And the Amozites beganne to dwell vpon mounte Se-rae as Aholon and as Gaalun. Howbeit y^e hande of Joseph was to sore for them, and they became tributaries. And he border of the Amozites was, as a ma goeth p^rownde Zerabim, and from the rocke, & from the crosse.

The ii. Chapter.

24

There came vp a messenger of the LORD from Beersheba vnto Beth-leem, and sayde: I haue caried y^e speeche out of Egypte, and broughte y^e into the londe whither I sware vnto y^e fathers, & sayde: I will neuer breake my covenant wth you, that ye shaldr make no covenant wth the dwellers of this londe, but drave to me thine altar: I feared helpe ye haue not perchaunce vnto my voyce. Wherefore haue ye done this? Then said I: I measured I made vnto y^e LORD before y^e, that the LORD be a fall vnto y^e, and that y^e LORD be And when y^e messengers of the LORD spoke these wordes vnto all the dwellers of Israel, the people lefte vp their voyces, & called y^e name of the place Beersheba, and suffred them vnto the LORD.

For when Josiah had bene many y^e peple, and the childre of Israel were gone out of his inheritance, for to sale possession of the londe, the people serued the DE as longe as Josiah liued, and & after which liued longe a tyme Josiah, and & after all the greates workes of the LORD, which he dyd for Israel.

Now when Josiah the sonne of Tamiseruaunt of the LORD, was byd when he was an child, and ten yeres old, they brought him to y^e border of his inheritance Tennach there vpon mounte Ephraim the north syde of mount Gaas. And when all the same generation was gathered wth their fathers, their came vp after them the generation, which knew not the LORD, ne the workes that he had done for Israel.

Then wroughte the children of Israel as before the LORD, and serued Baalim, and soughte & LORD the God of them the: which broughte them out of the londe of Egypte) and soled other goddes & the goddes of the nations that dwelt in the londe: they, & worshipped them, & re-pleased the LORD before they soughte the LORD more and more, and serued Baalim & Ashtoreth.

Then y^e wrath of the LORD was kindled vnto Israel, & he dyngred them in so y^e dayes of those & they, that they might spoyle them, & sold the in to the handes of their enemies to be a prey, & they were as a prey wth handes their enemies enemyes, but what wth ye so ever they wolde do, y^e DE of the LORD was agaynst the, so that haue (even as the LORD) is for and for vnto them) and they were sore opprest.

Now when the LORD raised vnto y^e us, which helpe them out of the handes of such as spoyled them, they serued not the LORD, but they serued other goddes, & they worshipped them, and they were
as a prey wth handes their enemies enemyes,
but what wth ye so ever they wolde do, y^e DE of the LORD was agaynst the, so that
haue (even as the LORD) is for and for

And when the LORD raised vnto y^e us, which helpe them out of the handes
of such as spoyled them, they serued not
the LORD, but they serued other goddes, &
they worshipped them, and they were
as a prey wth handes their enemies enemyes,

The booke of the Judges.

and helped them out of the hande of their enemies, as longe as the iudges luyd. For the LORD had pitty of their complaints, which they made ouer thys: I subbaied this and oppressed this.

Then when was the iudge dyed, they turned backe, and marred all moare that their fathers, so that they folowed othei goddes to serue them, and so downe them selues into sinne: they wold neuer fall from their purpose, nor from their obliuious weye.

Therefore wroth the wrath of the LORD allwaies so muche ouer Iſrael, that he sayde: So so muche as the people haue transgreſſed my commandment, which I commaunded their fathers, to folowe no othei goddes, I wil from hence forth vyne one none of the chylderen, whos I ſwaie laſte beſyde him, whos he dyed, that by them I maye proue Iſrael, whether they will keepe the waye of the LORD, or wylle they not. And whos fathers dyd, or noc.
Then the LORD suffered all theſe nationes, so that in a ſpace tyme he dyne them not out, wherby he had not geue ouer in to Iudas his home. The iii. Chapter.

These are the nationes, wherby the LORD suffered to remayne, by by them he might proue Iſrael, which had no enemies: in the warres of Canaan: only because of the trybales of the chyldre of Iſrael, as they knowe to lette to warre, which a ſoule had no knowlege therof, namely: The ſine ſonnes of the Philistynes, & all the Cananites, & the Amorites, & the Jebusites, & dwelle upon mount Iſbairus, from mount Baal Ber men, vntill a man come vnto Gath. The ſine remayne, that Iſrael myghte be prou-ed by them, that ſe myghte he knowe in he ther they wold becken to the commaunde-mentes of the LORD, which he commaunded their fathers by Moſes.

Now when the chyldren of Iſrael dwelt thys amonge the Canaanites, Gethites, Amorites, Philistynes, Gethites & Jebusites, they toke their daughters to wyues, & gaue their daughters vnto their ſonnes, & ſerued their goddes, and wrought wyl chence before the LORD, & ſougat the LORD theſe God, & ſerued Baalim & Aſtaroth. Then the wrath of the LORD was kindled ouer Iſrael, & he ſold theſe vnto the hande of Canan Aſachaim kynge of Moſopotamia & ſo the chyldre of Iſrael ſerued Canan Aſachaim viij. yea.

Then the chyldre of Iſrael into (re, the LORD, & the LORD cryed the vp a ſame which departed the, namely: Achmel of ſonnes of Binas, Calab a yongſt beether.

The iii. Chap. Ho. xiii.

And the ſpore of the LORD came vpon him, & he was ingid in Iſrael, & wente oue a warre fare. And the LORD departed Ca-ſan Aſachaim the kynge of Syria in to his hande, ſo that his hande was to ſtrike for him.
Then was the looke in reſt ſeue yeaies.
Then Achmel the ſonne of Binas dyed.

But the chyldre of Iſrael dyd yet more and beſe the LORD. Then the LORD ſtrengthened theſe the kynge of Moſopotes a garyſt the chyldre of Iſrael, because they wrought wyl chence beſe the LORD. And he gathered vnto him the chyldre of Ammon, & the Amaledites, & wote and ſonnes Iſrael, and conquered the cite of the palme tree.
And the chyldre of Iſrael ſerued theſe the kynge of Moſopotamia eighten yeaies. The cryed they vnto the LORD. And the LORD rayſed the vp a ſumme, namely: Iſhob the ſonne of Gera the ſonne of Jamin, which was a man that myghte do nothings wyl his righte hande.

And whos the chyldre of Iſrael ſent a pauſe by him vnto the kynge of the Moſopotamia, & had made him a tye dyed bagger of a ſpanne longe, & gyved ſe vnder his garmet vnto his righte cheyke, & becom he the kynge of Moſopotamia the kynge of Moſopotamia. As for Iſrael, he was a very ſer man.

And when he had departed the preſent, he let the people go that had caught the preſent, and he himſelfe returned backe from the Iſobol at Gilgal, & cauſed to ſaye thus (vnto the kynge): I haue a ſacrifice thynge to tell the O kynge. And he commaunded to be preſent, & all they that ſode aboute him, wente out from him.

And Iſhob came in vnto him. He ſet in a ſide Sommer perle, which was for him ſelfe alone. And Iſhob ſaide: I haue ſomewhat to ſaye vnto the of God. The roſe be vp ſit his ſtate. But Iſhob put ſuch his left han-de, & toke the bagge from his righte cheyke.
I thought in to his bed, ſo that the beſe wente in a ſide ſer the blade, & the ſax cloſed the beſe for he was not the bagge out of his bed, & the ſylthines departed ſit him. But Iſhob gar him one at the backe doer, & put to be re a ſax him, and looke it.

Now when he was gone, his ſeruaunt came in, and ſode that the doer of the Sommer perle was looke, and they ſayde: perle wente he is gone to the preſent in the ſylth Summer perle.

But when they had wayted ſo lye, they were aſhamed: ſo nor man opened the perle doer, they toke the beſe, and opened it.

Debelie, then laye thee loke death vpo the earth. As for Deborah, he was gotten away, my selfe thy made so longe carriage, & he neuer to ouer by the Iordain, and came his waye vnto Sarchach.

And when he came in - he blame & crouper vpo mount Ephraim, and the children of Israel wente with him from the moone, and he befouled them, and he fide vnto them: Solowme, for the LORD hath deliuered the Moabites your enemies in to yo hande. And they folowed him, & manne & fyer of Iordane, & growe toward Moab, & satisfied no man to go ouer, and he & same tyme they smote of the Moabites vpo a centhoufande men, all noble and men of armes, so that there escaped noe one. Then were the Moabites brought vnder the hande of the children of Israel at that tyme, and the lande was in rest foure score yeres.

Afterwards was a Samgar & some of Anath, which slawe fixe hundred Philistines with an oxe gadd, and deliuered Israel also.

The III. Chapter.

But the children of Israel dyd yet more euill before y LORD, when Eshob was dead. And the LORD sold the mee the hande of Jabin the kynge of the Canaanites, which dwelt at Hazor, & the chiefe captayne of his hoste was Siffera, and he dwelt at Hazor of the Syechen. And the child of Israel erid vnto the LORD: for he had myne hardness yron chariots, and subdued the children of Israel by violence twentye yeres.

At same tyme was Iudges in Israel the prophetesse Deborah, the wyfe of Lapidoch, and she dwelt vnder y palme of Debora betwene Rama & Bethel vpon mount Ephraim, and the children of Israel came vnto her to the lawe. She sent forth, & called for Barak the sonne of Abi Noam of Kedon Naphtali, and sayde vnto him: Heare mee y LORD the God of Israel es maidned the: So thy waye, and get the vnder mount Thabor, & take the centhoufande men of the children of Naphtali & Zabulon: for I will make Siffera the chiefe captayne of Jabinus hoste to come to the vnder y water of Eysen, with his chariots and with his multitude, and I will deliuer him in to thy hande. Barak sayde vnto her: If thou wilt come with me, I will go: but if thou wilt not come with me, I will not go.

She sayde: I will go with thee: nevertheless the paye shall not be thine in this iour ney that thou goest, but y LORD shall deliuer thy Siffera in to a womans hande. So Deborah gat her vp, and wente with Barak vnto Kedon. Then Barak called Zabulon & Naphtali vnto Kedon, and went on foot & centhoufande men. And Deborah went with him also. As for Heber the Kenite he was departed from the Kenites from the children of Hobab Moses brother in lawe, and had pitched his tent by y Oke of Zaanan, beside Bebera.

Then was it tolde Siffera, & Barak the sonne of Abi Noam, was gone vnto mount Thabor: & he gathered all his chariots together, naye C. yron chariots, & all the people & was a myghty man from Hazor of the Syechen, vnto the water Eysen. Deborah & Barak vnto the Oke of the Oke where the LORD hath deliuered Siffera in to y hande: for y LORD shall ga forth before y. So Barak wente from mount Thabor, and y ten thousand men after him.

But the LORD besmoke Siffera & all his chariots & hoste, & made the a way of the edge of the sword before Barak, so y Siffera leape of his chariots, & fled on foot. Nevertheless Barak folowed upon the chariots & the hoste vnto Hazor of the Syechen, & all Siffera hoste fell vpon y edge of the sword, so y noe one escaped. As for Siffera, he fled on foot vnto the tent of Jacl, y wife of Heber y Kenite. For there was peace betwene yinge Jabin at Heber the house of Heber the Kenite.

Jacl wente forth to meete Siffera, & sayde vnto him: Come in my lodge, tunc in to me, & be not afeard. And he came in vnto her in to the tent. & she covered him with a garment. She sayde vnto her: I praye y geue me a litle water to drynke, for I am a chyke. She opened she a myle pety, & gaue him to drynke, and covered him. And he sayde vnto her: Where in the tent dore, & if any come & ask is there any man here: I saye No man.

Then Jacl the wife of Heber cot a nak of the tent, and an hammer in hir hande, & wente in piously vnto him, & smote the nak in thowen the temple of his heade, so y he fande to y earth. As for him, he was fallen on a slomber, and a wey, and so he dyed.

But when Barak folowed after Siffera, Jacl wente for to meete him, and sayde vnto him: Come hither, I will shewe the the men whom thou ledest. And when he came in to to her, he sawe Siffera dead, & the naked things in his temple. Thus God brought downe Jabin the kynge of the Canaanites.

The vi. Chapter.

2 And when the children of Israel byd well in the sighte of the LORD, the LORD deliuered them vnder the han-de of the Midianites vj. yeares. And wha the hands of the Midianites was so might ne ouer the children of Israel, the children of Israel made them elyffes in y^e mountaynes, and caues and haldes, to defende them sa-felye from y^e Midianites. And when Israel sowed any thinge, y^e Midianites and Amalethites, and the children of the south came vp vpon them, and pached their cotes a gaynst them, and destroyed the increase of the londe vnto Bash. y^e lye nothinge remayne ouer of the besse in Israel, neither shepe, nor oxen, nor asses. For they came vp with their carrell and camels, so it had bene a greuous murther of greshoppes (so that ne ther they nor their camels mighte be nom-bered) and fill in to the londe, that they might be destroyed. Thus was Israel exceedingly small before the Midianites. Then cried the children of Israel vnto the LORD.

3 But when they cried vnto the LORD, he caused y^e Midianites, y^e LORD sente a prophet, which sayde vnto this: Thus saith the LORD the God of Israel: I caried you out of Egypt, y^e brought you out of y^e house of bondage, y^e delivered you from the han-de of the Egyptians, y^e from the hande of all them that oppressed you, and I haue thrust them out before you, y^e given you their lode and sayde vnto you: I am the LORD your God. Feare not y^e godden of the Amo-

And there came an angell of the LORD, y^e sat him downe vnder an Oke at Alpha, which belongeth vnto Iosa the father of y^e Ephraim, and his sonne Gedeon was thinskinge wheare in the barne, that he mighte flee a way to fuge the Midianites.

4 Then appeared vnto him the angell of y^e LORD, and sayde vnto him: The LORD with y^e thou meghtie gawnte. But Gedeon sayde vnto him: My, yf the LORD be wth me, wherfore is all this that happened vnto me? And wher are all the wonders, which owe shewe thyselfe vs, y^e sayde: The LORD broughte vs out of Egypt: But now hath the LORD forforn a.c. and deliuered vs in to the hands of the Midianites.

The LORD turned him vnto him, y^e say de: So thy maye in this thy strength, thou shalt deliuer Israel out of the hande of y^e Midianites. I haue sent thee. But he sayde: My LORD, wherewithall shall I deliuer Israel? Behold, my tyned is the smallest in Midian, y^e I am the least in my fathers house: The LORD sayde vnto him: I will be wth the, so y^e thou shalt smyte the Midianites, then as though they were but one man.

He sayde vnto him: If I haue founde grace in thy sighte, then make me a token, that it is thou, which speakest with me: go me nowe, yll I come to y^e, and bringe a mea-offer yngs, so set before the. He sayde: I will taey, yll thou comest agayne. And Gedeon waxe, and made ready a fynd, and an Ephes of unleuened floure, and layed the fleshy a mounte, and put the beere in a pot, and broughte it forth vnto him vnder the Oke, and came nye. And the angell of God sayde vnto him: Take the fleshy and the unleuened beere, y^e set it vpon the floure y^e rocke that is here, and poure the beere thereon. And he byd sa. Then the angell of the LORD streched out the staffe that he had in his hande, and with the ende of it he touchyd the fleshy and the unleuened floure: and the fyre came out of the rocke, and consumed the fleshy and the unleuened floure. And the angell of the LORD vanished out of his sighte.

Then wha Gedeon shew that it was so angell of y^e LORD, he sayde: O LORD, I DE, haue Iehnnfene an angell of y^e LORD face to face: The LORD sayde vnto him peace be with the, feare not, thou shalt not dye. The Oke on which he layed an altar, he vnto y^e LORD, y^e called it: The LORD of pe-ce. The same floureth yet vnto this daye at Alpha, y^e belongeth vnto the father of y^e Eph-raim.

And in y^e same night sayde y^e LORD vnto him: Take a frib bullocke, and ge thy facke open, and other bullocke of it in y^ere elde, and breake downe the altare of Baal which in thy sacke, and cut downe the groate that stonde by it, and buyde than an altare vnto the LORD, y^e God ab-se upon the toppe of this rocke, and make it ready, and take the other bullocke, and offer a burnt offeringe with the roeb of the groate that thou hast heuen downe. Then take Gedeon men of his seruantes, and byd an y^e LORD sayde vnto him: he was afraid to do this by daye tyme, for the Israhelites hoost and the people in y^e cite, and y^e be byd it by nighte.

Then when the people in the cite rose up early in the morninge, behold, Baal was alte.

is now broken, and the grene between downe by it, and the other bullocke a burnesseyr yng upon the alare ther was buylded, & one sayde unto another: Who hath done this? And whan they soughte & made searche, it was sayde: Gedon the sonne of Iosa hath done it. Thi sayde the people of Iuda unto Iosa: Bring forth y sonne, he must dye, because he hath broken Baals altare, and betweene downe the grene thereby. But Iosa sayde unto all them that stode by him: Wyl ye stryue for Baal? Wyl ye deluyne him? he shal be God, let him auge him selfe, because he hath altare broken downe. From y daye forth man he called Jerubaal, because he was thyne: Let Baal avenge him selfe, that hee altare is broken downe.

¶ Whan y Madiannes now y Amaale, i. na, & the chaldei comarde the fourth had gathered the filnes together, & were passed the rom: Iordane y had pitched there tentes in the valley of Iesael, the spaze of the LORD ended Gedon: he caused the trumpet to be blowne, & called the house of y Aduites, the they shalbe felowne him: y he sent messanger unto all Manasse, & called them, & they shalbe felowne him also: and he sent messanger hithe wyse unto Asir & Zabulon & Ephraim, which came vnto meet him.

¶ And Gedon sayde unto God: As thou wilt deluyne Istaal tharow my hande, so thou shalt sette the mil I laye a fleete of wolle in the countrey: yf y dew be dely upon y fleete: yte upon all the grownde, then wyl I proue that thou shalt deluyne Istaal tharow my hande, as thou hast sayde. And it came so to passe. And whan he rose up early on the morow, he wate y dew out of the fleete, and fylled y dyffle full of water. And Gedon sayde unto God: Denot verothy come, that I spake yte this our tyme. I wyl proue yte once with the fleete, let it be delye and yte upon the fleete, and dew upon all the grownde. And God dyd so the same nighte so that it was delye and yte upon the fleete, and dew upon all the grownde.

The vii. Chapter.

¶ Then Jerubaal (that is Gedon) gat a him vp early, and all the people that was with him, and pitched their tentes beynde the well of Harod, as that he had the hoost of the Madiannes on the north side beynde the hyll of Moss in the valley. But the LORD sayde unto Gedon: The people that be with y are too many for me to deluyne Madiuin in to their hande, lest I shal haue them felies agaynst me, and saye: My hande hath deluynd me. And as a proclamecion shal be made in the eares of the people, and saye: he hath forth, and is a frayde. Let him come backe, and yet him seeme from Madiuin. Then returned there of the people aboute a two and twenty the iustande so that there was left butten thousande.

¶ And the LORD sayde unto Gedon: The people are yet too many: bringe them downe to the water, there wyl I proue them for y: and as whom I saye that he shal go w the, the same shal go with the house of israhel: I saye that he shal w go with the, the same shal not go. And he brought the people vnto y water. And the LORD sayde unto Gedon: Whosoever licketh of the water with his tounge, as a dogg licketh, make him stonde asyd: and yte saye who shalbe sollieth beinge vps his knes to drynke. Then was the nombre of them that had licked out of the hande to the mouth, thic hundred men. And the LORD sayde unto Gedon: Thou art the thic hild which I haue liued, wyl I deluyne you, and geue ouer the Madiannes in to thy hande. An for the other people, let them go enery one vnto his place.

¶ And they cote wyayle with them for y people, and their compasses: but the other Istaalica let he go, carry one vnto his countrey. And he stregthed himselfe with the thic hundred men, and the Madiannes hoost laye before him beneth in the valley. And the same nighte sayde the LORD unto him: Up, and go downe in to the hoost, for y hande geuen them ouer in to thy hande. But yf thou be afrayed to go downe, then let y shalbe proue go downe with the vnto the hoost, & thou maist heare what they saie: after that shalt thou be helde, and thy honde strange, that thou maist go downe in to the hoost.

¶ Then wente Gedon downe with his lieutenant vnto y vntenist part of y watchme of arma y were in y hoost. And y Madiannes and Moabites, and all the chiefe gan of the Madianites Zabea and Salmana-man put all the host in feare.

Now when Gebeon of sonne of Joas came againe to the burrough out of β cast, he re called of the men of Succoth, & of Arminath, which would him up the names of the fathers of Succoth, and their Elders, and the score and thre hundred men.

β And he came to the men of Succoth, & sayde: Behold, here is Zabea & Salmana, which sayde: wher ye laughe me to some, & sayde: keepe the hand of Zabea and Salmana in thy handes all ready, that we must geue bread unto them which are weary. And he to-ke the Elders of the cite, and the men out of the midwintre, and bare, and caused β men of Succoth to be come thither. And the score of Peniel brake he downe, and slew the men of the cite.

And he saide unto Zabea and Salmana: What manner of men were they wher ye slewe at Gahar? They sayde: They were euen like the goodly men, as if they had bene a byen child. He sayde: They were my brethren, as my mother sonnes: As truly as the LORD E sayeth, if ye had leete them ly-ue, I would not have you.

β And he saide unto his selfe some time: I shal: Stande up, & slaye them. Somwhat he wold me not out his swerde, for he was a feyarful so much as he was yet but a lad. Zabea & Salmana sayde: Stande thou up, & slaye us, for as the man is, soch is also his strength.
So Gebeon arose, and slew Zabea and Sal-mana, and toke the damayntes that were about the Camels neckes.

Then sayde certayne in Israel unto Gebeon: Behold he orde ouer us, thou and thy sonne, and thy sonnes sonne, for so much as thou hast beleueed us from β hande of the Madianites. Then sayde Gebeon saide unto them: I wil not be orde ouer you, neither shall my sonne be orde ouer you, but the LORD shal be orde ouer you.

β Gebeon sayde unto them: One thinge I desire of you: Every man geue me the earring that he hath spled. (For in so much as β men were Amalekites, they had earringes.) They sayde: They will we geue thee. And they shal out in a day, and every man cast the earringe eueron that he had spled. And the golden earringes which he requyred, had in weight, a thousand and fou hundred Byles of golde, besyde the spangles and thynges, and fawles of ymment which the Ky-nges of the Madianites dyd weare, and besyde the neckbandes of their Camels. And Gebeon made a coat armoure thereof, and set it in his cite at Aphia. And all Israel went there a whoringe after it, and it carned an occasion of fallinge vnto Gebeon and his house.

Thus were β Madianites broughte downe before the children of Israel, and liue up their heads no more: and the lord was in rest fortye yeres, as longe as Gebeon liued.

And Jerubael the sonne of Joas went & dwelt in his house. And Gebeon had thre sons, & ten sonnes, which were come out of his chylde: for he had in my wyse. And his concu-byne which he had at Sich, bare him a sonne also, whom he called Abimelech. And Gebeon the sonne of Joas dyed in a good age, he was buried at Aphia in β sepulchre of his father Joas the father of the Israhites.

But when Gebeon was dead, the childer of Israel turned backe, and wente after ge after Baalim, and made a canaanite as Baal Berith, for he shoulde be their God. And β childer of Israel thoughte not on β LORD DE their God, which had deliuered them fro the hande of their enemies rounde aboute: and they shewed not mercy vnto the house of Jerubael Gebeon, notwithstandinge to all the good that he had done vnto Israel.

The ix. Chapter.

Abimelech the sonne of Jerubael wente vnto Sich to his motheres brethren, & spoke vnto them, & to all the kynges of his motheres fathers house, and sayde: I pryncy you speake in the eares of all the men as Sichem: Wharoe better for you, that there score and ten men all childer of Jeruba-el shoulde be lordes ouer you, or that one man shoulde be orde ouer you? Remember also that I am youre bone and youre flesh.

Then spake his motheres brether all the wordes for him, in β eares of all β men at Sichem. And their heart enclinede Abime-lech, for they thoughte: He is one brether and gaue him thre score and ten man out of β house of Anil Berith. And them Abimelech hyed men that were vagabondes and of lyght conuictions, which he loued him. And he came to his fathers heuse vnto Aphia, and slew his bretheren the children of Jerubael, euen thre score men and vpon one stone. But Jorham the yongest sonne of Jerubael remayned ouer, for he was wyde. And all the men of Sichem, and all the house of Anil gathered them together, and wente and made Abime-lech kynge by the Oke that stoneth at Si-chem.

B When this was tolde Jochem, he wente, and stode vpon the toppes of mount Gushim, and lift vp his voyce, and sayde: O ye men of Sichem, what God maye be to you also. The trees wente to a noyse a faine ouer them, and sayde vnto the Olive tree: De thou ouer kyngge. But the Olive was aswured them: Shall I go and leaue my fatnesse, which beeth God, and men commendeth in me; and go to be putt vpon above the trees? Then sayde the trees vnto the figge tree: Come thou and be kyngge ouer vs. But the figge tree sayde vnto the: Shal I leaue my sweete rus and my good fruite, and go to be putt vpon above the trees? Then sayde the trees vnto the vine: Come thou and be ouer kyngge. But the vine sayde vnto them: Shal I leaue my sweete wyne, which reioyseth God and men, and go to be putt vpon above the trees? The sayde all the trees vnto the thorne busshes: Come thou, and be kyngge ouer vs. And the thorne busshes sayde vnto the trees: If it be true, y ye as ope me to be kyngge ouer you, the come, and putte youre trust vnder my shadowe. If no, then go fye out of the thorne busshes, & caluise y Cedar trees of Libanus.

C If ye haue done righte now and iustly, y ye haue made Abimelech to be kyngge; and yf ye haue done well vnto Jerubbaal sad to his house, and haue done vnto him as he desired vnto you. Which euen my father saugh se for youe sake, and reported his lyfe, to be lyer and a f of the Widdowes harte, eue you, which are ryen vpon this daye against my fathes house, y haue slaine his chylde, this sco to performe a reu upon ons stone, and haue made you a kyngge euen Abimelech the sonne of his handmaide ouer the men at Sichem, for so much as he is youre brother.

If ye haue done righte now and iustly vnto Jerubbaal and his house this daye, then reioyse ouer Abimelech, and let him reioyse ouer you. If no, then go fye out from Abimelech, and asume the men of Sichem and the house of Widdo: And fye go out also fro the men of Sichem, and from the house of Widdo, and consume Widdo. And Jochem when he had spoken this outsyde, and gat him out of the waye, and wente vnto Be, and dwelde there because of his brother Abimelech.

D How when Abimelech had reigned thre yere ouer Issad, God sent an well mynde becomen Abimelech, and the men of Sichem (for the men of Sichem becomen Abimelech, and rebated the wronge done to the sonnes of Jerubbaal, and their bloude, and layd it vpon Abimelech their kinde, which slawe them, and vpon the men of Sichem that strengethed his hande therein, that he myghte slaye his bretheren.

And the men of Sichem set an hymn watch vpon the toppes of the mountaynes, and posted all them that walkt thre thys by the waye, and it was tolde Abimelech. But there came Gaal the sonne of Abi and his brethren, and entred into Sichem, and the men of Sichem putte their trust in him, and wente out in to the fildes, and gathered their vynyardes, and pressed them, and made a daryse, and wente in to their goss house, and ate and dranke, and cursid Widdo.

And Gaal y sonne of Abi beid sayde: What is Abimelech; and what is Sichem, that he shoulde serue him? Is he not the sonne of Jerubbaal, and hath he set Seboul his seruante ouer the men of Sichem? The father of Sichem: Wherefore shoulde we serue him? Willeth the people were vnder my harte, y I myght putte downe Abimelech.

And it was tolde Abimelech: Then as thine house, and be parte. For Seboul the f ruler of the case, when he hadde the wordes of Gaal y sonne of Abi, he was not fully displeased, and sente messagers secretlyn Abimelech, and caused to saye vnto him: Beholde, Gaal the sonne of Abi and his brethren are come to Sichem, and make the cite to be a garrison for the.

Arise therefore by nyghte, thou and thy people that is with the, and laye waye fard in the fildes; and come out when the Sonne ariseth, get the vpon soone, and fall vpon the cite: and yf he and the people that is with him come out vnto the, the deale with him, as thine harte fyndeth.

Abimelech stode up by nyghte, and with his people that was with him, and layd watch for Sichem with foure companies of men of warre. And Gaal the sonne of Abi wote and stode at the dore of the gawnd the cite. But Abimelech gat him vpon one of his hinder watch, and the people that was with him. Then when Gaal sawe the people, he sayde vnto Seboul: Beholde, there cometh a people downe from the toppes of y mount. Seboul saide vnto him: Thou hast y shadow of the mountaine as though they would. Gaal spake yet more and sayde: Beholde, there cometh a people downe from y mountes of the londe, & one bonde of men cometh by the waye so y reach Widdo. The people sayd: But where is now y mouth y saye: Widdo.

Abimelech dæd him, so that he fled, and there fell many slayn even vnto the gate of the cite. And Abimelech abode at Armon.
But Sebul wente awaye to Asol and his brethers, so that they mighte come asayn to Sithither, and the people that was to be Abiinto three bandes of men, and was yered for the when Abimelech hee, that all the men of the towne of Sichem had gathered the fellow together, he wente up into mount Gelon, and all the people that was with him, and toke an eye in his hand, and bowed downe it upon his shulder, and sayde vnto all the people that was with him: Ye ye have sent me to make ye haill, and do as I say. I Thou wilt the people bowed downe every one a bull, and followed Abimelech, and they layd them to the holde, and sit fyre upon men and towne.

The x. Chap. Ho. xviij.

As for Abimelech, he wente unto Thebes, and layd fyre vnto it, and wanne it. But in the myddes of the cite, there was a stronge tower, vnto the which all the men and women, and all the citefins of the cite fled, and shuer it a fter them, and dynned vpon the toppe of the tower. Then came Abimelech vnto the tower, and soughte agaynst it, and came nye vnto the bove of the tower, that he might burne it with fyre. But a woman call a pece of a myllstone upon Abimelech heade, and brake his heade panne. Then Abimelech moke he haill, called the fowle that bare his weapon, and sayde vnto him: Dyane me thy swerde, and kyll me, that I be not sayde of me: A woman hath slayn me. Then hee swaue the swerde him, and he dyed. When the Israelites which were with him, sawe, 3 Abimelech was dede, they gart them a waye every one vnto his owne place.

Then God recompensed Abimelech the evil that he had done vnto his father, whil he slayn his cite sowe and ten brethren like wyse all the evil of the men of Sichem, yd God rewarde them vpon their heades: so the curse of Jochem 3 sowe of Jacoball came vpon them.

The x. Chapter.

But Abimelech there rose up, and 3 ther sowe in Israel. Thela a man of Jachan, and the sowe of pus, the sowe of Dedo. And he dwelt at Samer vnto the mount Ephraim, and indged Israel the and twentye years, and dyed, and was buried at Samer.

After him stode vnto one Jair Gileadite, and indged Israel two and twentye years, and had thirtie seimes, 3 ryngs vpon their cite of 3 foale: and had thirtie cities, whose names are Gazoeth, Jarchas, the cities of Jair vnto this daye, and he is Gilead.
And Jair dyed, and was buried at Camon.

But the children of Israel wroughte wickednes in the sighte of the LORD, and ser-ued Baalam and Ashtaroth, and the goddes of Siria, and the goddes of Sidon, and the goddes of Moab, and the goddes of 3 children of Ammon, and the goddes of the Philistines, and so forth 3 LORD, and serued him not. Thus was 3 unfaith of 3 LORD, for vnto Israel, and he gaue the ome vnder the hande of the Philistines, and of the children of Ammon. And they were and oppressed 3 children of Israel thirtie years longe, all the children of Israel that were beyonde Joibame in the lande of the Moabites, whiche lyeth in Gilead. The children of Ammon also wente oute to Jabane, and foughte agaynst Jabo, Ben Ammon, and agaynst the heate of Ephraim, so that Israel was very sore troubled.

C Then cryed the children of Israel vnto the LORD, and sayde: We haue synned agaynst the, for we haue forsaken our God, & serued Baalim. But the LORD sayde vnto the childen of Israel: Did not the Egyptians, the Amorites, the children of Ammon, & Philistines, the Sidonians, the Amalekites, and the Canaanites oppress you, and I helpe you out of their hande, when ye cryed vnto me: Now haue ye forsaken me, and serued other gods: Therefore will I helpe you no more. And your waye, and crye vnto the goddes whom ye haue chosen, let them helpe you in the tyme of your trouble.

Deut. 32.
10. & 11.

D But the childen of Israel sayde vnto the LORD: We haue synned, & do thou vnto us what pleaseth the, onely deliuer vs out of this tyme. And they put the strange gods fro them, and serued the LORD. And his seale had pynt on the myesty of Israel.

And the children of Ammon called them selues together, and pitched in Gilead: But the children of Israel gathered them selues together also, and pitched at Maipha. And 3 people of the chiefest of Gilead sayde amonge them selues: Who so ouer begynneth to fight agaynst the children of Ammon, he shal be ouer all them that dwell in Gilead.

The XI. Chapter.

A Ephthae a Gileadite was a valiant man of armes, but an halcelowd child. Gilead begat Iephthae. And when he was yf, he had dome children vnto Gilead, and the same wyse child was waye greace, there thynk one Iephthae, and sayde vnto him: Thou shalt not be here in our fathers house, for thou art another womans sonne. This he said from his birth, and dwelt in the lende of Tob. And there reared vnto him vagabondes, and wile out with him. And after a certeyn tyme foughte the childen of Ammon with Israel.

Now when the childen of Ammon foughte with Israel, the Elders wente from Gilead to fetch Iephthae out of the lende of Tob, and sayde vnto him: Come, and be our capteyne, and fighte agaynst the children of Ammon. But Iephthae sayde vnto the Elders of Gilead: Are not ye they that haue me, and haue thrust me out of my fathers house, and now come ye to me when ye are in trouble?

The Elders of Gilead sayde: Thou shalt be our capteyne, and fighte agaynst the children of Ammon, and be our capteyne all that dwell in Gilead. Iephthae sayde vnto the Elders of Gilead: If ye let me goe, I will fighte agaynst the childen of Ammon, and the LORD deliuer them before me. Shall I then be youre heade? The Elders of Gilead saide vnto Iephthae: The LORD be our heade betweene vs, if we do not as thou hast sayde. So Iephthae wile with the Elders of Gilead. And the people made him heade, and daffe ouer them. And Iephthae had all this before the LORD at Maipha.

Then sente Iephthae messengers to the kynge of the children of Ammon, and asked so to saye vnto him: What hast thou done to me, that thou earnest vnto me to fighte agaynst my londe? The kynge of the childen of Ammon answered: Iephthae messenger. Because that Israel toke awaye my londe, when they departed out of Egypte, from Arnon vnto Jabo, and vnto Jordan: I will fighte agaynst them, and they shall be my londe.

But Iephthae sent yet more messengers to the kynge of the children of Ammon, and sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth Iephthae: I had heare thee, na londe, neither from the Moabites, nor from the children of Ammon: For when they departed out of Egypte, Israel walked therein in the wilderness, until they came to Cadon, and I sent messengers to the kynge of the Moabites, and sayde: Let me goe thowen thy londe. But the kynge of Moabites wold not heare this. They sent messengers vnto the kynge of the Moabites, which wold not also. Thus Israel abode in Cadon, and compassed the lende of the Moabites, and Moabites, and came on the east syde of the lende of the Moabites, and pitched beyonde Arnon, and came within the coaste of the Moabites. And I will see to the border of the Moabites.

And Israel sent messengers vnto Sihon the kynge of the Amorites at Heshbon, and asked so to saye vnto him: Let me goe thowen thy londe, vnto my place. Sihon wold not trust Israel to goe thowen the border of his londe, but gathered all his people, and pitched at Jaba, and foughte with Israel. And when the LORD of Israel gaue Sihon with all his people in Israels hande, so that they stene them. Thus Israel came vnto all the lende of the Moabites, and dwelt in it. Thus came Israel to the possession of all the borders of the Moabites.

from Arnon unto Jabok, & from J wyl temple unto Jordan. So J LORDE God of Israel drewe a waie the Amoritcs before his people of Israel, and wold thou conquer them: Ja is not so, yf thy God Ammon gave the might to possess, woldst thou not possess: What is a waie the LORDE Ammon had me to a before us to possess, that thou shalt conquer and take in possession.

But thou hast righte (shalt thou saye) Balac the same of Sephor, the King of J Moabites: dyd he ever go to lanch or fight against Israel: Though Israel haue waite now vnto a chur hūderth yere in Heber, and in the yllage therof, in Aroer and tardie vntillane therof, and in all the citie that lye by Ammon. Why dyd not ye refuse it at the same tyme: I haue not offendid the, righte doest me end to fighte agaynst me:
The LORDE gave sentence this daie betwix Israel and the children of Ammon.

Then came the King of the children of Ammon wold not beare yf wordes of Jephthah, which he sent vnto him. Then came yf spere of the LORDE vpon Jephthah, and he wente thowen Gilead, and Manasse, and thowen Mishra which lieth in Gilead, and from thence that lieth in Gilead, vnto yf children of Ammon.

And Jephthah woted a wome vnto the LORDE, and sayde: If thou wilt deliuer the child of Ammon into my handes, what so euer cometh (first) out at the dore of my house in my waye, when I retorne agayne peaceably from the child of Ammon, that same shall be the LORDES, and J wyl offer it for a burnt offering.

So Jephthah went vpon the children of Ammon to fighte agaynst them. And yf LOR-DE gave them in to his hande, and he shewed them from Aroer vnto the comest tyme. Then hath man comen citie, and vnto the play-nes of yf wyndes a very greates slaughter, and thus were the children of Ammon subdued before the children of Israel.

Then when Jephthah came to Mishra tyme his house beholde, his daughter went out to meet him with tabrettes and dances: and she was his onely childe, & he had daughters none nor daughter. And when he saw her, he rent his clothes, & sayde: Alas my daughter, thou hast made my hearte fowle, and thou hast made me for I haue opened my mouth vnto the LORDE and can not call to agayne.

She sayde vnto her father, yf thou hast speaken thus vnto the LORDE, than do vnto me as it is prescribed out of yf mouth. & a cordinge as the LORDE hath answere the of thyne enemies the children of Ammon.

And she sayde vnto her father: Do thus for me, geue me leave to go downe vnto the mountayne two monethes, that I maye becompe my virginite with my playfellowes. The sayde so thy waye. And he las her go two monethes. Then retorne she with her playfellowes, and bene a yled hit mayden hadde vpon the mountayne. And after two monethes she came agayne vnto her father. And he dyd vnto her a cordinge as he had woted. And she had never bene in daunger of a say man.
And it was a custom: in Israel, that the daughters of Israel shoulde go every yere, and comen for the daughter of Jephthah the Gileadite, foure dayes in the yere.

The XII. Chapter.

And the King of Ephraim made infortion, & wente northward, & sayde vnto Jephthah: Wherefore dost thou to the battail agaynst the children of Ammon, thou hast not called vs, that we mighte go with the: We wil burne thy house and the with fire. Jephthah sayde vnto the: I and my people had a greates matter with yf children of Ammon, and I crieth vpon you, but ye helped me not out of their handes. I am when I sawe: yf there was a no helper, I put my soule in my hande, and wente agaynst the children of Ammon, and the LORDE de-liuered them in to my hande. What for comme ye vp to me, to fighte agaynst me:

And Jephthah gathered all the men in Gilead, & foughte agaynst Ephraim. And the men in Gilead smote Ephraim, because they sayde: Ye Gileadites are an they yf a waie before Ephraim, (and dwell) amonge Ephraim & Manasse. And the Gileadites cake yf fyfte of Jordan from Ephraim. Then was one of yf fugiue Ephraimite dyd saye Le: yf wyndes ouer, yf men of Gilead saye: Ar-thou an Ephraimite: yf he answereth: No, the yf had him saye: Scholerech, & he sayde: Schol-erech, & coude not speake it righte: then they cote him, & slew him at yf fyfte of Jordan, so yf the same tyme: there fell of Ephraim two & forty men. Jephthah lugged Israel six yea-res. And Jephthah yf Gileadite dyed, & was buried in one of the citie of Gilead.

After him lugged Israel one Ephraim of Bethleem, which had threue sonnes, and a many daughter: and his thirde daughter was she fowth to marriege, and thirde daughter cote he from without for his sonnes, and lugged Israel seven yere, and dyed, and great strength is. So when she was every daye important upon him & her words, & wold not let him have rest, his soule was fyrer more in to the death, & he shewed her his whole heart, & sayde vnto her: There can no more rest be upon my heade, for I am a fleece of God fro my mothers wombe.

If I were steele, my strength shoulde depart frome, so that I shoulde be waste, and as a flint stone. Now when Dala & I sawe that he had opened all his heart vnto her, she saw & called for the princes of the Philistines, and sayde Come ye once vnto, for he hath opened his whole heart vnto me.

¶ And came the princes of the Philistines vnto her: & brought her money & cloth in their handes. And she made him to slepe vpon his backe, & called one which shode of his hart haire looses of his heade. And she beganne to wea him. This was his strength departed fro him. And she sayde vnto him: The Philistines vpon the Samson. Now will hee come out of his slepe, he thonght that god sent him. I haue done a feare vnto the, & to my selfe, & to the LORD. Now he departed fro him. But the Philistines to ke him, & put out his eyes, and brought him downe to Gaza, & bound him with fetters, and made him to gyve in the prison. But the hair of his heade beganne to growe againe, where it was shaven of.

¶ When the princes of the Philistines were gathered together, to make a greates sacrifice vnto Dagon their god, and to be ioyfull, they sayde: Our god hath deliuered Samson of our enemy in to our handes. Like wyle when the people sawe him, they praised their god, they sayde: Our god hath deliuered in to our handes our enemy, & destroyed our lordes, he slayd many of vs. Now when their hero was ioyfull, they sayde: Let vs fetch Samson, that he maye make some pastime before vs. Then fetched they Samson out of the prison, & he made pastime before them. And they put him betweene two pillars. But Samson sayde vnto the lab & I let him by the han-de: Let me conde the pillars wher vpon the house standeth. I I maye leane ther vnto.
As for the house, it was full of men & women.
All the princes of the Philistines were there also, and vpon the roofe were aboute a thie thousand men and women, which behelde what pastime Samson made.

¶ But Samson called vpon the LORD, & sayde: The LORDE LORDE, thinke vpon me, & strengthen me but this once O God I beseech the, for I haue my eyes I maye see the in this Philistines. And he toke holde of two mye pillars, that the house shoulde open vnto him. By the one in his right hande, & by other in his left. & sayde: My soule byed the Philistines, & he bowed him selfe mightily. Then fell the house vpon the princes & vpon all the people that were therein, so that there were mo of the slayd which dyed in his death, than he slayd whyle he liued. Then came his brethren downe and all his fathers house, and toke him, and buried him vp, and buried him in the graue of his father Manoch betweene Zorah and Beth-le-haem. He liued Israel thretye yeare.

The XVII. Chapter.

¶ There was a man vpon mount Ephraim his name Micha, which sayde vnto his mother: The thowse thou and thou birth slaynnges which thou hast taken in to the, & swome, and spoken of before my eyes: behold, I haue money in my hande, I haue taken it vnto me. Then sayde his mother: The blessinge of the LORD be vnto thee my sonne. So he gaue his mother the thowse & hundredth slaynnges a gayne. And his mother sayde: What money haue I sanctified vnto the LORD & my hande for my sonne, to make an image: therefore I gaue it the a gayne. I receyved he deliuered & I maye a gayne vnto his mother.

¶ Then toke his mother two hundredth seluynnges, & purchased fourtye of goldfinch, which made an molten ymage, & was afterwarde in Micha house. And thus the man Micha had a gods house, & made an altar by cote, & Idols, and selled & bought of one of his sonnes, & he might be his priest. As the ymage was there no spye in Israel, & no ry man dyd the thinge & was righte in his owne eyes. There was a yonge man of Beth-leem Juda, and he the ymage of Juda, and he was a Leuite, and was a stranger in the land. There was a yonge man of the cite of Beth-leem Juda, no wolle whiche he coude.

And wher he came vnto the cite of Ephraim the house rounde aboute, and ransched at þ dore, and sayde unto þ olde man, which was the good man of þ house? Bynge out the ma which is come in to thy house, that we maye knowe hym.

100. 17. b

Then the good man of the house wroote forth to them, and sayde unto them: Oh no my daughter, do not so wickedly, consideringe this man is come in to my house: Wh þ a not sely folke. Beholde, I have a daughter yit a virgin, and she is aunce hath a concubine, whose will I bringe forth unto you, that ye maye humble them, and be with them as yet hte: but do not sely folke unto this man. Where fore the men wolde not hearken unto hym.
Then saide þ man his concubine and brought her forth vnto them: and they knewe her, and be also shamefull with her: all þ night until the morninge. And when the morninge came she bidde eu, they let her go.

Then came the woman early in the mor ninge, and fell downe at the dore of the ma house that her lord was in, and laye there till it was a lichte. Then when her lord rose up in the morninge, and opened the dore of the house, and wene forth to go on his waye, behold, his concubine laye at the dore of the house, and his handes vpon the thers holde: he saide vnto her: stande vp, let vs go.
Wherefores he gaue him no answer. She rode he her up vpon his asse, as he was up, and wene vnto his place.

Then when he came home, he rode a fure be, and heide his concubine, and cut her the bones and all in to caruole peeces, and fure them in to all the coastes of Israel. Who so ever sawe it, sayde: Such a thinge hath not bene done ner sene, since the tyme that þ chil dren of Israel departed out of the lande of Egypte, vnto this daye. Then as concerninge this, ake yote aduysment, and geue yo counsell, and shew it forth.

The XX. Chapter.

Then wene the children of Israel one and gathered a congregation toge ther as one man, fro Dan vntill Be sai, and from the lande of Gilead vnto the LORD to Mizpa: and there came to gather of all the quarters of the people, and of all the tribes of Israel in to the congregation of the people of God, foure hundred thow sande fote men that bare out þ sword. But the children of Beniamin herbe, how that of children of Israel were gone vnto Miz pa. And the children of Israel sayde: Tell vs, how happened this euil?

Then answered the Leuite the hostbende of the woman that was a slewe, and sayde came to Gibea in Beniamin with my and me, to tary there all night, because the sine of Gibea ges them vnto a gaynell me, an compassed me aboute in the house by night, and thoughte to slaye me, and to sleigh my cubynne, so that she byed a ben robe. I my cubynne, and cut her in peeces, and sent them ee in to euery corner of the wilderness of Israel: for they haue bene an abomi nacion and folke in Israel. Beholde, here are children of Israel aduysed ye well, and this euil matter is haunde.

So all the people gat them vp as one and sayde: Ioma shal go in to his wome departe to his house, but the wome shal be an gaynell vnto her. Let vs cast lot, and rai ment of an hundred, and an hundred of thousand, and a thousand of osten thousand: be, one of all þ crybes of Israel, þ they may sleie sode for þ people, to comert do vnto Gi bea. Beniamin, accordinge to their syn which they haue done in Israel. Thus all the men of Israel beyngt considerate, gathered them felus to geber as one man vnto the dore: and the tribes of Israel first man with all the hundredes of Beniamin, and causid saye vnto them: What maner of wickednes is this, that is done amonge you? Delate it is therefore the men the children of Dan & Gibea, that we maye put them to death, and do awaye the euil out of Israel. I remem ber the children of Beniamin wolde not sleie the wome of their brethren the child ren of Israel, but gathered them felus one of came vnto Gibea, to go forth in battle against the children of Israel.

And the same daye were there num ber of the children of Beniamin out of the tribes, five and twenty thousand: men, that were the sword, beside the cryme of Gib ea of whom there were olden four hundred seamin. And amonge all this people there were chosen out seven hundred men, which were the right hande but the lister, one yit the synge could be they conch an heer, and maye. But the men of Israel, beside them of Beniamin, were aduised foure hundred sande, which were the sword, & were all of armes. And the children of Israel an d wene up to the house of God (in Silo) and asped at God, and sayde: Who shal go vp for vs to geime the batayll with þ children of Beniamin? The LORD said: Ioma shall begyne.

So the children of Israel gat the vnt winninge, & pached euil against Gibea, & man that of Israel were out to fight with Ben Jamin, and for them silens in array to fight against Gibeon. Then fell the children of Ben Jamin out of Gibeon, and slew the same day amongst themselves: & went yetheu sile to the grounde.

But the people of the men of Israel came forth them silens, and made them ready to fight yet more in the same place, after they had prepared them silens the day afore. And the children of Israel wente up, and wepe before the LORD: & sayde: Shall we go any more to fighte with our brethren the children of Ben Jamin? The LORD answered vnto them: And whan the children of Israel came vnto the child of Ben Jamin on 3 best dayes, the Ben Jamin, we kill one of Giben agaynst them the same day, and slawe yett eighte thousand of the children of Israel to the grounde, which will be the sward.

Then werne all the children of Israel up, and all the people, and came to the house of God, and wepe, and stonde there before the LORD. & fasted that daye vntill the euen, and offered burne offringes and beed offeringes before the LORD. And the children of Israel ased at the LORD (the 12th of the covenante of God was there at that tyme, and plenas the foune of Elcasas the sonne of Aaron stode before him at the same tyme, & they sayde: What we go forth any more to fighte with our brethren the child of Ben Jamin, or shal we leaue off? The LORD sayde: Go up, & remouen will I be your then in to yente handes.

And the children of Israel set a prey much agaynst Giben rounde aboute, and so the children of Israel wente up to the children of Ben Jamin at the thirde daye, and for them silens in array, agaynst Giben hit so the other two tymes afore. The came the children of Ben Jamin out agaynst the place, butt out of the cite, & begonne to slay certaine wounded of the people (like as the other two tymes afore) in the sile upon two streets wherof one goeth towards Bethel, the other vnto Gilead vpon a thirde side in Israel. Then thought the child of Ben Jamin: They are smytten before vs like as afore. But the child of Israel sayde: Let vs flye, that we maie promote them out of the cite in to the hye strece.

Then all the men of Israel gat them up from their place, and prepared them selues vnto Saul Thomas. And the hynder ward of Israel brake out of their place, from 3 care of Gaba, and came vnto Giben, twentye thousande chosen men out of all Israel, so that it was a sore battayll: but they knewe not that the ill shold happen vnto them. Then the LORD smote Ben Jamin before the children of Israel, so that the same daye the children of Israel destroyed fyue & twentye thousande and an hundred men in Ben Jamin, which all was the sward.

For whan the child of Ben Jamin sawe that they were smytten, the men of Israel gat them rowins (to flye). For they rushed to the watch, which they had set by Giben. And the watch made haist also, & brake forth vnto Giben, and wente vpon it, and smote all the are in the edge of the sward. They were appointed betwene them silens the men of Israel and the hynder wardes fell vpon them with the sward, whan the smoke of the cite arose. Then whan the men of Israel turned them in the battayll, and Ben Jamin beganne to smyte the wounded in Israel vnto a thirde men, and thoughte, they are smytten before vs, like as in the battayll afore, then beganne there a pile of smoke to arise vnto the cite. And Ben Jamin loked behinde them and beholde the flame of the cite wente vnto heauen. And the men of Israel tomed them, and were smytten vpon the men of Ben Jamin for they sawe that the sward would happen vnto them.

And they turned them before the men of Israel in the waye to the wydereste, but the battayll folowed vpon them. And thus of the cite destroyed they amonge them. And they compassed Ben Jamin rounde aboute, and folowed vpon them vnto Menash, and trode them downe vnto a fore Giben eastward. And there fell of Ben Jamin thre hundred and thre men, which were all men of armes.

Whan the remanetes of Ben Jamin sawe that they could not stand, they fled to ward the southward: & was the stony rock of Silmon

But in the same street they slew five thousand men, and selected upon them three thousand, and slew three thousand of the: and so there fell the same daye of Ben Jamin five and twenty thousand men in which daye they slew, and were all in of armes. Only five hundred men turned backe, and fled toward the wilderness: unto the stone of Rimmon, and abode in the rocke of Rimmon saue morichas. And the men of Jisrael came agayne to the children of Ben Jamin, and smote them that were in the cite with the edge of the sword, both me and cattell and all that was founde: and what seemed was founde in the cite, they cast in into the fyre.

The XX. Chapter.

21 The men of Jisrael had sworn at Mizpa, and sayde: Woman shal geue his daughter to the Ben Jamin to wife. And the people came to the house of God in Silo: above there before God until the eveninge, and lift up their voyce, and wept sore, and sayde: O LORD God of Jisrael, what hath this come to passe in Jisrael this daye: But on the morow the people gat the up early, and builded there an altare, and offered burnt offerings.

And the children of Jisrael sayde: Where is there cry me of the cryes of Jisrael, that is not come up with the congregation unto the LORD? For there was a greatesoche made, that who so came not up to Mizpa unto the LORD, shoulde by the death. And the children of Jisrael were sorry for Ben Jamin their brother, and sayde: This daye so there is a trybe lesse in Jisrael. How will we do that the remnant maye have wyues? For we have sworn by the LORD, that we wyl not geue the wyues of our daughters. And they sayde: Where is there cry me of the cryes of Jisrael, that is not come up to the LORD unto Mizpa? And behold, there was not the name of the slayers of Jabez in Silo.

Then sent the congregation twelve thousand men of armes together, and commaunded them and sayde: Go youre waye, and smite the crymes of Jabez in Silo: with the sword, both the women also and the children, but so that ye do after this maner: Ye shall ye slay all them that are males, and all the women that have lyen with men. And a morrow the crymes of Jabez in Silo: they slew five hundred dampsles, which were virgins, and had lyen with man: those they brought in to the house upon Silo, which lyeth in the lande of Canaan.

Then sent the whole congregation, and caused to call much the children of Ben Jamin, which were in the stone rocke of Jabez, and called unto them peaceably. So the aduise of Ben Jamin came agayne as the same tyme, and they geue them women which they had of the women of Jabez in Silo, and founde no more a fere that maner. Then were the people sorry for Ben Jamin, that the LORD had made a gappe in the crymes of Jisrael. And the liberte of the congregation sayde: What wil we do, that the remnant maye be as wyues also: for the name of Ben Jamin are destroyed, and they sayde: The inheritance of them of Ben Jamin that are escaped, must needs remaine, that there be not a trybe destroyed out of Jisrael: nor maye we geue them our daughters to wives, for the children of Jisrael have sworn and sayde: Cursed be he that geueth a wyfe to the Ben Jamin.

And they sayde: Beholde there is a place fast of the LORD at Silo, which lieth in the north side of the Gosh house, and ende eastward, of the street as a man goeth from Bethel unto Silo, and lieth on the south side of Libe. And they commaunded the children of Ben Jamin, and sayde: Go youre waye, and wayte in the waye. And when ye see that the daughters of Silo go forth by company to dance, geue you out of the waye, and every man take him a wyfe of the daughters of Silo, and go youre waye into the lande of Ben Jamin. As for their fathers and brethren, when they come to leave us, we wyl saye unto them: Be favourable to them, for they have not taken that we wold: but ye knowe that we wold them by law, and it is youre fact.

The children of Ben Jamin did so, and accordinge to their nombre: sette them women from the dampsles, whom they caught by violence, and wente their waye, and dwelt in that same inheritance, and dwelted quiet and dwelt therein. The children of Jisrael also geue them up from thence at the same tyme, one to his trybe and to his kinde, and departed thence, every man to his same inheritance. And so time was that there no young in Jisrael, and there was no marriage by thinge, for none right in his name was.

The ende of the booke of the Judges, called Judicans.

it fortuned that the same selde me at the same reuerend of Doos, which was of the tyred of Elimelech, and beholde, Doos came from Bethleem, and sayde unto the reapers: The LORDE be with you. They answered: The LORDE bleesse thee. And Doos sayde unto his youngman which had the oversight of 3 reapers, Woldest thou be with me? The young-man that was sit ouer 3 reapers, answered and sayde: Is it the damsell the Moabitess, which came agayne with Naomi from the loude of the Moabites. And she sayde: Let me plaie up and gather 3 parte the betwene the sheaves after the reapers: and thus is she come, and hath stonde here ever since the mouyng, and within a litle while she wol-de haue bene gone home agayne.

Then sayde Doos unto Ruth: Hast thou my daughter? Thou shalt not come upon another mans sennet to gather, and go not awaye from hence, but tary with my da-sele, and lets where the thy reape in 3 felde, go thou after them: for I haue commaunded my seruautes that no man touch the. And yf thou be a chysell, go thy way to the well 2 drynt, where my seruautes drinke. Then fell she downe upon hir face, and bowed hir self before to the earth, and sayde unto him: How haue I founde this fauoure in 3 sight to, that thou wouldest knowe me, which am yet a stranger.

Doos answered and sayde unto her: Is it tolde me alreder, what thou hast become unto thy mother in lawe after thy husbands death, how that thou hast left 3 father and thy mother, and thy natyue countrey, and art come to a people, whom thou hast not knowne a feare. The LORDE recompense the thy doynge, and thy reward be perfecte as the LORDE God of Israel, unto whom thou art come to part thy trust vnder his wynges.
She sayde: let me fynde fauoure (say) before thyne eyes, for thou hast comforted me, and spoken friendly vnto thy handmayde, where as I am not yet like one of 3 handmaydes.

Doos sayde vnto her: When it is eateinge tyme, come hither, and eate of the hebe, and dippe thy morsell in the vynerge. And she sat hir downe besyde the reapers. And he se-parched came betwene her, and she ate, 2 was satisfyed, and lefte ouer. And when she rose to gather, Doos commaunded his seruautes, and sayde: Let her gather betwene the sheues also, and let her no dyscomfite; and cast of the sheues vnto her, and let it be that she maye gather it up, and se that woman repay-ue her for it.

So she gathered in the felde vntill now and she shewed out what she had gathered, and it was alreder an ell plus of barley: so she rose it up, and came in to the cite, as she had hir mother in lawe what she had gathered. The reke sent also, and gathered that which was left, whereof she was say-fyed. The sayde hir mother in lawe what she had sayde, and she was a reke that had gathered, and she was a reke that had gathered.

She tolde hir moother in lawe by whom she had laboured, and sayde: The man me, by whom I haue wrought to daye, is Doos. Naame sayde vnto hir daughter in lawe: The blessing of the LORDE be with the, for he hath not lefte of so be mercifull as the thynges: and so the ded. And Naame sayde vnto her: The same man as belongeth to me, and is cure myt synner. Ruth the Moabitess saide: He saide me ouer my head: Thou shalt reape vnto my seruante, yf they haue made an ende of all my land.
Naame sayde vnto Ruth: He hath laboured in lawe. He beate my daughter, that she saue with the damself, lest my man woulde be the in another felde. Thus she tpeke with Doos damself, so that she gaue reueill the barthe husband and the woman house was out, and came agayne to him that in lawe.

The iii. Chapter.

And Naame hir mother in lawe sent vnto her: My daughter, I will pray be rest for 3, as thou shalt make prayer. Doos our synner, by whose damself thou hast bene, casteth up barne newe magge in his barn. Dache thy selfe chaste, and morsell the, and put on thy cleane, and ga domme vnto the barn, so 3 ayme the, yf the heare all eaten and beate.

Wha balayeth him do more than to pe, mark 3 place where he hath bene, and come thou, and eate up the ceuynge of the, and is yet the domme, so shall he tell what thou shalt do. She sayde vnto her what so euer thou shalt vnto me, I will be.

She wente domme to the barn, 2 yf as hir mother in lawe had commaunded her.
And when Doos had eate 2 beate, his man was mury, 2 he came and layd him downe behynde a heape of sheues. And she com-fited, and rose up the ceuynge as his man had layd him downe. Now when it might, the man was a fayed, and moore beate him, and beholde, a woman layd

The first Chapter.

There was a man of Ramethaim Sophim of mount Ephraim, whose name was Elia, & some of Jerodam, & some of Eliab, & some of Tobu, & some of Japh, & was an Ephraim. And he had two wyues, & one was called Anna, & other Peninna. As for Peninna, she had children, but Anna had no child. And of same man wrote up first his cite. at his tyme, to woulshippe and to offer unto the LORDE Jehoaich at Silo. There were the priestes of the LORDE Ophni and Phineas, the two sonnes of Eli. Now when it came upon a daye that Elia came of foote, he gave partes unto his wyfe Peninna, and to all his sonnes and daughter. But unto Anna he gave none deale hereby, for he loved Anna. Therefore, the LORDE had closed his wombe: that by the every yeare, when they were up to the house of the LORDE, and thos she presented her. So she wept, and ate nothing. But Elia her husbande sayde unto her: Wherefore wepest thou, and why eatest thou not? And wherfore is thine hert so grieved? And not? I better unto the then in synner.

D Then stode Anna up, when she had eaten and dronken at Silo. But Elia the priest sat upon a stole by the poste of the temple of the LORDE. And the woman full of bewyn in hir hert, and prayed unto the LORDE, and wept, and weched n more, and sayde: O LORDE Jehoaich, yf thou wilt lette upon the adversite of thy handmayden, and thine upon me, and not forget thy handmayden, and thine gene thy handmayden a name, I will give him unto the LORDE all his life longe, and there shall no ravoure come upon his head.

And when she had prayed longe before the LORDE, Eli cote her to his mouth, for Anna spake in his hert, but lippes onely moved, but hir voyce was not heard. Then thought Eli she had bene drunken, and sayde unto her: How longe wilt thou be drunken? Let come from the the wyue that thou hast by the. Therefore Anna answered and sayde: To my lorde, I am a fowlesfull woman, wyne and stronge drynke have I not drunken, but have peyned out my hert before the LORDE. Counte not thy handmaiden a daughter of Belial: for out of my hert sayde she and shone have I spoken his word.

Eli answered her, and sayde: Go & maye in peace, the God of Israel shall grante thee thy petition that thou hast desired of him. She sayde: Let thy handmayden fynde favour in thy sight. And the woman wema her waye and ate, and loked no more so fote full yand on & minne they gat them up by tyme. And when they had woulshipped before the LORDE, they returned, and came home unto Rametha.

And Elia came laye with Anna his wyfe, and the LORDE remembered her. And after certayne dayes she conceived and bare a sonne, and called his name Samuel, for I have desired him (sayde she) of the LORDE. And when the man Elia wente up with all his household to offer sacrifice and his wyve unto the LORDE at such tyme as I came home, Anna wente not up, but sayde unto her husbande: I will not go up yf I shal be weened: then will I byngc him, that he maye appere before the LORDE, and ob tayne grace for ever.

Elia her husbande sayde unto her: The do as thou thyself best, tary yll thou have weened him: but the LORDE performe me that he hath spoken. So the woman shode, and gave him some sucke, yll she weened him. And when she had weened him, she broughte him up with her, with the bullockes, with an Ephra of fyne floure, and a botell of wyne, and broughte him in to & hon sent the LORDE at Silo.

Therefore the child was as yet but yonge. And they slawe a bullocke, and broughte the child unto Eli. And she sayde: O my lorde, as truly as thy soule liveth my lorde, I am the woman that stode here by & made intercession unto the LORDE, when I prayed for this child. Then hath the LORDE granted me my petition, which I desired.

The 11. Chapter.

2 AND Anna prayed, and sayde Why bett moostly in the LORDE, y my home is exalted in the LORDE.
Why moueth is opened wyde apd myns ene wnto, for I am glad of thy saluacion.
There is no man holy as the LORDE, for withoute the is no thinge, and there is no co-force like vnto oare wds.

Let go yd greates doohtinge of hyr thynges, let go ome of youre mouth that olde bywordes: for the LORDE is a God y knoweth all thysaig. y he hath set a li wnto in oare.
The bove of the myghtie is broken, and the weakes are gyded a bove with strength.

They that were fylled afoe, are silde fse bro: and they that were hongrie, are satisfied: vntill the barren bare senen, and yll she that had many childre, was become weak.

The LORDE slayeth, and geueth life: he ledeth vnto hell, and bringeth our agayne.
The LORDE maketh poore and maketh rich: he bringeth lowe and exalteth.

He catcheth up the meaby ome of the wast, and lieth up y poe is out of the myne, that he may set them amonge the prynces, and to let them in here the seane of benouise: for the foundations and corner of the worldes are the LORDES, and he hath set the compasse of the earth theron.

He shall preferre the free of his sayntes, but y ragodity shal be put to silence in darnesse. For there is no ma that can do agayn-st his aome power.

The LORDES enemies shal be put in feare before him, he shal thider apd the in heant.

The LORDE shall indge the endes of the world, y shal geue strenght vnto his kynge, y shal exalte the home of his anoynted.

3 Elias was weare his waye to Ramath vnto his heafe. And the childe became the LOR-DES mynster before Eli the prest. But Elias somewere the childe of Bethel, and thermenor the LORDE, net the dutye of the prestes vnto the people: but when any man wol-de offre ongher, the prestes boye came, why-le the flesh was seethinge, and had a thie for his fleshe: in his hande, and thrust it in to the candoule, or dyell, or panne, or pot: and loke what he bove feith with the fleshe, & that toke the prest therof. Then byd they vnto all Jisrael which came thither vnto Silo.

wyl receaue no sodden flesh of y, but come.
If any man sayde thea vnto him, I shal sacrafice as it enghete so do this boye, ena sterward take what thine part bestyng, then sayde he vnto him: I shal shal geue me euen now: y no, I wyl take it from thy by violce. Then was the sume of yd but very greates before the LORDE, for y people spake all of y ane of offerynges of y LOR-DE. But Samuel was a mynster before the LORDE, and the childe was gyded with an oure body coe of lynnor. His mother made him a litle coe of sylde, and broughte it as p vnto him as clement cymes, and she wnt up with hir husbando to offer y offeryng as the due season.

And Eli blessed Elias y his wife, and sayde: The LORDE geue the seide of this ma-man, for this good that thou hast sent vnto the LORDE. And they were vnto their place. And the LORDE wysened Anna, so that she ckened a ad hure this sonnes and two doaghters. And the childe Samuel grew up with the LORDE.

As for Eli, he was very olde, and had of all that his sonnes wyl vnto all Jisrael, and how they laye with the women that seued God before the dooe of the tabernacle of witness, and he sayde vnto them: what for do ye this? for I heare of youre eall corusacion of all this people. For so my childe, this in me geueth reioyce that I heare, y as se the people of the LORDE do offend. If any ma synne agaynst a man, the indge can dusse it. But yf any ma synne agaynst the LOR-DE, who can redresse it? Wherfore they haidened noe vnto the aoyce of then sayde, for the LORDES wyl was to slaye them.
But the childe Samuel wnt and grew ap, y was acceptor of the LORDES ofnt.

There came a masse of God to Eli, and sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth the LORDE I showed my saie vnto thy father bove, when they were yet in Egypt vnder y bose of phara, and chose him that was my self before all the tryben of Jisrael, for the presthode, and he shal be offre upon my iltare, and burne in euil, and euer the car-body coe be soie me, and vnto thy fatherhouse I geue all the offeringes of the dobren of Jisrael. Why layest thou thy self then agaynst my sacrificie and misoffen-ges, n hich I commaunded (ro offre) in the habitation: and thou herest the yfsonne more then me, that ye maye se the yfsonne vnto with the furling of all the manoffierynges of my people of Jisrael?

The i. boke of the Judges.

Therefore sayeth the LORD God of Israel: I have spoken, that thy house and thy fathers house should walk before me for ever. But now sayeth the LORD: That be sure for me. But who is ever honoureth me here and there? also: a foolishness & despyse me, they shall not be regarded. Behold, saith the LORD, the time shall come, that I will break thy arm in two, and the arme of thy fathers house, so that there shall no elder be in thy house. And thou shalt see thine adversary in the habitation, in all the good of Israel, and there shall arise be older man in thy fathers house. Yet will I not root out thy name of the memory, at least, but thy name may be consumed, & that thy soule may be for ever: & a greave multitude of thy house shall dye, when they are come to be men.

And thou shalt be taken into the, that shall come upon thy two sonnes Ophni and Phineas: They shall both dye in one daye. And when my will I will raise up a faithful person, which shall do according to it in my heart, & in my soule: unto him will I buy off his house, that he maye allowe a multitude in my name and name. And who so ever remembreth of thy house, shall come and worship him for a silver peny and for a peece of bread, and shall say: I praye the leave me to see peoples porters, that I maye eate a morsell of bread. The iii. Chapter.

And when the childe Samuel mynistred unto the LORD under Eli, the word of the LORD was deare at the same time, neither was there any sight & manifestation. And he continued at the same time, that Eli laye in his place, and his eyes beganne to be dymme, so that he coude not see. And Samuel had layed him downe in the temple of the LORD (where the Ark of God was before) & lampe of God was put out. And the LORD called Samuel. He answered: Behold, here am I. And he came unto Eli, & sayde: Behold, here am I. Jehonah called me. But he said: I have not called thee, go thy waye agayne, and laye thee downe to sleepe. And he wente his waye, and layed him downe to sleepe.

The LORD called a gaunt: Samuel. And Samuel arose, & wente unto Eli, & sayde: Behold, here am I. Jehonah called me. Wherefore he sayde: Thy sonne, I have not called thee. Go thy waye agayne, and laye thee downe to sleepe. So for Samuel, he became not the LORD any yet, & the word of the LORD was not yet shewed unto him. And the LORD called Samuel & chirped hym. And he arose, & wente unto Eli, & sayde: Behold, here am

The iiii. Chap. Ho. xxv.

Jehonah called me. Then perceived Eli the LORD called & dyde, & he sayde unto himselfe thy waye agayne, & laye thee downe to sleepe: and yf the LORD call the any more, then I will speake. The LORD for thy seruante heareth. Samuel wente his waye, and layed him downe in his place. The came the LORD, & stoode, and called late as before: Samuel, Samuel. And Samuel sayde: Speake LORD, for thy seruante heareth. And the LORD sayde unto Samuel: Behold, I do a thing in Israel, & who samer shall heare it, both his eares shall glorie. In a daye will I raise up upon Eli: all that I have spoke concerning his house. I will take for a band, & performe it: for I have tolde him, & I will be Judge over his house for ever, because of the wickednes, & he knewe how shamefully his childe should be hated the fathers, and hath not enclosed so secretly there. Therefore have I sworn unto thy house of Eli, & his wickednes of thy house of Eli shall not be recyded neither so as a curse nor so meane for thy ever. And Samuel laye thre & more, & opened the doores of the house of the LORD.

But Samuel was a faythfull teller the vision unto Eli. Then Eli called him & sayde: Samuel my sonne. He answered: Behold, here am I. He sayde: What is it, & wher is the LORD hath spokẽ unto thee? by he is not so me. God do this & that unto me, yf thou hybe oughter si me, of all that he hath tolde thee. Then Samuel tolde him altogether, & hyd nothinge from him. He sayde: Is so the LORD, let him do what pleaseth him.

Samuel grew up, & the LORD was with him, & there fell none of all his wordes vpon the earth. And all Israel was in Dan into Bersaba, because Samuel was faithfull to be a prophet of the LORD. And the LORD appeared agayne at Silo: for the LORD shewed him selfe unto Samuel at Silo, the word the word of the LORD.

The iii. Chapter.

And all Israel spake of Samuel. And Israel wente south to the battayl agaynst the Philistynes, & pitched besyde the. & hepe sent: & for the Philistynes, they pitched at Aphek, and prepared them selves agaynst Israel. And when the battayl beganne, the host was dryged, so that Israel was smitten before the enemies, & in the chiefe in the fild they slawe aboute a foure thousande men. And when the people came in to the host, the Elders of Israel sayde: Wherefore hath the LORD caused us to be smitten this daye before the Philistynes? & we are not able unto us the Ark of the LORDS co-caused to be the Ark of f couenants of the LORDE Jebaoth, that stode vpon the Cherubim. And in the Ark of the couenant of God there were the two sonnes of Eli, Phini and Phineas.

B And when the Ark of the couenant of the LORDE came in to the host, all Israel shouted w a greates shout, so that the earth shaked withall. But when the Philistines herde y noyse of y shoute, they sayde: what noyse is this of such greates shoutinge in the armies of the hebrues? And when they perceiued y the Ark of the LORDE was come in to the host, they were afrayd & sayde: God is come in to the host. And they sayde moreouer: Wo vnto vs, for it hath not bene thus afore tyme. Wo vnto vs. Who will de-liuer vs fro the hande of these hye goddes?
These see the goddes that smote Egypte w all maner of plagies in the yldernesse. Be stronge now and manly ye Philistines, that ye serue the hebrues: as they haue ser-ued you. Be manly and fighte.

ud. 13. B

E Then foughte the Philistines, & Israel was smitten, & every one fled vnto his cite, & there was a very greates slaughter, so that there fell of Israel thirtie thousande free me, & the Ark of God was take, & the two sonnes of Eli, Phini and Phineas dyed.

Then came there one of Ben Jamin out of the foue frontes of the bastayle, & came vnto Silo the same daye, & had his clothes rent, and had earth vpon his head. And when he came in, he self sat vpon the steate, that he mighte loke toward the waye: for his her-es was sorefull aboute y Ark of God. And when the man came in to the cite, he tolde it foorth: and all the cite cried. And when Eli herde y noyse of the crynge, he ayed: What hastely, and tolde Eli. (As for Eli, he was fourtye and eighthe yere olde, & his eyes were dimme, so that he coulde see.)

AS for the Ark of God, the Philistines toke it and brought it from the stone of helpe vnto Asidob vnto the house of Dagon, and set it besyde Dagon.
And when they of Asidob & of y early his face vpon the earth, before the Ark of the LORDE. But they toke up Dagon, and set him agayne in his place. Yet after whan they rose up early in the morn-face agayne vpon the earth before the Ark of the LORDE: but his heade and both handes had bene of vpon the earth. And they toke the bloode that was there only. Therefore the priests of Dagon, and all they that go into his house, made no more vpon the earth: for the Ark of God was there.

But the haue of the LORDE was vpon them of Asidob, and destroyed them, and smote Asidob and all the hostes that in secret places. When the men of Asidob saw that they were y plagued, they sayde: Let not the Ark of the God of Israel come vnto us, for his hande is to herde vpon y god Dagon. And they sent and gathered all the princes of the Philisanswered they of Gath: & at the Arke of the God of Israel be borne aboute. And they came into the Arke of the God of Israel rounde aboute.

C And whā they hure it aboute, there was a very greates remouere in the cite cheron in the parke of the LORDE, and smote the people of the cite, from the smallest unto the greatest, and destroyed them in the sturere place. Then sint they the Arke of the LORDE into Bethleem. And whā the Arke of the LORDE came unto Bethon, they of Bethon cried: They haue caried the Arke of God aboute vnto me, to slay me and my people.

D Then sint they forth, and gathered all þe pynnes of the Philistynes together, and sayde: Sende awaye the Arke of the God of Israel agayne vnto hir place, that it slaye not me: for there is a very greates remouere with the deid in all the cite, and the hande of God is there. And the people that vnto noe, were synners in secret places, so that the noyse of the cite wote up to be heard.

The Vi Chapter.

And was the Arke of the LORDE in the londe of the Philistynes fouen monethes. And the Philistynes called their pynnes and sorowfulnes, and sayde: What shal we do vnto the Arke of the LORDE: Shall we, wherewith shal we finde it vnto hir place? They so yde: If ye will sende awaye the Arke of the God of Israel, sin be it not amonge emperre, but geue a trespass offeringe: so shal ye be made whole, and ye shal knowe, why his hande departed not from you.

They sayde: What is the trespass offeringe that we shall geue him? They answered: Synne hynder partes of golde, and synne golde myce, accordyng to the nombre of the synne pynnes of þe Philistynes. For there hath ben one maner of plage vpon you all, and vpon your pynnes. That for must ye make your hynder partes of one sashibon and your myce, which haue destroyed youre lout: that ye maye geue the God of Israel the donour: peradventure his hande shal be the lightest vpon you and vpon youre God, and

And loke well: if it go the mane of hit name coaste Beth-Semes, the hath be done to all this greateswell: if not, then shal ye knowe that his hande hath not conchid us, but þe it is happened vnto us by chauce.

The men yod so, and toke two yonge myle fyne, and yod: them to a cart, and helde their calues or heims, and layed the Arke of the LORDE vpon the cart, and the coffer with the golden myce, and with the ymagines of their disease. And the fyne wente straight waye to Beth-Semes vpon one hye strete, and wente on blessinge, and turned nerthe to the ryghte hande ner to the left. And the pynnes of the Philistynes wente a fere than vnto þe coaste of Beth-Semes.

The Beth-Semes were euen reapinge downe their wheate harvest in the valley, and lyfte vp their eyes, and sawe the Arke, and reioysed: so hit. The cart came in to the felde of Josua the Beth-Semes, and there it stode still. And there was a greates stone, and they clene the ymber of the cart, and offered the fyne vnto the LORDE for a trespass offeringe.

And the L. c. took downe the Arke of the LORDE, and the coffer that was by it, wherem the Iacobs of golde were, and set it vpon the greates stone. The men of Beth-Semes offered burnt offeringes, and other offeringes also vnto the LORDE the same daye. And whā the fyne pynnes of the Philistynes had sene it, they departed agayne the same daye towarde Bethon.

D These are the golden diseases, that the Philistynes offered for a trespass offeringe vnto the LORDE: Agood one, Gasa one, Ascalon one, Beth-on, and Bethon one: and golden myce, accordyng to the nombre of all the citacions of the Philistynes amonge the fyne pynnes: from the walled cite vnto the vylage, and vnto the greates plaine felde, wher vpon they set the Arke of the LORDE: which was vnto this daye vpon the felde of Josua the Beth-Semes.

And certayne of Beth-Semes were slaine because they had sene þe Arke of the LORDE, and he sene fyre: they slaine and slaynt men of the people. Then mourned the people, because the LORDE had done a greates slaughter in the people. And the men at Beth-Semes sayde: Whā maye sitte before the LORDE so holy a God: And to whā shal he go sitte? And they sint messengers to yf in habour of Bithon: Jeaurin saig: The

The ix. Chapter.

There was a man of Ben Iamin na med Cis, the sonne of Abiel, the son ne of Zaoi, the sonne of Berchiah, & sonne of Auiab, the sonne of a man of Je rusalem, a valiant man, which had a sonne na med Saul, which was so goodly a yong man, that there was not a goodlier amonge the children of Israel, higher by the heade then all the people. Cis the father of Saul had left his asse, and he sayde vnto Saul his sonne: Take one of the children with thee, & take the asse, & go thy way, and see the asse.
 And he wente his waye thorow mount E phraim, and choose the side of Goliath, and founde them not. They wente thorow the side of Saul, & there they were not. They passed thur the side of Jemini, & fallde the Gath, Saul sayde vnto the childre that was with him: Come let vs go home agayne, lest my father let go the asses, and take care for us. he sayde: Wherefore, here is an honorable man of God in this cite, all that he sayeth, cometh to passe. Let vs go a thirther nam, peraduenture he maye shewe vs our waye which we go. And Saul forde vnto his chil dre: Though we shalde go, what bringe we the man? For the brad is gone out of o' wa ler, and we haue no grese to bringe the man of God, what haue we? The childre an swered agayne, and sayde: Beholde, I haue the fourth parte of a silver Gyke by me, & some wyll we geue the man of God, that he maye shewe vs our waye.

And they came in to the man, & when a man wen te oute counsell at the LORDE, he sayde: Come, let vs go to the Seer: for they that now are called prophete, were called Seers afore tyme. Saul sayde vnto his childre: What haue ye spoken, come let vs go. And when they wente vnto the cite where the man of God was, and came vnto the cite, they founde barnes full of sheepe were gone forth to beate wheat, vnto them they sayde: Ja the Seer here? They answered them and say de: No. Beholde, he is there, make haste, for he cometh into the cite this daye, because the people haue a sacrifice to be to daye in the hye place. When ye come in the cite, ye shal fynde him, afore he go vnto the hye place for to eate: for the people wyl not eate tyll he come. For he shal blese the offeringe, then shal they eate that are called. Therefore go ye make ap, for out now shal ye fynde him.

And when they came vnto the cite, and wente in in the myddes of the cite, beholde, Saul came forth in their waye, and wol de go vnto the hye place. (. And the LOR DE had opened Samuels eare the daye a fo re, as euer Saul came, and sayde: Tomorrow aboute this tyme wyl I fynde a man vnto the aue of the side of Ben Iamin, him shal thou anoynt to be pryncer ouer my people of Israel, thus he maye deliuer my people from the hande of the Philistines: for I ha ue not letted vpon my people, and ther crye is come before me.) Now when Samucl be holde Saul, the LORDE answered him: lo, & he is the man of whom I tolde thee, that he shal be pryncer ouer my people.

Then came Saul vnto Samucl vnto the gore, and sayde: Tell me (I praye thee) whe re is the Seers house? Samucl answered Saul, and sayde: I am the Seer. So wyl we go vnto the hye place: for ye shal eate with me to daye, tomorrow wyl I let the go, and all that is in thine hart, wyl I tell the: and as for the Asse which were lef the daye ago, care not thou for them, for they are founde. And to whom shal belonge all that is pleyn in Israel? Shall it not belonge vnto the, and to all thy fathers hou se? Saul answered: Ym not I a sonne of Jemini, . And of the smallest tribe, and wyl I myde the least amonge all the Tribes of Is rael? Beholde, I am the Seer. Why speakest thou so the vnto me? Samucl tolde Saul & his childre & brought them in to the place where they shalde eate, and saue them some wha that were called, of whom there were aboute an hundred men. And Samucl sayde vnto the co ke: Geue me the pouster that I geue thee, and had the kepe it by the. Then the coke wente up a shulder, and bare it forth, and set it before Saul. And (Samucl) sayde: Behol for it was thyre for the agaynst this tyme.

 ate with Samucl the same daye.

And when they were gone downe from the hye place vnto the cite, he called vnto Saul in the chamber. And they rose up ear

The X. Chapter.

Then toke Samuel a glasse of oyle, and poured it vpon his heade, and blessed him, and sayde: Seist thou that the LORDE hath anointed thee, so be the paine ouer y, his anctification: When thou goest now fro me, thou shalt fynde two men byde. Rachab the gouernesse in the coast of Ben Iamin at Bethan, whiche shal saie vnto thee: The asses are founde, whome thou searcesto fynde: and beholde, thy father hath put the offe out of his mynde, and catcheth thoughte for the, and sayeth: What shall I do for my sonne?

And when thou goest on forth from thence, thou shalt come to the Cite of Thobor, there shall thou fynde the, whiche go vp vnto God towarde Bethel: one beareth the kiddes, another the loanes of bue the thyde a doctall with wyne: and they shall saure the, and geue the two loanes, whiche thou shalt take of their hande. And the spere of the LORDE shall come vpon the, and thou shalt prophesye with them, and shalt be chaunged into another man.

When these tokens now come vnto the, then do what so euer cometh vnder thyn hande for God in wishe. Then shalt thou come before me vnto Bēgal: Beholde, whether wil I come downe vnto the, that thou mayest offer burnes offeringes and holocaustes. Seven dayes shalt thou tarry till I come to the, and shewe the what thou shalt do. And when he returned his shewe to go from Samad, God chaunged him another here, and all the tokes came vnto him so.

And when they came vnto the hill, beholde, there met him a company of prophetes: and the spere of God came vpon him, so that he prophesied amonge them. And whā they which knew him before, sawe him that he prophesied with the prophetes, they sayde all amonge them sūre: What is happened vnto the spere of Cis? Jo Saul also amonge the prophetes: And om y was there, answered and sayde: What is the father: herof came the pceder: Jo Saul also amonge the prophetes: And whā he had left of prophesyinge, he came vp to the hyll.

Saul vnde sayde vnto him and to his childen: Whiche were ye? They answered: To seek the asses. And when we sawe the they were a wyte, we came vnto Samad, then sa yoe Saul vnto: Tell me, what sayde Samuel vnto you? Saul answered him: He tolde me, y the asses were founde. One of y synagome he tolde hau nothyng vnto Samad and sa yoe.

Samuel called the people to gather vnto the LORDE to Thobor, and spake vnto the childen of Israhel: Thus saith y LORDE the God of Israhel: I broughte Israhel out of Egypt, and deliuered you from the hande of y Egipcians, and from the hande of all the synagomes that oppressed you. But now haue ye refused y God, whiche hath ledde you out of all your sorowes and troubles, ye haue saide vnto him: See a kinge ouer vs. Well stonde ye now before y LORDE accordinge to your cryes and bynde.

Now when Samuel had broughte forth all the cryes of Israhel, the crye of Ben Iamin was taken. And when he had broughte forth the crye of Ben Iamin with his rebe, the yered of Israhel was tolde, & Saul the sonne of Cis was tolde. And they sought him, but they founde him not.

Then asked they further of the LORDE whether he was fere come thither. The LORDE answered: Beholde, he hath by him selfe amonge y weilde. Then came they thither, and seched him. And when he was amonge the people, he was by him by the heade then all the people. And Samuel sayde vnto all the people: There is y whom the LORDE hath chosen, for in the people there is none like him. Then gaue all the people a shoute, and sayde: "God save our righteous synge."

Samuel tolde the people all the lawe of the synghome, and wrote it in a booke, and ordeined before the L O R D E. And Samuel for all the people go, every one to his owne house. And Saul wente home also unto Gibea, and there dwelt with him one parte of the host, whose heres God had touchyd. But the child of Belial sayde: What shal this shewe helpe us, and despyed him, & brought him no presence. But he made him as though he were none.

The XI. Chapter.

When 2 Amnonite were up & layd fye unto Jabes in Gilad. And all the men of Jabes sayde unto Naab: Be as one with vs, & we will serve the. But Naab 3 2 Ammonite answered them: I wil make a covenant with you, of this condition, that I maye rebuylle out all youre sighteyes, and put you to shame amonge all Israel. Then sayde all the Elders of Jabes unto him: Give us such daye & respyce, that we maye kinde messengers into all 3 coastes of Israel: If there be chanse no saviour, we will goe forth unto the.

So the messengers came unto Gibea of Saul, and spake this before the eares of the people. Then all 3 people lifte up their voyce, and weep. And beholde, Saul came after the crynout of the folde, and sayde: What ayleth the people that they wepe? So they tolde him the carande of the men of Jabes. Then came the spirit of God upon him, when he had herde these wordes, and his mayn man fore moued, and he loke out people of ozen, and benod them in sinber, and sent them in to all the coastes of Israel by the messengers, sayenge: Who so ever goeth not forth after Saul and Samuel, his ozen shalbe thus deale withall.

Then fell the feare of the L O R D E upon the people, so that they wente forth like a ozen man, and they were tolde at Babel, and of the childre of Israel there were thus benod with andemen, and churche the fildes of the children of Juda. And they spake unto the messengers that were come: Saye thus to the men of Jabes in Gilad: Come come halye have helpe, when 3 2 Ammonite at the worst. When 3 messengers came and tolde this to the men of Jabes, they were glad. And the men of Jabes sayde: Come now we will no come forth unto you, if ye maye be unto us, what so ever it pleaseth you. And on 3 next morow Saul sit the people in the parties, and came into the hoste aborde the messynge warre, and smote the Ammonite till the daye was at the worst. As for those 3 remayne, they were so farsed, that eue of them abode not together.

Then sayde the people unto Samuel: Where are they that saye: "Gibed Saul to raigne over us?" Deliver us from the man, that we maye put them to death. But Samuel sayde: There shal no man dye this daye, for to daye hath the L O R D E given helpe in Israel. Samuel sayde unto the people: Come, let us go unto Gilgail, and renue the synghome there. Then wente all the people unto Gilgail, and there they made Saul king before the L O R D E at Gilgail, and offered beed offerings before the L O R D E. And Saul with all the men of Israel rejoyced there greatly.

The XII. Chapter.

Samuel sayde unto all Israel: Beholde, I have herkened unto youre voyce in all that ye saye unto me, and have made a synge over you. And now, the regeyth your synge before you. As for me, I am an olden and graye headed, and my sinners are with you, and I have gone before you fro my youth up unto this daye. Beholde, here am I: answer ye agaynst me before the L O R D E and his aymtes. If I have comen any mans oze or offe, If I have done any man violence or wronge, If I have oppressed any man, If I have receaved a gifte of any mans hande, and kept it secretly, I will restraie it you agayn.

They sayde: Thou hast done us neither violence nor wronge, neither oppressed, nor eaten oughte of any mans hande. He sayde: The L O R D E be witness agaynst you, and so be his anoynted this daye, that ye have founde nothinge in my hande. They sayde: See the 3 shalbe witnesses. And Samuel sayde unto the people: The L O R D E which made Moyses and Aaron, and brought ye from the lande of Egypte, (as ye have present,) Stande forth now chersow, that I maye to daye put before the L O R D E what the righte is of the L O R D E, which he hath done for you and your fathers.

When Jacob was comen into Egypte, your fathers cryed unto the L O R D E. And he sent Moyses and Aaron to bringe your fathers out of Egypte, and to come thence to dwell in this place.

C And when yt saue that Zabab the kyng of the children of Ammon came agaynst Reg. 2. a you: ye sayde vnto me: How thou, that a kynge shal raigne ouer vs, where as a northeist dinge youre God was youre kynge. Now, there haue ye youre kynge, whiche ye haue chosen and desired: so lo, the LORDE hath set a kynge ouer you. As yf shal feare the LORDE now, and serue him, and hearken vnto his voice, and not be disobedient vnto the mouth of the LORDE, then shal luech ye and youre kynge that raigneth ouer you, folowe y^e LOR-DE youre God. But yf ye hearken not vnto y^e voyce of the LORDE, but be disobedient vnto his mouth, then shal the hande of the LORDE be agaynst you, and agaynst youre fathers.

Stonde forth now also, and beholde the greate thinge, that the LORDE shal do before youre eyes. Ye see now the wheate haruest: yet will I call vnto the LORDE, so that he shal cause it to thombe and raine, that ye shall knowe and see the greate euill, which ye haue done in the sight of the LORDE, in that ye haue desired to haue a kynge.

And when Sammel called vpon the LOR-DE, the LORDE caused it to thombe and raine the same daye.

D Then all the people feared the LORDE greatly and Sammel, and they sayde all vnto Sammel: Praise thou vnto the LORDE by this for thy seruantes, that we dye not: for before our sinnes we haue borne this euill al for that we haue desired vnto vs a kynge. Samuel sayde vnto the people: Feare not, ye haue done all this euill in debte. Nevertheless be paine not: backe from the LORDE, but serue the LORDE with all youre herte, and geue noe asyde after waite, for it profiteth you no-thinge, and can not deliuer you, in so much as it is but a vayne thinge. * For the LOR-DE shall not forsake his people because of his greate names sake: for the LORDE hath begonne to make you a people vnto his sake. But God sayeth that I shalde send vnto the LORDE, to cause from payne for you, and from teachinge you the good righteous waye. Feare ye the LORDE therefore, and serue him faithfully with all y^e harte: for ye haue sene, how greate thinges he hath done vnto you. But yf ye do not, then will yours kynge shal perishe.

The xliiij. Chapter.

Saul had bene kynge one yeare, and Saul had bene raigne ouer Israel two yeares, he chose him three thousand men out of Israel: two thousand were with Saul at Michmas vpon the mount of Bethel, and one thousand with Jonathan at Gibea of Ben Iamin. As for the other people, he let them go euery one vnto his con-try. But Jonathan smote y^e Philistines in the wode: * ready, which was at Gibea. Then came on y^e Philistines a tane. And Saul ou-ersaw to blowe the trompet in all the land, to saye: Let the Gibeon heare. And all Israel heard: saye: Saul hath smitten the Philistines watch, for yf it had bene before the Philistines. And all the people and after Saul vnto Gilgal.

Then the Philistines gathered them together to fighte wth Israel, thine com-pans charrettes, sixe thousand horsemen, and other people besyde, in number as the sande by the see shore, and wente up, and pitched at Michmas on the east syde of Bethel.
When the men of Israel sawe that misserable laye vpon the neckes of the (for the people was come thence) they crospe in to countrye, in to rockes, and holes and mountes. But the Gibeon wente ouer Iordan to y^e landes of Gad and Gilead. As for Saul he was at Gilgal, and all the people were scattered aboute him. Then said holmen dayes accordinge to the tyme appoynted of Sammel. And when Sammel came vnto Gilgal, the people were scattered abowt from him. Then sayde Saul: Why am I heere a burnt offeringe and deed offeringe?
And he offered a burnt offeringe. But when he had made an ende of the burnt offeringe beholde, Sammel came. Then wente Saul forth to meet him, that he mighte salueth him.

But Sammel sayde: What he best thou me? Saul answered: I sawe that the people was scattered abowt from me, and thou comest not but to salueth me: and the Philistines are gathered together at Michmas. Then sayde J. Now shall the Philistines come saide first of the LORD: 2 so I boldened myself, & offered a burnt offering.

Samuel sayde unto Saul: Thou hast done foolishly, and not kepe the commandment of the LORD thy God, which he commanded thee. For if thou haddest not done this, thou hadst prospered thy kyngdome vpon Israel for ever: but now shall not thy kyngdome continue. The LORD hath sought him one a man after his owne heart: him hath the LORD commanded to be prince over his people, for thou hast not kepe the LORDS commandment. 3. And Samuel arose, and went up from Gilgal unto Gibeah Ben Jamin.

4. And Saul numbered the people that was found with him, vpon a fixe hundred men. Saul & his sone Jonathas, and 3 people that was with them, carried at Gibeah Ben Jamin: but the Philistynes had pitched their tentes at Michmas. And out of the host of the Philistynes there wente thre hundred of them to destroye: one turned the waye toward Bethin in the londe of Saul: another went to ward the waye of Bethoron: the thirde turned toward the waye, that reacheth to the valley of Jebelim into the wilderness.

But there was not a synth soude in all the lode of Israel: for the Philistynes thought that the Hebrewes myghte happily make swordes and speares. And all Israel were fayne to go downe to the Philistynes, whose cry man had a plowshare, a mattock, an axe, or aspre to sharpe: and the edges of the plowshare, and mattockes, & foices, and axes, were like burch, and the paynters blont. Now when the daye of the battayle came, there was neither sword nor speare founde in the hande of all the people, that was with Saul and Jonathas: but for Saul and Jonathas his sone there was somewhat founde. And the Philistynes watch were out over by Michmas.

The xliij. Chapter.

5. It fortuned at 3 same tyme, 3 Jonathas sayde unto his lad which was with him, his weapon bearer: Come, let vs go oner to the Philistynes watch: 3 I lye aboue, & thou tolde me his father. Saul dwelleth at Gibeah vnder a Pomgranaterre, which was in the suburbs. And the people 3 were by him, were vpon a fixe hundred men. And this was sone of Achis the brother of Iachob, the sone of Phineas 3 sone of Eli 3 prest of the LORD at Silo, was the merthy one. But the people knewe not that Jonathas was gone.

Between the passages where Jonathas slayeth to go oner unto the Philistynes watch, there were two hopefull, the one on the one syde, the other on the other: the one was called Dages, the other Gemo. And 3 one laye easte north syde toward Michmas, and the other on the south syde toward Giba. As 3 Jonathas sayde unto his weapon bearer: Come, let vs go oner to 3 watch of these unconquered, perature the LORD shall write with vs. For it is as hard matter for the LORD to helpe by many or by fewe. Then answered him his weapon bearer: Do all that is in thine heart, go on thy way, behold, I am with thee, as thou shalt see.

Jonathas sayde: Well than, when we are gone oner to the men, and come within the sighte of them, if they saye: Stande still, will we come to you, then will we stande still in our place, and not go vnto them. But if they saye: Come ap to vs, we will go ap to them, the hath the LORD deliuered them in to our hande, and this shalbe a token for vs. Now when they came bech in the sighte of the Philistynes watch, the Philistynes sayde: Se, 3 Hebrewes are gone out of their holes, that they were crept in to. And the men in the watch answered Jonathas and his weapon bearer and sayde: Come ap to vs, and we will teach you what the matter is. Then sayde Jonathas to his weapon bearer: Come up after me, the LORD hath deliuered them into Israels hande. And Jonathas clamme up with handes and feet, and his weapon bearer a feet him. And Jonathas smote them downe before him, and his weapon bearer stode behynde him, so that the first slayther that Jonathas and his weapon bearer dyd, was vpon a twenty men, with in the length of halfe an aker of sonde, which a pace of open maye ylll some daye.

And there came a fearfullnes and flighte in the host ap on the selde, and amonge all the people of the watch: and vpon the destroyers there came a fearfullnes also and flighte, so that the sonde was in a commore, and there came a slayther toward Giba. And Saul was by at Giba. As 3 Jamin sawe, that 3 multitude gat them awaye, and ranne to and fro.

Saul sayde unto the people that was with him: Tell and se whiche of vs is gone awaye. And when they numbered, beholde, Jonathas & his weapon bearer was not there.

The xiiij. Chap.

Then saide Saul vnto Achis: Drynge hithe the Arke of God (for as thus yme was the Arke of God with the children of Israel.) And whyle Saul was yet speake ynge to the puff, the multitude in the Philistynes hoost ga: a p, ranne, and was greute. And Saul sayte vnto the puff: With drawe hithe han-de. And Saul cryd, and all the people that was with him, and came to the batta yll.
And beholde, many many swerde was a-gynst a noether, and there was a very greate rumoure.

148

The Hebrews also that were with 3 Philistynes afore, and had gone up with them in the hoost in many hyde, tomed them sel-ues vnto Israel which were with Saul and Jonathan. And all the men of Israel which had hyd the selues upon mount Ephraim, whan they herde that the Philistynes fled, folowed a feir them in the batta yll. Thus of LORDE helpe Israel at that tyme, and 3 batta yll lasten vnto Deborah.

149

And whan the men of Israel came forth, Saul charged all the people the same daye, and sayde: Cursed be every man, which catteth hithe vntill toun, that I maye asenre me on myne enemies. Then all the people taiste no bed. And all the people of the ion de came in to the wood. But there laye hony upon the syde: and whan the people came in to the wood, beholde, the hony stonod, but no man put of it to his mouth with his hade: for the people were afraid becaus of the oech. As for Jonathan he had noe heede, that his father had charged the people, and he put forth his staff that he had in his han-de, and dypped the ende of it in 3 hony: m be, and turned his hande to his mouth, and his eyes were lighted.

Then answered one of the people, and sayde: Thy father hath charged the people, and sayde: Cursed be every man that catteth enyth this daye. Therwithes the people were fayre. Then sayde Jonathan: My father hath troublede the lorde: Se how lighte my-ne eyes are become, becaus I have taiste a hile of this hony. If the people this daie had eat of the fruite of thre enemies that they founde, the slaughter shoulde haue bene greater agynst the Philistynes. Yet sime ee they the Philistynes the same daye fro Bethman vnto Bethon, and the people were very weery.

150 151

And 3 people turned to the people, and wote the pe and eyen, and slawe them upon the catch, and ate them with the bloude. Then was it tolde Saul, which be, the people fynde agynst the LORDE, in that they rote bloude. he sayde: De backe me well: roll vnto me now a greute ston.

And Saul sayde to eome: Go abrode and gethe the people, and saye vnto them, that eome drynge hithe oze and his shepe, and slaye them here, e have ye maye tate, and e tyme agynst the LORDE with the wyng of bloude. Then broughte all the people anny one his oze with his hade the iate right ee, and slawe them here. And Saul layde an alace vnto 3 LORDE. Thus is the alace that he layde vnto the LORDE.

And Saul sayde: Let vs go downe afte the Philistynes, by myght, and people that yll it be cleare in anyng, e have we les now e scape. They answered: Do what thou wylle sesthe. But the puff sayde: Let vs go here vnto God. And Saul ayes at God.
Shal I go downe here after of Philistines?
I wille then deluyre the in to Israel hande: I wille then e he answered him: Not as that tyme.

Then sayde Saul: Let all the armyes of the people come hither, and make search afte, in whom is this syne at this tyme. In as truly as God the Gouernour of Israel li-ueth, I thought it be in my sonne Jonathan, he shal dye. And no man answered him of all the people. And he sayde vnto all Israel: Be ye on the ene syde, I e my sonne Jonathan e yll it be on this syde. The people sayde vnto Saul: Do as we pleasesthe. And Saul sayde vnto the LORDE: God of Israel: do that right is. The was Jonathan and Saul taken: but the people wente forth.
Saul sayde: Cast the locusts and my son Jonathan. So Jonathan was take. And Saul sayde vnto Jonathan: Tell me, what hast thou done? Jonathan tolde him, and sayde: I taiste a hile hony with the staff that I had in my hande, and beholde, most I e that fare. The sayde Saul: God do this and that vnto me, Jonathan thou must dye the death.

But the people sayde vnto Saul: Shal de Jonathan dye, that hath bene so greute healy in Israel this nyght? God seith.
As truly as the LORDE liueth, there shal not one hae of his beate fall upon 3 catche for with God hath he wroughte a chiepe me. So the people deluyred Jonathan, that he dyed not. Then wente Saul e p from the Philistynes and the Philistynes, and e out their place.

But when Saul had e quen ed the dome ouer Israel, he soughte a gaird all the warres combe aboute, against the Moabites, against the children of Ammon, against the Edomites, against the Iynges of Zoba, against the Philistynes: and whiche so ever he turned him, he gat victory. And he made an hook, and shote with a Amalechite, and delivered Iisrael from the hande of all those that spoiled them.

Saul had thre sonnes: Jonathas, Ithai, and Malchisa. And these were the names of his two daughters: the first borne Merab, the yonger Michal. And Sauls wife was called Ahinoam, the daughter of Ahimaas. And his chief captain was his uncle Abner, the sonne of Neri, Sauls uncle. And was the father of Saul. And Neri the father of Abner was the same of Bethel.

There was a mightie force warre against the Philistynes, as longe as Saul luyed. And where Saul gave a man that was stronge and more fast than he, he clothed him with him.

The XV. Chapter.

Saul sayde unto Saul: The LORD hath done me as any other the force to be Iynges over his people of Iisrael: he hath now done for the victory of the warres of the LORD. Thus sayeth the LORD of Zoba: he hath remembered what Amalek did unto Iisrael. When he layed wayes for him in the wayes, when he was out of the wayes: so he was against them, and sayeth the Amalechite, and hath them with all that they have, and spare him neither slayeth both man and woman, children: thus sayeth the LORD, a male and a fere. Saul commaunded to the people the same, and numbered them at Talam, and hideth thousande footmen, and ten thousande men of Iuda.

And when Saul came to the cite of the Amalechites, he set a hynder watch by the river, and sayde unto the Amalechites: See you here, departe, and go downe from the Amalechites, the Iynges you not with them, for I have sent mercy unto all the children of Iisrael, whiche departed out of Egypt. So the Amalechites gat them away from amonge the Amalechites.

Then sinned Saul the Amalechites from Sauls unto Saul which layeth over against the Iynges: he took the Iynges of the Amalechites alive, he damned all the people of the edge of the sword. Therefore Saul and the people spared Agag, and the shepe and oxen: they were good and fat, and the lambs, and all that was good, and wolde not damage them: for what was soules and not the Iynges: for they damned.

Then came the wordes of the LORD unto Samuel, and sayeth: I remember me that I made Saul Iynges, for he hath turned him selfe backe from me, and not esteemed my wordes. Therefore was Samuel angry, and cried unto the LORD all that night. And Samuel gat him up early, that he might meete Saul in the morning. And it was cold him, that Saul was come unto Carmel, and had set him up a pile, and was gone abroade, and come downe to Gilgal.

Now when Samuel came to Saul, Saul sayde unto him: Blessed be thou unto the LORD. I have performed the wordes of the LORD. Samuel answered: What crye is this then? he spake in my name, and the crye of open whiche I heard.

Saul sayde: They have brought them from the Amalechites: for the people spared the best shepe: so open for the offering of the LORD. And God, the other have we damned. Therefore Saul answered Saul: Let me tell the what the LORD hath sayde unto me this night: for he sayeth: Save on. Saul sayde: What hast thou wrought? small in thine eyes, most thou dost have, and ge the crye of Iisrael: the LORD hath sayd the to be Iynges over Iisrael: and the LORD hath sent I in to the way, and sayde: So I was to damne the synners the Amalechites, and fighte against them, till thou hast utterly destroyed them: What hast thou not heeded unto the voyce of the LORD, but hast turned thy selfe to the people, and done as thou wilt in the sight of the LORD.

Saul answered Samuel: See I have heeded unto the voyce of the LORD, and have gone the way that the LORD hath said, and brought Agag the Iynges of the Amalechites, and have spared the Amalechites: and the people have eaten of the shepe, the oxen, and the best of the damme, to offer unto the LORD thy God in Gilgal. Samuel answered: The LORD please in sacrifice and burnt offering, as in obeying the voyce of the LORD: Whiche, obedience is better then offering, and to hearken is better then the face of sacrifice. For disobedience is as the synne of witchcraft, and rebellion is as the blasphemy of idolatry. In so much as thou hast refused the wordes of the LORD, he hath refused the also, that thou shalt not be Iynges.

Then sayeth Saul unto Samuel: I have sinned, the LORD hath testified the commandment of the LORD unto me: I have refused the people, and have not unto their voyce. And now forgiue me my synne, & returne with me, that I maye worshippe yf LORD. Samuel saide vnto Saul: I wil not returne backe with y, for thou hast refused the worde of the LORD, vnto the LORD hath refused the also, y then shal-dest not be kyng in ysacl. And when Sa-mul turned hom backe to go his waye, he gar don by y edge of his garment, & cleue it.

Then sayde Samue. vnto him: The LORD hath rent the tyngdome of ysacl from y this daye, & geuen it vnto y neighb, which is better then thou. The one wayner in ysacl also, shal not lye, rather shal he repente for he is no man, that he shal be repente.

¶ He sayde: I haue synned, yet thou reue me now before the Elders of my people and before ysacl, and returne backe with me, that I maye worshippe the LORD thy God. So Samuel turned awaye vnto Saul, that Saul mighte worshippe the LORD. But Samuel sayde: Dunge me vnto Agag the tyng of the Amalechites. And Agag wente vnto him reuerly. And Agag saide: Thou departest the byceresse of deatch. Samuel sayde: Like as thy suster be hath made women childlesse, so shal y moether also be with out children amonge women. So Samuel browd Agag in peces before y LORD in Gilgal.

¶ And Samuel departed vnto Ramath.
But Saul wente vp to his house at Gibea.
Saul. And Samuel sware Saul no more vnto the daye of his deatch. Neuertheles Samuel mourned for Saul, because it reuered the LORD, that he had made Saul tyng ouer ysacl. The xvi. Chapter.

¶ And y LORD sayde vnto Samuel: How longe mournest thou for Saul, whom I haue refused, that he shulde not be tyng ouer ysacl? yll thine home with oyle, go thy waye, I will sende the to ysacl the Bebelesse: for amonge his sonne haue I chosen me a tyng. But Sa-mul sayde: How shal I ge: Saul shal perceaine it, and shal slay me. The LORD sayde: Take the calf from thine drewe, & saye: I am come to do sacrifice vnto y LORD. And thou shalt call ysa: to y sacrifice, so shall I telle the what thou shalt do, that thou mayest anoynnt me him, whom I shall lye we the.
Samuel dyd as the LORD sayde, and came to Bechlem. Then were the Elders of the cite assonnyd, and wente forth to meete him, and sayde: Is thy commynge peaceable? he sayde: Yea. I am come to do sacrifice vnto the LORD. Sanctifie youre selues, & come with me to the sacrifice. And he sacrificed ysa: and his sones, and called ysa: to the sacrifice.

¶ Then whiche they came in, he behelde ysa: though he, so heether he shulde be his anoy-ned before the LORD. But y LORD sayde vnto Samuel: lett not be upon his communaunce, ner upon the callenest of his portion, for Iudge not a man by the sighte of man.
A man hath respect vnto the thynges that in be fore his eyes, but the LORD loketh pon the hert. Then ysa: called Abinadab, & broughte him before Samuel. And he sware this boch not the LORD chosen. Then ysa: broughte Samma. But he sayde: Thou also hath not the LORD chosen. Then broughte ysa: his seven sones before Sa-mul. Neuertheles Samuel sayde vnto ysa:
The LORD hath chosen none of these.

¶ And Samuel sayde vnto ysa: As thou all the childre: he sayde: There is yet one y last of all, and behold, he kepeth the flocke.
The sayde Samuel vnto ysa: Some t can se him to be fadyde, for we wold use sydewe atche cable, vnto the came. Then ysa: & caused him be broughte. And he was all coloured w fayne eyes & of a beawtyfull communance. And the LORD saide: Arise, and anoynt him, that is he.

¶ The wote Samuel his oyle home, & anoy-ned him amonge his brether. And the spere of the LORD came vnto David fro yoye faith. As for Samuel, he gar him vp, & me as vnto Ramath.

¶ But the spere of the LORD bepaned from Saul, and an euill spere from y LORD wered him. Then sayde Sauls seruantes vnto him. Beholde, an euill spere from God veyeth the. & as our lord saie vnto his seruauntes which stonde before him, y shal set a man which can playe vpon the harpe, and instrumente, that when the euill spere of God cometh vpon the, he maye playe w his hande, to ease the withall. Then sayde Saul vnto his seruauntes: Prouyde me an that can playe well upon the instrumente, & bynges him into me.

B Then answered one of the children, & sayde: behold, I sawe a sonne of Iſai y^e Bach leuer, which can playe upon the instrumente, in y^e onest & valiant man, and one y^e hath wofull thinges in matters, & is well fauoured. The Saul ſent meſſengers unto Iſai, ſay- ing: Send me Dauid y^e ſonne, which is with the ſhepe. Then toke Iſai an aſſe wth him, & a beuill wth wyne, and a byd, and ſent it unto Saul by Dauid his ſonne. So Dauid came to Saul, & ſtoode before him, & he leued him well, and he became his wapen bearer. And Saul ſent unto Iſai, ſay- ing: Let Dauid re- mayne before me, for he hath founde ſauo^r in his ſhepe. Then wth the ſhepe of Gad came vnto Saul, Dauid toke y^e harpe, & played wth his hande: ſo was Saul reſpiſhed, & caſt the caddiſſe departed from him.

The XVII. Chapter.

A The Philistynes gathered their hoost to y^e battayll, and came to gether to Becho in Iuda, & pitched their tentes betwene Becho & Aſſa, at the ende of Dania. But Saul & the me of Iſrael came to gether, & pitched in the Oke valley, & prepared them ſilues to the battayll agaynſt the Philistynes. And the Philistynes ſtoode vpon a hyll on the one ſide, and the Iſraelites vpon a hyll on the other ſide, ſo that the wth a valley betwene them.

Then ſlepe there forth from amonge the Philistynes a ſonne bolde man, named Goliath of Gath, ſix cubites and an hande hach hys, and had an helme of ſiele on his heade, and a ſaſt habergeon vpon him, and the weighte of his habergeon was ſixe thouſand ſicles of ſiele, and harniſſe of ſiele hadde vpon his legges, and a ſhylle of ſiele vpon his ſhuldres: and the ſhaſt of his ſpeare was like a weiers longe, and the yon of his ſpeare had ſix hundreth ſicles of yon, and his wapen bearer wente before him.

B And he ſtoode and calid vnto the hoost of Iſrael, and ſayde vnto them: Wherefore are ye come forth to prepare youre ſilues to the battayll? Am not I a Philistine, and ye the ſeruautes of Saul? Choſe one amonge you to come before me into myſſe he can fighte agaynſt me and ſlaye me, then wil he be your ſeruaunte: but yf I can ouercome him and ſlaye him, then ſhal ye be ouer ſeruautes, as be waſerayes. And the Philistine ſayd: I haue ſpoken byſtandely vnto the hoost of Iſrael this daye. Wene me one, and let vs fighte together. When Saul and all Iſrael heide theſe wordes of y^e Philistine, they were aſtonyſhed, and ſore aſtayed.

But Dauid was the ſonne of a man of Ephraim of Bechleem Iuda, whoſe name was Iſai, which had eighe ſonnes, and was an olde man in Sauls eyne, and was well ſeruyed in age amonge men. And the thre oldeſt ſonnes of Iſai were gone with Saul to the battayll. And there names were cheſi: Elad the fiſt be me, Abinadab the ſecond, and Samma the thirde. But Dauid was the yongest of all. So when the thre eldeſt were gone, then Saul toke the battayll, Dauid wente agayne from Saul, to kepe his ſathers ſhepe at Bechleem. But the Philistynes ſtepe forth early in the morninges and acuen, and ſtoode there foure dayes.

Iſai ſayde vnto Dauid his ſonne: Take this Ephra of ſittmentye for thy brether, and theſe ten loades of byd, and ranne to the hoost wth thy brether, & theſe ten new dreſſes, and buyngs them to y^e captaynes, and lette hom thy brether to, whether it go well with theſe or no, and take whate they byd the. But Saul and they, and all the men of Iſrael were in the Oke valley, and ſoughte agaynſt the Philistynes.

Then Dauid gat him vp early in the morninge, and commeyed the ſhepe to y^e keper, and toke his brether, wene his wyfe, an Iſai commanded him, and came to theſe. And the beſt was gone ſuch, and had prepared them: ſilues, and cried in the battayll for Iſrael had ſet them ſilues in aray, and the Philistynes were agaynſt their hoost in theſe aray alſo.

Then leſte Dauid the veſſell that he bare, with the keper of the ſtoffe, and ranne to the hoost, and wente in, and ſalued his brether. And whyle he was yet talſyng with them, beholde, then came o^r the ſtoore bolde man, whoſe name was Goliath, the Philistine of Gath, one of the Philistynes hoost, and ſpake thus aſore, and Dauid herde it. And every man of Iſrael, when he ſawe the man, ſhok from him, and was ſore aſtayed of him.

And every man in Iſrael ſayde: There ye ſene the man commyng vnto y^e her. For he is come vnto y^e her, to ſpeake byſtandely vnto Iſrael. And who ſo aſer myſſe y^e her, him wil he bynges make ryche, and geue him his daughter, and make his fathers hoost ſer in Iſrael.

Then ſayde Dauid vnto the men that ſtoode by him: What ſhalbe done to the man, that smyeth this Philistyne, and turneth this shame away from Israel: for what is he this Philistyne that enured vs to this, that despyeth the host of the Lord? Then the people colde him as a fowle. Thus shall it be done vnto y. In that smyeth him. And Eliah his greete brother heade him talke with the men, and was very wroth agaynst Dauid, and saye: Whie fowle art thou come downe, and why hast thou left a fowle shepe in the wilderness? I knowe thy purpose is to be well ynough, and the rest of the of chine here: for thou art come downe to set the battayll. Dauid answered: What haue I done now? Is there not an occasion? And he turne d him selfe from him into another, and spake accordinge as he had sayde before. Then the people answered him like a fowle.

And when they herde the wordes which Dauid sayde, they colde him in the presence of Saul, and he caused him to be fetcht. And Dauid sayde vnto Saul: Let no man here be discouraged because of him. Thy servant shall go, and fighte with the Philistyne. Then Saul sayde vnto Dauid: Thou art not able to go agaynst this Philistyne to fighte with him, for thou art but a childe: true this is a man of warre from his youth up.

Dauid sayde vnto Saul: Thy seruante keeps his fathers shepe, and there came a lyon and a Beere, and caried away a shepe from the flocke, then wente I forth after him, and smote him, and deliuered it out of his mouth. And when he wolde haue bene open me. I toke him by his leere, and smote him, and slewe him. So thy seruante smere beeth the Lord and y. Beere. Therefore shall this Philistyne this daye come to be as one of them: for he hath despyed the host of the Lord. And Dauid sayde: The Lord that deliuered me from y. Lion and Beere, shall deliuer me also from this Philistyne.

And Saul sayde vnto Dauid: So thy waye, the Lord be with thee. And Saul clothed Dauid with his clothes, and set an helmet of stele vpon his harte, and put an habergeon vpon him. And Dauid girded his sworde about his clothes, and beganne to go, for he had neuer bene used to it afore. Then sayde Dauid vnto Saul: I can not go thus, for I haue not bene used to it, and so he laied it from him, and toke his staffe in his hande, and chose fyue lighte stons, and of the ryet, and put them in his shepards bagge which he had by him, and toke a shepe in his hande, and made him to the Philistyne. And the Philistyne wente forth, and made him to stand, and his rapier came before him.

Now when the Philistyne toke y. fowle Dauid, he chaunge the stone of him: for he was but a childe, well coloured, and was fallen to the earth. And the Philistyne sayd vnto Dauid: Am I a dogge when, that thou comest vnto me with a staffe? And he answered Dauid by the word of God, and sayde vnto Dauid: Come hither to me, I will geue thee flesh to the foules vnder the heauen, and to the beastes in the fildes. Then Dauid sayd vnto the Philistyne: Thou comest to me with sword, speare and shilde. But I came vnto thee in the name of the Lord Zabaoth the God of the host of Israel, whom thou hast despyed. This daye shall the Lord be thy God, and I maye smyte thee, and take thy heade from thee, and geue the bodie of the host of the Philistyne this daye vnto the foules vnder the heauen, and to the wyde beestes vpon the earth, that all the lande maye knowe. I shall haue a God. And all this congregacion shall knowe, that the Lord is with thee, and thou shalt beare the blame. For the battayll is the Lordes, and he shall deliuer vs into anre handes.

Then when the Philistyne gat hurty, and wente forth and drew nye vnto Dauid, Dauid made haste, and ranne from y. host vnto the Philistyne. And Dauid put his hande in his bagge, and toke out a stone, and thow it with the syngre, and hit the Philistyne in the fore heade, so that the stone faste in his fore heade, and he fell downe to the ground vpon his face.

So Dauid came to y. Philistyne with the syngre and with y. stone, and smote him, and slewe him. And for so much as Dauid had no sworde in his hande, he came and styke ouer y. Philistyne, and toke his rapier

he, and bane it out of the sheeth, and strowe him, and smite of his heade withall. When the Philistynes sawe what the strongest of them was dead, they fled. And the men of Judah and Juda gat the vp, and cryed and reioyced upon the philistynes, till they came unto the alley, and to the Portes of Ebron. And the Philistynes fell downe slayed into Gath and to Ebron. And the children of Israel turned agayne from chastyng of the Philistynes, and spoked their censures. But Dauid cote the heade of the Philistyne, and broughte it vnto Iherusalem, as saie attemore, he layed it in his tent.

When Saul saue Dauid go saith agast the Philistyne, he saide vnto: Abner his chiefe captaene: Abner, whose sonne is this child? Abner sayde: As truly as thy soul liueth O Kinge, I rooe not. The Kinge sayde: Doe the whose sonne the yongeste is. How when Dauid came agayne from the slaughter of the philistyne, Abner cote him, and broughte him before Saul, and he had the philistynes heade in his hande.
And Saul sayde vnto him: Whose sonne art thou, then yongeman? Dauid sayde: I am a sonne of thy seruante. For the Beth-lehemite.

The XVII. Chapter.

As when he had made an ende of calling with Saul, the soule of Jonathas was bounde with the soule of Dauid, and Jonathas loued him as his owne soule. And Saul cote him the same daye, and let him goe agayne to his fathers house. And Jonathas and Dauid made a covenant togethe, for he loued him as his owne soule. And Jonathas put of his arme ore that he had vpon him, and gave it vnto Dauid, and his cloke, his sword, his bowe, and his girdell. And Dauid wente forth whither so euer Saul sent him, and behaued himselfe wysely. And Saul set him out the meane of warre, and he pleased all the people well, and all the seruantes of Saul.

It returned, that when Dauid was come agayne from the slaughter of the Philistynes, the women wente out of all the cities of Israel with tymes and daunces, to metalyng Saul, with tymes, with mynch, and with fyddels. And the women singe vnto another, and played & sayde: Saul hath smitten his thousands: but Dauid has breched him.

Then was Saul very wroth, and he was wroth against him sore, and he sayde: They haue as theye been thousands vnto Dauid, and but one thousande vnto me: what shall he haue more but the tyngedome? And when that daye was, Saul lette Dauid fortye and seuen daies.

The next daye after came the euell spie-ce of God vpon Saul, and prophesied in myndes of the house. But Dauid played on the instrumente with his hande, as he was wonted to do. And Saul had a iaulynge in his hande, and cast it, and thought: I will smyte Dauid fast to the wall. Neuertheless Dauid turned himselfe wyse awaye from him. And Saul was a frayed of Dauid: for the LORDE was with him, and was departed from Saul. Then Saul put him from him, and let him be: because ouer a thousand men, and he went out and in before the people. And Dauid behaued himselfe wyse-ly in all his doynges, and the LORDE was with him.

Now when Saul sawe that he was so overcomynge wyse, he stode in feare of him.
But all Israel and Juda loued Dauid, for he wroughte out and in before them. And Saul sayde vnto Dauid: Beholde, my greatest daughter Michol: wyl I geue thee to wyfe besetunge no more, because the matters of the LORDE. For Saul thought: my hyde shall not be vpon him, but the hande of a Philistyne shall. And Dauid answered Saul: Who am I? It is as my life is the kynred of my father in Israel: what I should marrye the kinges daughter?

But when the yme came, that Michol daughter of Saul should haue bene geue vnto Dauid, she was geuen vnto Achis the Gathite to wyfe. Neuertheless Michol Sauls daughter loved Dauid. When this was tolde Saul, if matter pleased him well, he sayde: I wyl geue him her, if she maye be a sware vnto him, that shee shall be of a Philistynes maye come vpon him. And he sayde vnto Dauid: This daye shall thou be my daughter in lawe, if thou shalt come. And Saul spoke vnto his seruantes: Take of Dauid certaine saye: Beholde, the sarge hath pleased me, and all his seruantes love the, and theye shall be thy sarge daughter.

And Sauls seruantes spake these wordes in the eares of Dauid. But Dauid subet thynke ye it: but a shall make, so many the tynges daughter: As for me, I am but a poore simple man. And Sauls seruantes tolde him agayne, and sayde: Such wydes hath Dauid spoken. Saul sayde: Then saye ye vnto Dauid: The tyngedome no more but, but only in hande with the tynges of the philistynes, that vengeance maye be taken of the kynge enemies. Hamble Saul thoughte to cause Dauid to be slayne by the hande of the philistynes. Then he assemauned before Dauid these wordes, and Dauid was a cōfession with the matter, so maye the kynge dongher.

¶ And after a fowle dayes Dauid gat him up, and wente with his men, and smote two hundred men amonge the philistynes. And Dauid beaght thei swordes, and made thei nombre sufficiente vnto the kynge. & he mighte maye the kynge dongher. The Saul gaue him his dongher Michol his wyfe. And Saul saue and perceaued, that the LORD was wth Dauid. And Michol Saules dongher loved him. Then was Saul the more a fayer, and became his enemye so longe as he lyued. And when the prynces of the philistynes were fowle, Dauid behaued him selfe more wysly then all the seruauntes of Saul in thei outgoings: so that his name was in greates reputation.

The XIX. Chapter.

¶ Saul spake to Jonathan his sonne, and to all his seruauntes, that they shoulde kyll Dauid. & leuethelst Jonathan the sonne of Saul loued Dauid exceedingly, and colde him, and sayde. Saul my father goeth aboute to slaye the. & I feare the therfore. I praye the in the morninge and abyde in secrette, and hyde the. But I wyll go forth, and stande beside my father in the fildes where thou art, and wyll speake of the vnto my father: and what sauer I shal drynge the worde.

And Jonathan repoyred 3 best of Dauid vnto Saul his father, and sayde vnto him: Oh let not the kynge synne agaynst his seruaunt, for he hath not synned agaynst the, and his doynge is very necessary for the, he put his lyfe in his hande also, and smote the philistynes, & the LORD dyd a greates healtie vnto all Israel: this hast thou sene, and reioysed therof. Wherefore wylt thou then of fende agaynst innocent bloude, that thou woldest kyll Dauid without a cause? Then hearken Saul vnto the voice of Jonathan and sware. As truly as the LORD lyueth, he shal not dye. Then Jonathan called Dauid, and tolde him all these wordes, and broughed him to Saul, so that he was in pisenet lye as afore tyme.

¶ But there arose a battayll agayn, and Dauid wente forth, and fought agaynst the philistynes, and smote a greates slaughter, so that they fled before him & leuethelst 3 enemies of the LORD came vpon Saul, and he was in his house, and had a sword in his hande. But Dauid staid vpon the instrument with his hande. And Saul thoughte with the landinge to slay Dauid in the wall. Howbeit, he wente as he froward, and the landynge smote in the wall. And Dauid fled, and escaped that night.

¶ And with standinge Saul sent his men saungers to Dauid house, that they shoulde laye wayes for him, and kyll him in the nyngel. Michol Dauides wyfe tolde him this, and sayde: If thou saue not thy soule this night, thou shalt dye tomorrow. Then Michol let him downe thowse the wyndow, so that he wente his waye, fled, and escaped. And Michol toke an ymage, and layde in she bed, and laide a goates skynne a chere of it, and couered it with cloches. Then Saul sent messengers, to fetch Dauid. But she sayde: He is sicke. ¶ And Michol sent messengers to se Dauid, & sayde. I haue hid him up to we touch the bed, that he maye be slayne.

¶ Now when the messengers came, to holde the ymage in the bed, and a goate skynne at the head of it. Then sent Saul vnto Michol. Why hast thou a begynne, and let myne enemye go, that he mighte escape? Michol sayde vnto Saul. He sayde vnto me: Let me go, or I wyll kyll the. & for Dauid, he fled, and escaped, and cam to Samuel vnto Ramath, and colde him all 3 Saul had done vnto him. And he wente to Samuel, and they abode at Ramoth.

¶ And it was tolde Saul: & he holde, Dauid was at Ramoth in Ramath. Then Saul sent messengers to fetch Dauid. And they saue a company of prophetes prophesyinge, and Samuel had the ouersight of them. Then came the spere of God vpon the messengers of Saul, so that they prophesied also.

¶ When this was tolde Saul, he sent messengers, which prophesied likewise. Then sence he messengers the thyrde tyme, and they in like maner prophesied. Then wrote he himselfe also vnto Ramath, and when he came to the greates well which is at Secho, he arde and sayde: Where is Samuel and Dauid? Then was tolde him he holde, at Ramoth in Ramath. And he came thither, and vnto Ramoth in Ramath. And 3 spere of God came vpon him also, and he wrote & prophesied till he came vnto Ramoth in Ramath. And he put of his clothes, & prophesied likewise before Samuel, till he came

2 And sicth first Traioeth in Ramath, and came, & spake before Jonathan: What haue I done? What trespass haue I made? What haue I sinned in?
I sighte of thy father, & he sekerh to kyll me: he saye vnto him: God soch yo, thou shalt not dye. Beholde, my father doeth nothings, rather greues ner small, but he sheweth it be his myne cares. Wherefore shoulde my father seke thy deeth fro me? He shal not be so. The fourth Dauid a gayne, and sayde: Thy father knoweth well. & I haue founde fauour in y sighte, therefore shal he thynt. Jonathan shal not blame of this, lest it greue him. We shalt as truly as the LORDE sayeth, and ca myn as I shoulde saye, there to lue one step betwene me & deaeth. Jonathan sayde vnto Dauid: I wil do for the what so euer thy heart desireth. Dauid sayde vnto him: Behol de, betwene us is the newe alliance, that I shal be seker as the cable with the kynges. Let me hidermy selfe thysore in the folde vnto the 3 thirti daye at euen. If thy father them are of mine, saye. Dauid prayde me, & he might be come to Bethleem vnto his cite, for all his daye hath chere a yearly sacrifice. If he saye them: He is good, & sheweth it well with y seruante. But yf he be wroth, thou shalst seeke to chere he intendeth well. Do mercy chere vpon y seruante: for with me y seruante hath chere made a councill in the LORDE. But yf there be any trespass in me, then slaye me thy selfe, for why wol dest thou dayne me vnto thy father?

Jonathan sayde: Thou be farre from the,
that I shoulde percause my father to inuen iently well agaynst the, and shoulde not tell the. Dauid sayde: Who shal dayne me now?
But yf thy father greue the an hatde answer: Jonathan sayde vnto Dauid: Come, let us go forth vnto the folde. And they went out betwene y folde. And Jonathan sayde vnto Dauid:

LORDE God of Israel, yf I perceiue by my father tomorrow on the thirde daye, that a greath well with Dauid, & sende nor wrothe, and shewe the before thine eyes, then let the LORDE do this and that vnto Jonathan. But yf my father dayne in will agaynst the, I wil shewe it before thi ne eyes also, and let y go, that thou mayest depart in peace.

The xx. Chap. Fo. xxxii.

And the LORDE be with the, as he hath bene with my father. If y do it not, then be thou no mercy of the LORDE on me, while I lye, no nor when I dye, and place thy mercy fro my house for euer. And when the LOR DE togeth out y enemies of Dauid, carry me out of the londe, then let Dauid requere Jonathan also with his house, and the LOR DE requyre it of the hande of Dauid's ene mies.

And Jonathan perceiued further, and swore vnto Dauid (he loved him so well: for he loved him euen as his owne soule) and Jo nathas sayde vnto him: Tomorrow y new alliance, and thou shalt be as a star: thou shalt be wached where thou wilt mount to sit. But on the thirde daye come downe so one, & go in to y place where thou hydest the on the word thys, & see the downe by the si ne of Bethleem: wil I shewe the arrowe an y side, as though I wolde shate at a mark: and beholde, I wil sende the hys, and saye vnto him. Go sele y arrowe. If y saye now vnto the lad: Lo, the arrowe lyeth betwene de betwene y, seche them, then come thou, for tis peace, and there is no perill, as truly as the LORDE sayeth. But yf I saye vnto the laide beholde, the arrowe lyeth yonder: ac de before he, then go thou thy waye, for the LORDE hath lesche go. As for that word thou and I haue spokt together, the LORDE is betwene me and the forever.

Dauid hid himself in the folde. And when the new alliance came, the kynges sat him downe at the table to eate. When the kynges had set him downe in his place as he was wont by the wall, Jonathan stode vp, but he sat him downe besyde Saul. And Dauid was mysse in his place. And Saul was not ching that daye, for he thought: There is some hat happend vnto him, that he is not cleane. On the seconde daye of the new all ne, & when Dauid was mysse in his place, Saul sayde vnto Jonathan his seruant: What foul is not the some of y? For come to the ta ble necher yf thys daye nor to daye.

Jonathan answered Saul: he prayde me that he might go vnto Bethleem, and saye: be: Let me go, for sore dyed hath a sacri fice to do in the cyte, and my wythe hath sine for me himselfe. I haue founde fauour now in thy sighte, I wil go, and by my kithman before is he not come to the kynges table. Then was the kyng wroth at Jonathan, and sayde vnto him: Thou art not, and unwise, I knowe howe that thou hast chose the some of y? For, so the shewe of chey selfe and of y^e shamefull mocher. For so longe as y^e forme of Jhis lynch wth careth neither thou nor thy kinglydome shal respecte. Stande now therfore, and cause him to be stricken with me, for he is a childe of death.

1 Re. 17

Jonathas answered his father Saul and sayde unto him: Wherefore shal he dye? what hath he done? Then shoo Saul the landyng at him, that he might smite him. The parcedd Jonathas, that his father was verry detoured of evil Dauld, and he rose up from y^e table in a wrothfull displeasure, and at so bled y^e sonne seonde daye of the new Moneth for he was wred because of Dauld, that his father had done him soch dishonour.

S On the morow came Jonathas forth in to the fildes, at the tyme appoynted of Dauld, and a litle day with him, and sayde unto y^e boy: Runne and see me the arrowe which y^e shoo. When the boy ranne, he shoo an arrowe at him. And when the boy came to the place whither Jonathas had shot y^e arrowe, Jonathas cryed after him, and sayde: The arrowe is yeth yonderwarde before the, And he cryed after him agayne: haile the, and stonde not still. Then the boy gathered up Jonathas arrowe, and brought it them to his lorde. And the boy knewe nothyng, save ly Jonathas and Dauld knewe of y^e matter.

Then Jonathas gaue his boy his weapons and sayde unto him: Go thy waye, and carrye them in to the cite. And when the boy was gone, Dauld arose from the place towards the fouth, and fell upon his face to the ground, and worshipped theermyne, and they kissed one another, and wept together. But Dauld most specially. And Jonathas saide vnto Dauld: Go thy waye in peace. What forer we both have sworne y^e spotte together in the name of the LORD, the LORD be witnesse become me and the, become my fide and y^e fide for ever. And Jonathas gaue him up, and came in to the cite.

And came to Flober to y^e prest Ahimelech. And Ahimelech was asforyd, when he sawe Dauld commynge, and sayde vnto him: Why comest thou alone, and noman with the? The prest answered Dauld, and sayde: I have no comen bread vnder my hande, but holy bread, if the yonge men have onlye ynched them selves from women. Dauld answered the prest, and sayde vnto him: The men were kepte thus dayen from us, and we departed fouth, and the yonge men of iden were holy. But this waye is vnholy, nevertheless it shalbe sanctified to be y^e holy instrument. Then the prest gave him y^e holy, in so much as a there was none dyed but the shewbreads, which were layd up before the LORD, that there might be ther fresh breades for the mornynge daye which toke them awaye.

But the same daye was there a ram sent in to before the LORD, the name of Sauls warres, named Doeg an Edomite, y^e mostest amonge Sauls hyemen. And Dauld sayde vnto Ahimelech: Is there not a sword or a sword hys vnder thine care, whiche thou hast taken my frende and weapens with me, for the kynge mynster requyred hit. The prest sayde: The sworde is y^e Goliaths phyllyme, wherewith thou smocest in the dale valley, is here wrapped in a cleth, layd up the everybody care. If thou wylle have it, take it, for here is a cleth none better. Dauld sayde: There is not such another, geve me it.

And Dauld gaue him up, and slayd Saul, and came to Achis y^e kynge of Gath. But Achis seruaunt sayde vnto him: Is Dauld the kynge of the sonde, as thou sayd thyng in the daunce, and sayde: I had hit my fytter his chensande, but Dauld hit cent thousande. And Dauld toke the sword to hert, and was sore asfayed of Achis the kynge of Gath, and altered his countenance before them, and shewed him selfe as he had bene madde in their houses, and flattered towards the booke of the gaze, and he flattered vnto him: Dauld was his deare. He sayde Achis vnto his seruaunt: Dauld is y^e fytter the man is out of his wye, wherfore ye brought him hither: Gaue y^e to him madde men, that ye have brought him hither to be madde before me: Shalbe he come in my house?

 And Dauid wente from thence towarde sayde unto the kyng of the Moabites: Let my father and my mother go out and in amonge you, tyll I see what God will do with me. And he lette them before the kyng of Moabites, so that they remayned by him, so longe as Dauid was in the castell. Themervailed the prophet Gad sayde unto Da-and come into the londe of Iuda. Then departed Dauid, and camen to the wodd of hareth. And Saul herde that Dauid and the men which were with him, were come ¶ Then whyle Saul dwelt at Gibeon under a grene in Rama, he had a Javelinge in his hande, and all his serrauntes stode by him.

 Then sayde Saul unto his serrauntes what stode by him: Where ys children of Jarmen Shal the sonne of Jai? geve hit to me and wy-rerde me you all, & make you all capty-ves over this dauid and ever his kynde, that ye have all conspyred agaynst me, and there is no man that sheweth it before myne eares, as I see muche as my sonne also hath made a ¶ Then answered Doeg the Edomite which stode byside Sauls serrauntes, and sayde: ¶ I sawe the sonne of Jai, that he came in which axed counsell at the LORDE for him, and gave him fode, & the swerde of Goliath

¶ Then sawe the kyng, and caused to call

 Dauid, which is faithfull, and hath married the kynges daughter, and goeth in churche obedience, as honorablye eaten in shire house?

¶ So he began then first this daye to axe counsell at God for him: That he shoulde save him. And after that he laid a schackel upon his serrauntes chooge in all my fathers house: for thy serraunte knewe: not of all these thinges ne-cher small nor greate. Tenech the kynges fader: Ahimelech thou must dye & death, thou and all thy sachers house. And the kyng sayde to his fowre men that stode by him: Turne you, and slaye the prestes of the LOR-DE, for thei have a wayer Dauid also.

¶ Then whyle Doeg the Edomite turned him, the serrauntes layde their handes upon the prestes of the LORDE, & slaye them. Then sayde the kyng unto Doeg: Turne the, and lye the prestes. Doeg the Edomite turned him, and slew the prestes, so that the same daye there dyed fowre & fowre score men, which were overbodys coters of hymen. And then the kyng of the prestes smote he with the core of the swerde, both men and women, chy-lders and such yonges, open and asshe, and shewe.

¶ Tenech these that escaped a sonne of Ahimelech (the sonne of Achibod) whose name was Abiathar, and fled after Dauid, and tolde him that Saul had slayne the prestes of the LORDE. Dauid sayde unto Abiathar: I knowe well the same daye that Doeg the Edomite was there, that he wolde sle Saul. I am slyght of the soules of thy fathers house. Whye thou with me, and fere not, he that layeth wayer for my lyfe, shall laye wayer for thyn also, and thou shalt be preserved with me.

The XXIII. Chapter.

¶ And it was tolde Dauid: Beholde, the Philistines fight agaynst Geglai, and spoyle the barnes. Then Dauid aroose at the LORDE, and sayde: Shal I go, & fere these Philistines? And the LORDE sayde unto Dauid: Do thy waye, thou shalt fere the Philistines, and delivere Geglai. But men that were with Dauid sayde unto him Beholde, we are here in shire in Jemey, and shall we goe Geglai into the booshe of the Philistines? The Dauid aroose at the LORDE agayne. And the LORDE answered him, sayde: O geve the downe to Geglai, for I will delivere the Philistines in to thy hande.

¶ So Dauid wente with his men unto Geglai, and fere the agaynst the Philistines, & dwale awaye their cattell, and smote them wa greete slaughter. Thus Dauid delivere them of Geglai. For whan Abiathar the sonne of Ahimelech fled unto Dauid at Geglai, he broughte the overbodys cotes with him.

The i. bofe of the fynes.

The was it selde Saul, that Dauid was come to Gethis, and he sayde: God hath beliuered him in to my hand, for he is thus fast in now that he is come in to a citie which is kept vnder gates and barren. And Saul confessed so to call all the people downe to 3 bar-nabai into Gethis, 3 they might be slaine: Dauid and his men. But when Dauid perceived 3 Sauls neede to euill a gainst him, he saide vnto to Abisai 3 piess. Dreyne me with thee quoth he. And Dauid sayde: O LORD God of Israel, thy servant hath herde that Saul seeketh aboue to come fero to destroye the care of Gethis for my sake. Shal the cryscine of Gethis be yeres me ouer in to his han-des: And shal Saul come downe, as thy seruant hath herde: Tell thy seruants this, O LORD God of Israel: And he: LORD saies: Shal come downe.

David sayde: Shall the cietyens of Cegila buye me and my men in to Cegila bandes? The LORD sayde: yee. The David gaue him up with him, of whom there were some six hundred, he maked wher they coulde. Now when he was tolde Saule that David was escaped from Cegila, by his countrymen. So for David he remained in the wilderness in the casell, and abode upon the mount in the wilderness of Siph. But Saul sought him as long as he liued. Whereby God gaue him not in to his hand. And David sawe that Saul was gone forth to seek to kill him. And David was in the wilderness of Siph, in the rock.

Then Jonathan the sonne of Saul gaue him up, and receiued Dauid in the wood, and strengthened his hands in God, and sayed vnto him, I will see my fathers haile handes shall not finde y: and thou shalt be King ouer Israel, so will I be the next vnto thee. And y my father thinke me right well. And they made a cōuenaunt both together before the LORD. And Dauid remayned in the wood. As for Jonathan, he went home a gaine.

But he, Silphites went vnto Saul vs to Strach, and sayd: I neuer saw hyd with vs in the castle in y^e woodd, vpon mount Zambell, whiche lyeth vpon the tigher hande of the wilderness: Let the kynge come downe now therfore according to all the beſie of his hert, and we will helpe him in the kynge hande. Then sayde Saul: Blessed be ye of the LORDE, that ye haue had pytie v

Then get they them up, and went the waye vnto Saph before Saul. And Saul and his men were in the wilderness of Manen in the side on the right hand of the wilderness. Then when Saul came thither with his men to see him, it was too late, and he gat him vnto the rock, and abode in the wilderness of Ephraim. When Saul herde that he was vnto a further side the wilderness of Ephraim. And Saul with his men wente on the one side of the hill Dauid, & his men on the other side of the hill. And when Dauid was haile to see for him Saul, Saul with his men compassed about Dauid and his men, that he might take him. Then when these came a messenger vnto Saul, and sayde: Make heiss and come, for the philistines are fallen in to the looke. So Saul turned him from chasing of Dauid, and wente agaynst the philistines. There is a place called = Sela Manabeth. And Dauid wrote up from thence, and abode in the castell at Geth Gador.

The XXIII Chapter.

Un derthan Saul came agayne from the Philistines, it was collected by droven men out of all Israel, and meteth rose vp alfa after him, and wene out of the cave, and cryed behynde Saul, a sayde: My lord the Iyng. And Saul lot id behynde him. And Dauid bowed downe his face to the earth, and worshipped, and sayde unto Saul: Why persecutest thou unto the wordes of men, that saye: Dauid sleth chy myssfor-tune: Beholde, thine eyes se this daye that the LORDE gave the in to my hande in the he is the LORDES anoynted. Beholde, my off the tyme of chy garmet. And now and LORDE shal be thyng becomen me and the,

 tence betwene me and the, and obside it, and hande.

Now when Dauid had spoken out these wordes unto Saul, Saul saide: Is not thou chy yonge sonne Dauid? And Saul lifte up his voyce, and wept, and saide vnto Da-uid: Thou art more righteous then I: for thou hast recompensed me good, but I haue rewarded the end. And thus daye hast thou showed me howe thou hast done me good, for as much as I LORDE haue deliuered me in to thy hande, and thou neuertheless hast not slaine me. What is he, which yf he fynde his enemy, mytteth him go in a good waye: The LORDE remember the good for I thou hast done vnto me this daye: Beholde now, I knowe that thou shalt be Iyng, and the Iyng dome of Irael shal be in chy hande: I accuse thee not more: vnto me by the LORDE, I thou shalt not ree: on my fynde a fter me, neither shalste my name out of my fathers house. And Dauid swore vnto Saul, Then went he Saul home, but Dauid gat him vp with his men vnto the castell.

The xxv. Chap.

Now Samuel dyed, and all Irael gathered vnto him together, mourned in him, & buried him in his host at Ramath. As for Dauid, he returned to the home into the wilderness of Paran. And there was a man at Mach, and his possession at Carmel, and the man was of greates power, and had chy the iude & sype, and a thousande goates. And it is founden that he clypped his sype at Carmel, and his name was Labal, but his wyues name was Abigad, and she was a woman of good understandinge, & very full of face. But the man was hard, and wicked in his doynge, and was one of Caleb.

Now when Dauid herde in the wyther-nes I Labal clypped his sype, he sent ou-ten yonge men, & saide vnto them: Go vp into Carmel, & when ye come to Labal, saluse him friendly on my behalfe, & saye: Good beheepeace be to the & chyne house, & with all I thou hast. I haue herde saye that thou hast sype clyppers. Now I shepherdes whom thou hast, haue bene with vs, we haue done them no dishonore, and they wnted not chyge of their nombre, as longe as they were at Carmel. Also Ihy yonge men, they shal tell the, and let chy yonge men fynde fauoure in I sighe: for we are come in a good daye, ge-me chy seruantes & chy soune Dauid, whate chy hande fyndeth.

And when Dauid's yonge men came, and spate all these wordes on Dauid's behalfe vnto Labal, the y lesser of. But Labal answered Dauid's seruantes, & sayde: What is he I Dauid? & who is the sonne of Ihu: There are many seruantes now I tyme anoynt from their masters. Shaldest take my lorde, water and fesh, that I haue slayne for my clyppers, & geue it vnto me whom I knowe not whence they ate?

The Dauid's yonge men turned their waye agayne. And when they came a gayne vnto him, they tolde him all these wordes. The sayde Dauid vnto his men: Eury man gyde his swerde aboute him. And eury one gyde his swerde aboute him: And Dauid gyde his swerde aboute him alfo, and theye wnt vnto a fter him upon a fowte hundred men, but two hundred remained w the fass.

Now when Abi gad Labal's wyfende one of his yonge men, and sayde: Beholde, Dauid sent messengers one of the wyfende, me so behalfe our lorde, I tyme anoynt he was farce vnto them, and yet haue they bene very profitable men vnto vs, and haue done vs no dishonore, and we wnted nome of the man: it is a figne as we wnted with them, when we were in the felde: but they haue bene our: wnted daye and night, as long ge as we kepe the shepe by them. Take he now therefore, and let's well what thou wilt, for there is surety a myffowme in han de agaynst oure loide, & agaynst all his ben se. And he is a man of Belial, to whom no man darre saye my thinge. Then Abigail made haile, and reuerens handien leaues of bich, and two botles of wyne, and fyue she pe ready dighee, and fyue measures of fir menye, and an hundred frailes of raisins, and two hundred frailes of figges, & layd them vpon assen, and so yedes his yonge men: So ye your waye before me, beholde, I wil come after. And she tolde Labal his heu ilde nothinge thereof. And as she rode vpon the ass, and wente to owne in the shadowe of y hall, beholde, Doide & his mi met his dem ne, so that she came vpon them.

D And Dauid sayde: Well, all that this man had in y myddenes, haue I kepte for naugh te, so that there wanted nothinge of all that he had, and he rewardeth me well for good.
God do thise and yet more vnto the enemies of Dauid, yf vntill comen in the manyng ge. I leaue this man of all that he hath, so much as one chare maketh water & go ynto y wall. Then when Abigail sawe Dauid, she lagne downe from the ass in all the haile, and fell vpon her face before Dauid, and wor shipped him to the grounde, and fall at his fe te, and sayde: O my loide, let this trespass be myne, and let thy handmaide speake be fore thine eares: and heare the wordes of thy handmayden: Let not my loide see his hee de agaynst this Labal the man of Belial, for he is a foole, & a cordinge so his name is cal led: his name is foole, and foolishnes is in with him. As for me thy handmaide, I sawe not my loide yonge men, when thou bydest fynde.

But now my loide, as truly as the LORD lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, the LORD hath kepte the backe, & thou shalt destroie thine harte.

E Thine enemye be now as Labal, and so be they that wolde in y loide well. Here is y blessynge, y thy handmaide hath brought my loide, cake it, and geue it vnto the yonge men, that walke vnder my loide. For a sure house shall y LORD make my loide, which figheth the fighthe of the LORD, and no well shall be founde in the all thy life longe.
And yf any man espy to persecute y, and to laye mayne for thy soule, then shall the soule of my loide be bounde in the bundell of y lyuynge, when with the LORD thy God.

But y soule of thine enemye shall be bounde backe in the synge. When the LORD thy God doth all this good for my loide: (which he hath promysed the) and comen vnto y: to be his Dauid ouer Israel, then shall thine stomblinge blocke not occasion of fallynge vnto my loide here, that thou shalt not be bloude without a cause, and avenge thy selfe, then shall y LORD do good vnto my loide, and thou shalt chyte vpon thy god mayden.

Then saide Dauid vnto Abigail: Bless be the LORD God of Israel, which hath sent the to mete me this daye: and blest is thy speech, and blest be thou, which hast kept me backe this daye, that I am not co me agaynst bloude, to avenge me vnto me ayme harte. Verely as truly as the LORD God of Israel lyueth, which hath bynded me that I shoulde do the nocht.
If thou haddest not met me in all this wast, Labal holder not haue had it for his mayne y lighte morninge, so much as one that in each water & agaynst the wall. So Dauid kete of her haire what she had weaghten and sayde vnto her: Go vpon peace vnto house: beholde, I haue returned vnto y now, and accepted thy performe.

But when Abigail came to Labal, be holde, he had prepared a staff in his hand to a synge feast, and his herte was wry th he was very drunken. And she tolde him nothinge, necher small nor greace vntill y daide morninge. But when it was daye, the wyne was come from Labal, his wiffen hym these thinges.

Then was he herte dead in his body, & that he became euen as a stone: and ower daye the LORD smote hym, & he dyd.
When Dauid herde that Labal was de d, he sayde: Blessed be y LORD, which hath auenged my rebulle on Labal, and per fume his seruante from euill. And he LORD hath rewarded Labal that euill vpon his heade.

And Dauid sent, and caused reuenge vnto Abigail, y he mighte take her to wife. And when Doide seruantes came to Abigail vnto Carmel, they spake vnto her, and said: Dauid hath sent us vnto the, that he may take y to wife. She rose vp, and worshipped vpon her face vnto the earth, and sayde: I holde, here is thy handmaide, that she had do seruyce vnto the seruantes of my loide, and to waite their feet. And Abigail went haile, and got her vp, and rode vpon ass, and fyue maydenes that were vnto her, and man after David's manageth, and became his wife. And also Abinoam of Jersalem also, and they both became his wives. And Saul gave Michol his daughter the wife of David unto Phaii of Gath.

The xxvi. Chapter.

The first of Syph came to Saul unto Gibeath, and syde: "Ja not David hyb vpon the hill of Gadula, which lyeth over agaynst the in ylderneffe? Then Saul gaue him up, and wente downe to the wilderness of Syph, and pitched vpon the hill of Gadula, which lyeth by the waye before the wilderness. And David remained in the wilderness, and when he sawe that Saul came after him in to the wilderness, he sent out syne, and knewe of a sheerie, that he was comyn thither.

And David gaue him up, and came to the place where Saul had pitched his tent, and sawe the place where Saul laye with his deest companye. And there some of the king's men of Syph, and the hostes about him. Then answered David, and sayde unto Abinoam the shepheard, and to his kinne the sonne of Ja: "Ja brother of Joab: Who will go downe with me to Saul in to the hostes? And he sayde: "I will go downe with thee."

So David and Abinoam came to the people in the night season, and beholde, Saul laye and slepe in the tent, and his speare staue in his grommet at his heade. And Abinoam and the people laye rounde about him. And he sayde Abinoam unto David: "God hath closed thy enemies in thine hande this daye. Therefore will I now thrust him through with the speare, and into the grounde, & he shall haue youth of it." Leueth heke David sayde vnto Abinoam: "I will not, for who will laye hande vpon the anointed of the LORD? It tremeueth in playe." David sayde moreover: "As truly as the LORD liueth, if the LORD be with him, or excepte his eye come that he dye, or that he go in to the battayle and perishe, the LORD let it be done for me, that I shoulde laye my hande on the LORD'S anointed. Take a spear now therof out of his heade, & the cuppe of water, & let us go. So David robe & speare & the cuppe of water at Saul's heade, & they wente their waye. And there was no man sawe it, nor perceived it, neither a watch, but they were every one, for there was a hope they shoulde fall vpon them from the LORD.

Then when David was come out on the other syde, he stode vpon the toppe of the mounte a farr of (so that there was a waye space betweene them) and cried vpon the people, and vnto Abinoam the sonne of Ja: "I praye heartely thou not Abinoam. And Abinoam answered and sayde: "Who are thou that cryest so, and dostest the kyng? And David sayde vnto Abinoam: "Art thou not a man? And where is thine sword one as thou is? Heard? Why hast thou not then receyved thy sword? For there is one of the people come in to destroye thy lord & thyng. It is not well that thou haist done. As truly as the LORD liueth, ye are the children of death, because ye haue not respect vnto your lord the LORD'S anointed. Beholde now, where is the kyng's speare, and the cuppe of water that was at his heade.

Then when Saul the voyce of David, and said: "Ja not that thy voyce my soune David? David sayde: "Is my voyce my lord's de the kyng? And he sayde moreover: "Why dost thou so persecute his seruants? What haue I done? and what will I there in my hande? But let my lord be thyng heare but the wordes of his seruants. If the LORD please, he shall be against me, let there be smelle of me as offeringe: but if the child of man do it, as he doeth be to the LORD, because they haue shamed me out this daye: that I shoulde not dwell in the LORD'S inheritance: and saye: "Go ye awaye, and serue other goddes. So fall not vnto my sinne vpon the earth from the face of the LORD. For the kyng of Israel is gone forth to see a felle, as a partridge is followed on vnto the mountaynes.

And Saul sayde: "I haue synned: Come awaye David my sonne, I will do the nomie part, because my soule hath bene deare in my sight this daye. Beholde, I haue done faithfully and verye wisely. And answered and sayde: "Beholde, here is the kyng's speare, let one of the yongemen come out here and fetch it. For the LORD shall requyte every one accordinge to his righte doings: and saye, for the LORD belyueueth & this daye into my hande: and saye: "I will be no lawe in my hande vnto the LORD'S anointed. And as I soule hath bene greatlye repayed in my sight this daye, so let the LORD requyte my soule in his sight, & deliuer me from all trouble. Saul sayde vnto David: "I will be thy sonne David my sonne, thou shalt be it, & be able. And David wente his waye, and Saul returned agayne vnto his place.

The xxviii. Chapter.

And thought in his hert: One of these dayes shal I fall into the handes of Saul: For he knoweth that I get me my maye as I longe of þe philistynes, that Saul maye leaue of from slaying me in all the coastes of Israel, so shall I escape his handes. And he gat him up, and wente over (with theise handmen men that were with him) into Achis the sonne of Maach kyng of Gath. So David remained by Achis at Gath, with his bow, every one with his bowbolde, and David with his two wyces, Abigail the Iesulitish, and Abigail Nabalo wyfe of Carmel. And when word came to Saul that David was fled into Gath, he soughte him nomore.

And David sayde unto Achis: If I have founde grace in thy sighte, then let there be given me a place in one of the cities of the londe, that I maye dwell therein. Wherfore shaldesthy servant dwell in the kynges cite with the? Then Achis gave him Gides the same daye. Therfore belougeth. And so the kynges of Iuda was on this daye. The same that David dwelt in the londe of the philistynes, in fourte monethes.

David wente up with his men, and fell in to the londe of the Gersures and Girsins, and Amalechites: for these were the inhabytors of this londe of oyle, as the a comynst to Sar unto the lode of Egipht. And whan David sheweth londe, he lettether man ner woman lyue, and colt the shepe, open, aske, camels and rayment, and returned and came to Achis. So whan Achis spaketh: Whither wilt thou go? David sayde: Toward the south parte of Iuda, toward the south parte of the Ramath, and toward the south parte of the Ramath. For David lettether man ner woman come (paynge unto Gath, and thoughteth) they maye be peradventure speake and repaire a gayard to: thus by David, and thus was his manner as longe as he dwelt in the londe of the philistynes. Therfore Achis gave audience unto David, and thoughteth: he hath made him selfe stynt before his people of Israel, therefore shal he be my servant for ever.

The xxviii. Chapter.

It fortuned at þe same tyme, that the philistynes gathered their hostes together to the bettyle, to go agaynst Israel. And Achis sayde unto David: Thou shalt knowe, that thou and thy men shal go forth with me in the hoste. David sayde unto Achis: Well, thou shalt see what thy servant shal do. Achis saide unto David: The fore will I ordeine the to be the foper of my heade as longe as I lyue. As for Samson, he was bery, and all þe people had mony for him, and beryed him in his cite Ramath. So Saul had beryed the Gathites and tympounders of cotte out of y londe. And whan the philistynes gathered them selfe together, and came and pshed their tentes at Gath, Saul gathered all the people together, and they pitched at Gethon. And whan Saul sawe the hoste of the philistynes, he was a frayd, and his hert was dyscomfited, and he axed counsell at the LORD. And the LORD gave him no answer, neither by dremes, nor by che, hyghes, nor by prophetes.

Therfore Saul unto his servantes, Saie me a word which hath a space of forty dayes, that I maye go into her, and pray for her. In Ierusalem saye unto her: Deborah, at Enboi is there a woman, which hath a space of forty dayes. And Saul thought his docters, and put on other, and went by waye and tooke men with him, and came by nyghte unto the woman, and saide: prophete unto me. I pray the thow to shewe me of forty dayes, and buyge on him of whom I shal come unto the. The woman saide unto him: Deborah, then thou shalt see Saul hath done, how he hath sent to the forty dayes and wyched from the londe, wherfore wilt thou buyge my selfe when it is I nat, that I maye be slayne? But Saul sheweth her by þe LORD and sayde: Truly as the LORD lieth, thou shalt not come happen unto the for this. Then saye to woman: Whom shal I buyge up unto the? she sayde: Buyge me up Samson.

Thow whan þe woman sawe Samson, she cryed loud, and sayde unto Saul: Wherfore hast thou begyled me? These are Saul. And the kyng sayde unto her: Fear me, what wilt thou? The woman sayde unto Saul: I se godden comynge up one of us: she sayde: how is he shapen? she sayde: Ther cometh up an elde man, and is clothed with a loage garment. Then perceived Saul that it was Samson, and bound him selfe downe to his face to the ground, and was shapen him.

Samson saide unto Saul: Why hast thou dysquyted me, to cause me to be begyled? Saul sayde: I am sore troubled, the philistynes fighte agaynst me, and God is departed from me, to geve me no answer. neither by prophetes nor by dremes: therefore have I docthe, þe thou mightest shewe me, what I and thou shalt be as the Philistines. And the LORD shall deliver thee out of the hand of the Philistines. Then will Saul immediately wrote letters, for he could not stand, and was sent a praye at these wordes of Saul, for he had eaten no bread all that day and all that night.

And the woman wente in to Saul, & so that he was sore vexed, and sayde vnto him: Beholde, thy handmaide hath hearkened vnto thy voyce, and I haue put my soule in my hand, so that I haue hearkened vnto thy wordes which thou spakest vnto me. Therefore seeme thou alio the voyce of thy handmaide ye. It is a morsell of bread before the to eat it, that thou mayest come to thy strength, & go thy way. But he refused, and sayde, I will not eate. Then his seruantes & the woman besought him, so that he hearkened vnto their voys.

And he rose vp from the ground, and sat vpon the bed. The woman had a fat calfe at home, so he made haist, and fylled it, and set well and dyd exacte is, and baked face-cakes, & brought them forth before Saul, & before his seruantes. And when they had eaten, they layde vp, and were cheir waye to night.

The XXX. Chapter.

The Philistines gathered all their armes together at Asidat. But Israel pitched at B¹in in Israel. And the prynces of the Philistines went forth with hundreds and with thousands, but Dauid and his men were belynde with Achis. The sayde the prynces of the Philistines: What shal these be? Dauid also saide vnto the: Ye see that Dauid is seruante of Saul kyn ge of Israel, yet Dauid hath bene with me now yeares and dayes, & I haue founde no euill in him since the tyme that he fell to me vnto this daye. Nevertheless the prynces of the Philistines were wroth at him, & sayde vnto him: Let the man come backe agayne, & abyde in his place, which thou hast appointed him, that he go not downe with wate to the cayll, and become our adversary in the fildes, for wher in coulde he better do his lordes a pleasure, the in the heades of these men? Ja nor this Dauid, of whom they singe in the dances: Saul hath smytte his thousande, but Dauid his ten thousande. Then Achis called Dauid, and sayde vnto him: Truly as the LORD thy god, I take thee for an honest man, and thy our goynge and ingoynge much me in thy boost pleased me well, and no euill haue I metted in thee, since thy tyme that thou camest to me vnto this daye. But thou pleasest not the prynces. Wherefore therefore, and go thy waye in peace, that thou do no euill in the sight of the prynces of the Philistines.

Dauid sayde: What haue I done, & what hast thou metted in thy seruante, since I have bene in thy presence vnto this daye, that I shoulde not come and fighte agaynst the enemies of my lordes kyng?
Achis answered and sayde vnto Dauid: I knowe well that thou pleasest myn eyes as an angell of God. But the prynces of the Philistines haue sayde: Let him now go up with me vnto the battayll. Get the vpon the come thou by thyne, and thy lordes seruantes which are come with thee. And when ye haue gotten you vp early in the mornynge, when it is lig yet, go ye waye. So Dauid & his men gat them vpon early, & wente in the mornynge, and to come agayne in the sonde of the Philistines. But the Philistines wente up towards Bethl.

The XXX. Chapter.

Now when Dauid came to Asidat on the thirde daye with his men, the Amalechites had full in of the pette and at Asidat, and had shewen Sida, and burned it with fyre, and had caried awaye the remnant out of it, both small & greate. Nevertheless they had slayne no man, but druen the chynce, and were goynge on their waye. Now when Dauid with his men came to the cite, and sawe that it was burnt with fyre, and that there was no man, & his doughters were led awaye captiue, Dauid and the people that was with him lefte up their voyce, and wept so longe vntill they coulde wepe no more. So Dauid & two wyues also were caried awaye captiue, Abinam & Iessabel wife, and Abigail & Abala wife of Carmel.
And Dauid was very sorrowfull, for the people would haue stoned him for the sake of all the people was in greete heynnes, every one sought his finnes and daughters.

B Thenwardes Dauid strengthened him selfe in the LORD his God, & sayde vnto Abimelech: I pise the sinne of Abimelech: Dinnge me higher the onebody coze. And when Abimelech had brought the onebody coze vnto Dauid, Dauid ased at the LORD, and sayde: O hel I folowe vpon the men of warre, and shal I denerte them the fydre, folowe a poe them, thou shalt ouertake them, and shalt rescue the pray. Then wente Dauid and his waye, and the six hundred men that were with him. And when they came to the ryuer of Iord, some stode still. But Dauid and the fowre hundred men folowed a fter: As for the other hundred men that stode still, they had bene slowe to go ouer the ryuer of Iord.

And they founde a man of Egiptie vpon the filde, him they brought vnto Dauid: & gaue him bread to eat, and water to drynte, and gaue him a quantite of fygge, & two quantites of rusyn. And when he had eaten, his spere came to him againe for in thre dayes and thre nightes he had eate no bred, and drinke no water.

C Dauid sayde vnto him: Whose art thou: & whence art thou: he sayde: I am a childe of Egiptie, an Amalechites seruaunt. I my master hech fowsten me, because I was sicke thre dayes a yee. We sell her in towne to þe south syde of Cheneas, and vpon Iuba, and euerward þe south parte of Caleb, & haue bened siding with fyre.

Dauid sayde vnto him: Wherfore bringe me downe to these men of warre: he sayde: Swear vnto me by God, þe thou shalt not slaye me, nor deliuer me in to my masters hand, and I will bringe the downe to these men of warre. And he broughte the downe, and beholde, they were scattered vpon all þe ground, eateinge and dryntinge, and kerynge holy daye, and were makinge merry there, because of all the greates spoyle that they had: & it was one of the londe of the philistynes and of Iuba.

D And Dauid smote them from þe more wylde euen, agaynst the nyght daye, so that there of capteuons, excepte fowre hundred yonge men, which rode vpon camels, & shid. So Dauid rescued all that the Amalechites had taken, and his two wyues, & there mysled nothinge, neþer small nor greate, neþer finnes nor daughters, neþer spoyle: and when so euer they had eaten, Dauid broughte all agayne. And Dauid sette the shepe and oke, and browe þe call before him. And they sayde: This is Dauides spoyle.

And when Dauid came to the towne with men, which had bene some so folow a fter Dauid, and abode at the ryuer of Isai, they wente forth to meete Dauid, and the people þe was with him. And Dauid came to the people, and saluted them frendly.

Then answered such men as were called Belial men (amonge them that had ben with Dauid) and sayde: Seyng they were not at us, they shal haue none of the spoyle that we haue rescued: but let carry me þe his nase & his children and be gone.

Then sayde Dauid: Ye shall not do such brenching with that which þe LORD haue given us, and haue preferred vs, and becom red these men of warre (which were comyn agaynst us) in to our handes. Who shal do lence vnto you herin: like as the portion of them that wente downe to the baner, so shal þe portion be of them also that was be in the struffe, & shal be den vnto a lye.

From that tyme forth hath this ben ordinaunce & lawe in Israel vnto this daye. And when Dauid came to Sidon, he set of the spoyle vnto the Gileads (a Iuda his neighbours, and sayde: Beholde, chert þe yet he blessinge out of the spoyle of the enemies of the LORD, namely vnto them of Zebul, vnto them of Ramath (in the south) vnto them of Iachin, vnto them of Iam, vnto them of Siphonoth, vnto them of Achonoth, vnto them of Achah, vnto them the cities of the Ierachmelites, vnto them the cities of the Amiteas, vnto them of Iamna, vnto them of Beisith, vnto them of Achon, vnto them of Achon, and vnto alle the places wher Dauid had maked of his name.

The XXX. Chapter.

B De þe philistynes fought agaynst Israel, and the men of Israel fled: foue the philistynes, and fell betwix synay vpon the more Gilead. And the philistynes passed vpon Saul and his men, and slew Ienachas, & Achish aban Walehis the sonnes of Saul. And chertayll was fore agaynst Saul, & the arches fell vpon him with bowes, and he was wounded of the arches.

Then sayde Saul vnto his wepbearer: Disme out thy farder, and chert þe thow me, that chert vnto me: I come not and slaye me, and make a language fode of me. Thenwardes his wepbearer tolde him for he was fore a synner. Then toke Saul farder, and fell therein. It was when his we their Idols, and amonge the people, & layed his harness in þe house of Ashtaroth: but his

When they of Iudea in Gilboa herde, what the Philistynes had done vnto Saul, they got them vp, as many as were men of

M. 10. 4

After death of Saul when David was come againe from the slaughter of y^e Amalechites, and had retourned two dayes at Beclag, beholde, on the thurde daye there came a man out of Sauls host, with his clothes tyme, and catch upon his heade. And when he came vnto David, he fell downe to the ground, and worshipped. David sayde vnto him: Whence comest thou? he sayde vnto him: Out of the host of Israel am I fled. David sayde vnto him: Tell me, what is the matter? he sayde: the people is fled from the battayle, and many of the people are fallen: Ke and Saul also is dead and his horse Jonathan. David sayde vnto the yonge man: that brought him this worde: How knowest thou that Saul and Jonathan his sonne are dead? The yonge man y^e tolde him this, sayde: I came by chance vnto mount Helioa, and beholde, Saul leane upon his speare, & the charrettes and his horse were herd aser him: and hee was turned him about, and sawe me, and called me. And I sayde: here am I. And he sayde vnto me: What art thou? I sayde vnto him: I am an Amalechite. And he sayde vnto me: Come to me, and kill me, for anguys hath gotten holde of me: for my life is yett reboule within me. Then seked I to him, and sette him, for I knowe well that he could not lye after his fall. And I toke the crowne from his heade, and the armure fro his arme, and haue brought it here vnto y^e my lord. Then toke David holde of his clothes, & reuered them, and so dyd all the multitude that were with him, & mourned, and wept, and fasted vntill the even, over Saul & Jonathan his sonne, and over the people of the LORD, and over the house of Israel: because they were fallen throughe the sword.

and 10

And David sayde to the yonge man that brought him worde: What art thou? he sayde: I am y^e sonne of a stranger an Amalechite. David sayde: How happeneth it that thou wast not affrayed to laye thine hand vpon the LORDS anointed to destroye him? And David sayde vnto one of his yonge men: Come hither, and slaye him. And he smote him: and he dyed. Then sayde David vnto him: Thy bloude be vpon thyne owne heade. For thy mouth hath spoken against thy selfe, and thou hast slayne the anointed of the LORD. And David moued this lamentation over Saul and Jonathan his sonne, and commanded to teach the child of Iuda the bowe. And holde, it is written the boke of the righteous.

The eldest in Israel are slayen vpon the height of ephraim: how are the Worthies fallen.

Tell it not at Gath: speake not of it in streets at Ascalon: lest the daughters of Philistines reioyse, lest the daughters of strange countryes triumphe.

The mountaynes of Helioa, neither doe nor sayne come vnto you, neither doe the topes of commeth hence strynges: for there is a shyde of the Worthies myrrour vnto the shyde of Saul, as though he had not been anointed with oyle.

The bowe of Jonathan sayed not, as the sword of Sami came not agayne vnto the bloude of the slayn, and sit the far of the gumes.

Saul and Jonathan lovely and playfull in their lyfe, and in their death were as parted asunder: higher then Eagles, and stronger then Lyons.

The daughters of Israel wepe over Saul which cleped you with purple in garments, and beate you with iowels of golde in youre garmettes.

How are the Worthies fallen so in the battayle: Jonathan is slayne vpon y^e height of ephraim.

I am sory for the my brother Jonathan, thou hast bene very lovely vnto me: Thy loue hath bene more speciall vnto me, then the love of women.

How are the Worthies fallen: and y^e pena destroyed:

The II. Chapter.

After these actes David. asyd at the LORD, and sayde: Shall I go vp to one of the cities of Iuda? And the LORD sayde vnto him: Go vp. David sayde: Whither? he sayde: Vnto Hebron. So David wente thither with his two wyues, Abinoam the Ierusalymite, and Abigail the bala wyfe of Carmel. And David loughed vnto the men that were with him, as they went with his heuylhelme, and they bowed in the cities of Hebron. And y^e men of Iuda came, and there they anointed him kynge over the house of Iuda.

And whā it was tolde David, that the men of Iaba in Gilead had killed Saul, he sent messengers vnto them, saying: Blessinge of the LORD, that ye haue done: for mercy apon youre loude Saul, and haue killed him. The LORD therefore sheweth now and faith fulnes upon you. And because ye have done this, I also will do you good. For your hande now therfore be comforted, and be strangers for though Saul your lord be deade, yet hath the house of Iuda chosen me to be kynge ouer them.

But Abner the sonne of Neri, which was a Gileadische captain, tolde Ithobech the sonne of Saul, and brought him thowse the house, and made him kynge ouer Gilead, Issari, Issachar, Ephraim, Ben Iamin and ouer all Israel. And Ithobech the sonne of Saul was fourtye yere olde, when he was made kynge of Israel, 2 he reigned two yeres. And the house of Iuda helde with Dauid: The tyme þ David was kynge at Hebron ouer the house of Iuda, was seven yeres and six monethes longe.

And Abner the sonne of Neri wente forth with the seruantes of Ithobech the sonne of Saul, one of þ house unto Gibeon. And Joab the sonne of Zeru Ia wente forth with his men Israuites, and they met together by the pole at Gibeon, and there laye on the maces of the pole, the ocher on the ocher syde. And Abner sayde unto Joab: For the yonge me get them up, and playe before vs. Joab sayde: Let them arise. Then got they them up, 2 wente in nombere twelue of Ben Iamin on Ithobech Sauls sonnes syde, and twelue of Dauids seruantes. And euery one gat an ocher by the heade, and thrust his swerde in his syde, and fell together at the place called helath hazarim (that is, the syde of the wordes), which is at Gibeon.

And there arose a sore battayle betwixt the same daye. But Abner and the men of Ithobech were put to flight of Dauid's seruantes. The sonnes of Zeru Ia were there, Joab, Abisai 2 Asahel. As for Asahel, he was a lighter of fustian a 300 in of felde, 2 folowed after Abner, and cutteth not as yett neider to the righte hande ner to þ lefte from Abner. Then Abner turned him a boote, and sayde: Art thou Asahel? He sayde: Yee. Abner sayde vnto him: So chy was yett to the righte hande as to the lefte, and get the one of þ yonge men, and take his battayle from him. Wherefore he wolde not leane of fro him. Then sayde Abner agayne to Asahel: See the man ye fra me, why wilt thou that I smyte the to the grounde? and how darre I list to vny face before þ brother Joab? how darre he wolde not go his waye.

Then Abner thrust him in with a speare into his belly, so that the speare wote out behynde him. And there he fell and dyed before him: and who so came to the place where Asahel laye deade, stode still there. But Joab and Asahel folowed upon Abner, till chey came wente downe. And when they came to þ hyl of Amma, which lieth betwixt Gibeon, by þ waye to the wilderness of Gibeon, the children of Ben Iamin gathered them selues to gether behynde Abner, and grante to a multitude, and stode vpon the toppe of an hyl.

And Abner called vnto Joab, and sayde: Shal the swerde be becomen withoute effect? An owest thou not, that it wyl be bytter at the last? How longe wilt it be as thou saist me to the people, that they leane of from theire brethren? Joab sayde: As truly as God lieth, yf thou haddest sayde thus daye in the morninge, the people had assaid euery one from his brother. And Joab blew the trumpet, 2 all the people stode still, and solowed no more vpon Israel, necher sought they any more.

Abner and his men wente all that same nighte ouer the playne felde, and passed ouer Jordan, 2 walked thowse all Dabrah, and came to the carrees. Joab turned him from Abner, and gathered all þ people together, And of Dauid's seruantes there mysted synnerie men, and Asahel. But Dauid's seruantes had synners so amonge Ben Iamin and the men of Abner, that the handieth and thei were men were deyd. And the y take vp Asahel, and bued him in his fathers grave at Bethleem. And Joab with his men wete all that nighte: and at the break of the daye they came vnto Hebron.

The iii. Chapter.

And there was a longe battayle betwixt the house of Saul and the house of Dauid. But Dauid crente and in crented, and the house of Saul wente and mysted. And vnto Dauid were children borne at Hebron. His first borne sonne Amnon a f 20 yeres old the Iestradisse: the seconde Chabab of Abigail the wyfe of Nabal of Carmel: the thirde Absalon the sonne of Maachab the daughter of Achisai kynge of Gethur the fourth Adonia the sonne of Hagith the fifti Bathia the sonne of Abigail: þ first Ierhnam of Eglia Dauid's wife. The se were borne vnto Dauid at Hebron.

Now when it was warre betwene the house of Saul 2 the house of Dauid, Abner strenghted Sauls house. And Saul had had a concubine, whose name was Rizpa the daughter of Ba. And Ithobech sayde vnto Abner: Wherfore list thou with my fathers command me?

The ii. booke of the kynges.

The iij. Chap.

Then was Abner very much at these wordes of Iſobabeb, and ſayde: Am I a dog heade thou, that I agaynſt Iuda do mercy vnto the hooffe of Saul thy father, and vnto his brethren and kynfolkes? and haue not deliuered the into þy handes of Dauid, and thou laieſt a treſpace to my charge this waye for a womanes ſake? God do Abner this and that, yf I do not - as the LORD hath ſworne vnto Dauid, that the kyngdome maye be ſetern ſit the houſe of Saul, and ſtate of Dauid ſit up ouer Iſrael and Iuda, from Dan vnto Beſſiba. Then coulde he not anſwer him one worde agayne, he feared him ſo.

And Abner ſent meſſengers vnto Dauid, ſayinge: Whiſe is the loude? And ſayde: Iſraels thy conuaunt with me. Beholde, my hande ſhall be with the, to bringe all Iſrael vnto the.

He ſayde: Wel, I will make a conuauent with the, but one thinge I deſire of the, that thou ſe not my face, except thou bringe me firſt Michol Gileads dooghter, whom thou comuſt to ſee my face. Dauid ſent meſſengers alſo vnto Iſobabeb the ſonne of Saul, ſayinge: Give me my wyfe Michol, whom I married with an hundred ſcore ſhekelles of the philistynes. Iſobabeb ſaw, and cauſed ſerco take her from the man - Palchiel the ſonne of Anio. And his hogaſbande comte with her, and wepte behynde her vnto Bethbarim. Then ſayde Abner vnto him: Turne backe agayne, and go thy waye. And he turned backe agayne.

And Abner talked with the Elders in Iſrael, and ſayde: Quere mynde haue bene ſet aſide tyne and longe a gao vpon Dauid, that he mighte be kyng ouer you, do it now therfore, for þe LORD hath ſayde of Dauid: I will deliuer my people of Iſrael by the hande of Dauid my ſeruaunt, from the hande of the philistynes, and from the hande of all their enemies.

Abner ſpake alſo before the eares of Ben Jamin, and wanted to ſpeake before the eares of Dauid at Hebron all that Iſrael and the whole houſe of Ben Jamin was contented withall. Now when Abner came to Hebron vnto Dauid, and coudrymen with him, Dauid made them a feaſt. And Abner ſayde vnto Dauid: I will get me up, and go gather all Iſrael together to my lord the kyng, and that they maye make a conuauent with the. that thou maieſt be kyng, as thy ſoule deſire.

So Dauid let Abner go from him in peace. And beholde, Dauid ſent ſerco and Jotham from the men of warre, and broughte a greates ſpoyle with them. And Abner was not now with Dauid at Hebron, ſo he ſent him from him, ſo that he was gone by waye in peace.

Now when Joab and all the hooffe whiche was come, it was tolde him that Abner the ſonne of Ner came to the kyng, and how he had ſet him ſit him, ſo that he was gone his waye in peace. Then was he gone into the kyng, and ſayde: What haſt thou done? Beholde, Abner came to the, why haſt thou ſet him from the, that he is goinge awaye? Knoweſt thou not Abner the ſonne of Ner? For he came to the to beſtaceſe, that he mighte haue thy outgoings, and ingoings, and to ſpeake all that thou haſt. And when Joab wente out from Dauid, he ſent meſſengers aſter Abner, to ſeche him agayne from Bethanſira, and Dauid came not therof. Now when Abner came agayne vnto Hebron, Joab diſſeigned him in a midde under þe gate, to ſlaue him ſilently, and thruſt him there in to þe belly with dyeb, becauſe of his brother Abſalom him.

When Dauid knewe of it therfor, he ſayde: I am engyle, and ſo is my kyngdome for ever before the LORD. I deſire the blowe of Abner þe ſonne of Ner vpon the heade of Joab ſall it, and vpon all his fathers houſe, and in the houſe of Joab there caſſe not one to haue a reuenge ſin and a leproſy, and to go vpon a ſlaue, and ſall thowen the ſwerde, and to haue cauſe of two. Thus Joab and his brother Abſalom ſlew Abner, becauſe he had ſlayne the brother Abſalom in the battaill at Gibeon.

Dauid ſayde vnto Joab and to all þe people þe was with him: Take your clothe, and grynede ſacke cloth aboute you, and make lamentacion for Abner. And the kyng wente a ſter the Eare. And when they departed Abner at Hebron, the kyng liſt up his voice, and wepte beſide Abners grave, and all the people wepte alſo.

And the kyng mourned for Abner, and ſayde: Abner is not dead as a ſoule dyeth. Thy handes were not bounde, thy ſerco was not voyd with ſerco, thou art ſall in a man ſalleth before with dyeb with thy ſerco. All the people beweped him yet more.

Now when all the people came in to me with Dauid, why ſaith: was yet hys baye, diſſeigned, and ſayde: God be thou and thou vnto me, yf I cauſe ether bad or good aſter the Eare go homer. And all þe people there were two men capteynes over the fenfower yeare olde when the rumours of Saul and Jonathan came from Iffrael. And his name was Ishai. And while she mabant and fild, he fell, and was lame: And his name was Mephoboth.

Then wente the sonnes of Rimon y Berechur, Rehob y Hemo, y came to the houfof Iffobeth, in the heare of the daye, y he lay vpo his bed at the noon daye. And they came into the house to fild wheate, y thrust him in the bed, y garthem awaye. For wha they came into y house, he lay vpo his bed in his chamber, y they fildre him to death, y fmore of his heade, and toke his heade, and beheaded by the waye of the playne fild all that nyght. And broughte the heade of Iffo-beth to David vnto Hebron, and sayde vnto the fynge: Rehob, there is the heade of Iffobeth the sonne of Saul thine enemy, which loved me vnto thy soule. This daye the LORDE auenged my loue of the fynge of Saul and his fide.

Then answered David vnto Rehob and Hemo his brother, y sonnes of Rimon y Berechur, y sayde: Be truly as the LORDE fildre which hath deliuered my soule out of all trouble. I toke him y brought me word and sayde: Saul is dyed, and he broughte he had bene a good messenger, and as Si-dog I put him to death, vnto whom I shal be haue given a reward for his messinge.

The ii. Chap: Bo. xliij.

And these vnjolly performes haue slayn a righteous man in his owne house vpon his bed. Yet shoulde not I requyte his blood of your handes, and take your waye from y earth: And David commended his yong men, which slew them, and fildre of their handes and fere, and hanged them ap by y pole at Hebron. But the heade of Iffobeth toke they, and buried it in Abies graue at Hebron.

The V. Chapter.

And all the crybe of Israel came to David vnto Hebron, and sayde: y De-hold, we are thy bent and thy flesh.
 And a fowc ryme wha Saul was finge ouer us, thus leddest Israel out and in. So the LORDE hath sayde: Thou shalt fere my people of Israel, and shalt be the duke ouer Israel. And all the eldres in Israel came to y finge vnto Hebron. And finge David made a covenant with them at Hebron before y LORDE. And they anoynted David to be finge ouer Israel. Thynne yeare olde was David when he was made finge, and reigned fortie yeres. At Hebron raigned he seat yeres and fower monethes ouer Juda: but as Jerusalem he reigned thre and thirtie yeres ouer all Israel and Juda.

And the finge wente with his men to Jerusalem, agaynst the Jebusites, which dwelt in the lowe. Thenceforth they fildre vnto David: Thou shalt not come hither but the blynde and lame shal wyte y a waite.
 (They thoughte plaudy, thine David shal-dre not come in.) Howbeit David wanne the castell of Sion, which is the cite of David.
 Then sayde David the same daye: Who shal enu fynyth the Jebusites, and appeaynch the pryncelles, the lame y the blynde, which (Jebusites) Dauid soughte hach, he of co-mence the pryncelles: Let no blynde ner lame come in to thy house. So David dwelt in y castell, and called it the cite of David. And David builded towre aboue fro Millo and within. And David grew, y the LORDE the God of Jacob was with him.

And thence the finge of Tyne fowc messengers vnto David, and Cedar stee for wallis, and Carpenters, and Masons to bul-de David an house. And David frowe, that the LORDE had confirmed him finge ouer Israel, and raised his furdome for his people of Israel fild. And David toke yet mo wyues and concubynes at Jerusalem, a fere he was come from Hebron, and there were yet mo sonnes y daughters borne vnto him.
 And these are the names of them that were borne vnto him at Ierusalem: Samma, Sebat, Tarhan, Salomon, Iehabar, Elisur, Iephieg, Japhia, Elisama, Eliaba, Eliphath.

And whan the Philistynes herde that Dauid was annoynt kynge ouer Irael, they rose up all to fete Dauid. Whan Dauid perceiued that, he wente downe in to a castill. But the Philistynes came and scattered than situed beneth in the valley of Rephaim. And Dauid abode at the LORDE, and sayde: Shal I go vp agaynst the Philistynes? and wylt thou deliuer them in to my hande? The LORDE sayde vnto Dauid: Go vp, I wyl deliuer the Philistynes in to thy hande.

And Dauid came vnto Baal Praym, and smote the there, and sayde: The LORDE heeth beynded myn enemies, such as the waters parte asunder: for here in the same place called Baal Praym. And they este their ymagines there, but Dauid and his men caried the awaye.

Then the Philistynes wente vp agayne, and scattered them selues beneth in the valley of Rephaim. And Dauid awoke at the LORDE. The LORDE sayde: Thou shalt go vp, but compass them behinde, haue thou maynt be upon them eue agaynst the Pir trees: and whan thou hearest upon the toppes of the Pir trees, the founde of the geinge be belde, for then is the LORDE gone forth before thee, so saye: the host of the Philistyn. Dauid vnto the LORDE commaunded him and smote the Philistynes from Geba, vnto the comest vnto Gath.

The vi. Chapter.

And Dauid gathered agayne all the yonge chosyn men in Irael, euenthe thousande, and gat him vp, and wente with all the people that was with him of the ciuities of Iuda, to fete vp the Arke of God from the enter: whose name is: The name of the LORDE Zabach Baalseth theron borne in the Cherubens. And they cauid the arke of Geba to be caried vpon a new cart, and fered it out of the house of Abinadab, which dwelt at Gibeon. Vn and whan the sonnes of Abinadab drewe the new cart. And whan they broughte it with the Arke from the house of Abinadab which dwelt at Gibeon, Abinadab wente before the Arke: and Dauid and all the house of Irael played before the LORDE, with all manner of instruments of pynce, with harpes, and psalteries, and tabrettes, and belles, and Cymbales.

And whan they came to the barnefloore of Iahon, vnto stretched out his hande, and halde the Arke of God, for the enemye to ouerhyde. Then wored the waye of the LORDE feared agaynst vnto, and God was with him there because of his purpouse: for he byed there before the Arke of God. Then was Dauid seie, because the LORDE had made such a rente vpon vnto, and he callid it the same place: Peres vnto this daye. But Dauid feared the LORDE the same daye, as forder he saw shall the Arke of the LORDE come vnto me. And he wold not let it be broughte to him in to the cite of Dauid, he caused it be broughte in to the house of Obadom the Gachite. And whan the Arke of the LORDE had comynged the comynged the house of Obadom the Gachite, the LORDE blessed him and all his house.

And it was colde tynge Dauid, that the LORDE had blessed the house of Obadom and all that he had because of the Arke of God. Then wente he, and fered vnto the Arke of God out of the house of Obadom in to the cite of Dauid with hope. And whan they were gone fere the steps in with the Arke of the LORDE, they offered an oxe and a shepe. And Dauid dauided at all his myght before the LORDE, and was gyrbed with na doutbody euer of Iynne. And Dauid with all Irael broughte vnto the Arke of the LORDE with tabrettes and cromptees.

And whan the Arke of the LORDE came in to the cite of Dauid, Michol the daughter of Saul looked out at a window, and saw tynge Dauid leaping, sayng ynge and dai syng before the LORDE and despyed him in his hirt. But whan they broughte in the Arke of the LORDE, they set it in her place in the myddes of the Tabernacle, which Dauid had pitched for it. And Dauid offered burnt offeringes and bedofferinges before the LORDE. And whan Dauid had made an end of offeringe the burnt offeringes and bedofferinges, he blessed the people in the name of the LORDE Zabach, and blest out vnto the people, and to the multitude of Irael, both to man and woman, vnto every one a cart of oseb, and a pece of flesh, and a meate of eage. Then wente all the people there with eary one vnto his huse.

Whan Dauid came agayne to blisse his house, Michol the daughter of Saul wente forth to meete him, and sayde: How glorious hath the tynge of Irael bene to daye: which hath encouraged himselfe before the face of his seruaunt, like as the excelsall people discover them selues. But Dauid saide vnto Michol: I wil playe before the LORDE, as

¶ And he returned after this. ¶ David smote ¶ Philistynes, and discerned them, and cutteth the heyl of bondage out of the Philistynes hande. ¶ He smote the Moabites also to the grounde, so that he brought two parties of them to death, and let one parte live. Thus the Moabites were subdued unto David, so ¶ they brought him gifts.

David smote Hadad Esir also the sonne of Achish kyng of Goba, when he was coferch in power agayne at ¶ water Euphra-

Dauid the Syrians came from Damascus uid smote two and twenty thousande men of the Syria, and layed people unto Da-

Thus was Syria subdued unto David, so that they brought him gifts: for ¶ LORD DE helped David whiche he wente.
And David toke ¶ sphyres of golde, which Hadad Esir seruantes had, and brought them to Jerusalem. But from Bethah z uid very much brasse.

de, that David had smitten all the power of Hadad Esir, he sent him some ¶ Isam unto David to salute him friendly, z to blysse him, because he had foughten with Hadad Esir and smitten him (for Thol had warre with Hadad Esir) and had Jewda with him of silver, of golde, and of brasse: which kyng David helomed also unto ¶ LORD E, with the silver and golde which he sanctified unto the LORD from all the shephe, when he subdued, from Siria, fro Moab, from the children of Ammon, from the Philistynes, fro Amalek, from the shephal Hadad Esir ¶ sonne of Achish kyng of Goba.

¶ David gave him selfe a name also when he came, and smote eighte thousande of Syrans in ¶ Sale valley. And he layed people in all Edemra, and all Edem was subdued unto David: for the LORD E helped David, whiche he wente. Thus was David kyng ouer all Israel. And he recei-ued iudgements and eighte hundred and thre people. ¶ Iob ¶ sonne of Zeru Ja was cap-

The x. Chapter.

¶ And David sayde: How mayest thou yet eny man of Sauls house, that I maye do mercy vpon him for Iou-thas sake? There was a seruant of Saul house, named ¶ Siba, whom they called unto David, z the kyng sayde vnto him: Anthon Siba, he sayde: See thy seruant. The kyng sayde: Is there yet eny man of Sauls him? Siba sayde vnto the kyng: There yet a sonne of Ionathas, I am on his way.

The kyng sayde vnto him: Where is he? Siba sayde vnto ¶ kyng: Beholde, he is ad-

Now when Mephobosch the sonne of Jonathas the sonne of Saul came vnto Da-uid, he fell vpon his face, z worshipped him.
David sayde: Mephobosch, he sayde: I am thy seruant. David sayde vnto him: Feare not, for I will do mercy vpon thee, & to the all the lande of thy father Saul: but thou shalt eate bread vntill as my table, & worshipped and sayde: Who am I thy seruant, that thou earnest cho to a dead dogg

Then the kyng called Siba ¶ serukynges owne children. And Mephobosch had a yfge sonne, whose name was ¶ Mitha.

But all ¶ dwelle in the house of Siba sonne Mephobosch. So for Mephobosch him selfe, he dwelle at Jerusalem: for he was house. And the women was with child, and saw, and caused to tell Dauid and so saye: I am with child. Dauid sent unto Joab saye gey. Send me Urias the Hethite. And Joab sent Urias unto Dauid. And when Urias came to him, Dauid asked him yf he fode well with Joab, and with the people and with the house.

B And Dauid sayde to Urias: Go downein to thy house, and wash thy feet. And when Urias wente out of the kynges palace, the kynges wyfe solomed him. And Urias layed him downe to slepe before the kynges palace gate, where all his lordes seruantes laye, & wente not downe in to his house. When more came to Dauid: Urias is not gone downe in to his house. Dauid saye unto him: Lamest thou not ouer the felde? Why wentest thou not downe in to thy house? Urias sayde unto Dauid: The Arke and Israel & Juda abyde in the tentes: And Joab my lord and my lordes seruantes lyt in the felde, and shal I go in to my house to eate and drynke, and eate with my wyfe? As truly as thou lyvest, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, I will not do this thinge. Dauid saye unto Urias: Abyde here then to daye, tomorrow wil I let the go. So Urias abode in Jerusalem the same daye, and the nexte nite. And Da-uid called him to eate & drynke before him, & made him drunken. And at euen he wente to lyt him downe for to slepe upon his couche with his lordes seruantes, and wente not downe in to his house.

C On the morow wrote Dauid in letter unto Jehoi, & sent it by Urias. After this manner wrote he with the letter: Set Urias in the fouerth part of the battail, & come yee behynde him, & he maye be slayne. For when Joab layed sege to the cite, he set Urias in the place, where he knewe the mightiest men of times were. And when the men of the cite fell ou-er and foughte agaynst Joab, there fell certayn of the people of Dauides seruantes. And Urias the Hethite dyed also.

Then sent Joab, and caused to tell the kyng all the matter concernyng the battail, and commaunded the messenger, and sayde: When thou hast tolde the kyng all the matter concernyng the battail, and hast thus become to wroth, and yf the kyng saye unto the: Wherefore came ye so nye the cite with the battail? Answer ye not how they are to shew the from the wall. Who smote Abimelech the sonne of Jerubael? Dyd not a woman cast a peece of a myllstone vpon him from the wall, so that he dyed at Thebez? Why came ye so nye the wall? Then shalte thou saye: Thy seruante Dauid the Hethite is dead also.

The messenger wente his waye, and came and tolde Dauid all together, wherefore Joab had sent him. And the messenger sayde unto Dauid: The men prayed agaynst me, and fell ouer me into the felde: and I wente upon them hard at the base of the pare. And the archers shote from the wall vpon thy seruantes, and slew certeyn of the kynges seruantes: and thy seruante Dauid the Hethite is dead also.

Dauid sayde unto the messenger: Thou shalt thou saye unto Joab: Let not I wro-the, for the swerde is consyneth now one man another. Be seure with the battail agaynst the cite, that thou mayest destroye it, and di-stoye the men. And when Urias was slain, that Urias was dead, she mourned full busynesse. But when she had made a so-nde of mourninge, Dauid sent, and causher be fitched into his palace, and she became his wyfe, and bare him a sonne. Likerthyles this dede the Dauid dyd, to please the LORDE.

The XII. Chapter.

NOW the LORDE sent Nathan unto Dauid. When he came to him, he tolde him: There were two men in a cite, the one riche, the other poore. The rich man had very many sheepe and oxen: but poore man had nothinge save one little sheepe, which he had bought, and nourished, so that it grew vp with him, and was become together. It ate of his bier, and drunke of his cuppe, and slept in his lappe, and he helde it as a daughter. But when the man came in stranger into the riche man, he reioysed to take of his awne sheepe & oxen to pare oughte for the stranger charyte. And he tolde the poore mans sheepe, and prepared it for the man that was a stranger to him.

The man was Dauid wroth with great pleasure agaynst the man, and sayde vnto Nathan: As truly as the LORDE liueth, the man chercheth done this, is the sheepe of death. The sheepe also shal hee take fourfold, because he hath bene so charytege, and not spared it.

Then sayde Nathan unto Dauid: The art thou the man. Then sayeth the LORDE the God of Israel: I haue anoynted the to be kyng ouer Israel, and thy people out of the handes of Saul, and haue put the in thy lordes house, and hee reioysed in all lure, and the house of Israel and Ioba ha re I gnam the way of char be to hie, I wyl ye do this and that for the alfo. Wherfore hast thou then despised the wordes of the LORDE, to do such wyl in his sighte: Was the charitee hast thou flayne with the har be: So wyllest thou taken to be thy wyfe, but thou hast thou flayne with þe swordes of the children of Ammon.

¶ Then thou shalt not þe swordes depar re from thy house for ever, because thou hast despised me, and taken the wyfe of Uria the churche, to be thy wyfe. Thou sayest the LORDE is Beholde. I wyl enye up euil if thou wyllest. And wyl take thy wy fe before thine eyes, and wyl geue them in to thy neyghbores, so that he shall lye with thy wyfe by Sameligher. For thou hast don it secretly, but I wyl do this in the sight of all Israel, and by Sonne lighte.

¶ Then sayde Dauid unto Tachan. I ha re frond unto the LORDE. Tachan say de unto Dauid: So hath the LORDE also taken away thy synne, thou shalt not dye.
For for so much as thou choicest him be hast caused the enemies of the LORDE to blaspheme. I some that in house unto the shall dye the death. And Tachan wente ho me. So for the childe which Uria wyfe bare unto Dauid, the LORDE smect it so that it was beleside.

¶ And Dauid besoughte God for the chil de, and fasted, and wepte in, and laie all nigh t upon the earth. Then rose the Elders of his house, and wolde haue taken him up fro the ground: neuerthelen he wolde not, ne ther acce he to them. Upon the seventh daye I childe dyed. And Dauid seuered his wyl tell him that the childe was dead. For they thoughte: Beholde, when the childe was yet alive, we spake unto him, and he he ard our wylle our voice, how much more shall it greeue him, if we saye: The childe is dead. And Dauid sheweth that his seruants were a rebellinge together, and per meat that the childe was dead, and sheweth unto his seruantes: Jo the childe dead.
They sayde: Yea. Then rose Dauid up from the earth, and washed him selfe, and anoynt ed him, and put on other garments, and wen ted to the house of the LORDE, and wor shipped.

¶ And when he came agayne, he commaun ded to his lud before him, and me. Then shew ed his seruantes unto him: What manner of change is this that thou doest: What the childe was alive, thou fastedst and wepest but now that it is dead, thou sittest up and eatest: He sayde: I fasted and wepte for the childe when it was yet alive, for I thoughte it: Who knoweth, peradventure the LORDE maye be gracious unto me, that the childe maye lyue. But now that it is dead, where fore should I fast: Can I feed it agayne: I shal go into it, but it shall not come agayne unto me. And when Dauid had comforted Bethsaba his wyfe, he wente in unto her, and laye with her. And she bare a sonne, whom he called Salomon. And the LORDE loved him. And he put him under the name of Ier than þe prophet, which called him Iudith because of the LORDE.

So Iob soughte agayne Rabbah of þe children of Ammon, and wote the fynyges cite, I sent my slyghts unto Dauid, and caused to saye unto him: I have soughte agayne Rabbah, and haue wote the water cite al so. Whether thou wilt for the residue of the people together, and laye sege to cite, and wylme it, but I wylme it not, and haue the name thereof. So Dauid gathered all þe peo ple together, and wote, and foughte agayne Rabbah, and wote it, and cote their fyny ges crewe fro his heade, which in weight hath a talent: of golde, and precious stones and wote set upon Dauides heade, and wyl moche spoyle carried he owne of the cite. So for the people rize man therein, he broughte the fynge, and laie them under yon fawne and hoke and nedges of yon, and turned the in cyle ouers. Thus dyd he unto all the citis of the child en of Ammon. Then returned Dauid and all the people unto Jerusalem agayne.

The XIII. Chapter.

¶ And it fortuned after this, that Abi sa, I some of Dauid had a fayre sis ter, whose name was Thamar, and Am mon the son of Dauid loved her. And Am mon was in greute combaunce, so much that he wote en sicke, because of Thamar his sister. For she was a virgin, and Ammon thoughte it should behaue for him to do en charge unto her. But Ammon had a sis ter, whose name was Joradab the suster of Simeon Dauides brother, and the same Jo radab was a very wyse man, which sayde unto him: Why art thou so leane, that thou fynge sonne from daye to daye: Wyllest thou not tell me: Then sayde Ammon unto him: I love Thamar my brother Abisalons sister exceedingly.

So Ammon layed him downe, and made him selfe. Now whē the kyng came in to see how he byd, Ammon sayde vnto the kyng: Oh see my sister Thamar come, and make me a sypinge of two, and that I maye care it of hir hande. Then sent Dauid for Thamar in to the house, and sayde vnto her: What waye co thy brother Ammons house, & make him a meace of meate. Thamar went vnto hir brother Ammons house, but he laye in his bed. And she toke floure, and mixte it, and bryghte it before his eyes, and made him a sypinge. And she take the meace of meate, and poured it out before him: but he wolde not care.

C And Ammon saide: put forth euery man fro me. And euery man went forth from him. Then sayde Ammon vnto Thamar: Dyrne me that meace of meate in to the chamber, that I maye care it of thy hande. Then toke Thamar 3 sypinges that she had made, and broughte it vnto Ammon hir brother in to the chamber.

And when she broughte it vnto him 3 he mighte care. hi toke helde of her, & sayde vnto her: Come my sister, lye with me. Neuertheless she saide: Oh no my brother, for ce me not: for so do the y no cin Irael, danor thou soch fol. Whiche shal I go with my shame? And thou shal be as one of the wyse in Irael. Neuertheless he hardened not vnto her, but called his boye that serued him, and sayde: put awaye this wome an fro me, and loke the out after her. And he had a partye garment on: so foch garmentes waye 3 kynges, broughte whyle they were virgins.

So Thamar remayned a wydow in brother Absaloms house. And when tyme cometh herde of all this, he was verye wroth. For Absalom, he spake neither euill nor good co Ammon: but Absalom hated Ammon, because he had forced his sister Thamar.

After two yeres had Absalom shapen chyldren as Saul had, which lye by Ephraim. And Absalom called all the kynges chyldren, and came to the kyng, and sayde: Beholde, thy seruante hath shapen chyldren, lette please 3 kynges woth his seruante to go woth his seruante. But the kyng sayde vnto Absalom: Woe my sonne, let us not all go, lest we be co chargeable woth the.

And he wolde nedre haue had him so, he wote he wolde aor, but blessed him. Absalom sayde: Shall my brother Ammon go woth us then? The kyng sayde vnto him: Wherfore shall he go woth the? Then wote Absalom so importune vpon him, that he let Ammon and all the kynges chyldren go woth him.

But Absalom commaunded his yong men, and sayde: Take hede when Ammon is woth woth us, and 3 saye vnto you Smyre Ammon, and slaye him: wher he not a prayd: for I heue commaunded you, be stränge, and playe the men. So Absalom yonge men dyd vnto Ammon, so Absalom had commaunded them. Then stode all the kynges chyldren up, and euery one gat him up vnto his Moll, and fled. And whyle they were yet on their waye, the runnere wote kynges Dauid, that Absalom had slayd all the kynges chyldren, so that not one of them was left.

Then stode the kyng up, and remoued clothes, & layed him downe vpon the earth, and all his seruantes that stode aboute him, remoued their clothes. Then answered Iordab 3 forme of Simen Dabides brother, and sayde: Let us not my losse thynke that all the yong men the kynges chyldren are dead, but 3 Ammon is deed only: for Absalom hath taken in him selfe the blame that he forced his sister Thamar. Therefore let us not my losse the kyng: take it so co here, that all the kynges chyldren shal be hee, but Absalom is deed only.

The ii. boke of the fynyges. The xiiij. Chap. Fo. xlii.

As for Absalom, he said. And the yenge Beholde, the fynyge children come. Then as thy ſervant ſayde, ſo it is happened. And when he had ended his talkyng, the fyny-ge children came, and liſte up their noyſe, and wepte.

The kynge and all his ſervantes wepte also very ſore. But Absalom ſlede, and wente unto Chelmai: the ſonne of Ammihud kynge of Beſur. As for Dauid, he mourned for his ſonne cury daye. When Absalom was ſlede and gone unto Beſur, he was there thre yere. And kynge Dauid ceaſed from goyn-g out againſt Absalom, for he had com-forded him ſelfe over Amnon that he was

The XIII. Chapter.

In the ſonne of Jeruſa percea-her: What a ſynch the? She ſayde: I am a two ſonnes, which ſtoode together in the ſul-

And beholde, on the whole daye of ryſch they mynked so pur out my ſpeake, which yet is leſte, that there ſhoulde no name nor

The fynyge ſayde unto the woman: Go y ſayde: Let hat ſpeaketh agaynſt the, fynyge

She ſayde: Let the fynge thynke upon the de: No trauaile the LORDE thyne, there maiden ſpeake ſomewhat to my lord: the fyn-

Whether haſt thou deuiſed ſuch a thyng agaynſt the people of God? And how happe-neth it that the fynge ſpeaketh ſo, to make himſelfe glorie, and cauſeth not his one loue to be brought agayne? For we all bye the deathe, and as the water that ſinketh

God will not take awaye the lyfe, but wherthynketh himſelfe, & men the very endles be aſe cleane: chaſt out from him.

Then ſayd I come alſo to ſpeak the to heare his handmaiden, to deliuer me from the hands of all them, that wolde deſtroye me with my ſonne from the inheritance of God. And thy handmaiden thoughte, & woorde of my lord the fynge ſhall be as a meat offeringe: for my lord the fynge is an anuell of God, ſo that he can heare good and euell, therefore ſhall the LORDE thy God be with the.

The fynyge answered and ſayde unto the woman: A thyng nothyng fro me that I ſay ſayde, for thy ſervant Joab hath commaunded me, and he himſelfe hath taughte thy handmaiden all theſe wordes, that I ſhoulde comit this matter of thy ſonſhip, this hath Joab thy ſervant done. But my lord is wiſe, as the wiſdom of an anuell of

Then ſayde the fynge unto Joab: Before and bynge the churche of Iherusalem agayne.

Then fell Iob upon his face wro the grounde, and worshipped, and chaufed the dynge, and sayde: I thinke dooth thy seruante perishe, that I haue founde grace in thy synges my lorde the bynge, in that the dynge dooth as his seruante hath sayde. So Iob gaue him up, and wente unto Gedor, and dwaghter Iherusalem to Ierusalem. He the kinge sayde: Let him gaue in to his house, and nor fe my face. Thus Iherusalem the agayne to his house, and sawe not þe bynge face.

Now in all Jerusalem there was not so fayre, and so marvellous goodly a man, as Abraham.
From the stile of his face unto the sole of his heade there was not one blemish in him. And when his heade was rounded (that was comonly every yearre, for it was so heavy for him, for as much as he had bene rounded) the beere of his heade reach two hundred Sicles after it yenged weight.
And now Abraham there were borne three sonnes and one daughter, whose name was Thamar, and she was a woman of a fayre heretee: So Abraham abode two yea-res at Jerusalem, and sawe not the Engels face.

And Absalom sent for Joab, that he might send him to the king. And he would not come to him. Wherefore sent he his servants to him, yet would he not come. Then sayde he unto his servants: Ye knowe Ioades peece of lende that lye by myne, and he hath buried thereon go yowre wayes therfore and set fyre vpon it. So Absaloms seruantes sett fyre vpon Ioades peece of lende.

Then Iob got him up, and came to Ab salam to the house, and sayde vnto him.
Wherefore hauest thou stricken mee with my peece of lorde: Abisai sayde vnto Iob: Deholoe. I fene see thee, and caused to iay vnto thee: Come hither, that I maye in to the cheyne, and to saye: Wherefore came I from Seir? It were better for me that I were there yet. Let me thence se the tynges face. But yf there be any trespass in me, thou put me to death. And Iob wor ned to the tynges, and tolde him. And he cal led Abisalam, to come in to the tynges, and he worshipped upon his face to the groun de before the tynges. And the tynges blyssed Abisalam.

If he faye that they furreine is of one of the tybles of Irael, then fayde Aftaieus vnto him, Behold, thy matter is righte and plain: but thou art a man appointed of of the finge to be taken.

And Absalom sayde: ¶ who shall me come to me, ther I might helpe him to right And I haue any man come to him to do his maner dyd Absalom vnto all Iſra men of Iſrael.

A free forty yeares sayde Abshalom was the yonge. And so and performinge was as Deborah, which I made unto the LORDE.
 For thy seruante made a woore, which I dwelle at Gether in Siria, and saide: Whyn LORDE bringeth me agayne to Ierusalem.
 I shall be a Gode seruante unto the LORDE.
 The kynge sayde unto him: With my way peace. And he gat him up, and wente into Iherusalem.

But Ahisbama had sent out spies in all the cities of Israel, saying, When ye see the people of the temple, say, Zibbama is made king at Gethion. There were with Ahisbama two hundred men called from Jerusalem, but they came on simply, and knew not of the matter. Zibbama sent for Achisaph (the Silyonee) Dauda and Cele, one of his city Elders. Then when he had the sacrifice, the conspiracy was made up, and the people came together, and multiplied with Ahisbama.

Then came one which tolde Dauid sayde, that the hert of every man in Iudah folowed Absalom. Dauid saye vnto all his seruantes thet were with him at Ieru-salem; Wp, let vs fle, for here shall be no quarrell for vs becaue Absalom.

Take haist that we maye begynne, let he create us and catch us, and by the thy seruantes. And the fynge wemeth forth on fire & all his besetholde. And ten conuyners lyste he to fyre the house.

And when the fynge and all the people came forth out fore, they wete farre from home, and all his seruantes wente by him, and all the Chethians and Plesians, and all the Getheres, euen five hundred men, which must come on foot from Gath, wemeth before the fynge.

And the fynge sayde unto Jehai & Sa-doe: Why dost thou also with us? Turne backe, and hyde with the fynge, for thou art a stranger: see the hemes agayne unto thy place. Thou canst yesterdaye, and to-daye thou inperdest to go with us: So for us, I wyl go whither I can: wene thou backe agayne, and mercy and fadyngs happen unto thy brethren with the. Jehai answered, and sayde: As truly as the L O R-D liveth, and as truly as my lordes the fynge liveth, lyste in what place my lordes the fynge shalbe, wherether it chaunce to life or death, there shal thy seruante be also.

David sayde unto Jehai: Then come, and go with us. So wemeth Jehai the Gether-es and all his men, and the whole multitude of the children that were with him. And all the lordes wepe with loud to wepe, and all the people with them. And the fynge we-te out the backe Lebon, and all the people wemeth out by the roade that goeth to the wildernes.

And beholde, Sadoe was there also, and all the Levites that were with them, & they were of the covenant of God, and se-te there. And Abiathar wemeth up, tyll all the people came out of the cite. And the fynge sayde unto Sadoe: Drynge the Arke of God into the cite agayne. If I shal fynde grace before the L O R D E, he shall frende agayne, and shall let me see it, and the house of it. And if he saye thou: I have no pleasure to see the, here am I, let him do with me as it pleaseth him.

And the fynge sayde unto Sadoe & prief-tes: O thou Sadoe, canst thou goe to the cite with peace, and thine as thy sonne with the, and Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar, beholde, I wyl lyste in the playne of the wildernes, tyll the messenge come from you, and tell me.
So Sadoe and Abiathar brought the Ar-ke of God agayne to Jerusalem, and remayned there.

And David wemeth up to mount Olyuete and wepe, & his heade was covered. And all the people that was with him, had we-rymen his heade covered and wemeth on and wepe. And when it was tolde David, that Achisophel was in the chifderacy with Absalom, he sayde: L O R D E turne thou Achisophels counsell to foolishnes.

And when David came up to the toppes of the mount, where the yfe was to worship pe God, & hushe the Achisophel met him with his cotes rent, and earth upon his heade. And David sayde unto him: If thou go with me, thou shalt be chargeable vnto me: but if thou goest a gayne to the cite, and sayest unto Absalom: I am thy seruante: O fynge euen as I was thy fathers seruante: O fynge I now be thy seruante. Then shalte thou brynge Achisophels counsell to naughtee.
So is Sadoe and Abiathar y prestes with the, and all that thou hearest out of the fynges mouth, tell it unto Sadoe and Abiathar the prestes. Beholde, their two sonnes are with the: Abimeas the sonne of Sadoe, and Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar, by them mayest thou fynde me: wene what thou hea-rest. So Chusai the Amathite came in to the cite. And Absalom came to Jerusalem.

The xvi. Chapter.

And when David was gone a tyle by from the toppes of the mount, beholde, Sadoe the seruante of the fynge met him with a couple of asses laden, where on were two hundred leanes of beeh, and an hundred quantities of raisins and an hyldrich quantities of fygge, and a boord of wyne. Then sayde the fynge vnto Sadoe: What wilt thou do herewith? Sadoe sayde:
The asses shalbe for the fynyngs householde, to carrie vpon, and the loanes and fygges for the fynyng men to eat, and the wyne shall be for them to drynke when they are weary in the wildernes. The fynge sayde: Where is thy lordes sonne? Sadoe sayde vnto the fynge: Beholde, he abyde there Jerusalem, for he saide: To daye shal I house of Israel restore my fathers kingdom vnto me. The fynge sal-de vnto Sadoe: Beholde, all that Achisophel saith, he shal do chine. Sadoe sayde much more unto David, & he wene grace in thy sight my lord be O fynge.

And when fynge David came to Bethurim, beholde, there wemeth out a man of the fynyng of the house of Saul, whose name was Genni the sonne of Gera, which wemeth forth and confid, and cast stones at Da-uid, and at all fynyng Davids seruantes and all the people and all the wigghers men men were at his righte hande and at his lef-te. Thus sayde Semai whan he cursyd: Get thee forth, get thee forth thou bloody hounde, thou man of Belial. The LORDE hath remarded the for all the blowes of the house of Saul, & thou becomest kynge in his stead.

Now hath the LORDE given the kyngdome in to thy hande of Absalom thy sonne, and beholde, now standest thou in thine owne myftefe, for thou art a bloody hounde.

But Absalome the sonne of Geiuzai sayde unto the kynge: Shall this deed begg curse my lorde the kyng? I wil go and take the hea-de awaye from him. The kynge answered he children of Geiuzai, what have I to do wth you?
Let him curse on, for the LORDE hath commaunded him: Curse Dauid. Who can saye now: Why dost thou so?

C And Dauid sayde unto Absai and to all his seruantes: Beholde, my sonne which came of my body, seeketh after my lyfe, how much more now the sonne of Jimini? Let him curse on, for the LORDE hath commaunded him: I peradventure the LORDE shall conspyre my aduersarye, and recompence me good for his cursynge this daye. So Dauid went on his waye with his men. But Se-mai went on by the mounte besyde him, and cursed, and cast stones at him, & thierre clothes of care.

And the kynge came in and all the people that was with him, weery, and refreshed himselfe there. But Absalom and all the people of the men of Israel came to Jerusalem and Achitophel with him. Whan Chusai the A-rachite Dauides frende came in to Absalom, he sayde unto Absalom: God saue the kynge God saue the kynge.

D Absalom sayde unto Chusai: Is this thy mercy unto thy frende? Why art thou not gone purch thy frende? Chusai sayde unto Absalom: What is, to losse whom the LORDE chooseth, and the people, and all the men in Israel, his roy? I be, and byde with him. Secretly whom shaldest thou serue? Shaldest thou serue before hen sonne? Let us as I haue serued in the presence of thy father, so will I do serue: before the also.

E And Absalom sayde unto Achitophel: Seue us your counsell what we shal do: Achitophel sayde unto Absalom: Go ye with thy father a concubynes, whom he hath lef-tece kepe the house, so shall all Israel heare that thou hast made thy father to synne, and the hande of all them that are with y, shall be the holder. Then made they a tennet unto Absalom upon the house topp. And Absalom laye with his fathers concubynes is the signe of all Israel.

At that tyme whan Achitophel becounsell, that man councell as if a man be counsell at God: So were all the counsel of Achitophel both with Dauid and with Absalom.

The xvij. Chapter.

A And Achitophel sayde unto Absalom: I wil dofe our twelue thousand men and wil get me up, and perswade by nighte, and fall upon him whan he is and weery: Whan I see him the I shall the people which is by him, slay. I wil see the kynge and y, and bynne all the waye unto the agayne. So whan every man broughte vnto the as thou bearest, thus all the people be in peace. Absalom thought that good, and so byd all the men of Israel. But Absalom sayde: I praye you Chusai the Arachite also, and let us heare what he sayeth thereto. And whan Chusai came in to Absalom, Absalom saide to him: Thus hath Achitophel spoken, saye thou now, what we do it or no?

Then sayde Chusai unto Absalom: There no good counsell y Achitophel hath given at this tyme. And Chusai sayde more: Thou knowest thy father well and his men, that they are stronge and of a watchful maad, euen as a Dece that is robbed of by yonge ones in the felde. Thy father shal man of more, and my not be negligent the people. Beholde, he hath now perceiued thy myselfe in some case or in some place. If it camest to passe then that it chaunced euell at the first, & there shaldest thou come and saye: There is a slaughter done in the people that followed Absalom: the shaldest man be discouraged, which els is valiant. haue heere like a lyf: for all Israel knoweth that thy father is stronger, and that all they which be with him, are mightie men.

But thus to my counsell, that thou gather together all Israel from Dan vnto Berseba in nombre as the fonde of the See, and thou shalt see some person amonge them, the weil we fall upon him in what place we find him, and we will ouerwhelme him euen as he doth saltch upon the earth. So that we shal not leane one of him and of all his men. But if he refuse to do this, then shalt thou cast roapes aboute the same care, and burne it in the tyme, so that there shal not one be of the reme.

Then sayde Absalom and every man of Israel: The counsell of Chusai the Arachite is hence than Achitophels counsell.

Then the LORDE broughte it soe passethat y good counsell of Achitophel was hyndred, that the LORDE myghte beyngedoe vpon Absalom.

And Achisai sayde vnto Saaboez Abisaph the pesser: Thou and thine hath Achitophel counsailed Absalom and the Elders in Israel: doe so and so haue I counsailed. Sende now therefore in all the hast, and tell Dauid, and saye: Abye noe all night in the playne fildes of the wyldernes, but get thee out, that the kyng be not smaled of vpon, and all the people that is with him. As for Jonathan and Ahimaaz, they shode by the well of Rogel, and a damsell wente thither to wether them. They wente on their waye, and didest pinge Dauid, for they durst not be seene come into the cite.

Dauid leaue them, and toke Absalom. Fleethen they wente on their waye, and came to a mane house at Bahurim, which had a well in the court, and they wete downe into it. And the woman toke and spred a coveringe ouer the welles mouth, and strewed sunnyshe come thereon, that it was not perceaued. Then when Absaloms seruantes came to the woman in to the house, they saye whether is Ahimaaz and Jonathan? The woman sayde vnto them: They are gone ouer the lile water.

And whā they soughte and founde them not, they wente agayne to Jerusalem. And when they were gone, they clymbed vp ouer of the well, and wrote their waye, and tolde Dauid y kyng, and saye vnto Dauid: Get you vp, and go soone ouer y reuer, for thys and thus hath Achitophel geuen counsell against you.

Then Dauid gat him vp, and all the people that was with him, and passed ouer Jordan: whiche was cleare morninge. And there was no one, but he wente ouer Jordan.

When Achitophel sawe that his counsell wrooke not for him, he saddled his asse, gat him vp, and wete hene in to his cite and tooke his bagges of paynes, and hanged him selfe, and dyed, and was buried in his fathers grave.

And Dauid came to Mahanaim, and Absalom wente ouer Jordan, and all the men of Israel w him. And Absalom had set Amasa ouer the host: in Joabs steade. Amasa was the sonne of a man, whose name was Ismael a Iesseite, which laye with Abigail the daughter of Nabal the sister of Beeri Joabs mother. But Israel and Absalom pitched in Gilead.

When Dauid was come to Mahanaim, * Hadas of Gad had of the child of Ammon, and * Machir the sonne of Ammiel of Zobab, and * Barzillai a Gileadite of Roglum broughte beehyffe, capseire, wheate, beens, earthen vessel, rebete, barley, meal, parched come, beens, omelet, rye, hony, butter, shepe and sic open asse Dauid, and eo of people that was with him, for to eate: see they thoughte. The people shall be homyne, weerye and thus ye in the wyldernes.

The xviii. Chapter.

And Dauid mastred the people y was with him, and six captaines ouer the, ouer the hundred and ouer hundred. And sent out of the people one thirde parte vnder Abisai the sonne of Ner Ja Joabs brother, and one thirde parte vnder * Jehai the Gethite. And the kyng sayde vnto the people: I will go forth with you also. * * * * * The-
* * * * * the people sayde: Thou shalt not go forth, for though we sit, at the halfe of so they shal not regarde vs. For thou art as ten thousande of vs. * * * * * Therefore is this better that thou warest helpe vs out of the cite. The kyng sayde: Lete what ye are content withall, that wyl I do. And the kyng rode in the gace, and all the people wente forth by hundredes and by thousandes. And y tin ge comenode Joab and Abisai, and Jehai, and sayde: Increase me the yonge man Absalom greatly. And all the people herde it, whā the kyng comenode all the capteynes concerning Absalom. And when the people were come forth in to the fildes agaynst Israel, the battayll beganne in the med of Issachar. And the people of Israel were smitten there beside Baudo seruantes, so that there was a greates slaughter the same daye, of euerye thousande men. And the battayll was fearede abode there in the londe. And the word consumed moche more people the same daye, then the swerde consumed.

And Absalom met Dauids seruantes, and rode vpon a Mule. And when the Mule came vnder a greates thicke Oke tre, his heade toke helde on the Oke, and so hangen he betwene heauen and earth, but the Mule ranne awaye from vnder him. When a certayne man sawe that he tolde Joab, and said be: Beholde, I seee Absalom hange vpon a Oke tre. And Joab sayde vnto the mā y tolde it him: Beholde, sawest thou that, why smitest thou him not there to the grounde? so wolde I haue geuen thee of myne owne be halfen ten siluerynges and a gyrdell.

C The man sayde unto Joab: If thou haddest weyed me a thousande silver kynges in my handes, yet wolde I not haue layed my handes on the kynges sonne. For the kyngge commounded the and Abisai and Jehu before our eeres, and sayde: Repe me the yonge man Abisai. Or if I had dyssembled upon the to perdy of my owne soule (for so much as not bing shoulde be hyd from y^e King) thou thy selfe shouldest haue stode against me. Joab sayde: Goe so, I wil vpon him be for thy soe.

Then toke Joab thre speares in his hande, and thrust Abisai therewith y^e hert, while he was yet alyst upon the w^ell. And ten yonge men Joab weapon be eeres, came abate him, and smote him to death. Then blew Joab the trompe, and brought the people agayne, that they shoulde followe no more vpon Israel, for Joab wolde saue the people. And they toke Abisai, and cast him in the wod in to a greete pyre, and layed a greete heape of stones vpon him. And aⁿ Israel fled, entyng into his tentes.

D Abisai had see him vpon a piler whyle he was yet alyst, which stode in the kynges walley, for he sayde: I haue no sonne, therefore shall this be a remembrance of my name: and he called the piler a fear his owne name. And unto this date is he yet called Abisai's place.

Abimaso the sonne of Saboc sayde: Let me runne now, and bringe the kyngge word, that the LORD hath gaten him righte fro the hande of his enemies. But Joab sayde: Thou shalt bringe no good tidings to daie another daye: thou shalt bringe him word, and not to daie, for the kynges sonne is dead. Thus vnto Chusi sayde Joab: Go thou thy waye, and tell the kyngge what thou hast seene. And Chusi did his obediēce vnto Joab, and ranne. Abimaso the sonne of Saboc said agayne vnto Joab: What and I ranne also? Joab sayde: What wilt thou runne my sonne? Come hithe, then shalt bringe no good tydinges. (He answered:) What and I ranne yet. He sayde vnto him: Come to my waye then. So Abimaso ranne the straight waye, and came before Chusi.

As for Dauid, he sat betwene the two piteas. And the watchman wente vpon y^e toppe of the poire vpon the wall, and lieth by his eye, and sawe man runninge alone, and cryed, and tolde the kinge. The kyngge sayde: If he be alone, then is there good tydinge in his mouth. And as the same man came to me forth, the watchman sawe another man runninge, and cryed in the poire, and sayde: Beholde, there runneth a man alone. The kyngge sayde: The same is a good man, as I sayd so. The watchman sayde: I see the runninge of the first as it were the runninge of Abimaso the sonne of Saboc. And the kyngge sayde: He is a good man, and bringeth good tidings. Abimaso cryed, and sayde vnto the kyngge: Peace, and we shal be before the kyngge vpon his feete to the g^rande, and shal be praised be the LORD by God, which hath geuen ouer y^e men that liue vpon their handes agaynst my LORD the kyngge.

The kyngge sayde: Goech it well with the yonge man Abisai: Abimaso sayde: I sawe a greete upmoue, when Joab the kyngge's foster sonne sent me thy message, and I was not what it was. The kyngge sayde: Goe thou, and stonde here. And he wente adowne and stode there. Beholde, then came Chusi and sayde: I bringe good tydinges my lord the kyngge: The LORD hath executed righte for the this daye, from the hande of all them that rose up agaynst the. And the kyngge sayde vnto Chusi: Is it well with the yonge man Abisai? Chusi sayde: Euen so go it is all the enemies of my lord the kyngge, and with all them that crye up agaynst the: I will enel, as it goeth with the yonge man. And the kyngge forsook full, and wente vpon into the perle vpon the gate, and wept, and as he wente, he sayde thus: O my sonne Abisai, my sonne, my sonne Abisai, wolde God that I shoulde by yet the. O Abisai, my sonne, my sonne.

S And Basillai the Gileadite came downe

Iordane, that he mighte charye him in Iordane. And Basillai was very olde, so good as foure score yere olde. & the same had prohanaim, for he was a very noble man. And the kyng sayde vnto Basillai: Thou shalt go euer with me, I wyl take care for the & myne owne selfe at Jerusalem. And Basil-lai sayde vnto the kyng: What haue I yet to lye, that I shoulde go vnto Jerusalem the kyng? There da ye am I foure score yere olde. How shoulde I knowe what is good or euill, or crafft what I eate or drynke, or heare what the Wisitians do synge? Why shouldest thou charge me be chargeable first vnto my lord the kyng? & thy seruante shall go a

Let thy seruante turne backe agayne, that I maye by my cite besyde my father and E The kyng sayde: Chimeam shal go euer that wyl I do for the also. And when all y people was gone ouer Iordane and the kyng gelekyt, the kyng kyssed Basillai and blessed him, and he camd vnto his place.

And y kyng possed ouer vnto Gilgal, and Chimeam wente with him. And all the people of Iuda brought the kynges ouer, howbeit there was but halfe of the people of Israel there.

And in this orde, the came all the men of Israel vnto the kyng, & sayde vnto him: Why haue our brethren the men of Iuda stolen the awaye, and haue conseyed y kyng and his household ouer Iordane, and all the men with him? Then answered they of Iuda vnto them of Israel: The kyng is of ouer nye kynde, why are ye agayn charye?
Whyde ye that we haue receaued any fode or giften of the kyng? Then answered they of Israel vnto them of Iuda, & sayde: We haue ten tymes more with the kyng and with Dauid, the than thou, why dost thou regarde me then as lightly, that oures were not the first to seche oure kyng agayne? But they of Iuda spake harder then they of Israel.

The XX. Chapter.

There was a famous man of Belai there, whose name was Seba y son of Bichai, a man of Ierusalem, whiche biere the trompe, and sayde: We haue in possession in Dauid, not inheritance in y ne of David. Let every geue him to hit here, & Israel. Then fulleury man in Israel from Dauid, and followed Seba the sonne of Bi-chai. But the men of Iuda closed vnto the kyng from Iordane vnto Jerusalem. When Dauid came home to Jerusalem, he coo-ten concubynes: & when he had lefte to the the house and put them in a holde to be helte, and made prouision for them: he helper not with them, and so were they shot vnto to their death, and layed wadowes.

And y kyng sayde vnto Amasa: Call all the men of Iuda together agayn at this orde daye, & be thou here passinge also. And Amasa wrote to call Iuda together. And was slacke to come at y tyme whiche he appointed him. And Dauid sayde vnto Asa: How shall Seba the sonne of Bichai be more harme then Bichai. Let report leude seruantes, and folowe upon him, he synde not some struge ciues for him, and so scape out of oure sight. Then wrote y aba me seche a fter him, and the Chitians and Plechians, and all the mightie men: they wente out of Jerusalem to folowe vnto Seba the sonne of Bichai.

But when they were by the grette Run at Gibeon, Amasa came before them. And Joab, he was gyrded aboue his garment which he had on, and vpon it he had a shor-de gyrded, which hangid by his the right sheath, and wente softly one and on, and slew him. And Joab seide vnto Amasa: Pe-ce be with the my brother. And Joab slayd Amasa by the beede with his right hand to the bone. And Amasa deide there betwene y fteres in Joabes hande, and he charyd therewith in to the hely, y his beede run out vpon the earth, and he charyd as yet more. And so he dyed.

Joab & his brother Abisai followed vnto Seba y sonne of Bichai. And one of Joab seruantes slode by him, and sayde: Why is he this? & wolde be agayn Joab to y se Dauid, and so be with Dauid in y steade? So for Amasa, he laye relded blonde in y myddes of the strete. And this was God at one with the Iowde.

But there arose warre agayne of 3 Phi-had a new harness upon him) broughte to of Neru 3a helpe him, 3 smote the Philistyne him, 3 sayde: Thou shalt not ouer go forth with vs vnto the warre, that the Iowde in Israel be not put out.

Afterwarde there arose yet warre at Geth with the Philistynes. Then Sidaich the Gushite smote Rappa, which also was one of the children of Rappa.

And there arose yet warre at Geth with the Philistynes. Then Elhanan the sonne of Iesse of Bether leui smote the Gushite, which had 3 speare, whose shaft was like an axe to hew downe Iesse.

And there arose yet warre at Geth, where there was a skilful man, which had his finger in his handes, and his toe on his feet, that he smote and slew in the non when he spake despitefully vnto Israel, Jonachin 3 sonne of Semea Dauides brother smote him. These foure were doone vnto Ra-

Dauid and of his seruantes.

He beueth the heuene and cometh downe, and he was darke vnder his feet.

He sat vpon Cherub and vpon fyre, and appeared vpon the syckles of the wynde.

He made darkness his pavilion rounde

The LORD thundered from heauen, and

The pourtynges out of the See were

He sent downe from aboue, and raised me, and drew me out of many waters.

He deliuered me fro my strong enemy from them that hated me, for they were mightie for me.

They overcame me in the tyme of my tribule, but the LORD was my succour.

He broughte me forth fro the liuey, he deli-uered me, because he had a fauour vnto me.

The LORD shall recompense me of all my righteousnes, and according to the clement of my handes shall he recompense me.

For I haue kepte 3 wayes of the LORD, 3 haue not bene wrothly agaynst my God.

For I haue not vnto all his lawes, and haue not put his ordinance fro me.

Therefore will I be perfect vnto him, and will shewe myne innocencye vnto him.

So shall 3 LORD reward me as my righteousnes, according to the clement of my handes in the eyes of sight.

With the holy shalt thou be holy, and 3 the perfectest thou shalt be perfect.

With the cleane thou shalt be cleane, and with the strong thou shalt be strong.

For thou shalt soue the poore oppressed people, and shalt shine eyes agaynst the proude, 3 brynge them downe.

For thou O LORD art my strength. The LORD shall liue by me for ever.

For in 3 shall be safe, and out of the hande of my enemy I shall escape, and the wall.

Thou hast made myne enemies to turne

And whā kinge dauid was olde & well strycke in age, he coulde not be warre, though he was couered with clothe. Then sayde his seruantes vnto him:

Let vs see a yonge damsell in virgin for our lorde the kyng, to stonde before the kyng, and to nourish him. & so slepe in his armes, and to waeme our lorde the kyng. And they sought a saye dāsell in all the coastes of Iſrael, and founde Abisag of Sunem, and broughe her vnto the kyng. And she was a very softe damsell, and mercedful of kyng, and serued him. & sombere the kynge fawne her not.

Abonias & some of his gyltlesse vpon him selfe, and sayde: I wyll be kyng. And he prepared him chariots and boismen, and fytte men to be renners on foot before him. And his father espoused hi notherfore, so much as to saye: Wherfore dost thou so? And he was a man of a very saye & weye. And he had begotten him nexte in feet Abisag. And his mother sode by Iob & some of zern. & so by Abiathar the priefte, which helpe Abonias. But Sadoe the priefte, and Denais the sonne of Iobada, and Nathan the priefte and Semo and Kei, and Douda Worthies were not with Abonias.

22 And whā Abonias offered shewe and off, and fat cattell beynde the lions of Behelech, which lyeth by the well of Rogel, he called all his brether the kynges sones, and all the men of Iuda the kynges seruantes. But the prophete Nathan and Denais, and the Worthies, and his brother Salomon called be not. Then so yve Nathan vnto Dabibin Salomons mother: Hast thou not herde of Abonias the kyng, and oure lorde Dauid knoweth notherof? Come now therfore. I wyll geue the counsell, that thou mayst be lyuer thy soules and the soles of thy sennē Salomon. Come now and go in to kyng Dauid and saye vnto him: Hast thou my lorde the kynges sworne and sayde vnto thy hand-mayden: Salomon thy sennē shall be kyng after me, and he shall lye vpon my seate? Why when Abonias made kyng? Beholde, while thou art yet here, and tellest with the kyng, I wyll come in so fier the, and tell such thyng. And Bethseba wente in to the kyng to a chamber. And the kyng was very olde. And Abisag of Sunem serued the kyng. And Bethseba bowed herselfe, and worshipped the kyng.

The kyng sayde: What wilt thou? She sayde vnto him: My lorde, Thou hast giuen vnto thy hand-mayden by the LORDE thy God: Thy sonne Salomon shall be kyng after me and sitte vpon my seate. But now, Abonias is kyng, and my lorde the kyng knoweth it not. He hath offered oren and fat cattell, and many shewe, and hath called all the kynges sones, and Abiathar the priefte, and Iobad the chiefe capteyne. But thy sennē Salomon hath he not bydden. Wherfore thou my lorde art kyng, the sennē of all Iſrael loke vnto the, that thou shaldest shewe them who shall sitte vpon the seate of my lorde the kyng after the. And whā my lorde the kyng slepe with his sennē then shal I and my sennē Salomon be sennē to be sennē.

23 And while she yet spake to the kyng, the prophete Nathan came, and she tolde the kyng: beholde, there is the prophete Nathan. And whā he came in before the kyng, he worshipped the kyng vpon his face to the ground, and sayde: My lorde the kyng, hall thou saye: Abonias shall be kyng after me? sitte vpon my seate? For he is gone downe this daye, and hath offered oren, and fat cattell. I have called all the kynges sones, and the capteynes, and the priefte Abiathar. And behold, they eat and drynke before him, and so yve: God sennē the kyng Abonias. But my sennē Salomon, and Sadoe the priefte, and Denais the sonne of Iobada, and thy seruante Salomon hath he not called. Hath my lorde the kyng commaunded this, and not certified his seruante who shall sitte vpon the seate of my lorde the kyng after him?

The kyng answered and soide: Call Bethseba vnto me. And she came in before the kyng. And whā she stode before the kyng, the kyng swaue and sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyueth (which hath belyered my soule out of trouble,) I wyll be vnto this daye, even as I swaue vnto the by the LORDE the God of Iſrael, so that Salomon thy sennē shall be kyng after me, and he shall sitte vpon my seate.

24 Then Bethseba bowed herselfe with her face to the ground, and thownd the kyng and sayde: God sennē my lorde kyng Dauid for evermore. And the kyng sayde: Call me the priefte Sadoe & the prophete Nathan, and Denais the sonne of Iobada.

And whā they came in before the kyng, re the kynges sayde vnto them: Take youte liues seruantes with yea, and set my forter Gileon vpon my wile, and carry him downe to Shidon and let Saboc & piest and the prophet Tachan, an oymes him there to be thyng oute of Iisael, and blowe the trom-go ye up after him: and when he cometh, he shall ly vpon my seate, and be kyng in my stead for I haue ordeyned him to be pynce ouer Iisael and Iuda. Then answered Bereia the sonne of Joiada vnto the kynges, & saye: Amen. The LORDE God of my lode the kynges saie thus also. As the LORDE hath bene with my lorde the kynges, so be he with Salomon also, that his seate maye be greater then the seate of my lorde kynges Da-

Then wente they downe, the piest Saboc with the prophet Tachan, and Bereia the sonne of Joiada, and the Cherubians, & Plethians, & set Salomon vpon kynges Dauides throne, & brought him to Shidon. And Sa-boc the piest toke the oyle borne out of the Cathinacle, and anoynted Salomon. And they blew the trompe: And all þ people say de: God saus kynges Salomon.

And all the people wente up after him, and the people pypped with pypes, and was very ioyfull, so that the earth range as the noy of them. And Adonias herde it, and all they whym he had called, which were w him, and they thabnewe euen. And when Jo-ah herde the noyse of the trompe, he sayde: What meaneth this noyse of the cye and this busynesse? But whyle he yet spake, beholde, I was the sonne of Abiathar & piest came.

And Adonias sayde: Come in, for thou art a nobleman, and bringest good tynges. Jonathan answered and sayde vnto Adonias: Alas, I lorde kynges David hath made Salomon kynges, and hath set vnto him Saboc the piest and the prophet Ta-chan, and Bereia the sonne of Joiada, and the Cherubians and Plethians, and they haue set him vpon the kynges throne: and Sa-boc & piest with the prophet Tachan hath anoynted him kynges at Shidon, and from the ceate they went up with ioye, that the earth rangeth with all: that is the noyse that ye here nowe.

Salomon also settech vpon the kynges seat, and the kynges seruantes are gone in to with good lucke vnto ouer lorde kynges Da-uid, and him sayde: Thy God make Salomon a better name then thy name is, and make his seate greater then thy seate. And whyle he was wysshed the kynges good lucke vpon the bedd, howeuer þ kynges hath sayde thus: Praised be þ LORDE God of Iisael, which this daye hath made eue to ly vpon my seat, that myne vna house shal be.

Then were they a fayer, and gaue chrysup all that were called by Adonias, and so they departed euery man his waye. But A-donias was afraied of Salomon, and gat him up, and wote his waye, & toke hold of of houses of þ altare. And it was tolde Salomon, & beholde, he toke the hold of the houses of þ altare, & sayde: Let the kynges Salomon come vnto me this daye, that he shall not slaye his seruant with the sword. Salomon sayde: If he will be an honest man, there shall not one heer fall from him vpon the earth: but yf there be euill founde in him, he shall dye. And kynges Salomon sent, and caused him to be fetcht from the altare. And when he came, he fell downe before kynges Salomon.
But Salomon sayde vnto him: So þ waye

And there was a chayre set for the kyngs mother, so that she sat on his righte hande. And she sayde: One petition desire I of thee, that thou mayest not make my face ashamed. The kyng sayde: Alas O my mother. I wyl not shame thy face. She sayde: Let Abisag of Sunon be geve to thy brother Adonias to wyfe.

¶ Then answered thyng Salomon, and shew unto his mother. Why desirest thou Abisag of Sunon for Adonias? Are the kyng-domes of him also, for he is my greater brother, and hath Abisachas the priest, and Jabad the sonne of Jeru. And the kyng swore by the LORD, and sayde: God is chyia and that unto me, Adonias shall have spoken this against his lyfe. And now as I have said, so the LORD thyng which hath decreed me, and made me so for upon the seate of my father David, and hath made me a house (as thou sayde) this day shal Adonias by.

¶ And thyng Salomon sent thither by Nathan the sonne of Joabab, which smote him that he dyed. And the priest Abisach sayde of thyng: Go thy waye unto Abisach to thy house, for thou art a man of death. It were helpe I wyl not slay the this day, for thou hast done the wylle of the LORD. Sami sayde unto the kynges: This is a good meanynge, on my lord the kynges hath sayd, so shalt thy seruante do. So Sami dwelt at Jerusalem a longe tyme. Then sent the kynges, and causid for to call Sami, and sayde unto him: Where art thou to the by the LORDE, and as I sende the, and sayde: I of what daye so ever thou departest hither, and goest hither or thither, be sure that thou shalt be the death: And thou saydest unto me: I have herde a good meanynge. Why hast thou not kepte the then accordinge to the ooth of the LORDE, and commandement that I commaund the ther?

And the kynges sayde unto Sami: Thou rememberest all y wickednes, which thy hert knoweth: that thou dydest unto my father David. The LORDE hath recompensed y thy wickednes upon thy heade. And the kynges Salomon is blessed, and the state of David shall be established before y LORDE for ever. And the kynges commaunded Benia y sonne of Isaiaba, which wente forth, and slewed him the by the LORDE. And the kynges was established by Salomons hande.

And the LORDE appeared unto Salomon at Gibeon a dreame of the nyght, and God sayd: He wha I shal geve y. Salomons said: Thou hast done greace mercy unto my father David thy seruante. I like on he walked before the in faithfulness, and righteousnes, and in a true hert with the, & thou greace mercy hast thou layed up for him, and geuen him a soun to sit upon his seat, as it is now come to passe.

5 Now LORDE my God, thou hast made thy seruante kyng in my father Davids steade: As for me, I am but a small yonge man, knowynge neither my strength, nor myngynge. And thy seruante in amonge the people whom thou hast chosen: which is in grece, that no man can number them, nor describe them for multitude. True thy seruante therefore an obediens hert, that he maye indge thy people, & understande what is good & bad, for who is able to indge the, thyng his people?

6 This pleased the LORDE well, that Salomon aerd such a pericion. so he buylded a compass, so þat it wene both aboute the temple and the quere, and made his outward wall to be aboute. The nyether most scacion was fyue cubytes wyde, and þat myddelst: cubytes wyde, and the thirdesten cubytes wyde. For he layed balles rounde aboute the house, that they touchyd not þat wall of the house.

- B And when þat house was abyldyd, it was buylded of wycolle and ouerlaiden stonke, so þat there was a heede neþer hammer ner ore, ner any other instrument of yron, whan the house was a buylding.

And on the nyghte syde of the myddel of the house there was a doore, so þat they myghte go out to the myddel scacion by a conueyence, and from the myddel scacion unto þat ende. Thise buylded he the house, and fynished it, and fyled þat house both above and by the wallen with Cedar wynde, and buylded a galley also above upon the wycolle house fyue cubytes hye, and couered the house with Cedar tymber.

And the word of the LORD came vnto Salomon, and sayde: Loe this be the house þat thou buyldest. And thou shalt walke in myne ordynances, and do a conuynge to my lawen, and kepe all my commaundmentes, so walke therin, when thou shalt stablysh my word with yf. Re. 7. b as I sayde vnto David thy father: I will direct amonge the chyldre of Israel, and will not forsake my people of Israel.

And by hym in the house he buylded a wall of Cedar tymber twenety cubytes longe, from the floore vnto the rofte. And there on the ynyde buylded he the quere for the most holy. And the house of the temple before the quere was forty cubytes longe: on the ynyde was the whole house of Cedar with chymene knappes and floures, so that there was no stonke fen. As for the quere, he picarded it on the ynyde of the house, that the drete of the couerment of the LORD myghte be seyn therein. And before the quere (which was twenety cubytes longe, twenety cubytes brode, and twenety cubytes hye, and ouerlaid with pure golde) he fyled the alace with Cedar.

He made also in the quere two Cherubine carubies hye of Olyuere. One wyng of ether of the Cherubine had fyue cubytes, so that from the edge of the one wyng to the edge of the other wyng there were ten cubytes. And so had the other Cherubine carubies also, and both the Cherubine were of one measure and of same quantite as the Cherubine was ten cubytes hye. And he put the Cherubine within in the house. In the Cherubine spred forth their wynges, so that the wynges of the one touchyd the one wall, and the other Cherubine wynges touchyd the other wall. And in the myddel of þat house the one wynges laced another. And he ouerlaided the Cherubine with golde.

And on all the molles of the house: that he aboue, he consydred to make carued wynde, with carued Cherubine, palme trees, and floures. And the pavement of the house he layed he also with golde places. And the innerance of the quere he made two bores of olyuere with fyue squared postes, and caused carued wynde to be made thereof with Cherubine, palme trees and floures, and ouerlaided them with places of golde. So made he also at the innerance of the temple, fyue squared postes of Olyuere, and two bores of pyntre, so that ether bore had twenety bores one bagging to another, and made a ned in orde thereof, palme trees and floures, right as it was appoynted.

And he buylded a court also within the rumes of frestone, and with ouerment of playne Cedar tymber.

In the fourth yere in the moneth Sil, was the foundation of the LORDS house layed: and in the eleventh yere in the moneth Bulcher to the eighth moneth was the house fynished as it shal be, so that there were stien yere a buylding of it.

The vij. Chapter.

When Salomon was a buylding in the name house thirteyn yere, he fynished it, namely, he buylded an house of frestone of Libanus, an hundred and thretyre, fyfte cubytes wyde, and thretyre cubytes hye, fyue squared with corners of pilers, and a carued Letira. And the rofte above fyled he also with Cedar wynde upon the fyue squared pilers, for one rowe had fyfte pilers, so that there stode over the pilers one right against another: so that every piler supportyd the pilers was one ony a gysse and fyue squared with the pilers.

The iij. boke of the knynges.

And he made a porche with pilers which were fyfte cubites longe, and eche cubite broad, & yet a porche before it with pilers & & a grete posse. So he made a porche also unto 3 knynges seates; wherof 3 wyngmen was topes; and made it to be the porche of wyng-men; and yled it with Cedre from the poynt where was the pavement agayne, and his owne house wher he dwelle, in yf backe court it made becomen 3 houses and the porche like 3 the other. And like unto the porche made 1 he a house for Pharaon daughter, & whos Salomon had e of en to wife.

All these were costly stone breuen after 3 measure, cut with sawes on every syde, from the grounde into the coles; and without the grete court also. As for the foundacions, they were costly and grete stones, ven and nyght cubites greates; and costly fre stones drawen out of the 3 meafure, and Cedern.
But the grete court rounde aboute had the thynnes of fre stone, & one rowe of play-se Cedern. So also the court by 3 house of the LORDE within, and the porch by the weste.

And kynge Salomon sent to fetch one 14 of the sonnes of Tyre a meadowe sonne, of the knyght of Ierusalem, and his father had bene 15 a sonne of Tyre, which was a connyng man in metall, full of wysdome, understandinge worke. When he came to kynge Salomon, 16 he made all his worke, & made eue brayknoppes of brasen molten, enser abene upon the pilers; and every knoppe was fyue cubites pillers; and wher they open like cheynes. And upon every knoppe he made two rowes of porgannaces rounde aboute on one rope, wherewith 3 knoppes was covered. And the knoppes were like to the porche 3 porche four cubites greates. And the porgannaces in the court rounde aboute were two hundred aboute and bench upon the rope, which were rounde aboute the chynnes of the knoppes.

On every knoppe upon both the pilers.
And he set up the pilers before the poynt of the temple. And he whiche he set on the right hande, called he Iachin: and the which he set on the left hande, called he Boaz. And so stode it aboue upon the pilers all the tyme. And so was the worke of 3 pi-was then cubites wyde, there were knoppes on the edge thereof rounde aboute the lauer.

Two rowes were that of the knoppes

And it stode upon twelve bullockes, wher-of fyve were turned rounde the north, the four was the west, the six was the south, and the six was the east, and the lauer aboue thereon, so that all their hynder partes were within vnder the lauer: wherof the chynnes was an hundred and the edge of it was like the edge of a cuppe, and as a flewte rose, and it conveyed water thence to the lauer.

And he made ten brasen seates, every one four cubites longe and brode, and the hye cubites hye. The fyve was made so, eche it had fyve laueres the legges. And on the fyve betwene the legges there were lyons, bullockes and cheenins. And on 3 legges which were aboute and bench the lyons and bullockes, were the fydes made so, that they were set downwarde. And every stode had fyve brasen wheles with brasen axelrees. And upon the four court there were porgannaces molten, every one on a gaynys another, deberse vnto the kettel.

And the stode upon the stode was an aby-re hye and rounde a cubite and an half wyde: and on the stode there were knoppes in foldes, which were four squared & not rounde.
The fyve which stode bench by the fydes, & the axelrees of the wheles were hard on yf seate. Every whele was a cubite and a half hye, and they were wheles like cart wheles. And their axelrees, spoked, naddes, & the fydes were all molten. And the fyve prop-per up the fyve camers of every fyde were hard on the seate.

And on the stode about upon the seate a cubite and an half rounde aboute, there were the legges and fydes hard on the seate. And on the plat of the same fydes and legges, he carved to card: Cherubins, lyons and palme trees one by another rounde aboute thereon.
After this maner made he ten molten seates, one maner of measure & wydenes was in all.

And he made ten copper kettles, so that one kettel covered fyve seates, and made was a kettel. And fyve seates sa be on the

And Hiram made pottes also and shewels and basins, & so finished he all the woorke, that kynge Salomon caused to be made in the house of the LORD. namely 3 rownd piers, and the rownde knoppes & beams upon the two piers, and the two wyrtben ropes to couer the two rownde knoppes upon the piers. And the foure hundred pomgranates on the two wyrtben ropes, euer two ones of pomgranates vnto euery rope, to couer the two rownde knoppes upon the piers. And the ten staires, and ten breccels theron, and the inuer, and twelve bullockes vnder y lower. And the pottes, shewels and basins. And all the ornaments which Hiram made vnto kynge Salomon for the house of the LORD, were of pure metall. In the countrey by Iordane, caused the kynge them to be molten in thys earth, betwene Succoth and Jartann. And Salomon let all the people be entreyed, because the metall was founde.

Moreover Salomon made all the apperell that belonged vnto the house of the LORD: namely a golden altare, a golden table that he sheweth laye on. Six candlestickes on the righte hande, and syue candlestickes on the lefte (before the quere) of pure golde, & flowers, Lampes and snoffers of golde, & sette six peeces, chargen, basins, spoues and censurars of pure golde. And the doore of 3 doore on the inwyde of the house in the most holy, and in the doore of the house of the temple of the LORD were of golde.

Thus all the woorke that kynge Salomon made in 3 house of the LORD, was finished. And Salomon brought in that his father Dauid had sanctified, of syluer and golde and ornaments, and layed it among the craftes of the house of the LORD.

The viij. Chapter.

Then gathered kynge Salomon all 3 Elders in Israel together, all the rulers of the trybes and princes of the trybes among the children of Israel, vnto Jerusalem, to bringe up the Ark of the covenante of the LORD. & one of the cites of Dauid, that is Zion. And there reposed vnto kynge Salomon all the men in Israel, as the host in the moneth Ethanim, that is 3 seventh month. And when all 3 Elders of Israel came, the priestes set the Ark of the LORD, and brought her up, and the Tabernacle of conuente, and all the ornaments of the Sanctuary that were in the Tabernacle. This day the priestes and the Levites,

And kynge Salomon and all the congregation of Israel 3 were gathered vnto him, wente with him before the Ark, and offered shepe and bullockes, so many, that they coulde not be nombred ner cold.

So the priestes brought the Ark of the LORD & commaunde vnto his place, & wote 3 Quere of the house the most holy vnder 3 wynges of the Cherubins. For 3 Cherubins spred out their wynges vnto the place where the Ark stode, and couered the Ark and the shaden thereof from aboue. And the flames were so hie, that 3 knoppes of them were sene from the Sanctuary before 3 quere, but on the contrarye were they not sene, and they were there vnto this daye.

And in the Ark there was nothing, but onely the two tables of stone, which Moyses had layed therein at Horeb, when 3 LORD made n covenante with the children of Israel, what tyme as they were departed out of the lande of Egypt.

But when the priestes wente out of the Sanctuary, a cleue filled the house of the LORD, so 3 the priestes coulde not stande to enter the office for the cloudes for the glory of the LORD filled the LORDS house. Then sayde Salomon: The LORD is to be praised, that he wolde dwell in a battell clothe. I haue builded a house, to be an habitation vnto thes stee. 3 thoumest dwell there for euer. And 3 kynge turned his face, & blessed all the congregation of Israel. And all the congregation of Israel stode, & they sung psalms be the LORD God of Israel, which promised by his mouth vnto my father Dauid, and by his hande hath fulfilled it, unto this daye. Hence the daye 3 I brought out my people of Israel out of Egypt, when I chosen no cite amonge all the trybes of Israel, to build me my house, that my name might be there. But Dauid be as I chosen, to be ouer my people of Israel.

And in the mornynge Dauid was occupied to build a house vnto the name of the LORD God of Israel, in the temple of the LORD. & he wote my father Dauid: Whom as thou wast my father, so build me my house, so my name, thou hast done well, that thou art so worshiped. Howbeit thou shalt not build the house, but thy sonne which shall come out of thy loynes, he shall build a house to my name. LORDE God of Israel: and there haue I erected a place for the Arke, wherein is the LORDEs covenant, which he made with ou-er Jacob, when he brought them out of the land of Egypt.

And Solomon stood before the altars of the LORDE in the presence of the whole congregation of Israel, and bode out his han-

God of Israel, there is no god like the, nether above heauen, nor beneath vnder earth, thou that bepest covenant and mercy for all thy seruantes that walke before thee: with all their heart, thou that hast kept promises with my father David: that thy seruante: With thy much mercie saydest it, and with thy hands hast thou fulfilled it, as it is come to passe in this daye.

Now LORDE God of Israel make good vnto my father David thy seruante, that which thou hast promised him, and say to me: Thou shalt not waite a man before me to see upon the face of Israel, if thy childre in their waye, so that they walke before me like as thou hast walked before me. Now thou God of Israel, let thy word be verified, which thou hast promised vnto my father David thy seruante.

Forthwith thou O God dwellest vpon earth: Thou holdest the heauens and the hea-uens of all heauens maye not containe the: how shaldest thou this house be it that I haue builded? But turne the vnto the prayer of thy seruantes, and to his supplication: O LORDE my God, that thou mayest heare the cheerefull voice and prayer, which thy ser-uantes make before the this daye, so that thy mercy be open over this house night and daye: ouer this place (whereof thou saydest: My name shall dwell there.) That thou mayest heare the prayer which thy ser-uantes make in this place, and heare the intercession of thy seruantes, and of thy people of Israel, which they shall make here in this place of thy habitation in heauen: and what thou hearest, be gracious.

When any man synneth agaynst his own heart, and cumbereth upon him an oath wherewith he hath sworn himselfe, and yet commeth before thine altare in this house, then hear thou in heauen, and see that thy seruants haue right, to confesse the iniquity, and to bringe his waye vpon his owne head, and to iustifie the righteous, to geue him according to his righteousness.

When thy people of Israel is synner toward their enemies (whyle they haue syn-and knowe thy name, and make their prayer and intercession vnto the (in this house), the heare them then in heauen, and be mercifull vnto the synners of thy people of Israel, and bringe them agayne into the land, that thou hast giuen vnto their fathers.

When the heauen is shut up, so that thou mayest not: (for so much, as they haue synned agaynst the) and yet they make their prayer in this place, and knowe thy name, and turne from their synnes which thou troublest them, heare thou them then in heauen, and be mercifull vnto the synners of thy seruants, and of thy people of Israel, that thou mayest shewe them the good waye, wherein they shalde walke, and let it be a yoke vpon the looke that thou hast giuen thy people to inheritance.

When a dearth, or pestilence, or brouth, or burnyng, or grethopper, or caterpillar, is in their land, or when his enemy layeth siege to his portes in the land, or when any other plage or distourbance happeneth, who so ever then maketh his prayer and petition, whether it be any other man or thy people of Israel (which thou art aware of their plague) every one in his hurt, and speedeth out his handes vnto this house: heare thou then in heauen in the place where thou dwellest, and be mercifull, so that thou geue every one according as he hath walked, like as thou knowest his heart: for thou only knowest the heart of all the children of men: that they maye al-waye feare the, as long as they lyue in the land, which thou hast giuen vnto our fathers.

And when any stranger, that is not of thy people of Israel, commeth out of a farre countrey for thy names sake: (for they shall heare of thy greates name, and of thy might and haue, and of thy excellencye among nations) to make his prayer in this house, heare thou him then in heauen, risen in the seat of thy dwelling, and do all for the which that stranger calleth vpon the name of the nations upon earth maye knowe thy people of Israel do: and that they maye builded, is named after thy name.

and I stablish the seate of thy kyngdome at Hebron for ever, accordinge as I promysed to thy father David, and sayde: Thou shaldest weete a man from the seate of Israel.

¶ And if yet come back fro me, ye and your children, and kepe not my commandement and observations which I have layed before you, but go a whor and serve other goddes, and worshippen them, wyll I receyve Israel out of the lande that I have given them. And the house that I have hallowed once my name, wyll I put awaye fro my face. And Israel shall be come a byname and shall be called the name of the lande, and so shall this be a byname: so that every one that goeth by shall be as a byname, and saye: Wherefore hath the LORD done thus unto this lande and to this house? Then shall it be answered: Because they forsooke the LORD their God, which broughte them out of the lande of Egypt, and have receaved other goddes, and worshipped them, and served them.
Therefore hath the LORD broughte all this evil upon them.

¶ Now when the twenty yeares were enished, when Salomon buyded that he wold make the LORDS house and the kynges house at Hebron, where was he when the kyng of Tyre broughte Salomon Cedar trees, & pines trees, and gold after all his desire, then gave Tyge Salomon unto Huram twenty cities in the countrey of Galilee. And Huram departed from Tyre to aske the cities which Salomon had given him, & they pleased him not, and he sayde: What manner of cities are these my brother that thou hast given me? And he called them the lande of Cabul unto this daye. And Huram sent unto the kyng, first sent him a weight of Golde. And this was the summe of the case, that Tyge Salomons aske to the buyldinge of the house of the LORD, and his a wode house, & Mil-li, and the walled of Jerusalem, and Gaser, and Megiddo, and Gaser.

¶ And Pharaoh kyng of Egypte came up, and went to Gaser, & beat it with fyre, & street the Canaanites & brake in the case, & gave it his gift unto his daughter Salomons wife. So Salomon buyded Gaser, & the lower Bethon, and Badash and Thamar, in 3 wordes, in the lande, & all the cities of the same house that Salomon had, and all the cities of the threecen, & all the cities of the basins, and what is pleased him to buyde at Jerusalem, in Libanus, & in every coun-trie of his dominion.

¶ And all the cannauim of the people of the Amorites, & Hittites, & Phereitians, & Hemites and Jebusites, which were not of the children of Israel, their children which they left behynde them in the lande (when the children of Israel coude not utterly de-stroye) that by Salomon make embouries

¶ But of the children of Israel he made no bondmen, but let them be men of warre, and his servants, and princes, and Engtes, and over his charrettes and horses. And the officers which were over Salomons ba-synesse, were syue hundred and fyftye, which ruled the people, and performed the worke.

¶ And Pharaos daughter went up from the case of David, in to his house, which he had buyded for her. Then buyded he Mil-li to his wyfe. And thre tymes in the yeare by Salomon offere burnt offeringes and bebe offeringes upon the altare: that he buyded unto the LORD, and burnt incense upon it before the LORD, and so was the house ended and synished.

¶ And Salomon made shippen also at Ezraon Geber, which lyeth by Asch beynde the Red Sea (that is) in the bay of the Red Sea.
And Huram sent him his servants by shippe, which were shipmen, and had experience of the Sea, with Salomons servants, and they came unto Ophir, and fetched from thence one & twenty score hundred weight of golde, and brought it unto Salomon.

The X. Chapter.

¶ And when Tyge Salomons fame of the name of the LORD came to the eares of the Queene of the Arabias, she came to please him with her sentence.
And she came to Jerusalem with a marvellous greates trayne, with camels which bare spices, and much golde, and precious stones.
And when she came in to Tyge Salomon, she shewed unto him all that was in her.
And Salomon tolde her every thing, and the Tyge had no charge in secret, but he tolde it her. And when the Queene of the Arabias sawe all the wysdome of Salomon, and the house that he had buyded, and the meane of his cattle, and the dwelling of his servants, & the offices of his mi-nistres, and theit garments, and his buders and the burnt offeringes which he offered in the house of the LORD, she was astonished, and could no longer re-maine.

Syrans shippes, which caried golde out of Ophir, broughte emansious moche costy symber and precious stones from Ophir.
And of that costy symber the bynge caused to make pilers in the boafe of the LORDE, and in þe Kinges boafe, and barpes and pil-laris for the Mass clarkes. There came memorable costy symber, wherby was seue un-

The golde that came to Salomon in one men, in archaues and of porcellaines, and of the harte tympe, and of the myghthe men in berdeth charrettes, and a twouthe thousande hounmen and he put in y charre dais, and with the Pyngie re Ierusalem.

And the Bynges broughte it to passe, that there was a synchylar at Ierusalem as before: and at many Cybers as there were by the figge trees in the wallis. And the Salmons desired to be brought out of Cypris, and the Aas: for the Bynges made machynaries to fetch them from Asea for moety. And in dawns came vp out of Cypris for fixe hundred Sydes of Syler, and an hoste for an hundred and fiftye. These were they broughte also to all the Bynges of the Swethes and to the Bynges of Siria by their handes.

The XL Chapter.

W De kynge Salomon loude many an landish wemen, & pharaoe daughter, and wemen of filoth, of Amur, of Edom, of Siden, and of Shech, men of the nations, that the LORDE spake of vnchylren of Jhsal. Doe not se unto them, as men do them, come vnto yon thyself, shal he was now olde, his wyces bowed his was the hett of David his father.

These thyngs Salomon for all his worldlyly wyse, which were in cause, and offered unto the gods. But the LORD was wroth agaynst Salomon, because his heart was turned asyde from the LORD God of Israel, which had tyme tyme appeared vnto him, and commaunded him, that he shoulde not make any other goddes: and yet kepe he not that the LORD commaunded him. Therefore sayde the LORD vnto Salomon: For so much as this is done with the, and hast thou kept my commaundment and myne ordinaunces, which I commaunded the, therfore will I not plucke thy kyngdome from the, and geue it vnto thy seruantes: Nevertheless in thy tyme will I nede do it, for thy father Dauid sake, but from the hande of thy sonne will I plucke it. So wylt thou not plucke thy kyngdome cleane awaye. One tyme the wylt I geue thee thy sonne, for Dauid my seruantes sake, and for Iherusalem sake which I haue chosen.

And the LORD raysed vp an aduersarye vnto Salomon, even Hadad the Elomite of the Egyptians side, which was in Egipt. For when Dauid was in Egipt, and Iacob the chiefe captayne wente up to bury the sayre, he smote all the males in Egipt. For Iacob remyned there sure moethes and all Israel, yet he had reed out all the males that were in Egipt. Then fled Hadad, and was taken up of the Moabites with him, of his fathers seruantes. So for Hadad he was a yongeman.

And they gat them up fro Arabian, and came vnto Paran, and certe men with them out of Paran, and came vnto Egipte vnto Pharaos the kyng of Egipte: which gaue him an hony and a captayne vnto the appoynted, and gaue him a sonne. And Hadad from thence fawoure in the sighte of Pharaos, so that he gaue him to wife even the sister of his owne wyfe Thephemys the Queene. And Thephemys sister bare him Genubath his sonne, and Thephemys nourished him up in Pharaos house, in so much that Genubath was in Pharaos house amonge Pharaos children.

Now when Hadad heede a Egipte, that Dauid was falle on his bed with his fathers, and that Iacob the chiefe captayne was dead, he fawoure vnto Pharaos: Let me go in to my countrey, Pharaos sayde vnto him: What leauest thou with me, that thou wilt go in to thy countrey? He sayde: Thy yonge, but yet let me go.

The xi. Chap. Ho. lix.

God raysed him vp another aduersarye also, out of Egipt the sonne of the Iuda, which fled from his brother Hadad the kyng of Egipt, and gathered men agaynst him, and was a captayne of the mens swarte when Dauid slew them: and they were vnto Damasco and dwelle there, and reigned at Damasco, and he was Iudas aduersarye as long as Salomon lued. This is the harme that Hadad suffered: the first he had the wall of Israel, and was kyng ouer Israel.

Moreover Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat an Ephraite Salomons seruante (and his motheres name was Zeruga, a reprobate) liued up his hande also agaynst the kyng. And this is the cause wherfor he liued up his hande agaynst the kyng. When Salomon buylded Iherusalem, he sette up a golde in the cite of Dauid his father. And Jeroboam was a man of witt. And when Salomon sawe that it was a more yonge man, he sette him ouer all the busshens of the house of Ioseph.

But at the same tyme it fortuned, that Jeroboam wente out from Iherusalem, and the prophet Ahias of Silo founde him by the waye, and he had a new clothe vpon him, and they two were alone in the silde. And Ahias toke holdes of the new clothe that he had on, and rente the same in two twelue pecces, and sayde vnto Jeroboam: Take thy twelue pecces vnto the.

For thus sayeth the LORD God of Israel: Beholde, euen thou wilt I rente the kyngdome from the hande of Salomon, and wilt geue the ten trybes. One tyme shall he haue for my seruante Dauid sake, and because of the cyte of Iherusalem, which I haue chosen vnto all the trybes of Israel: for they haue forsaken me, and worshipped Ashtaroth the god of the Sidonians, Chemosh the god of the Moabites, and Moloch the god of the children of Ammon, and haue not walked in my wayes, so fulfilling my pleaure, in myne ordinaunces, and lawes, as thy Dauid his father.

Notwithstandyng I will not take the whole kyngdome from one of his handes, but wil make him a prynces so longe as he lyueth for my seruante Dauid sake, which I by thy choyse, which I geue my commaundmentes & ordinaunces. From one of the handes of his sonne wilt I take the kyngdome, and wilt geue it vnto thy sonne, and wilt geue it vnto his sonne, that David my seruante maye alwaye haue a lantern before me in the cite of Iherusalem, which I haue chosen, that I maye see my name there. Therefore wilt I take the now, to raygne ouer all that thine here be-steth, and thou shalt be kyng ouer Israel.

¶ If thou refuse now all that I shall commend thee, and walke in my waye, and fulfill my pleasure, to kepe myne ordinaunces and commandementes, as dyd my seruante Dauid, then wyl I be with thee, and buylde the a sure house, as I buylde unto Dauid, and wyl geue Israel unto thee and therewith wyl I subdew the syde of Dauid, but not for euermore. But Salomon laugheth to kyll Jeroboam. Then Jeroboam gat him up, and fled in to Egypte to Sisak the kynge of Eg-ypte, and remayned in Egypte, vntill Salomons dye.

What mene there is to saye of Salomon, and all that he dyd, and his wysdome, it is written in the Cronicles of Salomon.
The tyme that Salomon was kynge at Jerusalem ouer all Israel, is fortye yere. And Salomon fell on slepe with his fathere, and was buryed in the cite of Dauid his fathere, and Roboam his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The xiiij. Chapter.

And Roboam was vnto Sichem, for all Israel was come to Sichem to make him kynge. And whan Jeroboam of some of Efraim herde that, while he was yet in Egypte (whiche he was fled for Salomon) he came agayne out of Egypte, and they sent for him, and called him. And Jer-oboam with all the congregation of Israel came and spake to Roboam, and sayde: Thy father made ouer yow to harde bondage: he made yow now the harde bondage: and the foue yow lighten, and we wyl submyt oure selues vnto the. He sayde vnto them: Ye yowre waye vnto the thirde daye, and then come to me agayne. And the people were their waye.

And Roboam the kynge helde a counsell with the Elders that stode before Salomon his fathere while he lyued, & he sayde: What is yowre counsell, that we maye geue this people an answer? They sayde vnto him: If thou borthis people a pleasure to daye, and followe their mynde, and heare them, and geue them good wordes, then shal they be obedient vnto thee as long as thou liuest.
¶ Therfor the he soughte the counsaill that the Elders had geuen him, and aske counsaill at the yonger men which were growne up with him, and stode before him.

B And he sayde vnto them: What is yowre counsell that we maye answer this people which haue sayde vnto me: What the yow lighten, that thy father hath layd vpon us.

And the yonger men that were growne with him, sayde vnto him: Where as the peple haue sayde vnto the: Thy father had made ouer yow to foue, make thou it lesse for us. Then shal thou saye vnto them: My litle finger shall be thicker than thy three loynes. Now, my father hath layd yow vpon you, but I wyl yet laye more there on: My father correcte you with scorpis, but I wyl nourture you with scorpis.

So vpon the thirde daye came Jeroboam with all the people vnto Roboam, as the kynge had appointed and sayde, come as a gaye on the thirde daye. And the kynge gaue the people an haerde rough answer, and soughte the colicill that the Elders had geuen him, and talked with them as the counsell of the yonger men, and sayde: My father made yowre yow to foue, but I wyl make it yett sever vpon you. My father correcte you with scorpis, but I wyl nourture you with scorpis. Then the kynge stode in the middle of the people, for he was turned to the left, & he mighte stablish his worde
- which he spake by Achis of Gilead vnto Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat.

But whan all Israel sawe that the kynge wolde not heare them, the people came to the kynge and sayde: What purpose hath he then in Dauid or in his seruantes in the sonne of Ihu? For the kyng saith O Israel, I ote yow now to the house of Dauid. So Israel wente vnto their tentes.
As for Roboam, he assigned but ouer 40 thousen of Israel, which dwelle in the cite of Iuda. And whan kynge Roboam sawe the-cher Adoram the remigacherer, all Israel stoned him to deathe. But kynge Roboam strengthened himselfe, and gat him up into a chariot, to fle vnto Jerusalem. Thus depared Israel from the house of Dauid vnto this daye.

Now whan all Israel herde, that Jeroboam was come agayne, they sent foue men to him to the whole congregacion, and made him kynge ouer all Israel. And no man followed the house of Dauid, save onely the be of Iuda. And whan Roboam came in to Jerusalem, all the house of Iuda and the be of Ben Iamin (euen an hundred and fow-te score thousande chosen men of armes) assembled themselves together to fight agaynst the house of Israel, & to bringe the kynge agayne vnto Roboam of some of Salomon.

But the word of God came to Shema the man of God, and sayde: Spake thou children of Israel. Let every man go home red bad, to go their waye, as the LORDE sayde. And Roboam bayled Sicheu upon mount Iephthaim, and dwelt therein, and be pared thence, and dwyled: Peniel.

13 And when he was in his hert: The king doner shall fight agayne now unto the house of Dauid, yf this people go up to coiffe in the LORDEs house at Jerusalem, and so shall the hert of this people ture to the house Roboam tyme of Juda, and the shal they saye me, and shall agayne to Roboam tyme of Juda. And the kyng helde a coun ail, and made two golden calms, and saye he men them: This is so much for you to go to Jerusalem helde, there is thy God (O I rael) which broughte y^e out of Egypt. And the one he set at Bethel, the other is a Dan.
And this doth turned to synne, for the peo ple were before the kyng unto Dauid.

14 He made an host also in the hye pla ce, and made priestes of the smallest in the people, which were not of the chylde of Le ui. And upon the sifene daye of the eighte moneth he made an holy daye, like as the so lemne fest in Juda, and offered upon the altar. Thus dyd he at Bethel, in doyng synne unto the calves which he had ma de, and at Bethel he ordeined the priestes of the hye place that he had made, and offered upon the altar (which he had made) at Be thel, the sifene daye of the eighte moneth, which he ordeined of his owne hert. And he made the chylde of Israel an holy daye, & went upon the altar to burne incense.

The xlii. Chapter.

15 And when he was in his hert, there came a ma of God from Juda (that was the woide of the LORDE) unto Bethel, and Jeroboam stood by the altar to burne incense. And he said agaynst the altar: The woide of the LORDE, and sayde: O altar, altar, thus saith the LORDE: Bethel, there shalt be borne unto y^e house of Dauid son of Josias by name: which on the soil offer the priestes of the hye place, that burne in cense upon the, and men borne shall be bur people, and sayde: Thus is the woide of the shall be pouerd out.

And when the kyngs herde the woide of the ma of God, that came agaynst the altar at Bethel, he stretched out his hande by y^e altars, and sayde: Aye, howe on him. And his hande that he stretched out, was there, and he coude not drawe it unto him agay ne. And y^e altar reue, and the of the altar pouerd out from the cleare, according to the wonder token that the ma of God had ge uen by the woide of the LORDE.

And the kyng answered, and sayde unto the ma of God: O playe the face of the LORDE thy God, and make intercession for me, that my hande may be restored unto me agayne. Then played the ma of God unto the face of the LORDE. And the kyngs hande was restored him agayne, and be came as it was afore. And the kyng sayde unto the ma of God: I come home with me, and dwyn, and I will geue the a reward.

But the ma of God sayde unto the ky ng: If thou geuest me half thy house, I will not come with the: for this place will I neither eate bread, ner yet dwynle water. For thus am I commaunded, and thus is it saye unto me by the woide of the LORDE: Thou shalt eate a bish, and dwynle no more, ne ther count the waye that thou wentest.

And he departed another waye, and re turned not agayne the waye that he came to Bethel. And at Bethel there dwelt an ol de prophet unto wh^o his sonne came, & col de him all the wordes y^e the ma of God had done that daye at Bethel, & the woide that he had spoken unto the kyng. And the fa ther sayde unto them: Which waye is he ga ne? And his sonnes shewed him the waye that the ma of God was gone: which ca me from Juda. He sayde unto his sonnes Gaddal we shal affe. And wh^o they had fol lowed him the affe, he rode theron, and wene of the cherman of God, and founde him sittin ge vnder an Olive tree, and sayde unto him: Art thou the ma of God that came from Juda? He sayde: Yea.

He sayde unto him: Come home with me, and eate bread. He sayde: I maye not come backe with the, and come with the. Neither will I eate bread, ner yet dwynle water, which is this place: for it is spoken unto me by the woide of the LORDE: Thou shalt ne ther eate bread there, ner yet dwynle water, neither shalt thou go agayne by the waye which thou wentest. He sayde unto him: I

And whan they sat at the table, the worde of the LORDE came to the prophete that had brynge him agayne, and cryed vnto the man which was come frō Iuda, and sayde: Thus saith the LORDE: Because thou hast bene disobedient vnto the mouth of y LORDE, and hast not kept the commandments that the LORDE thy God commaunded thet, but hast turned backe, and hast eaten bread, and drunke water in y place, wher of he saide vnto thet: Thou shalt neither eat bread nor drynke water, therefore shall not thy body come in to thy fathers graue.

And whan he had eaten bread and drunke the asshe that was sabled vnto the prophete wherof he had broughte agayne. And whā he was gone, a lyon found him by the waye, & slew him, and his body was cast in y waye. And the asshe stode by him, and the lyon stode by the body. And whā men wente by, they sawe the body cast in the waye, and the lyon stā bynge by syde the body, and came and tolde it in the cite, wher the olde prophete dwelle.

Whan the prophete which had broughte him agayne, herde that, he sayde: It is the man of God, that hath bene disobedient vnto the mouth of the LORDE, therefore hath y LORDE deliuered him vnto the Lyon, which hath rente him, and slayne him, accordinge to the worde that the LORDE spake vnto him. And he sayde: vnto his sonnes: Sabeell me the asshe. And whan they had sabled it, he wente, and founde his body cast in the waye and the asshe and the lyon stode by syde y body. The lyon had eat no brynge of the body, neither had he come the asshe. Then toke the prophete the deed carcase of the man of God, and layed it vpo the asshe, and broughed it agayne in to the cite of the olde prophete, to moune, and to burye him.

And he layed the carcase in his awne graue, and they mourned for him: Alas my brother. And whan they had buried him, he saide vnto his sonnes: Whan y dye, burye me in the graue wher the ma of God is buried, and laye my bones besyde his bones. For it shal come to passe, that he crieth: Thow art the worde of the LORDE against Babel, and agaynst all y houses of the hye places, which are in the cite of Samaria.

The xiiii. chapter.

The same yme was Abia the son of Jeroboā sick, and Jeroboā saide vnto his wyfe: See the nyght of guile thet, so that thou maye see that thou art Jeroboā wyfe, and go vnto Silo: holde, there is the prophete Abia, & whā he shal come to thet, thou shalt saye vnto the people: and eat a woth the tenentes of shew and eates, and a suppe with hony, & syn him, that he maye tell the howe it shal goe to the childe. And Jeroboā wyfe did so, and gat hir vp, and wente vnto Silo, and came in to the house of Abia. But Abia coulde not se, for his eyes were dymme for age. He wote hellesse the LORDE sayde vnto Abia: He helde, Jeroboā wyfe cometh, to aske matter at the: for he knewe, for he wote. Speake thou therfore vnto her thus: Whā whan she came in, she shal see thet strange. Whā whan Abia herde the wyf of hir sone yonge in at the dore, he tolde me in the wyf of Jeroboā. Whā whā thou thy self so strange: I am sime me y am harbe in eslaunger.

So thy waye and call Jeroboā: Thou sayest y LORDE God of Israel: I haue sate the from amonge the people, and se the to be pryncce ouer my people of Israel, and haue rente the kynge dome from the house of Dauid, and geuent it the. But thou hast not bene as my seruants Dauid, which kept my commandments, and walked after me: wchall his here, so that he doo only y thing that was righte in my sighte: and thou hast done worse then all they that haue bene before thet: thou hast gone thy waye, and made the other goddes, and molten ymagis, & pouerdest me vnto watch, and hast consumed hynde thy backe.

Beholde therefore, I wil brynge myfynne vpon the house of Jeroboā, and wyte oute from Jeroboā eue him that hath sworn agaynst the wall the prynces and he taken in Iseel: and the posterite of y house of Jeroboā wyll I swepe out, as a brynge swepe out, tyll he be cleare brought to naught. cels that his father had halowed, & such as was sanctified unto þe house of the LORDE. that sanctified he in. And there was warre betwene Asa & Baasa the kyng of Israel, as longes as they lyued.

C Baasa the kyng of Israel wente up against Iuda, and buylded Rama, that no man shoulde goe out and in of Asas syde the kyng of Iuda. Then toke Asa all the syluer and golde that was leften the treasure of the house of the LORDE, and in the treasure of the kynges house, and deliuered it in to his seruaunt handes, & sent it vnto Denadab the sonne of Tabithan the sonne of Zedion kyng of Siria, which dwelleth at Damuscon, and let saye vnto him: There is a couenant betwene me and the, and betwene my father and thy father: therefore sende I the a present of syluer and golde, that thou shouldest breake the couenant: which thou hast with Baasa the kyng of Israel, that he maye departe fro me.

Denadab agreed vnto kyng Asa, and sent his payntes agaynst the cities of Israel, and smote Iion and Dan, & Bel Beth Madaia, and all Cinereth with the whole fens of Tephcaim. Wha Baasa herde that, helefte of from buyldinge Rama, and wente agayne vnto Thiza.

D Kyng Asa caused it be proclaimed in all Iuda: there be no maner pce. And they toke awaye the stoncs and timber from Rama, & therewith Baasa had buylded. And kyng Asa buylded Erba Ben Iamin & Mipsa therewith.

What more there is to saye of Asa, and of all his power, and all that he dyd, and of y cities which he buylded, beholde, it is wyte in the Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda: I saynge that in his olde age he was distressed in his see. And Asa slepe with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the cite of Dauid his father. And Iosa-phat his sonne was kyng in his steade.

E But Nabab the sonne of Jeroboam was kyng ouer Israel in the xlvij. yere of Asa kyng of Iuda, & raigned ouer Israel two yere, and dyd euill in the sighte of the LOR-DE, and walked in the waye of his father, and in his synnes, wherewith he made Israel to synne. Somtyme Baasa the sonne of Abia of the house of Isachar conspired agaynst him, & smote him at Gibbethon, whiche was the philistynes: for Nabab and all Israel to yed fro to Gibbethon. So Baasa slewe him in the thirde yere of Asa kyng of Juda, & was kyng in his steade. Now what he was kyng, he smote all the house of Jer-oboam, and let no chynge of Jeroboams race that had birth, tyll he had destroyed it, accordinge to þe worde of the LORDE, whiche he spake by his seruant Abia of Shila, because of Jeroboams synnes whiche he had made Israel synne touchall: euen with þe ynne wherewith he displeased the LORDE God of Israel.

What more there is to saye of Nabab, all that he dyd, beholde, it is wyte in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel, and there was warre betwene Asa & Baasa the kyng of Israel, as longes as they lyued.

In the thirde yere of Asa kyng of Juda was Baasa þe sonne of Abia kyng ouer all Israel at Thiza foure and euen yere, and dyd that which was euill in the sighte of the LORDE, and walked in the waye of Jeroboam, and in his synnes, wherewith he made Israel to synne.

His sercheles the wordes of the LORDE came vnto Ihu the sonne of Iaanai agaynst Baasa, and sayde: For so much as I list the out of the dust, and make the pynce ouer my people of Israel, and thou wal-dest in the waye of Jeroboam, and madest my people ouer Israel for to synne, as thou hast me with the synnes that synnes, dyd de, therefore will I make a waye the poster of Baasa, and the poster of his house, and will sithe house euen as the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat. - Therefore Baasa dyeth in the cite, the dogges shal oure him: and it shal be saynge of him dyeth in the felde, the foules of the ayre shal ouer him up.

What more there is to saye of Baasa, what he dyd, & of his power, beholde, it is wyte in þe Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Baasa slepe with his father and was buried at Thiza: & his sonne Elia was kyng in his steade. And the wordes of þe LOR-DE came by the prophet Jehu the sonne of hanani, ouer Baasa, and ouer his house, and agaynst all the euill that he dyd in the sighte of þe LORDE, as þe wordes of the LORDE became as the house of Jeroboam, and because he slewe: this man.

doerses collied against him. As for Elia, he was at Chusa, and it was about it y^e house of Aza the ruler of Chusa. And Sim ri came in, and there ham in the tenth y^e tenth year of Aza king of Iuda, as was saye in this booke. And when he was in y^e house of Aza, he sawe the house of Aza and he sawe upon his face, he smote all y^e house of Aza, & he sawe so much as one came there against y^e walk he blood a waye also this fender. & thus y^e Sim ri destroyed all the house of Aza, as he orde ned the word of the LORD, which he spake to Aza by the prophet Iehu, because of all the synne of Aza and of Elia his sonne, which he dyd, and made Ihu his sonne, to punishe the LORD God of Iud into manye theowen there vanyes.
 Therefore there is to saye of Elia, and all that he dyd, he dothe in to saye in the Cro nicle of the synne of Ihu.

2 In the fiftenond and twentieth year of Aſa King of Iuda, the ſummi Pyngeſſe dyed at Thirza, and the people layd before Gibberden of the philiſtynes. And when the people in the hooff dedeſſe ffor ſummi had comfured and layn the pynge, then all Iſraell the ſumme becamme allmuri the cheſt capayne pynge euerall in the hooff. And ſummi went up and all Iſraell ſerch him from Gibberden, and layd lize vnto Thirza. And when ſummi ſawe ffor the cee ſhoulde be borne, he wente in to the palace in the pynge houſe, and thence in with ffor pyngeſſe houſe, to the becauſe of blaſphemy which he had commite, in that he dyd euill in the ſighte of the LORDE, and waſted in the waye of Ieroſolom, and in his pynge: which he dyd, wherwith he made Wyldeſſe fenne.

What more there is to the story of Simeon, and how he conspired, behold, are written in the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel. At the same time were 3 people benighted in two parts: the one part helde with Thibni the Son of Simach, that they might make him King of Simeon; the other part helde with Amri. But the people that helde with Amri, were mightier than the people which helde with Thibni of sons of Simach. And Thibni dyed, and Amri reigned.

In 3 one and thirtieth yeare of Aſa kynge of Iuda, was Mari kynge ouer Moab twelve yeares, & reigned at Chirſaſire yeares. of Jeroboam þe sonne of Nebat, and in his synne, wherewith he made Jhsa to synne, for they þey prouoked þe LORDE God of Israel twoo moore in their wauins. What mo re cheris to sayis of Amri, althow he dyd, and his pouer that he exerceyd, beholde, it is wyrtten in the Cronicles of the synners of Israhel. And Amri slepeth with his fether, & was buried in Samaria, and Zebai his son was moore Pygmye in his fader.

bel the daughter of Eth Baal kynge of Su don to wife, and wente as forch Baal, and worshipped him. And wnto Baal he beset up an altare in Dauid house, which he buylded him in Samaria, and made a grove: So eise

As truly as the LORD God of Israel I youth, whose seruante I am, thare shal

I speake it.

And the words of the LORD came unto him, and he said: Osee the hence, and turne the woman to the east, and hyde the bythe ryuer Cryb, which is euer agaynst Iordane, and thou shalt deuyte of the ryuer: and I haue commaunded the ratiuo, that they shal fede the shepe. So he departed, and dyd as he comynge to the woman of the LORD. And he wrote his sayng, and set him downe by the ryuer Cryb, which is euer agaynst Iordane. And thereunto brought him dead o no fleshe in the morning: so in the evening, and he dwelle of the ryuer.

B And he gat him vp, and wene vnto Sarepta. And when he came to the gate of y cite, beholde, the widow was there, and ga- thered stickes. And he called her, and sayde: Geth me a litle water in a vessill. y I maye drinke. And as she was goinge to fetch it, he criet vnto her, & sayde: Biynge me a morcell of bread also in thine hande. She sayde: A truly a a the LORD I y God I yuech, I haue no bread, but an handfull of flour in a pic- cher, & a custe y oyle in a test: and beholde, I haue gathered vp one or two stickes, & I will go and prepare it for me and my sonne, that we maye eat and be ye.

Eliaas sayde vnto her: Feare not, for thy waye, & do as thou hast sayde: yet make me first a morcell of bread therof, & bynge it me forth: after wards shall thou make it for y thy sonne. For thus sayeth y LORD God of y Israel: The meal in the pitcher shall not be spent, & the oyle in y cruse shall not fayle, vnto the daye. y the LORD shall cause it for to reyne vpon earth. She wene & dyd a a Eliaas sayde. And he ate, & she also, and her house a certayne season. The meal in the pitcher was not in ynish, and the oyle in the cruse sayled not, accordinge to the worde of y LORD whiche he spake by Eliaas.

C And a fier thre a crea the sonne of the wife of y beuie was sicke: and his sickness was for a certayne soue, that there remained no brede in him. And she sayde vnto Eliaas: What haue I to do with the, thou man of God? Let theu come in vnto me, y my synne shalbe he kepte in remembrance, & that my sonne shalbe he slayne. y she sayde vnto her: Goe, me thy sonne, And he rode him self his lappe, & caried him vp in to y chamber, & he he himself dwelt, and layed him vpon his brest, & called vpon the LORD, and sayde: O LORD, my God, haue thou deale y euell w che wicked man, whom I dwell, & thou shalt slaye his sonne. And he stretched out his hande ouer the childe, & he was dead, & called vpon the LORD, and sayde: O LORD, my God, let the soule of this childe come agayne vnto him. And the LORD he orde the voye of Eliaas. And the soule of the childe came agayne vnto him, & he reynard. And Eliaas sette the childe, and brought him downe from the chamber in to the house, and deli- uered him vnto his mother, and sayde: Behold, thy sonne is liue. And she wene, & she de- uoted Eliaas: & hee frome y theu then in a man of God, & that the worde of the LORD is in thy mouth of a truth.

The xviii. Chapter.

D It was a fier a longe season came y worde of the LORD vnto Eliaas in the childe yere, & sayde: *Goth waye, & shewe y false vnto Achab, & y maye cause it for to rayne vpon earth. And Eliaas wene to shewe himselfe vnto Achab. But then was a greates betwixt y Samaria. And Achab called Abbia his chiefe officer: (A a sin- dous, he feared y LORD greatly: for as he y a belreted one y prophesies of y LORD, & he was an C prophet, and byd them in a uce, here sife ye, & there sife ye, & pouden for them w bish and water.) Achab now saye vnto Abbia: Go: howe the londe was all the weller of water & ryuers, yf happylye maye fynde hay, & to sowe y beede & mowe, I all the cattell penshe not. And theye pached the fildes in to the londe, to go the waye. Achab departed the one waye alone, and Abbia y other waye alone.

Now when Abbia was on y waye, he sawe him. And when he sawe him, he fell downe vpon his face, & sayde: Woe vnto my lord Eliaas: y she sayde, yee, go thy waye, and tell y lord: he holde, Eliaas is here. But he sayde: What haue I offended, that thou wilt deliuer thy seruante in to the hande of Achab, that he maye slaye me? As truly a a the LORD I thy God I yuech, thou art a people not kingdome, but my lord hath int- churged me sife the. And when theye sife ye, it is not here, he toke an ooth of the flint y dome and nation, that the y had not slayd the. And now thou sayst: Go tell y LORD, beholde, Eliaas is here. Now when y man went from the, the spere of the LORD shalbe eate y a waye. I can not tell wher he went yf y then came and tolde Achab, and shalbe the not, he shalbe slayne me: But thy ser- uant feareth the LORD from his youth vp. Such it now bene tolde my lord what y dyd, when y Israhel sene the prophesies of the LORD, & hee the y dyd an hundred of the LORDES prophesies, here sife ye, and there sife ye in the caues, and pouden for them with bad and water: And hee sife ye now as thy waye, tell thy lord: Eliaas is here, that he maye slaye me. Eliaas answered: A truly a a y LORD, hee hath sife ye, be sife woe y sife, I will shewe myselfe vnto him, & thou shalt see him. And Achab wene for to meet Eliaas.

The iij. boke of the kynges.

And when Achab saue Eliu, Achab say ye unto him: Art thou be that troublest I-srahel? he sayde: I trouble not Iisrahel, but ye have troubled it by your house, because ye have forsaken the commandmentes of the LORDE, and walkte after Baal. So to, seke ye such men, and gather me all Iisrahel that are mount Carmell, and the seate him there, and fifty prophete of Baal, and the fifty prophets of y^e grove, which are of Ierubabale. So Achab sent unto all the children of Iisrahel, and gathered the prophets together unto mount Carmell.

Then spake Eliu unto all the people, and said: Ye knowe hallowe ye on both y^e sydes: If the LORDE be God, the walkte after him: but if Baal be he, the folowe him. And the people gave him no answer. The sayde Eliu unto the people: I eadly am lesse a prophet of y^e LORDE, but Baala prophete are four hundred, and fifty men. Make ye now two bul-locks, and let them chese one hallocke, and here be in paces, and laye him vpon the wood, and put so fyre theron, and I will call y^e other bullocke, and laye him vpon the wood, and put so fyre theron also: call ye then vpon the name of y^e god, and I will call vpon the name of the LORDE: so be which God now answereth with fyre, let the same be God. And all the people answered, sayinge: It is right. And Eliu sayde unto Baala prophete: Chese ye one bullocke, and be ye first (for ye are many) and call ye vpon the name of y^e your god, and I laye me fyre theron.

And they chese the bullocke which he gave them, and prepared it, and called vpon the name of Baal from the morninge vntill the noon daye, and sayde: O Baal heare vo. But there was nerher voyce ner answer. And they hepped aboute the altare, and their wife was with them. Then when it was noon daye, Eliu mowed them, and sayde: Crye loud.
For he is a god, peradventure he is in myn-ge, or hath somwhat to do, or is gone some iour-ney, or hath he slepech, so that he wolde be waken vpon. And they cried loud, and prouoked the fyre with braynes, and with their manner was: yill y^e bullocke solemb. But when y^e noon daye was past, they prophete did vntill the tyme that the meat offeringe shoulde be offered, and there was nerher voyce ner answer, nor one to it garde them.

Then sayde Eliu vnto all the people: Come hither all ye people vnto me. And when all y^e people came to him, he repayed y^e altars of the LORDE, and was broken, and was stoned according to the nombre of y^e the wyse of the LORDE spake), and sayde: Thy name shal be Iisrahel, and of y^e stones he buylde an altare in the name of the LOR-DE, and make a pyre rounde aboute the altare, like two foreynes in the come londe, and prepared the wood, and hewen y^e bullocke in pices, and layed him vpon the wood, and sayde: Geth four pitchers full of water, and poure it vpon the burnt offeringe, and vpon the wood. And he sayde: Do it, yet once. And they dyd it once agayne. And he sayde: Do it y^e thurde tyme.

And they dyd it the thurde tyme. And y^e water ranne aboute the altare, and y^e pyre was full of water also.

And when the tyme was to offer y^e meat offeringe, Eliu stode forth, and sayde: O LORDE God of Iisrahel, of Isaac and of Iisrahel, let it be knowne this daye, that thou art God in Iisrahel, and Iehysecunne, and that I have done all this according vnto y^e woide. Heare Iae O LORDE, O heare me, y^e this people maye knowe, how that thou art the LORDE God, that thou mayest after warde turne their heres. Then fell downe the fyre of the LORDE, and consumed the burnt offeringe, the wood, the stones, and the earth, and licked vp the water that was in the pyre. When all the people sawe that, they fell vpon their faces, and sayde: The LORDE is God, y^e LORDE is God. Eliu sayde vnto them: Laye handes vpon Ba-ala prophete, y^e none of them escape. And they doke them. And Eliu broughte them downe vnto y^e water of y^e riuier, and there he stode.

And Eliu sayde vnto Achab: Go vp, sauour y^e kynne, for it is founde as though y^e is wold be rayne sone. And when Achab was vp to see, and Eliu asceded vp to the topp of Carmel, and bowe him selfe downe to the earth, and put his handes between his knes, and sayde vnto his laboure up, and loke toward the see. He was vnto y^e last, and sayde: There is nothinge. He sayde: O agayne I am alone. And at the fourth tyme he sayde: Behol

And on a mounthe entre him, the heauen was blacke w clowdes & mynde, & there came a greates rayne. But Achab robe his mane, & departed vnto Iesrael. And the harte of y^e LORD came vnto Elia, and he gyde his loynes, & ranne before Achab, till he came vnto Iesrael.

The XX. Chapter.

AND Achab tolde Iesabel all y^e Elia had done, & how he had slayne all Baals prophetes w the swerde. The first Iesabel a messenger vnto Elia, sayenge: The goddes do this & that vnto me, y^e I remember obdunde this tyme, made not thy soule as one of these. Then was he ofrayed, & gat him vp, & wente where he wolde, & came vnto Deseban in Iuda, and leste his lady there. But he him selfe wente a durtie journey a to y^e wyldernes, & came in, & sat him doune vnder a Juniper tre, & wysshed vnto his soule y^e he might dye, & sayde: It is now ynough LORD, take my soule, for I am no tetter then my father. And he layed him doune to slepe vnder the Juniper tre.

And beholde, y^e an gell couered him, & sayde vnto him: Stande vp, and eate. no he lokeb aboute him, & beholde, at his heade there was a bred baken on the celen, & a crasse w water. And whan he had eaten and dronke, he layed him doune agayne to slepe.

AND y^e an gell of the LORD, came agayne the seconde tyme, & touchyd him, & sayde: Stande vp, on eate, for thou hast a greates waye to go. And he arose, and ate and dronke, and wente on the now the strength of that meate - foure dayes and foure aughtes, and vnto heerd y^e moune of God: and there he came to a caue, and abode there all nyght. And beholde the worde of the LORD came to him, and sayde vnto him: What dost thou here Elia? he sayde: I haue bene soloun for the LORD God Zebaoth: for the childen of Israel haue forsaken thy commandment, and broken downe thine altares, and slayne thy prophetes w the swerde, & I am lefte onely, & they like to take awaye my life. he sayde: Go forth, and stande vpon the mount before the LORD. And beholde, the LORD wnter ouer: and a greates myghte mynde, & whiche rouse the mount a fere, and brake the harde stonies, came before the LORD, & he the LORD was not in the wynde. After the wynde came there a carchquake, but the LORD was not in the carchquake.

And after the carchquake there came a fyre, but the LORD was not in the fyre. And after the fyre came there a still softe byssing. Whan Elia herde that, he couered his face w his cloke, and wente forth, and he was in the bove of the caue. And beholde, there came a voyce vnto him, and sayde: Whan hast thou here to be Elia?

he sayde: I haue bene yeloue for the LORD God Zebaoth: for the childen of Israel haue forsake thy commandment, and broken downe thine altares, slayne y^e prophetes w the swerde, & I onely am lefte, and they like to take awaye my life. But the LORD sayde vnto him: Whan y^e maye agayne thou come the wyldernes vnto Damascus, & go in, & anoone thou shalt fynde ouer Siria, & Zebaoth the sonne of Hamsi fynde ouer Israel, & Eliaha y^e sonne of Saphar of Abel Meholo to be prophete y^e steade. And it shal come to pass, y^e who so escapeth the swerde of Hama, I shal slaye him, & who so escapeth y^e swerde of Isha, I shal slaye him. And I wil requyte vnto me w y^e men in Israel namely, all y^e thers which haue not bowed the knee wnto Baal, and every mouth y^e hath not cryed.

And he departed thence, & found him, & Eliaha y^e sonne of Saphar, plowinge w oxen y^e yode of open before him, & he knell w oxen amonge the oxen. And Eliaha wnt vnto him, & cast his cloke vpon him. And he leste the oxen, & ranne after Elia, & sayde: Let me bysse my father & my mother, and I wil y^e followe the. And he sayde vnto him: Go thy waye, & come agayne, for I haue some whar to do w the. And he ranne agayne from him, and toke a yode of oxen, and of freu, and sod y^e flesch w the web of the oxen plowes, and gaue it vnto the people to eate, and gat him up, & followed Elia, and mynistrd vnto him.

The XX. Chapter.

AND Benadab y^e kyng of Siria gathered all his power, & there went w him thirtie thynges w him, & hounes & charres, and he wente up, and layd siege vnto Samaria, & soughte agaynst it. And he sent messengers vnto Achab y^e kyng of Israel to saye: I haue sent to saye vnto him: I haue sayed Benadab: I thy sister & thy gold is myne, and thy wynter & thy best chylde is myne also. The kynges of Syria answered & sayde: My lord O kynges, euen as thou hast sayde, I am thine, and all that I haue.

And the messengers came agayne, & sayde: Thus sayeth Benadab: See so much as I haue sent vnto the, sayenge: I thy sister &

Thus sayeth the LORDE: Hast thou sent all yongemen of the rulers of the lande, & the were two hundred and two: and the nyne of them: & after the mustered he of the whole

And the yongemen of the elders of the lon

Denaabab sent forth, & the by brought him they be come forth for peace, or for warre.

Denaabab the lande rulers yongemen were caped with horses and horsmen. And the kyn and charetes, and by a grete slaughter on the Syrians.

Then came thre a prophete vnto the ky ng of Irael, and sayde vnto him: Wo thy waye and strengthe the, and take the, and take well what thou dost: for when the ye re is aboute, the kyng of Syria shall come agaynst the as this new. For the kyng of Syria's seruantes sayde vnto him: These goddes are goddes of the mountaynes: the for here they gotten the victory.

And he vnto them in the play them. Do thou, put awaye the kynges warre one from his place, and set vnto the their sta tion, and appoynte the an host: as was that which thou hast lost, & hostes & charetes an the other weie, and lo to fight agaynst the in the plaine, and thou shalt see that we shal haue the victory. So consented vnto thei voy

To mocha the yeare was gone a boote, Denaabab appoynted the Syrians, and wente up towards Iphat, to fight agaynst Irael, and the childre of Irael mustered, ore prouyde them selues with vntayles, and we te to meete them, and pitched their cotes ouer agaynst them, like two little flocks of goates in the lande was full of the Syrians.

And there came a man of God, and sayde vnto the kyng of Irael: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Because the Syrians haue sayde, that the LORDE is a God of the mountaynes and not a God of the valleyes, therfor haue I geuen all this grete heape in to thy han LORDE. And they pitched their cotes agay sibenth daye they wente together in to the battayllia: and the childre of Irael smote of the Syrians a hundred thousande fore men in one daye, and the remaunde fled to Iphat into the cite, and the wall fell vpon the other flum and twenty thousande men.

And Denaabab fled also vnto the cite in to a little chamber.

Then sayde his seruantes vnto him: We holde, we haue parte that the kynges of the house of Irael see me as full finges. Let vs cherfor putte sack cloth aboute oure saymes, and halles aboute oure neckes, & go forth

And the men cote him sporely at his weite, and expounded it for them silens and sayde: The Denadab is chy brother. He sayde: one and byngre him. The wome Denadab forch vnto him, and he causid him to sit vpon the chaire, and sayde vnto him: The vices that my father cote from chy father, wyl I geue the agayn. And make thou streces for thyselfe as I have do, as my father did at Samaria, so wyl I let the go with a bonde of peace. And he made a cōmynat with him, and let him go.

Then spake there a man amonge the chyl dren of the prophetes vnto his neighbours by the wordes of the LORDE: I praye the smite me. For he re fust to smite him. Then sai de he vnto him, because thou hast not herke en vnto the voyce of the LORDE, beholde, therfore shall there a lyon synre the, whan thou goest fro me. And whan he wente fro him, a lyon fonde him, and slawe him.

And he fonde another man, and sayden I praye the synre me. And the man smote him, and wounded him. Then wente the pro phet, and slepe vnto the fynyge by the waye syde, and alered his face with asphes. And whan the fynyge wente by, he crieb vpon y fynyge, and sayde: Thy seruame wate fonyh in to the hore yll, and beholde, there wente one a syde, and broughe a man vnto me, and sayde: Depe this man: yf he be iustid, chy sou le shall be in steade of his soule, or els thou shalt weye doune an hundred weightes of syluer. And whyle chy fynaunt had here r there to do, he was awaye. The fynyge of Jf ead sayde vnto him: Is it thine owne iud gment, then hast geuen it thyselfe.

Then put he the asphes from his face in all the haill. And the fynyge of Jf ead knewe him, that he was one of the prophetes. And he sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Because thou hast let the dānnidmas go, therfore shall thy soule be for his soule, and chy people for his people. And the fynyge of Jf ead departed vnto his house, beinge trou bled in his mynde, and full indignacion, and came to Samaria.

The XXI. Chapter.

After thes accours fortunid, that Ta beth the Jf eadite had a nymthe as Jf ead beyde the palace of Achab fynyge of Samaria. And Achab spake to Tabeth, and sayde: Scar me thy nyngard,

I wyl make me an herbegardus therof, be cause it is so a ye my house: I wyl geue the tenece nyngardes for it: or yf it please the, I wyl geue the syluer for it, as much as thou wost. But Tabeth sayde vnto Achab: The LORDE let the be iure fro me, the Jf eadite geue y my fathers heritage. Then came Achab home, beinge moued and full of indignacion, because of the moue the Ta beth the Jf eadite had spoken vnto him, and sayde: I wyl noe geue the my nyngardes for it. And he laich him doune vpon his bed, and turned his face a syde, and ate no beed. Then Jf eadite his wyfe came in to him and sayde vnto him: What is y matter, whan chy spere is so chibed, and that thou eat no beed: he sayde vnto her: I haue spok en to Tabeth the Jf eadite, and sayde: Scar me chy nyngardes for money: or yf it please y, I wyl geue the another for it. But he say de: I wyl noe geue the my nyngardes.

Then sayde Jf eadite his wyfe vnto him: What kingdome were in Jf ead, yf thea de best it: Stande up, and eate beed. I wyl ge ue the nyngardes of Tabeth the Jf eadite. And she wote a letter vnto Achab in the name, and seald it with his synre, and fere vnto y Elders and rulers in his cite, which were aboute Tabeth, and wote thus in y letter: Proclame a fast, and let Tabeth ab se in the people, and sit two men of Jf ead befor him, to testifie and saye: Thou hast blasfymed God and the fynyge. And bringe him forth, and stene him to deach.

And the Elders and rulers of his cite, which dwelle in his cite, byd as Jf ead had commaunded them, accordyng as she had wryeten in the letter that she sent vnto them, and they proclamed a fast, and causid Ta beth to sit a bone amonge the people. Then came the two men of Jf ead, and stene befor him, and testified agaynst Tabeth in y presence of the people, and sayde: Tabeth hath blasfymed God and the fynyge.

Then broughe they him one of the cit, and stoned him to deach. And they sent Jf ead wode, sayenge: Tabeth is stoned to deach. And Jf ead had herde that Tabeth was stoned and deed, she sayde vnto Achab: Up, and eate possession of the nyngardes of Tabeth the Jf eadite, which he denyd to geue the for money: for Tabeth hath so more but in deed. And whan Achab herde that Tabeth was deed, herofers goddome, he to eate possession of it.

But the wordes of the LORDE comen

And the thegheite, and sayde: See the vp, and go downe to meet Achab the kynge of Israel, which is at Samaria: behold, he is in Tabethes wyndynde, in to the which he is gone downe to take possession of it, and calleth it Ramoth him, and spake: Thus sayeth the LORD: Thou hast slayne, and eaten in possession. And thou shalt calke moreover unto him, and saye: Thus sayeth the LORD: Is it I? I am in the place where the dogges like up to Laboths bloude, shall the dogges lick thy bloude also. And Achab sayde unto his: Guff thou ever sounde me thine enemy: he saide: Yea, I have sounde the, because thou art euen folde so do euell in the sign of the LORD. Beholde, I will bringe my sword vpon the, and take awaye thy possession, and will eue out from Achab, eu-en that maketh water a geynt the wall, and him that is thus up and leste behynde in Israel: and thy house will I make as the house of Jeroboam, & house of Elzebar, and as the house of Baesa the sonne of Abio, because of thy prouocation wherewith thou hast prouoked me unto wrath, and made Israel to curse.

And eue Joram spake the LORD: I will bringe vpon thee: The dogges shall deuoure Je-siah in the fildes of Israel. Whose of Achab enuyghen & ate, him shall the dogges eate vp: and whose dyeth in the fildes, the foules vnder the heimes shall eate him vp. So cleane fildes do myghte in & sighe of the LORD.
And no man bene, as Achab for his Je-siah: he hath distressed him, and he hath him selfe a greuous abhominacion, that he geth a fere. Iode, a coudege unto all as dyd the Amories, in whom the LORD expelled before the children of Israel.

But when Achab herde these wordes, he rose he docthe, & put a sack cloth on his body, & fasted, and slepe in sack cloth, and wen to aboue hanginge downe his heade. And the wordes of the LORD came to Elias the Thegheite, & sayde: Guff thou not fere how Achab humbled him selfe before me: for so much more so he shall be humbled in my sight.
I will not bringe that plague whyle he lyueth: but by his soules life will I bringe my furye vpon his house.

The xxij. Chapter.

And there passed ouer the yeres, that there was no more because the Kings of Israel. And in the thirde yea-re came Josaphat the kynge of Iuda downe to the kynge of Israel. And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto his seruantes: Behold ye not & Ramoth in Gilead is comen: and we sye styl, and colt it out one of the handes of the kynge of Syria. And he sayde vnto Josaphat: Wile thou go with me to the battail unto Ramoth in Gilead? Josaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: I wylle as thou my people as thy people, and my horse as thy horse. And Josaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: As thou daye a eche wordes of the LORD. This is the kynge of Israel gather ed the prophetes aboute a fowte hundred men, and sayde vnto them: Shall I go vnto Ramoth in Gilead to fighte, or shal I stele in alone? They sayde: Go on, & the LORD: Josaphat de lyner it in to & kinges handes. But Josaphat sayde: Is there not one prophet here moore of the LORD, wher we maye aske him?

The kynge of Israel saide vnto Josaphat there is yet a man, one Mithaeas the sonne of Iemle, as whom we maye aske of the LORD.
Mithaeas thate him, for he propheseth me o good, but euell. Josaphat sayde: Let not the kynge saye so. It ben called the kynge of Israel a chamberlayne, and sayde: I bringe bi-ther soone Mithaeas the sonne of Iemle. As for the kynge of Israel and Josaphat & the kinge of Iuda, they laye eche of them vpon his heade, and yee in their garmentes in the place as & bene of the porte of Samaria, and all ye prophetes prophesied before the. And So-dechias the sonne of Cnaana had made him horne of yro, and sayde: Thus sayeth the LORD: With these shalt thou passe. & Synne, till thou bringe them on the ager.
And all the prophetes prophesied liuynyl, and sayde: Go vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead, thou shalt prosper: right well, & the LORD shal be with us in the kynge handes. And the messenger that wente to call Mithaeas sayde vnto him: Beholde, The wordes of the prophetes are with one acorde good before the kynge, let thy wordes therfore be as their wordes, and speake thou good also.

Mithaeas sayde: As truly as the LORD li-ueth, I shal speake the LORD: I shal speake vnto me, & I wyl I speake. And when he came to the kynge, the kynge sayde vnto him: Mithaeas, shal we go vnto Ramoth in Gilead to fighte or shal we let it alone? he sayde vnto him Yea, go vp, euen shal prospering well, the LORD: I shal geue it in to the kynge handes. But the kynge sayde vnto him a gay-ne: I charge & that thou saye no other chynge vnto me but the truth, in the name of the LORD. he sayde: I shal all Israel sauer aboue vpon the mountaynes, an the shepherds haue no shepherdes. And the LORD saide: Thus shal I no lede: Let every one turne home agayne in peace. Then sayde y kyng of Irael unto Iosaphat: To lde noe? yf that he wolde prophesye me no good, I woulde:

D Then sayde y heare now therefore the worde of the LORD: I sawe the LORD syt upon his seate, and all the hostes of heauen stood by him as by his righte hande and by his lefte. And the LORD sayde: Who wil disceipe Achab to go vp, to fill at Ramoth in Galaad. And one sayde this, another that. Then wolde there forth a spere, and stode before the LORD and sayde: I wyl disceipe him. The LORD sayde vnto him: Wherewith? he sayde vnto him: I wyl go forth, and be a false spere in the mouth of all his prophetes. The sayde: Then shalt thou disceipe him, and shalt be able to go forth and do so. Beholde now, the LORD hath geuen I false spere in y mouth of all chiefe y prophetes, and the LORD hath spoken and I see the. Then stode forth Sebachas the sonne of Onemas, and smote Michas as vpon the cheke, and sayde: What, is the spere of the LORD departed from me, to speake with thee? Michas sayde: Beholde, thou shalt see it in y daye, when thou shalt go fro one chamber to another to hyde the.

E The kyng of Irael sayde: Take Michas, and let him remayne with Amon the ruler of the cite, and with Ioan the kynges sene, and slay: Thus sayeth the kyng: Put this man in prison, and fede him with bread and water of trouble, tyll I come agayne in peace. Michas sayde: If thou comest agayne in peace, then hath not the LORD spoken euer to me. And he sayde: hearken to all people.

So the kyng of Irael and Iosaphat y kyng of Iuda wente ap vnto Ramoth in Galaad. And the kyng of Irael sayde vnto Iosaphat: Exchange thy clothes, and come in to y battayll in thine aune. The kyng of Irael charged his clothes also, and went in to the battayll. But the kyng of Sina commannded the rulers of his charrettes (of whom there were twe and thire) and saide: De shal fighte nether agaynst small nor greete, but onely agaynst the kyng of Irael. And when the rulers of the charrettes sawe Iosaphat, they thought he had bene the kyng of Irael, and fill vpon him with fightinge. But Iosaphat cried: So when the ruler of the charrettes sawe that it was not y kyng of Irael, they comed back fro him.

J A certaine man bendid his bowe hard, and shote the kyng of Irael betwene the

maue and y longes. And he sayde vnto his charretman: Turne thine bowe, and carye out of the host, for I am wounded. And y battayll was for the same daie. And the kyng stode vnto his char, agaynst the Syria and dyed in the evening, and the blowes came from the wounde in to the myddes of the char. And when the Sonne was come thre man a proclamation made in the host, and sayde: Every one gett him in to his oxe, and to his ome. Then the kyng dyed, and was brought vnto Samaria, and they buried him in Samaria. And when they washed the charrettes in the pok of Samaria, y dogges licked his bloode (but the harlottes washed him) according to the worde of y LORD which he spake.

What more there is to saye of Achab, all y he dyd, nobles of the Ieruy house which he buyled, beholde, it was in y year in the Chronicles of the kynges of Irael. So Achab slepe with his father, and his sonne Ahasia was kyng in his steade.

And Iosaphat the sonne of Amon was kyng euer Iuda in the fourth yere of Achab kyng of Irael, and was yne and thre yere elde: when he was made kyng he enuigned yne and twenety yere at Ierusalem. His mothers name was Asis: y boughter of Silai, and he was born in all the maye of his father Ais, and departed not thre from. And he dyd that which was right in y sight of the LORD, yett hee was a mane yf he places, and y people offered and burnt incense vpon the hye places, and he had part with the kyng of Irael.

What more there is to saye of Iosaphat and the mighte that he executed, and how he fought, beholde, it is in y Chronicles of the kynges of Iuda. He put out of the lande also the whoremongers that were leste, which remained ouer in the tyme of his father Ais. And at that tyme there were no kynges in Edom. And Iosaphat had caused to make shippes vpon the Eux, which shoulde go to fetch golde in Ophir, but they wente not: for they were broken by Leon Giber. And the kyng sayde Achas the sonne of Achab vnto Iosaphat: Let my seruantes passe with thy seruantes in the shippes. But Iosaphat wolde not. And Iosaphat slepe with his father, and was buried in y cite of Iuda. And Ioan his sonne was kyng in his steade.

And Oseph fell prostrate in grace in his chamber at Samaria, and was distressed, and sent messengers, and sayde unto them: Ye youre wayes, and are counsell at Beelzebub the god of Echon, whether I shall recover from this sickness. Suche answere of a LORDE sayde unto Elias the Thespise: Vp, ye mete the messengers of the Pygne of Samaria, and saie vnto them: Is there no God in Israel, that ye go to are counsell at ye god of Echon? Therefore thus saye the LORD: Thou shalt not come from this bed without thou lyest, but shalt dye the death.

And Elia saide vnto him sa y e. And whā þ her seruings camē to Chochan agayne, he sayde vnto the wyche wyf a gayne. They sayde vnto him: There came up a man in ro weye, and sayde vnto vs a gaderū the finge that he cheseth you, and saye vnto him.
Thou sa it the LORDE. He there as God in Iherl. I then cometh to be a coitall ar. And yeth þ gods suffe: These fere shal the nō come from þ And wherē thou yest, but shale dye the deeth. So sayde vnto chem.
What maner of man was it that mett you, and sayde this vnto yō: They sayde vnto him: he had a rough hert upon him, and a lecherous gyrdell aboute his loynes. he sayde: It is Elias the Thersbite.

- C And he sent unto him a capteyne auct fyfye, much the same fyfye. And when he came unto him, beholde, he sat aboue upon the moste. he sayde unto him: Thou ma of God, the kynge sayeth: Thou shalt come downe. Elias answered the capteyne ouer fyfye, and sayde unto him: If I be a man of God, the fyre shall come then from heauen, and consume the and thy fyfye. Then fell there fyre from heauen, and consumed him and his fyfye. And agayne he sent another capteyne ouer fyfye unto him, with his fyfye, which answered, and sayde unto him: Thou man of God, thou sayest the kynge: Come downe in all the haile. Elias answered, and said: If I be a ma of God, fyre shall come from heauen, and consume the and thy fyfye. Then fell the fyre of God from heauen, and consumed him, and his fyfye. Agayne he sent unto him the thyrde capteyne ouer fyfye, with his fyfye.

- D Then when he came to him, he knelid to Elias, and besoughte him, and sayde unto him: Thou man of God, let my soule and þy soules of thy seruantes that fyfye, be sent what month in thy syghthe. Beholde, the fyre fell downe from heauen, and hath consumed the firste our capteynes ouer fyfye and their fyfyes. But no wyl my soule be sent what month in thy syghthe. Then saide the angel of the LORDE unto Elias: Go downe with him, and scare him not. And he gose him up, and wente downe with him unto þe kynge.

And he sayde unto him: Thou saiest the LORDE: Because thou hast sent four messengers, and caused to be counsell at Bethel, and caused to be counsell at his wode, the fyre shall thou not come from the heben wher thou hast layd the, but shall byc þe death. So he dyd, acordyng to the worde of the LORDE which Elias sayde. And Ja rom (his brother) was a kynge in his steade in the seconde yere of Joas the sonne of Jo sephat kynge of Jud: for he had no sonne.

What more there is to saye of Ochosias, whiche dyd, beholde, in myt in the Cronicles of the knyghtes of Israel.

The iiij. Chapter.

- E Then the LORDE was mynabed to take up Elias in the tempest. Elias and Elias wente from Silgall. And Elias sayde to Elias: Tary thou be.

re I praye the, for the LORDE hath sent me unto Bethel. But Elias sayde: As much as the LORDE luyeth, and as much as thyne le luyeth, I wyl not forsake the. And when they came downe unto Bethel, the prophetes children that were at Bethel, were sent to Elias, and sayde unto him: A wonder thou not, that the LORDE wyl take thy lynde awaye from thy heade this daye: the sonne I knowe it well, holde ye ye we peace.

And Elias sayde unto him: Elias, tary thou here I praye the, for the LORDE hath sent me unto Jericho. I knowe the he ben: as truly as the LORDE luyeth, and as truly as thy soule luyeth, I wyl not forsake the.

And when they came unto Jericho, the prophetes children which were at Jericho, stode forth to Elias and sayde unto him: Knowest thou not that the LORDE wyl take þe lord awaye from thy heade this daye? he sayde: I knowe it well, holde ye ye peace. And Elias sayde unto him: I praye the tary here, for þe LORDE hath sent me unto Jordan. And he sayde: As truly as the LORDE luyeth, and as truly as thy soule luyeth, I wyl not forsake the. And they wente both together. But fyfye men of þe prophetes children were forth, and stode ower agaynst a furre of: but they both stode by Jordan. Then toke Elias his clothe, and waspeth togethe, and smote the water, which was dede it self on both the sydes, so that they were dryd thorow it. And when the water came ouer, Elias sayde unto Elias: In what I shall do for the, after I be taken awaye from the. Elias saide: That thy spirit maye be up to speake everye as now.

he sayde: Thou hast desired an hundre thinge: nevertheless if thou shalt see me, I am taken awaye from the, it shal be firste no, the shal it not be. And as they were goinge togethe, and he called, there came a fyrie charret with hestes of fyre, and parted the both asunder. And so wente Elias up in heauen in the storme. But Elias sent a cryd: My father, my father, the charret of Israel and his horse. And he sawe him no more.

And he toke holde of his clothes, and rent them in two peces, and toke up Elias the that was fallen from him, and carried him, and stode by the shore of Jordan, and toke the same clothe of Elias which was fallen from him, and smote it in the water, and saide: Where is now the LORDE God of Israel? And he smote it in to the water, and the part was a funder on both the sydes, and he lias wente a chorone.

B And when the prophetes children which were at Jericho over agaynst him sawe him, they forde. The space of elias reffecte vpo elias, as they were forth to meete him, and they snatched him to the grende, and sayde unto him: Desholde, there are fiftye valiant men amonge thy seruantes, let them go and sitte thy lorde, perauenture the spirit of the LORD hath taken him, and cast him vpon some mountaine or in some valley. But he sayde: Sendt them not. Nevertheless they constrained him, yll he was asphamed, and sayde: Let them go. And they sent fifty men, which sought for him thre dayes, but they founde him not, and came agayne unto him. And he abode at Jericho, and sayde vnto them: Knowe not I you, thow ye shalde not go? And the men of the cite sayde vnto elias: Desholde, there is good dwellinge in this cite, as my lord seyth, but the water is dead, and the londe is vnfayrfull.

E He sayde: Make me hithe a new vessell, & see sale me. And they broughte it him. Then went he forth vnto the well of water, and cast the salt therein, & sayde: Thus saith the LORD: I haue healede this water: from hence forth shal there no dead ner vnfructifull come out of it. So the water was healede vnto this daye, according to the woide of Elias which he spake.

And he wente vponwarde Bethel. And as he was goinge vp by the waye, there came lele beane out of the cite, and moched him, & sayde: Come aphynt thou balde heade, come vpon thee thou balde heade. And he turned him awayne. And when he sawe them, he cursethem in the name of the LORD. Then came thre eues out of the mob, and kissed him, and seyre of the children. From thence wente he vpon mount Carmel, and from thence he came to Samaria.

The III. Chapter.

When the sonne of Achab was kyngemer of Israel at Samaria in fiftigh & tenth yere of Josaphat kyng of Iuda, & eightieth yere, & by which was well in the sight of the LORD, but not as his father & his mother: for he was awaye from the LORD, whiche his father caused to do. And whiche he clemed vnto the synnes of Ieroboam & some of Ezechiel, which made Israel for to synne, & departed not there fro. And Josaphat of the Moabites had many synne, & payed tribute vnto the kyng of Iuda, & the wolle of a hundredth thou sand shekels, & of an hundredth thou sand shekels.

And when Achab was dead, the kyng of Moabites fell awaye fro the kyng of Israel. At the same tyme were kyngs: Joasim of Samaria, & reuelled all Israel, & sent vnto Josaphat kyng of Iuda, saynge: The kyng of the Moabites is fallen awaye from me, come thou & me to fighte agaynst the Moabites. He sayde: I wil come up, & I am comen with me, and my people as thy people, and my horses as thy horses. And Josaphat answered: Whiche waye wil we go vpon? He sayde: by the waye in the wilderness of Edom.

So the kyng of Israel, the kyng of Iuda, & the kyng of Edom wente forth. And when they had gone abowen fure dayes to the nort, & by the castell & were amonge the had no water. Then sayde the kyng of Israel: Alas, the LORD hath called these thre kynges, to deliuer the in to the hande of the Moabites. But Josaphat sayde: I behete as a prophete of the LORD, & we maye as call as the LORD by him: Then answered one of the kynges of Israel & seruantes, & saide: he is Elias the sonne of Ahab, which poureth water vpon Elias benedes. Josaphat sayde: The woide of the LORD is with him. So the kynges of Israel & Josaphat, and the kyng of Edom wente downe vnto him.

But Elias sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: What hast thou to do with me? go to the prophetes of thy father & to thy mothers prophetes. The kynges of Israel saide vnto him: To, for the LORD hath called these thre kynges, to deliuer them into the hande of the Moabites. Elias sayde: As truly as the LORD Behemoth lyeth, before whom I stand, if I regard not Josaphat the kyng of Iuda, I wolde not regard the, ner see ought by y. So kynges me now a mynstrell, And when the mynstrell played vpon the instrument, he baned of the LORD came vpon him. And he sayde: Thus saith the LORD: Make pieces by this broke. For thus sayeth the LORD: ye shal se neither wynde ner raine, yet shall the broke be full of water, & that ye and youre householdes & youre cattell maye drink. And that is but a small thinge in the sight of the LORD. And the Moabites shal be deliuered to youre handes, & ye shal smyte all the stronge cities, and all the chosen cities: & shal sell downe all the good trees, and strophe all the vllies of water, and all the good felde shal be made waste with stones.

On the morow, when the water offeringe is offered, behold, there came water & was from Edom, and fylled the londe with water.

The iiii. booke of the fynynges.

But whan the Moabites herde, þe the fynynges came vp to fighte agaynst the, they raled all þe harnesse men, & their rulers & stode on þe bocher. And whan they roste early in þe mornynge, & the Sonne wote up upon þe mount, the Moabites thoughte the more outrageous agaynst the to be enlased as a bloude, & they sayde: It is bloude, þe fynynges haue destroyed them (slewe the fynynges, & one hath smytyn a myghter. Tyme Moab greche up to the chaufre. But whan they came to the tentes of Israel, the fynynges gat vp, & smote the Moabites, & they fled before them.

¶ Tyme hein they came in, & smote Moab, & brake downe the citie, & every one cast his stone vpon all the good felde, & made them full, and stoppeth all þe welles of water, and felde burne all the good trees, eyll chere & maynede but the stone in the brydell, and they compasid them aboute with fynynges, and smote them.

But whan the fynynges of þe Moabites sawe þe battayll was to fygte for him, he recole to him seven C. men, which were þe fynynges, & so fell vpon the fynynges of Edom: neuertheless they were not able. Then toke he his fynynges, which shalde haue bene fynynges in his fytte, and offred him for a burnt offering vpon the wall. Then came there a grece wath ouer Israel, that they departed from him, and turnede agayne into their londe.

The iii. Chapter.

¶ And there cryed a woman amonge the wyues of the prophetes childen vnto Elisar, and sayde: Thy seruante my husbade is dead, and thou knowest that thy seruante fearde the LORD. Now cometh the man that he was better vnto, and wyl take awaye both my childre to be bond seruantes. Elisar sayde vnto her: What shal I do further? Tell me, what hast thou in the house? She sayde: Thy hand mayden hath nothinge in the house but a picher of oyle. He & waye, howe welcom of all thy neyghbores empye wyll, & that not a fenne, and go in, and shew þe vnto them be che with thy sonne, and peure of it in so all þe vessel: & whan thou hast fylled them, deliuer them forth.

She wene, and shew the hore vnto her with her sonne, which brought her the vessel, and so she pouered in. And whan the vessel was full, she sayde vnto her sonne: Wylge me yet one vessel. She sayde vnto her: There is no one vessel more here. Then stode þe oyle still. And she sent, and tolde the man of God. He sayde: Thy waye, tell the oyle, and paye the creditor: but lyeue them and I shal me of the residue.

And he seuered at þe same tyme, that he sawe wene vnto Saman. And there was a rich woman, which helde him to a carew; her: & a he passed a fetherow þe waye, & came vnto her: & ate & her. And she sayde to her husbando: Beholde, I put comen to this in an holy man as God's child: geue me knowe this waye, let us make a bak chamber of boodes, & sit a bed, a table, & a candlestick, & therein, that whan he cometh vnto us, he maye to sit therein.

And he seuered vpon a tyme, that he came in, & layed him to me in the chamber, & slepe therein. And he sayde vnto God's child: Call this woman of the house: She sayde: Call this woman of the house. And he sayde before him: I sayde vnto him: Speake thou vnto her, & she sayde, thou hast mynistrd vnto me all these thinges, what shal I do for the? He sayde: It is my matter to be spoken for to the fynynges, & the the captiue of the house: She sayde: I will amonge my people. He sayde: What hast thou thin to do? She sayde: Alas, she hath no sonne, and her husbando is olde. He sayde: Call her. And whan he had called her, she stode at the doore. And he sayde: Aboute this tyme, if I finde can lyeue, thou shalt embrace a sonne. She sayde: Alas, my lorde, thou man of God, lyeue not vnto thy hand mayden. And the woman comen, and bare a sonne aboute the same tyme, & she the fynynges could lyeue, a newe yuge as Elisar had sayde vnto her.

But whan þe child was growne, & fytte, & þe wene south to his father, & his mother, & sayde vnto his father: Whym he be, my heade. She sayde vnto him: I knowe: I brought him to his mother, and she he vnto her lappe vntill þe noone daye, & the dyed. And she wene up, and layed him vnto the bed of the man of God, & she sayde, and wote fath, & called her husbando, & saye vnto him: Send me one of the fynynges, and an Aft. I wyl go quickly vnto the man of God, and come agayne. She sayde: Why wilt thou go vnto him? To daye is a newe moone, not Sabbath. She sayde: And she sayde the oyle, & saye to the young man: Wylge forth, and kepe me not with thynges, and do as I byd the.

So she wene, and came to the man of God vnto mount Carmel. And the man of God sawe her out, & gaue him. He sayde to his child: Beholde, the same.

is in there, runne now & meete her, and grete her as go well with her, and her husband her firme. She sayde: Well, but whan she came to the man of God upon 3 mount, he had her by his feet. And Gehasi sepe to her, to put her away. But y man of God sayde: Let her alone, for his soule is in heuyn, and the LORDE hath hyd it fro me, and not shewed it me. She sayde: Whan desired 3 some of my lord? Sayde 3 not, 3 thou shouldest not deide me?

D She sayde unto Gehasi: Wride vp thy loyng, and take my staffe in thy hande, and go thy waye. When man meete the, salute him ere: and yf any man salute the, thanke him ag, and he se thou my staffe upon 3 childes face. But the childe to mothe sayde: As truly as the LORDE liueth, and as truly as 3 smil mouth, 3 wyl not leaue the. Then gat he vp, and wote a fere bre. As for Gehasi, he went before them, and layed the staffe upon the childes face, but there was neither voyce nor felinge. And he wote ag, ynto to meete him, and shewed him, and sayde: The childe is not feling vp.

And whan Elifus came in to the house, behelde, 3 childe laye deid vpon his bed. And he went in, & shote the doore on the boch, & made his praye vnto the LORDE, & wente vp, & layed his selfe vpon the childe, & layed his mouth vpon the childe mouth, and heu eyes vpon his eyes, and his handes vpon his handes, & so stretched him selfe forth vpon him, so 3 the childe body was warme. And he rose vp, & wote in to the house once he hit her, and shew, & wente up, & layed him selfe a longe vpon him. Then nased the childe seue ymes, and a fere wote the childe opened his eyes. And he cried vpon Gehasi, and sayde: Call the Sunamite. And whan he had callid her, she came in vnto him. He sayde: Take thou thy sonne. Then came she, and fell at his feet, and worshipped vnto the grounde, and wote him home, and wente forth.

R And whan Elifus came againe vnto Gilgal, there was a berch in the londe, & the prophete dwelthen wote before him, & he sayde vnto her semant: Set en a geate poe, and make poage for the children of the prophete. Then wente there one in to the felde, to gather herbes, and founde a Cucumbers stal, & gathered wote Cucumbers therof his counsil. And whan he came, he chopped it small in poage to the poe, for they knewe it not. And whan they poured it forth for the wote, & they ate of 3 poage, they cried vnto syn. O thou man of God, deach is in the poe: for they might not eat it. Then, theles he sayde: Wyngemel hither. And he wote in the poe, & sayde: Poore is oue for the people, that they maye ease. And then wote it not byter in the poe.

There came a man from Baal Salis, & broughte the man of God word of the first fides, namely: woteyng barke loauce, & new come in his garment. But he sayde: Seke it vnto 3 people, that they maye ease. His my naster sayde: How shall 3 gane an hundred men of this? He sayde: Wote it vnto the people, that they maye ease. For thus sayeth the LORDE: They shal ease, and deche shal be leste oue. And he set it before them, so that they ate, and there leste oue, accordinge to y wote of the LORDE.

The V. Chapter.

U Samas the chiefe capteyne of the kynge of Syria, was an excellent mā in the figne of his lorde, and mede set by (for thowse him the LORDE gane healeth vnto Syria) and he was a mightie man, but a leper. And there had men of warre fallen out of Syria, and caiche awaye a litle daniell out of the londe of Israel: the se man was in seauye with Taaanan wote, and sayde vnto him a stressie: O that my master were with the prophete at Samaria, he wote deale him from his leprosy.

Then wente he in to his lorde, and tolde him, and sayde: Thus and thus hath the daniell of the londe of Israel spoken. The kynge of Syria sayde: Go thy waye then, & I wyl wyte a leste vnto the kynge of Israel. And he wente, and toke with him ten hundred weightes of syluer, and fye thousande gulden, & eni chynge of seayment, & broughte the leste vnto the kynge of Israel, with these wordes:

Whan this letter cometh vnto the, beholde, thou shalt understonde 3 I thanke my seruant: The man vnto the, that thou mayest heale him of his leprosy.

And whan the kynge of Israel red the letter, he wote his clothes, & sayde: Am 3 Gad then, that 3 can 3yll and quye 3 agayne, 3 he sal bech vnto me, to heale the man fro his leprosy? Consider and se, how he seker an occasion vnto me.

Whan Elifus the man of God herbe, 3 the kynge of Israel had wote his clothes, he sent vnto him, sayng: Why hast thou comen by clothes? & at him i ome to me, that he maye knowe, 3 there is a prophete in Israel.

So Taaanan came with horsen and charette, & behelde still at the doore of Elifus

The iiii. booke of the kynges.

Elisas saide vnto him: Go & waite and nolpe. Then shal recover. But the LORDE hath shewed me, & he shal dye & deathe.
And the man of God loked earnestly, & made a wondrous communaunce, & wepte. The saide Isaiel: Wherefore wepest thou so? he saide: I knowe what shall come vnto thee in the day of Iudas. Then shal borne the strange cities with fire, and slaye the yong men with the sword, and kill their yong women, and theyr vnto their women with dulle.

Isaiel saide: How so, is thy servant a beggar, that he shalde do such a greuous thing?
Elisas saide: The LORDE hath shewed me, & then shal be kyng of Syria. And he went his waye from Elisas, & came to his lode, whiche saide vnto him: What saith Elisas vnto thee? he saide: he tolde me, Then shal recover. But on the next daye he toke a bow coveringe, and dyped it in water, and shewd it vnto him, and he dyed, & Isaiel was kyng in his steade.

In the fiftieth yere of Ioram the sonne of Achab kyng of Iudah, was Ioram & sonne of Iosaphat kyng of Iuda. Two & thirtie ked in the waye of the kynges of Iudah, in the house of Achab dyng for Achab's bough-in sighte of the LORDE. Wherefore the LORDE wolde not destroye Iuda for his seruante Dauides sake, as he promysed him: he gave him ever a lantern amonge his dyners.

As he same tyme fell & he damnes awaye had gotten him vp by nighte, and smyten he was some in lawe in the house of Achab.

And he went with Ioram the sonne of Achab vnto the battell against Isaiel & singes of Syria vnto Ramoth in Gilead, here of Syrians inore Ioram. Then Ioram the & he laye sick. The ix. Chapter.

As was the prophet called one of the prophetez childer, & saide vnto him: Woe vnto you & loynes, and take cho cr-se of oyle with the, and go vnto Ramoth in Gilead: and when thou comest thither, thou shalt se there one Iehu, & sonne of Iosaphat the sonne of Tanzi, and go in, and byd him stande vp amonge his brethren, and byrge him into the ynnest chamber, & take cho & cruse of oyle, and poure it vpon his heade, & saye: Thus saith the LORDE: I haue an ou-er and the to be kyng ouer Iuda: & then shalt open the doore, and flye, and not tary. And he prophetez yonge man, the childe went his waye vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And when he came in, beholde, the captaines of the horse: as there, and he saide: I haue somwhet to saye vnto the O captaine. The saide: Vnto whom? amonge vs all? he saide: I haue vnto the a commaund.

Then stode he vp, and went in. So he poured the oyle vpon his heade, and synde vnto him: Then sayeth the LORDE God of Iracl: I haue anoynted & to be kyng ouer the LORDES people of Iracl, and thou shalt smyte thy lode Achab's house, that I maye avenge the bloude of my seruantes the prophetes, and the bloude of all the LORDES ser-uantes, from the hande of Iehoiad, that all the house of Achab maye perishe. And I wyl reue oue from Achab, men him that metich water agaynst the wall, and the closest up, and the desolates in Iracl: and the house of Achab wyl I make even as the house of Ieroboam the sonne of Nebat, and as the house of Baas the sonne of Aha, and & dogges shall eat vnto Iehoiad vpon the steepe at Ieruel, and women shall burye her, And he opened the doore, and flew.

And wha Iehu came forth to his father strummers, they saide vnto him: Are all thin g as well: Wherefore came this madd folowe unto the? he saide unto them: Ye knowe the man well: he hath be hach spoken. They sayde: There is noe man, but tell thou vs. he sayde: Thow and elias hath he spoken unto me, and sayde: Thou sayest the LORDE: I haue answered the so be thyng ouer Israel. Then made they hauff, and euery one colde his garment and laced them vnder him in manner of a iugges skates, and blew the trumpet, and sayde: Jehu is made kyng. So Jehu the sonne of Josaphat the sonne of Nimshi, made a confederacion ngaynst Joiam. As for Jehu he laye before Ramoth in Gilead with all Israel agaynst hys the kyng of Syon.

But Joiam the kyng was turned backe, for he myghte be healed of the woundes wherewith the Syrians had woundeth him, whiche he foughte with hauiel the kyng of the Syrians.

And Jehu sayde: If it be youre mynde, there shall no man escape out of the cite, to go and tell it at Jerusalem. And he rode, and departed into Jerusalem: for Joiam laye there, and Ocholias the kyng of Juda was come downe to visite Joiam. But the watchman that stood vpon the towre at Jerusalem, sawe the company of Jehu commynge, and sayde: I see a company. Then sayde Joiam: It is a charre, and sende to meete this, and saye: Is it peace? And the charreman rode to meete them, and sayde: Thus saith the kyng: Is it peace? Jehu sayde: What hast thou to do with peace? Turne the behynde me. The watchman colles it, and sayde: The messenger is come vnto them, and cometh not agayne. Then sent he another charreman, which when he came to them, saide: Thus saith the kyng: Is it peace? Jehu sayde: What hast thou to do with peace? Tyme is behynde me.

And the watchman tolde it, and shyde: he is come to them, and cometh not agayne, and the kyng is as yet more the kyng of Jehu the sonne of Nimshi: for he dryeth on as he were mad. Then sayde Joiam: But he the dinere fast. And they bounde the charre, and so they wente forth, Joiam the kyng of Israel, and Ocholias the kyng of Juda, euery one vpon his chaire, to meete Jehu. And they founde him vpon the side of Tabeoth the Jezabell. And when Joiam sawe Jehu, he shyde: Jehu, is it peace? But he sayde: What peace? The watchman and watchman of thy meeeth Jezabel is not yet come to an ende.

Then turned Joiam his hande and fled, and sayde vnto Ocholias: There is trouble vnto Jehu. But Jehu colde him be gone, for Joiam betwene the mynde, that the man wente thow he is here, and he fell downe in his chaire. And Jehu sayde vnto Jezabel the wyghte: Take and cast him in the iure of londe of Tabeoth the Jezabell: for I haue numbred since thou rodest with me in a chaire a ster I shal his father, that the LORDE wolde laye this heuy burthen vpon him. I holde (sayde the LORDE) I will requyte ce the y blonde of Tabeoth and of his children, euen in this pece of londe. Take him now and cast him in to this pece of londe, and dyng to the words of the LORDE.

When Ocholias the kyng of Judasaw this, he fled by the waie vnto J garden house. But Jehu followed after him, and commyned to smyte him also vpon his chaire in the geyng vnto the walle of the city, which lay by Jerusalem: he fled vnto the gylde, and dyed there. And his seruantes caried him to be caried into Jerusalem, and that they buryed him in his owne grave much his father in the cite of David. Ocholias came ouer Juda in the eleventh yere of Joim the sonne of Achab. And when Jehu came to Jerusalem, and Jezabel herde thereof, she colouit her face, and bed to her heade, and let it be as she wold. And when Jehu came vnder the gate, she sayde: Prospereth Syria, well shall she slewe his lorde.

And he liue vpon his face to the wyndow, and sayde: Who is with me? Then receiued there two of his chamberlaines vnto him. He sayde: Cast her downe headlinges. And they cast her downe headlinges, so that she was all in the hofes were sprented with her bloude, and she was trodded vnder feet. And when he came in, and had eaten and drunken, he sayde: Take vpon yonder curish woman, and burye her, for she is a kynges daughter. Then they wente vnto the wyghte her, they founde nothings of her, but the skull and the feet, and the palmes of her handes. And they came agayne and brought her wynde, he sayde: This is com to the LORDE spake by his seruans: I will the the feet, and in the: In the side of Israel shal the dogges eate Jezabels fleshe. So the deed carcase of Jezabel became eaten on dogges in the side of Jezabel, so it was could not saye: This is Jezabel.

The X. Chapter.

Achab had the score and ten shekels at Samaria. And Jehu wrote also a letter, and sent it to Samaria, to the more of the cite Ierusal, even unto the El-dor, & to Achab's tentes, & sayenge these wo-res. Whan this leete cometh unto ye, shew whom are youre lordes sonnes, & charres, & holy stronge ciues, & obaynace, let e which is the best, and most religious amonge you-re lordes sonnes, & set him upon his fathers seate, and fighte for youre lordes house.

Heard he so they were sois a prayed, and sayde. Achobol, & two kynges were not able to stande before him, how wyl not then endure?
 And they that were oute the house and oute the cite, and the Elders and wetero sene unto Iehu, sayenge. We are thy seruantes, we wyl do all that thou sayest unto us: We wil make no man kyng, do thou what pleasest the. Then wrote he the secundo letter unto them with these wordes: If ye be myne, and hearken unto my voyce, then take the heade of the man youre lordes sonnes, and bringe me them conuise by this tyme unto Jer-usal.

B The kynges sonnes were thie for e men and con, & thie man of the cite brought the up. Then whan this leete came, they toke the kynges sonnes, and slawe them euen thie sonnes and ten, and layd the hea-des in hairettes, and sene them to him vnto Ierusal. And whan the messenger came, & toke him, and sayde: They haue brought the heade of the kynges children. he sayde: Lay them upon eue heapes at the doore of the porte tyll to morrow.

And on the morow whan he wente forth, he spake, and sayde vnto all the people: The kynges sonnes: Achobol, I haue made an ap-payment against my lord, and slayne him, who hath slayne all these then? Understeune now therefore, that there is not fallen upon the earth one worde of the LORDE, which he spake agaynst the house of Achab: and the LORDE hath done, euen as he sayed by his seruant Elias. So Iehu smote all the remainge of the house of Achab at Jer-usal, oyl his greates men, his kynfolke, and his perles, tyll there was not one lefte ouer.
 And he gaue him to pwayne his waye, and came to Samaria.

C By the waye there was a shepherdes house, where Iehu founde the birchins of Ochozias kyng of Iuda, and sayde: Whence are ye? They sayde: We are Ochozias birchins, and are comynge hower to slawe the kynges children, and the quenes children. he sayde: Take them alyue. And they cote them aly-ue, and slawe them by the weller syde at the shepherdes house, euen two and forty men, and let not one of them remayne.

And whan he wente from thence, he folowed Ierubabab of some of Achab, which met him, & saluted him. And he sayde vnto him In thyne bettyghte, as myne hart is with thyne heart: Ionidab sayde: Yea, if it be so (sayde he) then geue me thy hande. And he gaue him his hande. And so he caused him to syt byside him in the chare, and saide: Come with me, and se mynde for the LORDE.
 And they caryed him with him vpon his chare. And whan he came to Samaria, he smote all that remayned of Achab at Samaria, tyll he had destroyed him, accordyng to the worde of the LORDE, which he spake vnto Elias.

And Iehu gathered all the people together, and saide vnto them: Achab dyd Baal but hile seruys, Iehu wyl slawe him better.
 Call vnto me now that fore all Baale propetes, all his seruantes and all his prestes, that there be none mannyngs, for I haue a greates sacrifice to do vnto Baal. We se eartia mynde, shal not lye. But Iehu dyd it crastely, that he mighte destroye all the mynisters of Baal. And Iehu sayde. Sanctifie the feast vnto Baal, and proclame it. And Iehu sent in to all Ierusal, and caused all Baale ministers to come, so that there was none lefte behynde, which came not. And they came into Baale house, so that the house of Baal was full from one coynce to another.

Then sayde he vnto him that had the cu-le of the vestre. Drynge forth rayment for all Baale mynisters. And he broughte forth the rayment. And Iehu wente in to Baale house with Ionidab the sonne of Achab, and sayde vnto Baale mynisters: Search and se that there be not here amonge you any mynister of the LORDE, but only Baale mynisters.

And whan they came in to offer sacrifices and burnt offrynges, Iehu appointed him foure score men with him, & sayde: If any of these men escape whom I bidder, wher your handes, then shal the same manne shal be for his soule. For so much he had made an othe of the burnt-offerynge, Jehu sayde vnto the foremen and knyghtes: Go in, & smyte euery man, let no man go forth. And they saue the with the edge of the swerde. And the fore men and knyghtes chace the male and make into the case of Baals house, and broughte forth the piler in y^e house of Baal, and burnt it, and brake downe Baals piler with the house of Baal, and made a peny house therof vnto this daie. And Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel. But Jehu lefte not a ffrom the sinne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat which caused Israel to synne; namely, from the golden calves at Bethel and at Dan. And the LORD sayde vnto Jehu: Because thou hast bene willinge to do that which was righte in my sight, & hast done vnto Achaba vnto all that was in my here, the fore shall thy childrens eye vpon y^e seats of Israel vnto the fourth generation.

3. Neuertheless Jehu was not diligēt to walke in the lawe of the LORD God of Israel with all his hert: for he leste not of the synne of Jeroboam which made Israel to synne. At the same tyme beganne the LORD to be grieved at Israel. For Asaels synne when in all the borderes of Israel from Jordan eastward, and all the londe Gilad of the Gadites, Rubenites and Manassites, from Arore that lyeth on the ryuer by Temon, and Gilead and Basan.

What more there is to saye of Jehu, and all that he dyd, and all his power, beholde, it is written in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Jehu sillon slept with his father, & they buried him in Samaria. And Joabas his sonne was kyng in his steade. The tyme that Jehu reigned ouer Israel, is eight and twenty yeaeres at Samaria.

The XL. Chapter.

2. Athalie the mother of Ochozias, which she saue that his sonne was dead, gat her up, and destroyed all the kynges seds. But Josias kyngs Iocams daughter the sister of Ochozias, toke Iona the sonne of Ochozias and saile him awaye with his noyse in the chamber from amonge the kynges children which were slayne, and she hyd him from Athalia, so that he was not slayne. And he was hyd with her in the house of the LORD six yeaeres. But Athalia was quene in the londe.

Then reules in the thyneth yeaere sent Josia, and toke the rulers ouer hidde with the captyues and foremen, and caused the to come to him in to the house of the LORD and made a couenant with them, and set an othe of them in the house of the LORD, and shewen them the kynges seds, and commanded them, and sayde: This is the y^e shall do: One thirde parte of you which water on the Sabbath, shall kepe the maner the kynges house, and one thirde parte shall be at the porte of Sur, and one thirde parte shall be at y^e porte which is beynde the fete of the house of the LORD. But two partes of you all the daye of an the Sabbath, shall kepe the waye in the house of the LORD aboute the thinges, and ye shall get you rounde aboute y^e kynges and quere one with his weapen in his hande: and who so cometh cometh with y^e wall, let him die, so that ye be with the kynges, and he reach one and in.

And the rulers ouer the hundredes byd as Josia the prest had commanded them, and toke arore them their men which were vpon the Sabbath, with thole that were on the Sabbath, and come to Josias prest. And the prest gaue the captyues speeres and shyldes, which had bene kynges seds, and were in the house of the LORD. And the fore men stode aboute the kynges every one with his weapen in his hande, at the corner on the righte syde of the house into the corner of the left syde, euen unto the altare and to the house. And he broughte forth the kynges sonne, and set a crown vpon his heade, and toke the women, and made him kyng, and the y^e were glad, and clapped their handes together, and sayde: God saue the kyng.

And when Athalia herde the noyse of the people that raunc together, she came to the people into the house of the LORD, and lotto, and beholde, the kyng stode by the piler, as the use was, and the singers and wyrtres by the kyng: and all the people of Israel were glad, and blase with cromptes. But Athalia reue her clothes, & sayde: Yourre, vpon me. Then reules Josias prest commanded y^e rulers ouer hundredes, which were appointed ouer the hoost, and saide to them: Drynge her with out the wall, and wholde her followeth him, let him dye of the swerde (for the prest had sayde, that she shal be not dye in the house of the LORD.) And they layde handes vpon her, and she was in by the waye where the horse go into y^e kynges house, and there was she slayne.

Then wente all the people of the land into the house of Baal, and brake downe the altars, and destroyed the ymagyns of the gods. And Elisha the prest of Baal sawe they befor the altare: And the prest appoynted officers in the house of the LORD, and sette the rulers ouer hundredes, and the capaynes, and the fore men, and all y people of the land, & broughte the kyng downe into the house of the LORD, and came the waye from the porte of the fore men into the kynges house, and he sat upon the kynges seate. And all the people of the land were glad, and the cite was merie. As for Achaz, he theyr slawer be with the swerde in y kynges house. And Joram was seven years olde, when he was made kyng.

The XII. Chapter.

IN the forth year of Joram, was Joas made kyng, and reigned fortye years at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Iseba of Berisaba. And Joas was the which was righte in the sight of the LORD, as longe as Joiada y prest taught him. But they put not downe y hye place: for the people offered & burnt incense yet upon the hye places.

And Joas sayde unto the prestes: All the money that is sanctified to be bestowed vpon y house of the LORD, namely the money y every man geaeth vnto the treasury, and y money that every man geaeth for his soule, and all the money that every man geaeth of a sacrifice, to be bestowed on the house of the LORD, let the prestes take it vnto them, every on his portion: with that shall they repaie the decaye in the house of the LORD, wher they fynde that there is any decaye.

But when y prestes repayed not the decaye in the house vnto the thirthe and thirthe year of kyng Joas, Joas the kyng called Joiada the prest with the other prestes, and sayde vnto them: Wherfore do ye not repaie the decaye in the house?

Then shall ye not take the money vnto you now every one his portion, but shall geue it to the decaye of the house. And the prestes agreed to take no money of the people, and to repaie the decaye of the house.

Then Joiada the prest toke a chest, and bound on hole aboue therin, and set it on the right hande besyde the altare, at the entree vnto the house of the LORD. And the prestes that receyue the tithes, put all the money therein that was brought vnto the house of the LORD. When they sawe that there was much money in the chest, y kynges scribe came up with the hye prest, and beaunde the money together, and tolde it as much as was founde in the house of the LORD. And so the ready money was geuen vnto them that mought and were appoynted to the house of the LORD, and they gaue it forth to the carpenters and to the that buylded, and wrought in the house of the LORD, namely, to the builders and masons, and to them that brought timber and fre stone, to repaie the decaye in the house of the LORD, and all that they founde so he usede of repainge in the house.

Wherof there were no syluer chargers, star peces, basens, trompettes, nor any other vessel of golde and syluer made on the house of the LORD, of the money that was brought vnto the LORDS benefite: but it was geuen vnto the mactmen to repaie the decaye in the house of the LORD thervnto. The men also that the money was bestowed vnto, for to gear the wallow, made not to make any accomptes, but did their busynesse vnto credence. For the money of sacrifice offered vnto the LORD, and the money of sacrifice offered vnto the house of the LORD: for it was the pisten.

At the same tyme wrote Hazael the kyng of Syria up, and soughte agaynst Beth, and Ramoth. And when Hazael sawe his force to go vnto Jerusalem, kyng Joas wrote all that was sanctified, which his fathers Josaphat, Jeram and Ochozias the kynges of Jude had hallowed, and what he himselfe had sanctified, and all the golde that was founde in the treasures of the house of the LORD, and in the kynges house, and sent it vnto Hazael the kyng of Syria. And so he departed from Jerusalem.

What more there is to saye of Joas, and all that he dyd in his tyme in the Cronicle of the kynges of Jude. And his seruantes made insurrection and conspired, and smote him in the house of Achillo, at the gongre downe vnto Silo. For Josaphat the sonne of Benmeath, and Josaphat the sonne of Some his seruantes smote him to death: and he was buried with his fathers in the cite of David. And Amazias his sonne was kyng in his steade.

And by waich of the LORD wared to here upon Israel, & he betrayed them ouer vnder the hande of Safai King of Syria, and vnder the hande of Benadab the sonne of Safai, as longe so they liued.

And Joab has besought the face of the LORD. And the LORD heard him, for he considered the mystery of Israel, how the King of Syria oppressed them. And the LORD gave Israel a saviour, who brought them out of the power of the Syrians, so that the children of Israel dwelt in their tents, like as aforetime.

And he opened it. And thus he saide. And he had the saydore of the nation of the LORD. And he was the first

And he sayde: Take y^e aromes. And whē

And Hazael the king of Syria dyed, and Benadab his sonne was kynge in his stead. Ahas the kynge of Syria, and pecaah the sonne of Remelias kynge of Israel up to Je rusalem to fighte agaynst it, and layed sege to Achas, but they coude not wyne it. And the same tyme dyd Ahas the kynge of Sy thist y Ieruzalem out of Iehud. But the Sy rians came z wrede thern unto this daye.

Therofte Achas sent messangere vnto ge, I am thy sclaue z thy sclaue, come vp z z in the treasure of y kynges house, z sent a prentise to y kyng of Assiria. And y kynge of Assiria consented vnto him, z wente vp to Damascon, z manne it, z caried them awaye unto Cira, z sware Keyn. And kynge Achas wrote Damascon for to mete Teglorphal assir kynge of Assiria. And whā he sawe the altare y was at Damascon, kynge Achas sent a pateren for firmilite of y some altare

And whā the prest buydyd an altare, and made it accordinge as kynge Achas had sent vnto him from Damascon, yll Achas y kyn

And whā y kynge came from Damas bydyd his burnt offrynges and meate off

And Achas the kynge chargeded Onas the prest dyd all a certinge as Achas the kyn

And kynge Achas made done the ste and cete the lauer from the basen bullockes that was there vnder, and set it upon y pe bark which they had buydyd in the basen, and y entree of the kynges house turned he vnto the house of the LORD, for the kynges of Assiria sake.

What more there is to saye of Achas, what he dyd, byholde, it is wyrtten in y Cro nicles of the kynges of Iuda. And Achas fell on slepe with his father, z was buryed in his father in the cite of David. And Achas chas his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The xvi. Chapter.

In the tweluerth yere of Achas the kyng of Iuda, begane Oseas y son ne of Eli to reigne ouer Israel at Samaria thyn yere, and dyd y which was him dyd Salmanaasar kynge of Assiria co gave him trybute. But whā the kyng of Assiria percaued y Oseas had conspyred z sent messangere to Sina y kyng of Egip to all the londe and to Samaria, and layd Samaria, and caried Israel awaye in to y Assiria, and set them at Galah and at Cho the height, whom the LORD had tryed out before the children of Israel, and dyd a the kynges of Israel, and prouoked the LORD his God, and dyd secretly the thinges that were not right in the sighte of the LORD their God: namely in that they had ydyed them hye places in all cities, both in castles and stronge ciues, and set vp pillars and grotes, vpon all hye hilles, and amonge all greile trees, and buent a cens there in all the place, euen as dyd the heythen, wherethe LORD had cast out before them, & wroughte wiche plagues, wherewith they prouoked the LORD vnto wrath, & serued the Idoles, wherof the LORD sayde vnto them: Ye shal not do such a thyng.

And when the LORD testified in Israel and Iuda by all the prophetes and Seers, sayenge: O mine aynne from yowre shall I awaye, and kepe my commaundmentes and obseruaunces, accordinge to all the lawe which I gaue vnto yowre fathers, and that I sent vnto yow by my seruantes the prophetes: they wolde not hearken, but hardened their neckes, accordinge to the hardnes of their faythles, whiche beloued not an the LORD their God. For they despyled his ordinance and his commaundment which he made with their fathers, and his assermentes which he witnessed amonge them, and walked in their apene enemies, and became oayne folowinge the heythen, whiche dwelle vnder a bowtechym, concerninge whom the LORD had commaunded them, that they shulde not do as they dyd. Nevertheless they soughte all the commaundmentes of the LORD their God, and made them two molten calves and grotes, and worshypped all the host of heuene, & serued Baal, and caused their sonnes and daughters to go thow in the fyre, and molde d of sythylare and witches, and gaue them siluer oer to boche which was eall in the sighte of the LORD, to prouoke him vnto wrath.

Then was the LORD very wroth at Israel, and put them awaye from his presence, so that there remayned none: but only the crye of Iuda. Therfor dyd Iuda kepe the commaundmentes of the LORD their God, but walked after the customes of Israel, whiche they dyd. Therfor dyd the LORD cast awaye all the kynde of Israel, and erroubled them, and deliuered them in to the hande of the heylers, till he had caste them out of his presence: for Israel was denyed from the house of Dauid. And they made the a kyng, one Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which turned

Israel back from the LORD, & caused the a synne so fast. Ther walked the childen of Israel in all the synnes of Jacob, whiche had done, & departed not from thence, the LORD sayde: I will be in his presence, and vnginge as he had spokt by all the synners & prophetes. So Israel was carryed awaye out of their aynne londe to Assyria vnto the

The kyng of Assyria caused men to come from Babilon, from Cush, from Hamath, from Sepharaim, & carried them to inhabit in ciues in Samaria in stead of the childen of Israel. And they were the people of Samaria, & dwelt in the same citie. But when they began to dwell there, & served the LORD, the LORD sent Lyons against them, which slawe them. And they caused he sayde vnto the kyng of Assyria: This is the whom thou hast broughte hither, & cast them to inhabit the ciues of Samaria, knowe not the lawe of the LORD of the lande. Therfor hath he sent Lyons against them to besolde, they slaye them, because they knowe not the ordinance of the God of the lande.

The kyng of Assyria commaunded sayde: Bring theither one of the prestes of the which were carryd awaye from Samaria, & dwelt at Bethel, & charge them how they shulde serve the LORD. But every people made their goddes, & put the in the houses vpon the hye places, which the Samaritanes had made, every people in their ciues wher they dwelt. They of Babilon made Sathach & Bethel. They of Hamath made Berith. They of Sepharaim burnt there sonnes vnto Adramlech & Ananias: & goddes of the of Sepharaim.

And when they feared the LORD, they made prestes in the hye places of the which were carryd awaye from Samaria, & charged them how they shulde serve the LORD. I sawe of many nations, from hence they are broughte. And vnto this daye do they after the olde custome, so that they neither feare the LORD, nor yet kepe their aynne ordinance and lawes, after the lawe and commaundmentes that the LORD commaunded the childen of Jacob, vnto whom he gaue the name of Israel, and made a covenant with them, and commaunded them, and sayde: I am the LORD your God, and worshippe them not, and offer not vnto them but the LORDE which broughte you out of the land of Egypte, with greates power and outstretched arme, heare him worshippye: & thus him do so respect: and the statutes, ordinances, lawes & commandement which he hath comyd to be obeyed vnto you, those heare ye kepe, that ye allowe ye do there ster, and steare none other goddes. And forget not the covenante which he hath made with you, lest ye steare other goddes. Now heare ye LORDE thy God, he shall deliuer you from all yere enemies. Let us heles they wold not berken, but byd after their olde custome.

Thus these herthen steared the LORDE, and steared their Toles also, and so byd their children and childrens children likewise. And as these fathers haue done before them, so do they into this daye.

The xviii. Chapter.

IN the thirde yere of Osiass sonne of Iehoiachaz the kyng of Iuda, and he was fyne and twentie yere olde when he was made kyng, & reigned thre & thretye yeres at Iherusalem. His mother a name was Zibi the daughter of Zachary. And he dyd that which was righte in the sighte of the LORDE, & seedinge vnto all as byd Dauid his father. He put awaye the hye places, and brake downe the pilers, & rotes out the grones, and brake the basen ierpente: which Ithobal had made. For vnto that tyme had the children of Israel burnt incense vnto him. And it was called Iehoshaphan. He purhis trauell the LORDE God of Israel, so that after him there was no more in all the kynges of Iude neyther had bent lesse him. He cleued vnto the LORDE, and departed not backe from him, and kepte his commandementes, which the LORDE had commaunded Ithobal. And the LORDE was with him. And whether so euer he wold saye, he dyd as he wold saye. He refusede the kyn of Assiria, and was not subdued vnto him. He smote the Philistynes also vnto Gasa, and the borders, from the castles vnto the stronge cities.

In the fourth yere of Iehoiachaz kyng of Iuda: & was the fourth yere of Osiass the sonne of Iehoiachaz: came Salmanser the kyng of Assiria vnto agaynst Samaria, and layd siege vnto it, and wanne it a fere the yere in the fyfte yere of Iehoiachaz, that was the nyght yere of Osiass kyng of Israel. The was Samaria wonne. And the kyng of Assiria, called Israel awaye vnto Assiria, and set them at halah and habon by the water Mesan, and in the cities of the Medes. And all because they berkened not vnto the voyce of the LORDES their God, and had transgressed his covenante: And as for all that Ithobal the seruante of the LORDE had commaunded the, they had neither berkened vnto anye of those, nor done them.

In the fourth yere of Iehoiachaz byd Samaria the kyng of Assiria came vnto agaynst all the stronge cities of Iuda, & conquered the. Then sent Iehoiachaz the kyng of Iuda to the kyng of Assiria vnto Lachia, sayenge: I haue offred, turne backe so me like what thou layest vnto me, I will beare it. The kyng of Assiria layd vnto Iehoiachaz the kyng of Iuda, the hundred talentes of syluer, & thirtie talentes of golde. So Iehoiachaz gaue all syluer he was folde in the house of the LORDE, & in the treasures of the kynges house. He & some tyme brake Iehoiachaz the kyng of Iuda the bene of the temple of the LORDE, & the places of golde which he him selfe had caused to laye ouer the, & gaue the vnto the kyng of Assiria.

And the kyng of Assiria sent Tharcan, and the chiefe chamberlaine, & the chiefe butler vnto Lachia to the kyng Iehoiachaz with a greates power vnto Iherusalem. And they wold come vnto: and when they came there, they stode still at the contrarye by the oore pole, which lyeth in the waye vnto the fullers londe, and called vnto the kyng. He came thre forth vnto them Iehoiachaz the sonne of Iehoiachaz the seruant, and Iobnath the scribe, & Iozab the sonne of Assaph the Secretary.

And the chiefe butler sayde vnto the: Tell Iehoiachaz the sonne of Iehoiachaz: I thea saye the of greates kyng, and the kyng of Assiria: What presumptuous in this thou trustest mee? Thirtef chon, & then hast yet counsell and power to fight? Where were trustest thou then, that thou art fallen of so me? Beholde, power is then thy trust in this broken stoffe of rebe, in Egypte: which in he leaneh vpon, it shall go into his hande, & perseyte thou. Then so to Pharaon the kyng of Egypte vnto all them that thou puttest trust in him. Now if ye wold saye vnto me: We put oure trust in the LORDE our God. Is not that he, whose hye places and altars Iehoiachaz hath tald downe, and sayde vnto Iuda and Iherusalem: As he this altare which is at Iherusalem shall ye worshippye?

Take a mynde the now therefore vnto my lordes the kyng of Assiria, and I will geue ye remoune and be his, let se yf thou be able to man them: how wilt thou then endure before the smallest pyssant of my lordes sabies: And trustest thou unto thy gyfte because of the charites and boynties? But thinkest thou that I come nigher withoute of LORDE to despoyle the cities? The LOR-DE hath commaunded me: so up into the londes and despoyle it.

E Then sayde Eliahim the sonne of El-chia z Soons and Josah unto the chiefe butler: Speake to thy fellows in the Syrian language, for me vnderstande it, and speake not unto vs in the Jewes speche: before the eares of the people that are upon the wall.
Then helde I these butler sayde unto the chief my lord: thus saith me unto thy lordes, o to the, to speake these wordes: Remember unto the men, which sit upon the wall, that they saye: eue their owne denge and dympe their owne sale w. you. So the chiefe butler stode and cued with londe voyce in the Jewes language, and spake and sayde: Heare the wordes of the greates kynge the kynge of Assiria. Thus sayeth the kynge: Let not Elchias discoment you, for he is not able to deliuer you from my hande: z let not Elchias make you to trust in the LORDE, sayinge: The LORDE shall deliuer vs, and thus eue shal not be geuen me o the handes of I kynge of Assiria. Followe not ye Elchias, for thus se yeth the kynge of Assiria:

I Do methis blessing, and come forth unto me: so I shal emend your case of his wyne and of his synges, and drynke of his well, yll I come in yf selfe and send you in to a londe, which is like your owne lode, wherein I acot ne, wyne, berys, vngardes, oyle trees, oyle and hony so shal ye lyne, and not dye. Followe not ye Elchias, for he discomenteth you: when he sayeth: The LORDE shal deliuer vs. Have the goddes of the heathen deliuered euery one his londe from the hande of the kynge of Assiria: Where are the goddes of Hemach and Arphad? Where are the goddes of Sepharaim, Sena and Josah? Have they deliuered Samaria from my hande? Where are they one god amongst the goddes of all londes, which hath deliuered his londe from my hande? therefore LORDE shal deliuer Jerusalem from my hande.

For the people, they helde their peace, and gaue him no answer: for the kynge had commaunded and sayde: Answer him nothing. Then came Eliahim the sonne of El-chia z I seuerde, and Soobna the scribe, and Josah the sonne of Asaph the Secreunto Elchias with reme clothes, and telle him the wordes of the chiefe butler.

The XIX. Chapter.

And Elchias z I kynge herde the remede his clothes: z put on a cle-dard, z wente in to the house of the LORDE, z sent Eliahim the Secreter to the Scribe with the clest pisse, dyched in a sack cloth, unto the prophet the sonne of Amos, z they saide unto him: Thus sayeth Elchias: This is a daye of er: alle, z of deshaunce z blasphemy. The chiefe butler come to the dyche, z there is as strength he deliuered of them. I happily the LORDE thy God wil heare all the wordes of I the chief butler, whom his lord the kynge of Assia hath sent, to blaspheme of I saynge: O to despoyle him with loth wordes as the LOR-DE thy God hath herde, therefore lete the
w. thy prayer for the reme and, which as ye lete deliuer.

And whā kynge Elchias first gaue in a meo a day, I say sayde unto them: Spake thus unto your lord: Thus sayeth the LOR-DE. Feare not thou the wordes of the he-thens, wherewith the kynge of Assiria haunte howe blasphemed me. Beholde, I wil put him in another myrre, so I shal heare rynges, z go agayne in to his owne countre, z into his owne lode: wil I say that so shal the sonne of the swete.

And whā I these butler came agayne, he founde the kynge of Assiria sigheinge gaynst Libna: for he had heerde that he was departed from Lachis. And he herde of Larach the kynge of the Moitians: Beholde, he is gone forth to fighte with he. Then said he bad, z sent messengers to Elchias, z canste to saye unto him: Let not thy God discoment the, o whom thou trustest: I sayeth Jerusalem shal not be geue in to the hande of the kynge of Assiria. Beholde, thou hast become what the kynge of Assiria hath done to all londes, z he wey they haue done to thee: thou be deliuered: I saye I goddes of I haue deliuered the, whom my father be-lieued, as Golan, Haras, Aisaph, z the chiefe of Ezen w. which were at Chalassar: What is I kynge of Sennach, I kynge of Arphad, I kynge of I dire Sepharaim, I dire z Josah I saye Elchias had receaied the wordes of the messengers and had rid them, he wente ap unto the hope of the LORDE, and layd them abide before the LORDE, made his prayer before the LORDE, and sayde: O LORDE God of I Israel, I then the best of the Cherubims, thou only art the amonge all f kyngdomes of the earth, thou hast made beautes and earth. In chynne thine eye. O LORDE, and heare: open thine eye, and beholde, and heare the wordes of Sen nachme, which hath snt hym to blasphem the fyringe God. It is true: O LORDE that the fyringe of Assyria, hath destroyed the heyden, and that lande with the sacer tes, and hath cast thine goddes in the fyre: for they were not Goddes, but f workes of me honden, wood and stone, they for haue they destroyed them. But now O LORDE helpe thou vs out of his hande, that all the kyng domes upon earth maye knowe, that thou LORDE art: God alone.

Thyn first sayeth the sence of Almon whe Ezechias sauyng: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: Where nu thou hast made thy pynter unto me concernynge Sennache me kyng of Assyria, I haue herde it. This is that the LORDE hath spoken agaynst him: he hath bespoken, and mocked the ymage of the daughter Sion: he hath shak his heade at the daughter Jerusalem.

When hast thou bespoken to blasphemed:
O whome hast thou lix up thy voyce:
And agaynst f holy one in Israel hast thou lixe up thine eye: thou hast blasphemed f LORDE with thy mesfenger, and sayest: Tho wethe multitude of my charetes haue I gone up to the cappes of the mountaynes, upon the sydes of Libanus. I haue hewen downe his hye Ceders and his chofen pyne trees, and am come to the vtmost habita cion of the wood of Carmel that belongeth unto it. I haue dygged and brente vp the stronge wether, and with f soles of my fe te haue I toyed up the stee.

But hast thou not herde howe that I ha ue done thus longe ago, and haue prepared e from the begynnyng: I to haue I com fied for to come, that conueniens stronge cides myghte fall in to a wastt heape of ston me, & they that dwelle there in, shal be faynte, and fewell and a shamed, and shal be as the grass upon the felde, and as f grene her be and bay upon the house toppes, & that w thence a fere w be growne up. I knowe thy habitacon, thy oue and ingyringe, and that thou agaynst agaynst me. For so much then so thou sayest agaynst me, and sayng thy pie tyrannous come up to myne eares, ther fo in will I put a yryng in thy nose, and a wyde byr in thy hippen, and will byr the agayne, even the same waye thou comest.

And laste he be taken into the O Ze chias. In this year eate f which is fallen, in the seconde year esch an greener of it selfe: In f thirde year: Iownde reape, and plante vnyntes, and eate the fruct thereof.

And the daughter Sion which is escaped, & remayneth, shall frout hence forth eate rocs briech, and keure fruct aboue, for the tem pount shal go forth from Jerusalem, & they f are escaped, shall go out from mount Sion.
The gelousy of the LORDE Jebaah shall byryng this to passe.

Therfore thus sayeth the LORDE con cernynge f kyng of the Assyrians: he shall not come into this cite, and shall frout no come therein, neither shall they come any further: neither shall he byryng any brude about it, but shal go agayne the waye that he came, and shall not come in to this cite, sayeth the LORDE: and I will defende this cite, so helpe it for myne owne sake, and for my seruante Dauds sake.

And in the same yghre wente the angell of the LORDE, and sitotes in the hoost of the Assyrians, an hundredth and fyne and some seine thousand men. And when they gate them up in the moonyng, beholde, all laye full of dech coarfe. So Sennachme the kyng of Assyria brake up, and departed, and returned, and abode at Ninue. And as he was worshipped in f house of Etsadai his god, his awens seruaes Adrammelech and Sarsaz smote him with the sword, and fled in f loner of Ararat. And Asarhadon his soun was kyng in his steade.

The XX Chapter.

That tymme was Ezechias in bechfide. And the prophet I say f some of A mo, came to him, & sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth f LORDE: Set thine house in or die for thou shalt dye: & not lyue. And he ture ned his face to the wall, and played vnto f LORDE, and sayde: A remembre (O LORDE) that I haue walked such fully before the, & with a perfectte here, and haue done f which is good in thy sygher. And Ezechias wepe fote. But when I say was not gone out of holste the cite, f wode of f LORDE came to him, & sayde: Turne back, & tell Ezechias o prynces of my people: Thus sayeth f LORDE God of f father Daud: I haue herde thy prayer, & comforted f: eares. Beholde, I will heale f: on the thirde daye shalt thou go in to f house of the LORDE, & sitte yeares twel Judas vnto f life, & twel deluyr the & cho ce from the kyng of Assyria, & this cite wil I defende for myne owne sake, and for my seruaute Dauds sake. And I say sayde: But go hithe a quantite of fygge. And when they boughe them, they layed them upon the sove, and it was healed.

Ezechias sayde unto Esay: Which is þe toben, that the LORDE wyll heale me, and that I shal go up in to the house of þe LORDE on cheethurde daye: Esay sayde: This toben shal thou have of the LORDE, that the LORDE shal do accordynge as he hath sayde. Shal the shadewe go ten degrees forwarde, or shal it come ten degrees backward: Ezechias sayde: It is an easy thinge for the shadewe to go ten degrees downward, þe is not my mynde, but that it go ten degrees backward. Then cayed the prophet Esay unto the LORDE, and the shadewe wene backward ten degrees in Achas Wyll, which he was descended aforesaid.

As the same tyme Merobach Daladan the sonne of Daladan kynge of Babilon, sent letters and perfumes unto Ezechias, for he had herd that Ezechias had bene sicke. And Ezechias receyved with them, & shewed them all the house of rote, the siluer, golde, spices, and the best oyle, and the house of ordinance, and all that was founde in his treasures. There was nothinge in his house and in all his domynion, but Ezechias shewed it them.

Then came Esay the prophet unto Ezechias, and sayde unto him: What have these men sayde? and whence came they unto thee? Ezechias sayde: They came to me out of a farr countre, even from Babilon. He sayde: What haue they sene in thyne house? Ezechias sayde: They haue sene all that is in my house, and there is nothinge in my treasure. He sayde: I haue shewed it them. Then Esay sayde unto Ezechias: Hence the word of the LORDE: Beholde, the tyme cometh, that all be carryd awaye unto Babilon, and whatsoever thy fathers haue layd up vnto this daye, and there shall nothinge be left, sayeth the LORDE. Yet and the children which come of the, whom thou shalt beget, shall be taken awaye, to be charyn berlayned in the fynges of Babilons palace. Ezechias sayde unto Esay: It is good that the LORDE hath spoken. And he sayde more vnto Esay: Let there be peace yet and faithfulness in my tyme.

Whenmore thre is to saye of Ezechias, and all his power, and what he dyd, and of the pole and moore contreye, wher by he can nedre water in to the cite, beholde, it is written in the Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda. And Ezechias fell on slepe with his fa-there, and Manasse his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XXX. Chapter.

Manasse was thre score years old, when he was made kynge, and he reigned thre score and syftee years at Iherusalem. His mothers name was Sepphia. And he dyd that which was euill in the sight of the LORDE: (even after the abhominacions of the heithen, whom the LORDE expelled before the chyldren of Israel) and he builded up the hye places wher his father Ezechias had destroyed, and he builded up Baals altars, and made groves, as Ezechias the kynge of Iherusalem dyd, and worshipped all the hostes of heauen, and serued them. And he builded altars in the house of the LORDE, wherof the LORDE sayde: I wyll sit my name at Iherusalem, and in both the corners of the house of the LORDE wyll I be altare vnto all the hostes of heauen. And I will be senn to go thowen the fyre, and I wyll be senn to byde exchange and tokens, and I wyll be senn to byde layes, and expounders of reton, and so much dyd he of this which was euill in the sight of the LORDE, that he provoked him vnto wrath.

Agreue Iher also which he had made for he in the house, wherof the LORDE spake vnto Dauid and to Salomon his sonne: In this house, and at Iherusalem, (wher I haue chosen out of all the kynges of Israel) I set my name for ever, and wyll not cast I out of Israel to be removed any more in the londe, which I gave vnto thei fathers, so that they observe and do accordynge vnto all that I haue charged them, and doer all the lawe that my seruante Moyses made and do them. Yet notwithstandinge they wold not hearken, but Manasse dyssenced them, so they dyd worse then the heithen, whom the LORDE expelled before the chyldren of Iher.

Then spake the LORDE by his seruante the prophetes, and saide: Because that I will nose the fynges of Iher, and haue gone thurgh abhominacions, which are worse then all the abhominacions that the Amosites haue done, which were before them, and haue cast I out of Iher, and I will be senn to byde layes, and expounders of reton, and so much dyd he of this which was euill in the sight of the LORDE: God of Iher, beholde, I wyll bynges such a plague vnto Iherusalem and Iuda, that thei shal be brought, both his eares shal glorie, and say: Iherusalem wyll I search for the fynges of Iher, and the weighten of the hoostes of Iher, and wyll wyte out Iherusalem, and I wyll wytech a place, and I wyll plant there.

the eightyeth yere of bynge Jo-sias sent Saphan & some of Ame of Ierusalem the scribe, in to I of the LORDE, and sayde: Go up to the bynges, that the money that is broughte vnto I house of I LORDE, which the resholde keepers haue gathered of I people maye be deliuered vnto them, that they maye geue it to the workmen which are appointed in the house of the LORDE, & to ge-ue it vnto the labourers in the house: I they maye paye the decaye of the house, namely, vnto the carpenters, and brylders, & masons, and to them I bit timber & for stone for the repairste of the house: in so I there be no accomptes taken of them concerninge the money, that is vnder their hands, but they deale withall vpon credence.

And helchias I prest sayde vnto Saphan the scribe: I haue founde the boke of the lawe in the house of the LORDE. And helchias gaue the boke vnto Saphan, that he mughe reade it. And Saphan the scribe hare vnto the bynge and broughte him wordes agayn, & sayde. Thy seruantes haue gathered together I money I was founde in the house: I haue deliuered it vnto the workmen, which are appointed in I house of the LOR-DE. And Saphan the scribe tolde the bynge and sayde: helchias the prest hath deli-uered me a boke, and Saphan red it before the bynge.

Now when the kinge herde the wordes of the boke of the lawe, he rent his clothes. And the bynge comaunded helchias the prest, & Achim the sonne of Saphan, & Achobai the sonne of Mithana, and Saphan the scribe, & Ama I bynges seruante, and sayde: Go ye waye and asse counsell at the LORDE for me, for the people, and for all Iuba, concerninge the wordes of this boke that is founde: for grace is the wrath of the LORDE that is brylled out vpon, because of fathers haue not hearken vnto I the wordes of this boke, to do all that is written vnto us therein.

Then wente helchias the prest, and Acham, Achobai, Saphan & Ama vnto Hulda the prophetesse I wife of Seldai the sonne of Thana the sonne of Harham the keeper of I clothes, and she dwelt at Ierusalem in the second poynt, and they spake vnto her. And she sayde vnto them: Thus saith I LORDE God of Irael: Tell the men that sent you vnto me, Thus saith the LORDE: Beholde, I will bynge all vpon this place, and the inhabytors thereof, men all the wordes of I lawe which the bynge hath caused to be red, because they haue forsaken me, and bent there vnto other goddes, to prouoke me vnto much wrath with all the wordes of their han-des. Therefore in I wrath I will vnto agaynst this cite, and shall not be quenched.

But all this vnto the synge of Iuda, which heeth first you to age council at the LORDE: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: Because thou hast departed fro the wordes which thou hast herde, and hast humbled thy self before the LORDE, to heare what I haue spoken agaynst this place, and the inhabitants thereof: howe that they shall become a very desolation and curse: I haue herde it, sayeth the LORDE: therefore will I gather the vnto thy fathers, so that thou shalt be put in to thy grave in peace, and thine eyes shall see all the evil that I will bring upon this place. And they brought the synge words agayne.

The XXX. Chapter.

And the synge sent forth, and all the Elders in Juda and Jerusalem resorted vnto him, and the synge came vnto the house of the LORDE, and all the men of Juda, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem with him: the priestes and prophets, and all the people both small and greete, and all the woides of the booke of the commandment that was founde in the booke of the LORDE, were red in their eares. And the king stode vpon a piler, and made a cownaite before the LORDE, that they shoulde walke after the LORDE, and to kepe his commandementes, and obseruances, with all their hert and much all their soule. that they shoulde see vnto the wordes of his cownaite, which are written in this booke. And all the people entred in to the cownaite.

And the king commanded Helchian the hye priest, and the priestes of the seconde court, and the Eperes of the thirde holbe, that they shoulde put out of the temple all the vessels which were made for Dauid, and for the grove, and for all the house of heaven, that he burnt them without Jerusalem in the valley of Edon, and the dust of them was carryed vnto Bethel.

And he put downe the Altar, which the synge of Juda had founde, to burn incense vpon the hye places, in the cite of Juda, and about Jerusalem. he put downe also them that were incense vnto Dauid, the Sonne, and the Stone, and the Caldrone, and so all that was of heaven. And the grove caused he to be carryed from the house of the LORDE vnto Jerusalem in to the valley of Edon, and burnt it in the valley of Edon, and made it to dust, and caste the dust vpon the graves of the common people. And he brake downe the whorles and houses which were by the house of the LORDE, wherein the women made mansions for the grove.

And he caused all the priestes to come out of the cities of Juda, and suspende the hye places, where the priestes burnt incense, from Geba vnto Bethel. And he brake downe the hye places in the poyntes, that were at the end of the gate of Jesus the stone of the altar, at the left hande as one gooth to the citie porte. And he made the priestes of the hye places offered vpon the altare of the LORDE in Jerusalem, but were vnto the end among their brethren.

He suspended Tophas also in the valley of the children of Ennon, whose women should cause him shame at his daughter to goe to him: that was vnto Molech. And he put downe the houses, which the synge of Juda had set vnto the Sonne, or the minge in the house of the LORDE, by the chert of Sturtham Molech the chamberlaine which was as Paruam, and the chamberlaine of the Sonne burnt he with fire, and the altare that was the case of Achabes priest, which the synge of Juda had made. And the altare, which Manasses had made in the two corners of the house of the LORDE, by the synge burnt he downe. And ransome from thence, and all the dust of them into the hole of Edon.

And the hye places that were before Jerusalem on the right hande of Manasses the synge: which Salomon the synge of Israel had burnt vnto Ashtaroth the abhominacion of Sidon, and to Chem the abhominacion of Moab, and to Malcom the abhominacion of the children of Ammon, that was the synge suspende, and brake the piler, and vnto the grove, and filled their places with mens bones.

And the altare at Bethel, and the hye place that Jeroboam the synge of Israel made, which caused Israel to synne, the synge brake he downe, and the hye place burnt he the hye place, and made it to dust, and burnt up the grove. And Josias turned

God cryd out; that colde this before.

And he sayde What it will is this, that I him: It is the gyane of the man of God, which came from Iuda, and ened one this that thou hast done agaynst þe aitare of Be sel. And he sayde: Let him lye, no man tou

¶ The pacyence also all the honen of the hye places in the cities of Samaria (which the kynges of Israel had made to psonde þe LORDE vnto wach) and dyd with them accordinge to all as he had done at Bethel.
In all þe pusem of the hye places that we nethere, offred he vpon the aitare, and
s. burnt he menas bones theren, and came reigne to Jerusalem.

¶ And the kyng commaunded the people, and sayde: Bepe after vnto the LORDE your God, so is he wycten in the boke of the covenant. For there was no Easter in kepe an othe, fince the tyme of the Judges whych indged Israel, and in all the tymes of the kynges of Israel, and of the kynges of Iuda: but in the eighteenth yere of kyng Josias was this Easter kepte vnto the LOR DE at Jerusalem.

¶ And Josias expelled all forchylers, es pounders of coles, ymagines and Idole, and all the abhominacions which were fene in the temple of Iuda sad at Jerusalem, that he might see up the wydes of the land, which were wycten in the boke, that he shold see y prest fode in the house of þe LORDE.

¶ Josias was not kyng before him, which cordinge to alle the lawe of Moyses. And after him came there noe up such another. And ne ad ne the LORDE from the indignacion of his greute wrath, wherewith he was dis pleased vnto Iuda, because of alle the pmo uacions wherwith Manasse had prouoked him. And þe LORDE sayde: I will put Iuda out of my pasture also, euens as I haue put awaye Israel: and this cite which I haue dwyn, wyl I cast out, name y, Jerusalem, & the hye wherof I saye: My name shalbe

And the people of the lande toke: Josias

¶ In this tyme came up E Labudobans was in subieccion vnto him iij. yeres. And he turned back, & rebelled agaynst him. And þe LORDE sent men of warre vpon him one of Chaldeu, one of Syria, one of Moab, & fene Joachim fell on slepe with his fathers. And me. 20. d. Joachim his sonne was kyng in his steade.

And the kyng of Egypte came nomour out of his londe: for the kyng of Babilon had conquered all that was the kyng of Egypte, from the ryar of Egypte unto the waters of Euphrate. Eightene yere olde was Joachim when he was made kyng, and reigned thre monethes at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Nechuscha the daughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. And he dyd euell in the sighte of the LORDE, euen as his father had done.

¶ At the same tyme wente the seruantes of Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babilon up to Jerusalem, and came vpon the cite with ordinaunce of warre. And when Nabuchodonosor and his seruantes came to the cite they layed siege vnto it. But Joachim & kyng of Iuda wente forth to the kyng of Ba-bilon with his mother, with his seruantes, with his rulers and chamberlaynes. And the kyng of Babilon receaued him in the eight yere of his reigne.

¶ And he toke forth fro thence all the treasures in the house of the LORDE, and in the kinges house, and brake all the golden vessel & Salomon the kyng of Israel had made in the house of the LORDE (as ordynance as the LORDE had sayde) and carreyd awaye all Jerusalem, all the rulers, all the mightie men, euen ten thousande prisoners, and all the carpenters, and all the smithes, and leste none be hynde but the poore people of the londe.

¶ And he carreyd Joachim awaye vnto Babilon, and the kynges mother, the kinges wyues, and his chamberlaynes: and the mightie men of the londe. Led he awaye prisoners also from Jerusalem vnto Babilon, and seuen thousande of the best men, and a thousande carpenters and smithes, and all the stronge men of warre. And the kyng of Ba-bilon made Itacama his vncle kyng in his steade, and named his name Sebedchias.

¶ One and twenty yere olde was Sebedchias, when he was made kyng, and reigned eleven yere at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Nintul the daughter of Yere-mis of Libna. And he dyd euell in the sighte of the LORDE, euen as Joachim dyd: for thus forsooke he vnto Jerusalem to shew the wrath of the LORDE, till he had cast them out fro his presence. And Sebedchias fell awaye fro the kyng of Babilon.

¶ And it fortuned, that in the ninth yere of his reigne, vpon the tenth day of the tenth month, Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babilon came with all his power agaynst Jerusalem. And they layed siege vnto it, and buylded stronge bulwarke about it. Thus was the cite besieged vnto the eleventh yere of kyng Sebedchias.
But on the fourth daye of the fourth moneth was the hunger so stronge in the cite, that the people of the londe had nothinge to eate.
And the cite was broken vp, and all the treasures fled in the night by the waye of the porte betwene the two walles, which led to the kynges garden. But the Chaldees aboute the cite. And he fled by the waye the playne siluer. Nevertheless the prince the Chaldees solowed a fyer the kyng, and toke him in the playne felde of Jericho, and the men of warre that were with him, he scattered a yerde from him. And they toke him, and led him vnto the kyng of Ba-bilon vnto Belshazzar. And he gaue adoun vpon him. And they slewed Ezechias whiche was before him, and put out Sebedchias an and bounde him with cheynes, and carryd him vnto Babilon.

¶ Vpon the strength daye of the fifth mo-neth, that is the nineteenth yere of Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babilon, came Nabuchodonosor the chiefe captaine the kyng of Ba-bilon seruantes, vnto Jerusalem, and toke all the houses of Jerusalem, and all the treasures that he was with fyer. And all the treasures of the Caldies which was a much remains, he brake betwene the walles and about Jerusalem. As for the other people that were left in the cite, and were led vnto the kyng of Babilon, and the otheren people, Nabuchodonosor the chiefe captaine carreyd them awaye. And of the poore people dyd the chiefe captaine leaue in the cite to be wyngarders and plowmen.

And the potes, shoules, fleshes, spones, & all I brasse vessel that was occupie in the seruyce, caried they awaye. And I these capayne toke awaye I comforte and blysse I was of golde and silver, two plates, one lamer, and the steele I Solomon had made for I house of the LORD. There all of all these ornaments could not be myd. I lightnes caried he was one piler, and I knoppeth an was of brasse also, the caried he: I the rope and the pommantes upon the knoppes rounde a bower, were all of brasse. After the same maner was the other piler also with the rope.

And the these capaynes toke Sernia the piest of the first course, & Sophony the piest of the seondes course, and the doctepers, and six chamberlains out of the cite, which was appoynted ouer I men of warre, and five men that were euer before the kynges, which were founde at the tye: and Sopbar the capayne, which taughte the people of I howe to fighte, and thre of our men of I people of the lorde, that were founde in the citie: the dyd Nabuzaradan I these capayn take, and broughte them to the kyng of Babilon unto Riblatha. And the kyng of Babilon steepe them as Reblatha in I lande of symach. Then was Iuda caried awaye out of his own londe. But ouer the remnant of the people in the londe of Iuda, whom Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babilon seke he lynde, he seke Godolias I some of Ithiam I sonne of Sophon. Now whil all the capaynes of the fourtyes, & the men hade, that the kyng of Babilon had made, Godolias gotheroure, they came to Godolias unto Ithia, namely, Ithiel I some of Ithamias, & Iohannas I sonne Caras, & Sernia I some of Tanhomethe the Ierobachite, & Ithamias I sonne of Maachabid that men. And Godolias swaue unto them: I to them men, I saye unto them: I feare not ye officers of the Caldeas, for in the londe I submitte you as I am a unto the kyng of Babilon, & ye shal prosper. But in the seventh month came Ithiel the sonne of Ithamias the sonne of Ithamias, of the kynges Ithamias and came with him, and steepe Godolias, and the Iewes and Caldees that were with him as Ithia. Then all the people that in up, both small and greute, and the capaynes of the host, and came in to Riblatha, they were stayed of I Caldea.

And the children of Lemah bare the Ark of God the LORD upon their shoulders with the staves thereon, as the voice commanded a conuincing of the LORD.

And Dauid ſe. de unto þe rulers of þe uities, that they ſhulde ordeyne ſerue of their berthe, to be ſyngers with ſpynettes, har-pes and lute inſtruments, andymballes, to ſenge ſongs with reue.

¶ Then the Eunices appointed Seman 3 sonne of Iech: and of his brethren 3 sonne of Barachias: and of the children of Ieremias: their brethren, Erian the sonne of Asaf: and with them their brethren of the seconde course, namely Zacharias, Ja-sael, Semirameth, Iehiel, Dnm, Eliah, Banann, Masia, Machibea, Eliphada, Manean, Obed Eodem, Juel, who doe keepe, for Zeman, 3 Iaph and Erian were singers, with broken vessels makinge a loud noise: but Zacharias, Jasael, Semirameth, Iehiel, Dnm, Eliah, Masia & Demas with phal-teries to Hamoth: Machibea, Eliphada, Manean, Obed Eodem, Juel & Asia with harpes to singe about them on hye. Cha-nania the ruler of the Eunices made the master of Iehiel to teachethem how to singe, for he was a man of understandinge.

And Barchina and Elcano were the bo repeern of the Ark. But Sathana, Jesu phat, Nathaniel, Amos, Zacharia, Ze nia, Wher the profice, be we the mpre res befor of Ark of Sob. And Obedia and Jehia were base peern of the Ark.

So David and the Elders of Israel, and the captains over the bands were upon the Ark of the covenant of the LORD out of the house of Obed Edom a Jew. And when God had helped the Levites to bear the Ark of the LORDCES covenant, they were offered seven bullocks & seven rams, And David had a tyned garment upon him, and he had all the Levites to bear the Ark, and 3 singers, and Chemun the master of Musick, & the singers, David had an over-bow case of silver upon him all.

Thus all Israel brought up the Arts of the covenant of the LORD with them, with cornets, tabboures, 2 low be Cymbles, with psalteries & no harpen. Now toke the Arts of the covenant of the LORD in to the cite of David. Michol daughter of Saul looked out at a window: & when she sawe Dauid dauncing & playing she was despoyled him in her heart.

The XVII Chapter.

And whiche brought in the Ark of God, they set it in a Tabernacle David had pitched for it, and offe burnt offerings 2 thankofferings befo God. And when David had ended the offerings 2 thankofferings, he blas ed the people in the name of the LORD, 2 tributed unto every man in Iſrael (both to man and woman) a cake of bread, and a piece of flesh and a piece of pottage.

And he appoynted before the Aides of I LORDE certaine Lentes to minister, that they should give paye, thankes and laus ges unto the LORDE God of Iſſachar Iſſachar the first, Zacharias the ſecond, Iſid, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Iſſacharia, Eſai, Benai, Obed ſedom and Jehiel, with ſi-cences and harpes. But Iſſachar with Cymbales. Benai and Jehiel the pipes with tabrettes, all waye before the Aides concurrent of God.

At the same tyme ordeyned Dauid all to gentilitie vnto the LORD by sacrifice and by burnt-offering.

¶ And gave thanks unto the LORD, and upon his name, all the people which he had brought.

O let your forgetful of him praye for ambler your callinge be of all his work your workes.

Great his holy name a good report: let þ þat of hym reioyce, that seeth the LORDE.
O the LORDE and his strength, site his face evermore.

Amidst his marvellous workes that he hath done, his wonders, and the indignitee of his mouth.

Ye seed of Israel his seruants, ye children of Jacob his chosen.

So is the LORDE our God, his indignement is all London.

De myn offull curer of his covenant: what he hath commaunded in to a thousande ge-neracions.

Which he made with Abraham, & his sonnes into Isaac.

And he: confirmeth the same unto Jacob in a perpetual lute, and so Isaac for an everlasting covenant.

And sayde: Vnto the myghty gene þe londe of Canaan, þe metelyne of yo inheritaunce.
What they were yet but small & few in no-ber, and strangers in the same londe.

And they wente from one nation to another, & from one realme to another people.
He suffered no man to hate them, and rewarded none bynges for their falses.

Touch not myne anymde, & do my pro-phete no harme.

O singe vnto þe LORDE, let all þe earth be allye of his saluacion from daye to daye.
Declare his holynes amonge the heythē, the wonderous workes amonge þe people.
For the LORDE is greuous, and can not wonderly be prayd, and more to be had in awe then all goddes.

As for all the gaddes of the heythē, they are but Idols: & but is the LORDE that maketh the heauens.

Thantseggyngs and worshippe are before hym, singyng and ioye in his place.

As they vnto the LORDE ye hymns of praise: as they vnto the LORDE worshippe and strength.

As they vnto the LORDE the honoure of his meynyng: puffedes, and come before hym, and worshippe þe LORDE in þe new test of holynes.

Let the whole earth sitte in a we of him: which made the compase of the world so fast that it can not be moued.

Let the heauens reioyce, and let the earth be glad: and let it be tolde amonge the hey-thē, that the LORDE reigneth.

Let the See make a noyse, and the ful-mye thereof: let the seles be ioyfull, and all that therein is.

Let all the trees in the wod leape for ioye before the LORDE, for he commaunded to iudge
the earth.

O geue thankes vnto the LORDE for he is gracious: & his mercy endureth for euer.

And saye: Glorie vnto God our Saviour re, and gather vs together, and deliuer vs from the heythē, that we may geue thankes vnto þe holy name, and singe praise vnto the heithē thy psalms.

Praised be the LORDE God of Israel from euerslasinge to euerslasinge: and let all people saye, Amen. And: Praise be vnto the LORDE.

So he lefte Asaph and his brethren the re before the Ark of the covenant of the LORDE, to synnall alwaye before the Ark, euery daye his daye worke. And Obed Edom and their brethren, eight and thre score, and Obed Edom in the same of Jerubbaal, and so forth, to be doers there. And Sabao þe poet, & his brethren the psaltes, lesse he before the habitation of the LORDE vpon the hye place at Gibeon: offre burnys criftes day-ly vnto the LORDE vpon the altare of burnt offerynges in the mornynge & in the euenyn-ge, as it is written in the same of the LOR-DE, which he commaunded vnto Israel. And with them Haman & Jehishan, and þe other chosen, which were named by name to geue thankes vnto the LORDE, because his mercy endureth for euer. And with them Heman & Jedubbaal to syng vpon the tabrettes and Cymbales, and the musicallye instrumettes of God. As for the childre of Jerubbaal, he made them doers there. So all the people departed, euery one to his house: and Dauid returned also to blisse his house.

The x. viij. Chapter.

As he came vnto David dwelt in his house, he sayde vnto þe prophet Nathan: Dost thou knowe, I dwell in a house of Cedar, and the Ark of the covenant of the LORDE is amonge the curtaynes.

Nathan saide vnto David: What seuer is in thine heart, that do: for God is with þe.
But the same nyght came þe worde of God vnto Nathan, and sayde: O thou shalt not build me a house: Thou shalt me buyde me an house to be an habitation for I have dwelt in no house since the daye that I broughte forth the children of Israel, vnto this daye: And whethe dwelers of ierusalem shall oppose them none, like as after cym, when I cōfess and the Judges ouer my people of Israel.

And I will subd all thine enemies, and do declare vnto the, that the LORD will buye

¶ Thus when thy dayes are fulfilled, that see thee tarye on a fele, which shall be called one of thy Iourne: his kyngdome will I stablish make his feare sure for ever, I will be his faweytherdare my mercy from him, as I have told him once: so I him that was defected: Thus I will see him in my house, and in my kyngdome: for ever, so that his feare shall be sure for evermore.

And whā Elishah had spoken unto Da-uid according to all this wordes & all this vision, Elishah Dauid came and & he him

God, whē art thou & what is my heart, I shal be left through mine sinnes: And thus O God, haue thou psonages sette like me, haue thou spoken of thy sinners like me: for I am I. And thou LORD God haue me from lesch vpon another. What me thy seruante O LORD, I shal saye: I am a showe all greuous thinges vnto thy seruant.

LORD, there is none like thee, and there is no God but thou, of whē me thou haue

The XIX. Chapter.

After this smote David the philistines, and subdued them, and tooked from the villages thereof out of the hande of the philistynes. He smote the Moabites likewise, so that the Moabites were tributary vnto David, and gave him tribute. He smote Hadad the king also of Zobab, & smother him by the water of the river. He smother him by the water of the river.

And David rose from him afterward and all the same vessels of golde, silver and of brass, byo Kinge Dauid consecrate unto the LORD. with the silver and golde that he had taken from the heathen, namely, from the Edomites, Moabites, Ammonites, Philistines, and Amalekites.

¶ And Abisai the sonne of Zeruia smote eighteen thousand of the Edomites in the Sale valley, and layeth me of warre in Edom, so that all the Edomites were subdued unto Dauid: for the LORD helped Dauid, whiche so ever he wente.

¶ These Dauid reigned over all Israel, and executed iudgements and righteousness unto all the people. Joab the sonne of Zeruia was cupbaine over the host. Josaphat the sonne of Achis was Chanticle. Sadoc the sonne of Achitub, and Ahimelech the son of Abiathar, were prestes. Baasa was euerie the Chieftaine of Plebians. And Dauides sonnes were chiefe at the Kinges house.

The XX. Chapter.

¶ After this dyed Asaph the Kinge of the childen of Ammon, and his sonne was Kinge in his steade. Then saye be Dauid: I wil do mercy vpon Haman the sonne of Asaph, for this sake he dyd mercy vpon me, and so he shal haue his name to come forth: for he was farther. And when Dauides seruantes came into the londe of the childen of Ammon, vnto Haman to comforte him, the wyues of the childen of Ammon saye vnto Haman: Thinkest thou that Dauid honoureth thy sake in thy sight: for he hath sent comforte vnto thee: for his seruantes are come vnto thee, to searce and to overthowme, and to spye out the londe. Then toke Haman the seruantes of Dauid, and shewe them to cut the halfe of their garments of silke by the loynes, to let them go. And they wote their waye, and sent men to tell Dauid. ¶ Then Dauid he sent men to them, for they were put to great shame: and the Kinge saye: Whye as Jericho, eyll youe becom be growne, and thyn come agayne.

¶ When the childen of Ammon sawe, that they shoulde be slyghted of Dauid, both he and the childen of Ammon sent a thousand salutes of silver, to buye charrettes and horsmen out of Mesopotamia, out of Eliech and out of Hobab: and byed two and thirtie thousand charrettes, and three thousand of Mesopotamia, which came and pitched their tents before Hebron. And the childen of Ammon gathered them selves together out of their cities, and came to the battayll.

¶ When Dauid heerde this, he sent Joab the cher with all the host of them of amon. And the childen of Ammon were gone forth, and prepared them selves to the battayll before the gate of the cite. But the Kinges were come, to see them: and they were come, to see them: and they were come, to see them.

¶ Now when Joab sawe that the battayll was agaynst him both before and behynde, he choseth of all the best young men in Israel, and prepared him selfe agaynst the Syrians. As for the residue of the people, he put them vnder the hande of Abisai his brother, that they shoulde prepare them selves agaynst the childen of Ammon, and he sayde: If Syria be to myghte some, helpe them me: but if the childen of Ammon be to stronge for me, I shall helpe to make a good enemy vnto the, and let us quyre aote silke mainly for oure people: and for the cause of oure God: neuertheless the LORD doo what he pleaseth him. And Joab made him forth with three people that was with him, to fight agaynst the Syrians: and they fled before him. And when the childen of Ammon sawe that the Syrians fled, they fled also before Abisai his brother, and wente to the cite. And Joab came to Jerusalem.

¶ And when the Syrians sawe that they were shyer before Israel, they sent messengers, and broughte forth the Syrians which were beyonde the reuer. And Esopach the chiefe captayne of Hadad the kinge before them. When this was tolde Dauid, he gathered all Israel together, and wote oure Joabane. And when he came at them, he see the battayll in aray agaynst them. And Dauid prepared his selfe to fight agaynst the Syrians, and they fought with him: but the Syrians fled before Israel. And Dauid sent of the Syrians a siren thousand charrettes, and forty thousand men. And Esopach the chiefe captayne sawe he also. And when Hadad the kinge sawe that they were shyer before Israel, they made peace with Dauid: and his seruantes. And the Syrians wote helpe the childen of Ammon ne more.

The XXI. Chapter.

¶ In the year that came after, when Syria was to go forth, to fight agaynst the Kinge of Syria, to go forth. Joab brought the power of the host, and destroyed the londe of the childen of Ammon, and came and layed siege vnto Rabba. And Dauid abode at Jerusalem. And Joab smote Rabba, and beate it to woe. And Dauid toke the Kinges crowne from his head, and founde the treasure of a Calene of golde, and of precious stones. And it was for vsps Davids heare. And very much spoyle carried he out of the cite. As for the people that were therein, he broughte the fourth, and parted them in sunder so saxes, and helms and breles of yron. Thus byd Davids unto all the ciues of the child of Ammon. And David departed againe, with the people unto Jerusalem.

- 23 Afterwarde arose there warre at Gath with the Philistines. Then Sibachai the Gathite smote Sibai, which was one of the children of Achish, and he subdued him.
And there arose warre againe with the Philistines. The Elhamai the sonne of Jareshme Eaboni the brother of Goliath the Gathite, whose speares staff was like a weavers loom.
Afterwarde was there a battaill at Gath, where there was a man of a greates stature, he had sixe fingers and sixe toes, which make four and twenty. And he was borne also of Gath, and spake despyresfully unto Israel. But Jonathan the sonne of Simeon Davids brother smote him. These were the children of Gath at Gath, so telleth us the hande of David, and of his mightie do.

The XXX. Chapter.

- 24 Unto Gath he stode agaynst Israel, and smote David in nombie Israel. And David sayde unto Jeab his brother of the people: Go thou waye, nambe Israel stronge before me, and byng me the nombie of the, that I maye knowe it. Jeab sayde: The LORD make his people an hundred tymes more then they are now. But my loide Gygion, are they not all my loide?
I wanneo: Why both my loide then are they a fixe? Wherefore shal there a trespass come upon Israel?

Then he led the Gynges warde pynnysh agaynst Jeab. And Jeab warne forth, and walked thow all Israel, and came to Jerusalem, and deluyred unto David the nombie of the people that was a teld. And of all Israel there were a thousande tymes a thousande, and an hundredth thousande men, that bare out the sword: and of Juda fere: han-dred thousande and fiftie thousande men, which bare out the sword. As for Levi and Benjamin, they were not amonge them: for the Gynges warde was at homin-ble unto Jeab.

- 25 But this displeased God right sore: for he smote Israel. And David sayde unto God: I have synned greuously, thue I have done this. But now take awaye the trespa-ce of thy servants: for I have done very unwisely. And the LORD spake unto God

Davids fear, and sayde: So speake to David, and saye: Thus saith the LORD: Thou gayst laye I before the chiefe of one of them I maye boie unto the. And when David came to David, he spake unto him: Thus saye the LORD: Those that thou hast yearred the monethes to fynde oute thine adu-ersaries, and these are the swordes of thine adu-ersaries, it maye overtake the: the dayes I have of the LORD, a persellace in the sword, the angell of the LORD maye destroye in all coastes of Israel. And now what answer I shal geve unto him? I sent me, David unto God: I am in greates trouble: why? I rather fall in to the hande of the LORD, for his mercy is exceeding greates: I will not fall in to the handes of men.

Then byd the LORD cause pestilence come into Israel, so that there fell of Israel thre score and ten thousande men. And God sent the angell to Jerusalem for to destroye. An even, in the destruction the LORD com-red, and he repired of the sword, and sayde unto the angell: I have mercy: It is enough do now thy hande.

The angell of the LORD stode by the barnes of Anan the Jebusite. And David te up his eyes, and sawe the angell of the LORD standinge between heaven and earth, and a naked sword in his hande stretched over Jerusalem. Then David and all the kinges clothed with sack cloth, fell upon their faces. And David sayde unto God: Anan the char caused the people to be murthered: I am he that hath synned and done collison for these shepe, what have they done? LORD my God, let thine hande be agaynst me agaynst my fathers house, and agaynst thy people to plague them.

And the angell sayde unto God, that he should speake unto David, the LORD shoul-de stande go up, and set up an altare in the barnes of Anan the Jebusite. So David rose up accordinge to the word of God, and he spoke in the name of the LORD. And he Anan named him, and sawe the angell, and his four sonnes with him: they byd the men for Anan the Jebusite whyle.

Then when David came to Anan, Anan labored, and was a ware of David, and wexed forth out of the barnes, and he David with his face to the ground. And David sayde unto Anan: Give me water in the barnes, to buyde an altare unto the LORD therein: for I full moneye shall geve it me, that the plague maye cease from the people.

The i. boke of the Cronicles. The xxij. Chap. Ffo. lxxxvij.

But Aiam sayde unto David: Take it your selfe, and let my lord the kynge do as pleaseth him. Beholde, that eye gon I for a burnes offering, and these vessels to the ore, and vessels for the meac offeringe, I give it all. Therefore the kynge sayde unto Aiamon: For what sake for I full money wyl I be in such things which I shal receyve? Heate for the LORDE, and offre a burnes offeringe for meagre.

¶ So David gave Aiam for I ro mans, five hundred sylkes of golde in weighte. And then David and Aiam an altare unto I LOR-DE. I offered burnes offeringes & slayn offeringes then. And when he called wps the LORDE, he brake him chere in the fire from heave n pon I altare of the burnes offeringe. And I LOR-DE sayde unto the anuell, that he shalde put blasfemye in to his speech.

¶ The same tyme whā David sayde, that the LORDE had brake him upon the coma-ndment of Aiam: I Jehusite, he dyd sacrifice there for I habitation of I LORDE which Moses had made in the wylderne, and the altare of burnes offeringes, was as that cy-ment in the hye place at Gibeon. But David coude not go thither to site God before it, for he feared the face of the LORDES angell. And David sayde: There shal be I house of God. I LORDE, and this the altare of burnes offeringes for I Israel.

The xxiii. Chapter.

¶ And David commaunded to gather together the strangers that were in I londe of Israel, and appoynted masters to haue stone for the buyldinge of the house of God. And David prepared much timber for nales in the dores of the portes, and such things as were to be made together, and so much brasse, that is was not en to weyde: and there were innumerable: for they of Zidon & Tyre broughte David much cedre timber for I David among hie. Salmon his sonne is he a child, and tender. But the wise child shal be buylded unto the LORDE, shal be greater, than his name: I prayse maye be praised in all londe, therefore wyl I provide for him. So David made greace pray-son before his death.

¶ And he called Salomon his sonne, & commaunded him to buyde the house of LOR-DE God of Israel, and sayde unto him: My sonne, I was minded to buyde a house unto the name of the LORDE my God, but the word of I LORDE came unto me, and sayde: Thou hast shed much bloude, and streken many battayles, therefore shal thou not buyde an house unto my name, for as much as thou hast shed so much bloude upon the earth before me. Beholde, the sonne which shal be benamethe, shal be a quyet man: and I wyl cause him to be in trust from his enemies on every syde, for his name shal be Salomon: for I wyl give peace and rest n pon I Israel as longe as he lyveth. He shal buyde an house unto my name. He shal be my sonne, and I wyl be his father. And I wyl stablyshe I state of his kyngdome wps I Israel for ever.

¶ When my sonne, the LORDE shal be wps the, and thou shal prosper, and thou mayest buyde an house unto the LORDE thy God, accordinge as he hath spoken of the.
The LORDE also shal geve the wysdome & understandynge, and shal commaunde I Israel unto the, that thou mayest kepe the lawe of the LORDE thy God. But then shal thou prosper, yf thou take heed to do after the commandmentes and lawes which the LORDE commaunded Moses unto I Israel. Be strin-ge, and take a good corunge unto the, feare not, and be not in yre harted. Beholde, I have many powres provided for the: in the LORDE, an hundred thousand talentes of golde, and n thousand tymes a thousand talentes of sylver, and brasse and iron without nombre: for there is so much in it.

¶ And cymbre and stone have I prepared, thou mayest get more therof. Thou hast many workmen also: of stone and carpenters in stone and cymbre, and all manner of men that have understandinge in all worke off golde, sylver, brasse, and iron without num-bre. Recyve the rps, and becomynge, and the LORDE shal be with the.

¶ And David commaunded all the tuler of I Israel, to helpe Salomon his sonne, and sayde: In not the LORDE your God with you, and hath given you rest on every syde for he hath delivred the inhabytantes of the londe in to your handes, and the londe is subdued before the LORDE and before his people. Gent oute your hert now before me and your shalde, to site the LORDE your God, and geve you up, and buyde a Sacre-tury unto the LORDE God, thence the Arke of the covenant of the LORDE and the holy vessell of God, maye be brought in to the house, which shal be buylded unto the name of the LORDE. So David made Salomon

Amonge 3 Levites also were the childre of Levi numbered from thirre years old & above, that they needed not to beare 3 invitation with all the vessels of their office, but accordinge to 3 last wordes of David, they shoulde stonde under the hande of the children of Aaron, to mystifie in the house of the LORDE in the courts, and to the altar, and for purgynge, and to all maner of sanctifyinge, and to every worke of his office in the house of God. One stone after Rubee, 2 stones of dyuerse coloures, 2 all precious stones, 2 all fables stones in multitude. Besydes this, for the good wyll 3 I haue to the house of God. I haue of myne owne proper good the 11. talents of golde of Ophir, 2 seven 11. talents of pure syluer, which I geue unto the holy house of God, blyssed all 3 I haue prepared, to ouerlaye 3 mallets of the brasse, 3 the some which oughte to be of golde, maye be of golde: 2 that is which oughte to be of syluer, maye be of syluer: and for all maner of meate by the hande of the craftsmen. And who is now fre wyllinge, to fyll his hande this daye vnto the LORDE.

Then were the prynces of the fathers, 3 prynces of the trybes of Israel, the captaines ouer the houses, 2 ouer hundredes, the elders ouer the kynge busines, fre wyllinge, 2 came to 3 magnificacion in the house of God from 11. talents of golde, and ten 11. galbans, and ten 11. talents of syluer, eightene 11. talents of brasse, and an hundred 11. colours of ynn. And by whom so euer were sold be stones, they gaue them to the treasure of the house of the LORDE, vnder the hande of Jehiel the Gersonite.

And 3 people were glad that they were fre wyllinge: for they gaue it wth a good wyll (men with all their heart) vnto the LORDE. And Dauid also 3 kynge reioyced greatly, and prayed God, and saide before the whole congregation: paynted be thou O LORDE God of Israel oure father, vnto the beloued worshippe and power, glory, victory 2 thanke: for all that is in heauen and earth, is thine: thine is 3 kynge dome, and thou art exalted aboue all prynces. Thine are riches and honoure before 3: thou reignest ouer all, in thy hande consisteth power and myght, in thy hande we make enery man greates and stowe.

Then saide we the our God, and praye 3 name of thy glory. For who am I? What am y people: that we shoulde be able with a fre wyll to offere, as this is becom: for of the cometh all, and of thy hande haue we gotten lyfe: for we are but p^{er}gredes 2 fraile goods before thee, as were all oure fathers. On icht upon earth is as a shadowe, and here is nothing. O LORDE oure God, alle this abundance that we haue prepared to buye be thou an hound vnto thy name, came as thy hande, and is thine all together. I knowe my God, that thou art est the best, and that thy sayne thine is acceptable vnto the: that thou haue 3 geue all this with an vnfeigned heart, and with a good wyll, and now haue I had ioye to se thy people (which here are present) offre with a fre wyll vnto the. O LORDE God of oure fathers Abraham, Isaac, 2 Israel, kepe then euer more such purposes and thoughtes in 3 beate of thy people, 2 purp^{er}se thou their heates vnto the. And graunte mynne Salomon a perfecte heart, that he maye kepe thy commaundementes, thy testymonies, 2 thy statutes, that he maye do all, 2 buye the palace, which I haue prepared.

And Dauid saide vnto the whole congregation: thus saith the LORDE yr God. And all the congregation paynted 3 LORDE God of the fathers, 2 bowed them selues, 2 were shipped the LORDE: 2 then the kynge, and offred sacrifices vnto the LORDE. And on y^e next morow offred they burne offerynges, a 11. bullockes, a 11. rams, a 11. lams, 2 their drym offerynges, 2 plece assly offred they amonge all Israel. And they are and dwelte the same daie before the LORDE with greate ioye, and made Salomon the sonne of Dauid kynge 3 seconde tyme, and anoynted him to be 3 pryncce for the LORDE, 2 Starved to be the pryncce.

Thus saith Salomon vpon the seate of y^e LORDE kynge in his fathers seate, 2 prospered. And all Israel obeyed him, 2 all 3 to lera 2 mughe men, 2 all kynge Dauid a dydiers submytted themselves vnto kynge Salomon. And 3 LORDE made Salomon excel lene 2 greates in 3 sighte of all Israel, 2 gaue him such a glorious kynge dome, as none had before him ane Israel.

So had Dauid now bene kynge ouer all Israel. And 3 tyme that he was kynge ouer Israel, is fortye yeres: 2e Gerson reigned he ten yeres, and 2e Ierusalem the thirtieth yere, 2 dyed in a good age, full of dayes, riches and honoure. And Salomon his sonne was kynge in his steade.

These are the actes of kynge Dauid (both 3 first and last) beholde, they are wyrtten amonge the actes of Samuil the Seer, and amonge the actes of the prophet Nathan, and amonge the actes of Gad the Seer, with all his kynge dome, power and myght which passed vnder him, both vpon Israel 2 vpon all thy kynge domes of the earth.

The first Chapter.

And Salomon the sonne of Dauid was blessed in his bygynninge, and the LORDE his God was with him, & made him exceeding great. And Salomon spake vnto all Israel, to the captaynes ouer thow hundred, and out hundred, to the Iudges, and to all the people in Israel, and to the chiefe fathers, & that they wende (Salomon and the whole congregation with him) vnto the temple which was at Gibeon: for there was the tabernacle of the witness of God, which was the signement of the LORDE had made in the wilderness. For Dauid had brought up the Ark of God from Kirath Jearim, wher he had prepared for it: for he had prepared a tent for it at Jerusalem. As for the ark, which he had made, it was there for the habitation of the LORDE, and Salomon and the congregation sought God. And Salomon offered a thousand burnt offerings vnto the house of God, which was the tabernacle of the witness.

In the same night appeared God vnto Salomon, and sayde vnto him: As thou hast Igeuer: And Salomon sayde vnto God: Thou hast done greater mercy vnto me father Dauid, and hast made me prosper in this state. I am O LORDE God, I am Dauid thy sonne, and I have kept thy commandments.

hand, be verified. • for thou hast made me thyng for a people, which is as many in us be as the dust upon the earth. Grace me wyl domethis for and knowlege. • I maye go out and be for this people: for who is able to wylde this greates people of thine?

Then sayde God unto Salomon: for so much as thou art for mynded, and hast not be synn riches nor good, nor bond, nor the foules of thine enemies, nor longe life, but hast requyred wyl domethis and knowlege, to wylde my people, wher whom I have made the thyng, wyl domethis for and knowlege be given. Moreover, riches & good and honour will I geve the, so that soch ent as thou hath set bene before the amonge the thynges, nether shal be after the.

So came Salomon from the hye place (whiche was at Gibeon) unto Jerusalem from the Tabernacle of witness, and reigned over Israel. And Salomon gathered him charites and horses, soch as he had a thousande and four hundred charites, & twoly: then sette he them: and those appoynted he to be in the charite curies, and with the thyng as Jerusalem. And the thyng broughte it so to pass, that there was as much sylver & golde as Jerusalem as stones: and as many Ceders, as the Nobyltyes trees, that are in the valleye. And there were houses broughte unto Salomon out of Egypte, & the thynges marchantes fethed them from Bena for money. And they came up, and broughte out of Egypte a charite for fifti hundred sylver pils, and an horse for an hundred and fifty. Thus broughte they also unto all the thynges of the chitynes, and so the thynges of the Spaynes.

The II. Chapter.

And Salomon thoughte to buyde an house unto the name of the LORD, & an house for his thyng domethis: and to lode our chitynes, and ten thousand men to be in burthen, and four score thousande that be in thyng up to the meane, and the thyng fethed and fifti hundred officers over them. And Salomon sent unto Huram the thyng of the thynges: A. thousande sylver pils with my lode, & fifti hundred Ceders, & twoly, as an house for to dwell in: (even so be thou be made). Therefore, I wyl buyde an house unto the name of the LORD my God, to sanctifie it, for to burne good incense before him, and all my lode to prepare the thyng, and to offer thynges in the coosynge and in the thyng, on the Sabbathes & the new moone. And I will offer thynges of the LORD

oure God evermore for Israel.

And the house that I wyl buyde, shal be greater for our God in greater then all goddes. But who is able to buyde him an house? For he that is the heuene of all heuene maye not comprehend him. Who am I then, that I shoulde buyde him an house? But only for this intent to burne incense before him:

And me now therefore a wylf man so wote I with golde, sylver, brasse, yron, scarlet, purple, yallowe sylke, and soch ent as can grave carved wylf with the wylf men that are with me in Jerusaleme, wher my father David ordeyned. And sende me thynges of Cedar, pynne tre and costly wode from Libanus: for I knowe that thynges can be made to burne upon Libanus. And be holde, my thynges shal be with thyng men, to prepare me the thyng: for the house that I wyl buyde, shal be greater & more glorious goobly.

And beholde I wyl geve unto the carpenters thy thynges which have the thyng, twoly thousande quarters, of beaten wheat, and twenty thousande quarters of barley, and twenty thousande quarters of wyne, and twenty thousande quarters of oyle.

Then sayde Huram the thyng of Tyre by wylfing, and sent it unto Salomon: Because the LORD loneth his people, therefore hath he made it to be thyng over them. And Huram sayde moreover: I wyl be thyng of the LORD God of Israel, which made heuene earth, that he hath geve thyng. David a wylf and prudent kinge, and soch one as hath understood thyng to buyde an house unto the LORD, & an house for his realm. Therefore sende I now a wylf man that hath understood thynges, Huram the thyng: I wyl geve the some of a woman of the daughters of Dan, and his father was of Tyre, which can make thyng golde, sylver, brasse, yron, stone, thyng, scarlet, yallowe sylke, yemen, purple as to carve all maner of thynges, and so make what thyng thyng geve: I wyl geve him, with thyng wylf men, and with the wylf men of my lode be thyng David: thyng. And now let my lode sende the wheat, barley, oyle and wyne unto thynges, according as he hath sayde, and so wyl we be thyng thyng upon Libanus, as much as thou wyldest, and wyl be thyng: by fethed in the Sea unto Tyre, from whence thou mayst buyde it up to Jerusalem.

And Salomon numbered all the thynges in the lode of Israel, according to the number what David his father numbered them: and there were founde an hundred and fifty thousand, thre thousand and five hundred. And of the same he made thre score and ten thousand beeres of berrhen, and four score thousand between up of mount, and thre thousand and five hundred quarters, which heide 3 people at their mouth.

The iii. Chapter.

AND Salomon beganne to buyld the house of the LORD at Jerusalem upon the mount Moria, that was shewed unto David his father, which David had prepared for the temple, upon the come fildes of Amon the Jebusite. In the seconde daye of the seconde moneth in the fourth yere of his reigne he beganne to buyld. And so layde Salomon the foundatione to buyld the house of God: first the length thre score cubites, the breadth twenty cubites: and the porch before the wyndes of the house: was twenty cubites longe, but the height was an hundred and twenty, and he overlaid it on the ynside with pure golde.

But the greates house fild he with pynne, and overlaid it with the best golde, and made palme trees and chionee wrechesen.

But he overlaid the house with precious stones to beautifye it. As for the golde, it was golde of Parauan. And the baltes and postes above, and the walles and the doore of it overlaid he with golde, and caused Cherubims to be carued on the walles.

He made also the house of the Most holy, whose length was twenty cubites accordinge to the wyndesse of the house: and the breadth of it was twenty cubites like wyse, and he overlaid it with the best golde by six hundred talens. And for noles he gave fifty Sicles of golde in weight, and overlaid the chambers with golde. He made also in the house of the most holy, two Cherubims of carued woode, and overlaid them with golde: and the length on the wynges of the Cherubims, so that one wyng had fyve cubites, and touched the wall of the house: and the other wyng had fyve cubites also, and reached to the wynges of the other Cherub.

C And so had one wyng of the other Cherub fyve cubites likewise, and touched the wall of the house: and his other wyng had fyve cubites also, and reached to the wynges of the other Cherub: so that the wynges of the Cherubims were styed out twentye cubites to wyde. And they stode up to their feet: and their face was turned to the house woode.

He made a walle also of yellow fyre, in fyre, purple and lymecorke, and made Cherubims thereon. And before the house he made two pilers fyve and threty cubites high, and the knoppes above thereon, fyve cubites. And he made the column woode for the pyle, and put it a bowe upon the pilers: and made an hundred pomegranates, and put them on the wynges there. And he set up pilers before the temple, the one on the right hande, and the other on the left: and they on the right hande called he Jachin, and on the left hande called he Boos.

The iii. Chapter.

HE made a blasen altar also, two cubites longe, and two cubites broad, and ten cubites hye. And he made a molten laver ten cubites wyde: the one fyde to the other: and made above it fyve cubites hye. And a mercurie of thre cubites mighte comprehend it above. The ymagen of Sollokes more ther it. And above the laver (which was ten cubites wyde) there were set rowen of knoppes, 3 mercuries withall.

He stode so upon the bulle d'as, that they were turned toward the north, the temple toward the west, the temple toward the south, and the temple toward the east, and the laver above them, and all their hynder partes toward the ynside. The thidness of it was an hundred, and the edges of it were like the top of a cuppe, and as a flowered rose. And he set on the cherubims Cherubims.

And he made cankerels, whereof he set one on the right hande and fyve on the left, so that they mighte see the things as he had god to the burne offer ynges, that they mighte thinke them therein: but 3 lower made he for the priestes to washe in.

The golden candlestickes made he also as they ought to be, and set them in the temple: one on the right hande, and fyve on the left. And made ten shalen, and set them in the temple: fyve on the right hande, and fyve on the left. And made an hundred shalen of golde. He made a course likewise for the priestes, and a grate course, and drew the course, and overlaid it with best fyre. And the laver set he on the right hande toward the south east. And he made cankerels, shalen and basens.

So Hiram finished the worke which he made for King Salomon in the house of

And namely the two pillars with the roundels and knoppes aboue upon both the pillars, and both the wythe ropes to couer both the roundels of 3 knoppes aboue vpon the pillars, and the four hundred pomegranates on both the wythe ropes, two rowes of pomegranates on every rope, to couer the roundels of the knoppes that were a bove vpon the pillars.

And he made the stoles also and 3 ketels vpon the stoles, and a laver, and twelue bolloes therin vnder. And potes, shoules, sicches, and all their vessels made Hyram Abif of purpurall for hynges Salomon vnto the booke of the LORD. In the east of Iordan vnto the Kinge cast them to be molten in the fire: and he made Gadach and Baredach.

And Salomon made all these vessels which were so many, that the weight of 3 minas was not to be soughte one. And Salomon made all the ornaments for the house of God: namely, the golden table, the tables and the shewbreads thereon, the candlesticks with their lampes of pure golde, to lamente for the Church a cording to the manner and the flowers and the lampes and the fixtures were of golde, all these were of purpurall.

And the Enynes, basens, spoons and potes, were of pure golde. And the entrance and his doores twythen vnto the Most holy, and the doores of the house of the temple were of golde. These was all 3 wrought finished, which Salomon made in the house of the LORD.

The V. Chapter.

And Salomon brougher in all 3 his father Dauid had sanctified, namely, silver and golde, and all manner of ornaments, and layd them in the treasures of the house of God. The gathered Salomon all the Elders in Israel together, all 3 heads of the tribes, princes of the fathers, and hee the child of Israel vnto Jerusalem, to bringe up the Ark of the couenant of the LORD out of the cite of Dauid, that is Hebron, and there asured vnto the Kinge all the men in Israel as the feast, that in in the church noweth, and all 3 Elders in Israel came.

And 3 Levites toke the Ark, & brough it up with the Tabernacle of witness, and all the holy vessels that were in the Tabernacle, and 3 prestes and Levites brough them up. And for hynges Salomon and all the congregation of Israel that was gathered round him before the Ark, they effice the pe and aren, so many, that no man could number nor retent them.

Thus the prestes brougher the Ark of 3 couenant of the LORD vnto his place in the quere of the house, even in to 3 Most holy vnder the wynges of the Cherubins, so that the Cherubins spred out this wynges ouer the place of the Ark: and the Cherubins covered the Ark and the stoues thereof from aboue. And the stoues were so long, 3 the knoppes of them were fine from the Ark before the quere, but on the enyde were they not fine. And it was there vnto this daye. And there was nothinge in the Ark, save the two tables, which Moses put ther in at Horeb, when the LORD made a couenant with the child of Israel, what tyme as they were departed out of Egipte.

And when the prestes wente out of the Sanctuary (for all 3 prestes that were found, sanctified them selves, because the countes were not kept) the Levites with all those that were vnder Asaph, Heman, Jedithan and their children and brethren, beyng clothed in synaen, songe with Cymbals, psalteries and harpes, a no stode towards the east parte of the altare, a no an hundred 3 trompe prestes with them, which blew in cym pettes. And it was, as if one voyd trompet and synges, as though a voyce had bene heard of pra ysinge and geynges thanke vnto the LORD.

And when the voyce arose from 3 trompettes, cymbals and other instruments of musick, and from pra ysinge the LORD became manifest, and because his mercy intreated for euer the house of the LORD was filled on the inside with a cloude, so 3 the prestes could not stonde to mynstrel the cloude: for the glory of the LORD filled the house of God.

The VI. Chapter.

Then sayde Salomon: The LORD I sayde, that he wolde dwell in a bare cloude: I have dyided an house to be an habitation vnto thee: a steepe, 3 thou warest dwell there for euer. And the Kinge turned his face, and blessed all the congregation of Israel: in the whole congregation of Israel stode, & he sayde: Pra yse be the LORD God of Israel, which promysed by his mouth vnto my father Dauid, and with his hande hath fulfilled it, when he sayde: Because tyme thou I brougher my people out of the lande of Egipte, I have dwelt in a cloude in all 3 tribes of Israel, to dwell on them maye walk in thy wayes, as longe as they be in the lande, which thou hast giuen vn to thy fathers.

And when any stranger which is not of thy people of Israel, cometh out of a far countre because of thy greates name, and stretcheth hande and out stretched arme, and cometh to make his prayer in this house, heare thou him then from heauē, euen from the seat of thy habitation: and do all for y which the stranger collecteth vpon thee, that all the nations vpon earth maye knowe thy name, and feare thee, as thy people of Israel do: and that they maye knowe, how y this house which I haue builded, is named after thy name.

When thy people go forth to y battayll agaynst their enemies, the waye that thou shalt sende them, and shall praye vnto the LORDE, and thou shalt heare the voice of this citt which thou hast chosen, and towards the house that I haue builded vnto thy name, heare thou the their prayer and petition from heauen, and helpe them to their rightes.

When they synne agaynst thee (for there is no man that synneth not) and thou be much as them, and geue them ouer before their enemies, so that they carry them awaye captiue into a countre furre eue y, and y they turne within their herens in the lande where they are prisoner, and so conuerte, and make their intercession vnto the in the lande of their captiue, and saye: We haue synned, and done amysse, and haue bene un profitable: and so turne them selues vnto y with all their heart and with all their soule in the lande of their captiue, wherein they are pre sented: and made their prayer towards the waye of their owne lande, which thou ga dest vnto their fathers, and towards the cit ty which thou hast chosen, and towards the house that I haue builded vnto thy name: then heare thou their prayer and supplication from heauen, euen from the seat of thy habitation, and helpe them to their rightes, and be mercifull vnto thy people that haue synned agaynst thee. O thy God, let thine eyes be open, and let thine eares geue heede vn to prayer in this place. Arise now O LORD

DE God vnto thy resting place, thou and the tribe of thy strength. Let thy power O LORDE God be clothed with healeth, and let thy strength rise euer this good. O LORD DE God, turne not awaye the face of thine anointed: vpon the mercies of thy ser uant Dauid.

The vii. Chapter.

And when Salomon had ended his pray er, there fell a fire from heauen, and con sumed the burnt offeringe and the o ther offeringe. And the glory of the LORD filled the house, so that y prestes coulde not go in to the house of the LORD, while y glo ry of the LORD filled y LORDS house. And all the children of Israel sawe the fire fall downe, and the glory of the LORD ouer the house: and they fell on their knees at their sacred: so the grounde apon the pavement, and worshipped, and gaue thanks vnto the LORD, because he is gracious, and be cause his mercy endureth for euer. And so the kinge and all the people, they offered be fore the LORD.

So yng Salomon offered two and twai tye thousand bullockes, and an hundred thousand lambe, and twenty thousand shepe, & so both the kinge and all the people dedica ted the house of God.

But the prestes stood in their marches, & the Levites with the musicall instrumentes of the LORD, which kinge Dauid had cau sed to make for to geue thanks vnto the LORD, (because his mercy endureth for euer) w psalmes of Dauid: and so they kept their harte And the prestes blew trumpettes ouer agaynst them, and all Israel stood.

And Salomon balanced the myddelmost course, which was before the house of the LORD, for there prepared he the burnt offe ringe: and the sac of the slaynes offeringe for the beastes: and thus Salomon made, might he not coateyne all the burnt offeringes, meat offeringes, and the sac.

And at the same tyme helde Salomon a a fast seven daies longe, and all Israel with him a very greates congregation, from Se meth vnto the ryuar of Euphrate, and on the righte daye helde he a conuocation. For the dedication of the house helde the iij seven da es, and the fast seven daies also.

But on the thirte and twentieth daye of the seventh month he let the people go vnto their houses ioyfull and with mery heart because of all the good, that the LORD had done vnto Dauid, vnto Salomon, and to his people of Israel.

Thus finished Salomon the house of y LORD, and the kinges house, and all y came in his here to make in the house of the LORD, and in his aune house, prosperously. And the LORD appeared vnto Salomon in the nighte season, and sayde vnto him: I haue heard thy prayer, and chosen this place vnto to dwell in for an house of sacrifice.

Beholde, what I shew the heau? so I is rai ne not, as commaunde the grasshopper to co-sume the plowe, or cause a pestilence to come amonge my people, so humble my people, which is named after my name: and if they prie, or shewe my face, and earne from their enemies, the my I heare them from heauen, and will forege their sinne, and heale their lonbe. So shal myne eyes now be open, and myne eares shal be attente vnto praye in this place. Thus haue I now discouered this house, and sanctified it, that my name maye be there for euer: and myn eyes and my hee shal alwaye be there.

D And if thou walke before me, as thy father Dauid walked, so shalt thou do all that I commaunde thee, and kepe myne ordinaces and lawes, then will I stablish the sea-te of thy kingdome, as I preyed for thee Dauid, and sayde: Thou shalt not wante a man to be lord once I shal.
But if ye turne backe, and forsake myne ordinauces and commaundementes which I haue layed before you, and so ge your weye, and sseue other goddes, and worshipper them, the will I receiue you out of my lon-be: that I haue geuen you: and this house which I haue sanctified vnto my name, will I cast awaye out of my presence, and geue it ouer to be a byword and scall amonge all na-cions. And every one that goeth by, shall be offensyng at this bye house, and shall bysse at it, and saye: Wherefore hath the LORDE deale thus with this house and with this house? Then shall it be sayde: Alen because they haue forsaken the LORDE God of their fathers (which brought them out of the lon-be of Egypte) & haue cleued vnto other god-des, & worshipped them, and serued the: therfore hath he brought all this euill vpon the.

The viij. Chapter.

When Dauid was twenty years (when Salomon buylded the house of the LOR-DE and his anme house) he buylded the cyties also which Israel gaue vnto Salomon, and caused the children of Israel to dwelle therein. And Salomon went vnto the nath Zoba, and made it stronge, and buylded Thabmos in the wyldernes, and all the concreteyres which he buylded in Zemarath.
He buylded the upper and lower Zebodon likewise, so that they were stronge cyties w walles, portes and towers. And Baelath, and all the concreteyres which Salomon had,
and all the cyties of the charrees and of the house men, and all that Salomon had lost to buyde, both at Jerusalem and vpon the banus, and in all the lonbe of his dominion.

All the remnant of the people of the ethio, Ammon, pheresites, & canites an Iebusites, which were not of the chylde Israel, and their children which they be-leste behynde them in the lonbe, (which the children of Israel had not secretly before; that by Salomon made tributaries vnto this daye. As for the children of Israel, Salomon made no bondmen of them vnto the, but they were men of warre, and defence paymes, and ouer his charrees & he-men. And the chiefe of frage Solomon of siccra were two hundred and fiftye, who ruled the people.

And Salomon caused Phoraoe descender to be fished up out of the cite of Dam-into the house that he had buylded for he sayde: My wyfe shall not dwell in house of Dauid the kinge of Israel, for he sanctified, as much as of the house of De to come in to it.

Then offered Salomon burnt offering vnto the LORDE vpon the LORDES altare, which he had buylded beforech: and every one vpon his daye to offere of the maundement of Moyses, on the Sabbath.
Alen mones & the appointed season of the yere, twentye tymes, namely in the of vnto the dier, in the first of moin the feast of Tabernacles.

And he set the prestes vnto the nistracion. a bydyng as Dauid his father had appointed, and the Levites in them of fre, & geue the prestes and conuysion in the presence of the prestes, every one on his daye. And the wardes were in their courses, & every one at his doore, for so had Dauid the of God commaunded.

And they departed not from the commandement ouer the prestes and Le-uites: neither moter nor in the treasure.
Thus was all Salomons busynesse ma-ready, from the daye that the foundation of the LORDES house was layed, vnto the finishing, so that the house of the LORDE was all prepared.

Then went Salomon vnto Em-bat, and vnto Elath by the Sea syde in lonbe of Edom. And he sent his banpes by his seruantes which had knowe of the Sea, and they went with Salomons seruantes vnto Ophir, and fetched from thence four hundred and fiftye talent of golde, and brought it vnto Kinge Salomon.

The ix. Chapter.

And when the queene of rich Arabia herde the fame of Salomon, she came with a very greates cryme to Jerusalem with Camels that bare spices and golde, and precious stones: to plesse Salomon with bests sentences. And when she came unto Salomon, she spake vnto him all that she had desired in his mynde. And the kynge tolde her all his craftes, & Salomon had nothing in secret, but he tolde it her.

And when the Queene of rich Arabia sawe the wysdome of Salomon, and how he that he had sayed, the meates of his table, the dwellinges of his seruantes, the office of his mynisters and their garmentes, & the busshes and their apparell, and how perfect wher he was up in to the house of the LORD, she coulde no longer refrayne. And she sayde vnto the kynge: It is true that I have heret in my londe of thy behauiours end of thy wysdome: howbeit I wolde not helde their wordes, vntill I came my selfe, to see it with myne eyes: and behold, the halfe of thy greates wysdome hath not bene tolde me: there is more in thee then the same that I have herde. happy are thy seruantes, and happy are they thy seruantes, for all wayes stonde before thee, and heare thy wysdome. May I see the LORD thy God, which hath shewed pleasure vnto thee, that he hath set thee vpon his iawes to be kynge vnto the LORD thy God. Because thy God loneth Israel, so let them as thou art, that thou shalt be obeyed: so be thyng out them, that thou shouldest not wayne iustice and equitye.

And she gaue the kynge an hundred and twenty calmes of golde, & very much spices and precious stones. There were no mo such prices as these: that the Queene of rich Arabia gaue vnto kynge Salomon. And yet was his seruantes and the seruantes of Salomon, which brought golde from Ophir, brought also precious stones.

And of the same costly mynber dyd Salomon cause to make stables in the house of the LORD, and the kynge house, and barnes and palaces for the Missetans. There was no such mynber sene before in the londe of Iuda. And kynge Salomon gaue the Queene of rich Arabia all that she desired and asked, & much more then she had brought vnto the kynge. And she receyved, and departed in to her londe with her seruantes.

The golde that was brought vnto Salomon was one yere, was a sixe hundred & threescore calentes, besyde that the chere men and marchantes brought. And all the kynge of the Arabians, and the leues in y londe brought golde and siluer vnto Salomon. Of the which kynge Salomon made two hundred speares of beaten golde, & a sixe hundred peces of beaten golde came vnto one speare: & this hundred sheldes of beaten golde, so that this hundred peces of beaten golde came to one shylde: and the kynge put the in the house of the wor of Libanus.

And the kynge made a greates pace of Xeray, and encircled it with pure golde, and the face had sixe steppes, and a forestle of golde fastened vnto the face, and it had two leanyng postes vpon both the sides of the face, and two lyons stode before the leanyng postes, and the face encircled Lyons vpon the sixe steppes on both the sides. In all realmes hath not such one bene made.

And all the kynge Salomons wynt kynge vessels were of golde, and all the vessels of the house of the wor of Libanus, were of pure golde: for yllur was reuened no chynge in Salomons cryme. For the kynge shippes went vpon the See with the seruantes of Siria, & came once in thre yeres, and brought golde, siluer, Xeray, & yves and precious.

Thus was kynge Salomon greater then all the kynge vpon earth, in riches and wysdome. And all the kynge of the earth desired (so) Salomons face, and to be in his wysdome, which God had gyven him in his heart. And they brought him yearly euery mo his present: Jewels of siluer and golde, & ynt, harness, spices, horses and Mules.

And Salomon had foure thousand chariottes, and euery thousande hounmen, and put them in the chasereries, and with the kynge at Jerusalem. And he was loude over all the kynge from the meates vnto the londe of the Philistynes, and to the coaste of Egypt. And the kynge brought it so to passe, that there was no moch siluer at Jerusalem as stones: and as many Cedres, as there were Mether trees in the valley. And the re were horses brought vnto him out of Egypt, and one of all countres.

Wher more thare is to saye of Salomons body of his first and of his last, behold, is to mynde in the Cronicles of the prophet Ieremias, and in the prophecies of Abas of Galo, & in the actes of Ieremias the Seer against Ieroboa the sonne of Nebas. And Salomons reigned at Jerusalem over all Israel forty yeres. And Salomon fell on slepe at his fathers end, and was buried in the cyte of Dauid his father. And Aduia his sonne was eight his heire, Jaba, and maintained Roboam the sonne of Salomon the year longer: for they walked in the way of David & Salomon this year.

And Roboam took Maalach the daughter of Jeramech the sonne of David to wife, which she bore him the sonne: Jaba, Semai & Sobab. After he took he Maalach the daughter of Absalon, which bare him this, Abia & Siso & Slemich. But Roboam loved Maalach the daughter of Absalon better than all his wives & concubines: for he had eight wives and thre score concubines, and begat eight & twenty sonnes, which four daughters. And Roboam set Abia the sonne of Maalach to be prince and prince among his brethren: for he thought to make him the kyng: for he was wylf, & me neygher then a yll his sonnes in all the countie of Juda & Ben Jemin, and in all the strong cities. And he gave them plenty of gold, and he loved many wives.

The xlii. Chapter.

¶ He rebul the kyngdome of Roboam was confirmed and established, he set the lawes of the LORDE & all Israel with him. And in the fifth year of Roboam wrote Sisch the kyng of Egypte up against Jerusalem: for they had transgressed against the LORDE with a chousande and two hundred charrettes, and with thre thousand horsemen, and the people was innumerable that came with him out of Egypte, Libya, Suthim & out of Ethiopia. And he wrote the sixte casso that were in Juda, and came to Jerusalem.

Then came Semai the prophet unto Roboam and to the rulers of Juda (which were gathered together at Jerusalem for Sisch) & saye unto them: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Ye have sinned, & have forsaken the lawes of the LORDE your God, which he hath commanded you, that ye should not serve strange gods. Therefore will I send you into the hands of the Egyptians, which shall be stronger than I. And the LORDE is with you, if ye will leave him.

But when the LORDE sawe that they had rebelled against him, the word of the LORDE came to Semai, & saye: They have humbled them selves before me, & have desired me, but I will give them a little deliverance, that my wrath may not fall upon Jerusalem by Sisch: for they shall be subdued unto him, & they maye knowe what it is to serve me, & to be the kyngdome of the world.

Thus wrote Sisch the kyng of Egypte unto Jerusalem, & wrote the treasures in the house of the LORDE, & the treasures in the house of the king, and carried all away, and left the shyldes of golde, that Salomon caused to make in stead of the kyng Roboam the shyldes of slea, and contraryed the way to the chiefe fortmen, which kept the doore of the kynges house. And as often as the kynges wente to the house of the LORDE, the men came & bare them, & brought them againe in the way of the chiefe fortmen. And for so much as he subverted himselfe, & much of the LORDE turned from him, so that all was not destroyed: for there was yet some good in Juda.

Thus was Roboam the kyng established in Jerusalem, and reigned. One and forty years elde was Roboam when he was made kyng, and reigned sixteen years at Jerusalem in the cite, which the LORDE had chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, to set his name there. His mothers name was Maalach an Ammonitess: & he was cruel, and prepared not his heart to see the LORDE.

These actes of Roboam, both first and last, are written in the actes of Semai the prophet of Jude the sonne, and are neede, & so are the wordes that Roboam and Jeroboam had together as longe as they lived. And Roboam fell & slept with his fathers, and was buried in the cite of David, & Abia his sonne was kyng in his stead.

The xlii. Chapter.

¶ In the eighth year of the kyng Jeroboam, was Abia the kyng in Juda, & reigned thre years at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Michai the daughter of David of Gibeon. And there was warre betwene Abia and Jeroboam. And Abia prepared himselfe to the battayll with foure hundred thousand stronge chosen men of warre. But Jeroboam made himselfe ready to fighte against him with eight hundred chosen men of stronge.

And Abia gave him up upon the hill Gerizaim, which lyeth upon moone Ephraim, and saye: Gertem unto me then Jeroboam and all Israel: A nome ye not that the LORDE God of Israel hath given David of the kyngdome of Israel for ever, unto him and his sonnes with a sole covenant: But Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, the servant of Salomon Davides sonne, gat him up & fell away from his lord. And there is shewed unto him wagabondes and children of Belial, and have strengthened them selves against Roboam the sonne of Salomon: for Roboam was a man yonge and of a fearefull heart, and could not resist them.

Ande also many shepe and Camels, and as many as you to Jerusalem.

The xv. Chapter.

At the paxt of God came up Asa the sonne of Obad, which wente from Asa, and sayde unto him: Deny Asa and all Juda: Deny Jamin: The LORD is with you, whyle ye are with him: and if ye forsake him, he wyll forsake you. And if ye forsake him, he shal forsake you also. Therefore there shal be many dayes in Israel, that there shal be no true God, no possibill to teach, no lawe. And when they were in their trouble unto the LORD God of Israel, and sette him, he shal be founde. And that tyme shall it be well with him that goeth out, and it is for there shal be greave upon all them that dwell on the earth. For one people shall all be swaye another, and swaye another: for God shal wepe them with all manner of trouble. But be ye stronge, and leave youre handes be fobles: for youre worshiper shall be requited.

When Asa herde these wordes, and the prophete of Asaras the sonne of Obad the sepher, he toke a courage unto him, and put away the abominacions out of all the lande of Juda and Ben Jamin, and out of the same that he had worne upon moone Ephraim: and renued the LORDS altare, which stode before the porte of the LORDS. And all Juda and Ben Jamin gathered them selves together, and the straungers with them one of Ephraim, Manassas and Simeon: for there fell many unto him out of Israel, when they sawe that the LORD was with him. And they returned unto Jerusalem in the thirtieth moeth of the sixtyth yere of the reigne of Asa, and the same day offered they unto the LORD of the hostes: that they had brought, seven hundred oxen, and seven thousand shepe.

And they entered in to the court house, that they wolde sette the LORD God of their fathers, with all their best, with all their silver: And when so ever wolde not set the LORD God of Israel, shulde bye, both small and grete, both man and woman: and they sawe that the LORD was with them, with shewing, with trompettes, and with shawmes. And all Juda were glad over this: for they had sinned with all this here, and they sought him with a whole mynde: and he was for one of them, and the LORD gave them rest on every side.

And Asa the kynge putte homme his wyf from the synners, that she had sinned in the greue unto Mizpach. And Asa rood out for Mizpach, and brake it in sunder, and brake it by the hille Ephraim. And the hye places were not putte downe one of Israel. Yet was the best of Asa perfect as longe as he lived. And lets whar his father had halowed, and that he him self had halowed, he brought it in to the house of God, silver, golde, and onyonce. And there was no warre unto the thirtieth yere of the reigne of Asa.

The xvi. Chapter.

At the six and thirtieth yere of the reigne of Asa, twente Dauid the kynge of Israel up against Juda, and buylded Rama, to be Asa the kynge of Juda. He shulde not goe out in: But Asa toke forth the treasure of the house of the LORD, and the silver and golde in the bygges house, and sent it unto Benadab the kynge of Syria, which dwelt at Damascus, and caused to saye unto him: There is a covenant betwene me and the, betwene my father and thy father, therefore have I sent thee silver and golde: at thou mayest beate a covenant with Dauid the kynge of Israel, that he maye departe fro me.

Benadab herdened unto sayngs Asa, and sent his host against the citie of Israel, which were Eion, Dan and Abel Haim, and all the come cities of Naphtali. When Dauid herde that, he left of from buyldinge Rama, and camed from his worke. But kynge Asa toke all Juda unto him, and carried awaye the stones and tymber in hermyth Dauid buylded: and he buylded Geba with wall.

At the same tyme came Hanani the seer unto Asa the kynge of Juda, and sayde unto him: Because thou hast trusted unto the kynge of Syria, and not put thy trust in the LORD thy God, therefore is the power of the kynge of Syria increased thy hyde. And as not, the Assyrians and Egiptians a greates multitude with exceeding many charrettes and bestes: Yet gawe the LORD them in thyr handes, when thou bydest for thy staffe in him: for the eyes of the LORD were rounde aboute all landes, to strengthe them that were in him with all their best. Thou hast done unrightly, therefore shal thou have warre from this tyme. But Asa was wroth at the seer, and put him in prison: for he trusted with him over this thing. And Asa oppressed carrye of the people as he same tyme.

¶ And Iosaphat his sonne was Pyng in his frende, 2 woerd mighte a gant Iudal. And he put men of warre in all the stronge cities of Iuda, and he offi- cers in the cietyes of Iuda, and in the cities of Ephraim, which Iosaphat he wone. ¶ To Joseph had great riches in wool, sheepe, and made friends with Achab. And so after two yeares he becom to Achab into Samaria. Achab caused many sheepe and oxen to be fed him and for 3 people charcut him. And he comended him to gope to Ramoth in Gilead. And Achab the kyng of Israel sayde unto Joseph the tymer of Iudas: Go with me into Ramoth in leah, he is to or to hym: I am as thou, my people as thy people, we will get in the time the hater will.

and sayde: Thou sayest the LORDE: With these words thou possist at the Synagoge, till thou bringe them to a songes. And all the prophetes prophesied like wyse, & sayde: Go up vnto Ramoth in Gilead, and thou shalt prosper, and the LORDE shall deliuer vs in to the thynges hande.

And the messenger that wente to call Mithas, spake vnto him, and sayde: Beholde, the wordes of the prophetes are with one accord good for thee the kynge: let thy wordes praye thebe as one of them, and speake thou good alse. But Mithas sayde: As a cruell as the LORDE, I loke what my God sayth vnto me, & wyll I speake. And whan he came to the kynge, the kynge sayde vnto him: Mithas, shouldest thou go vnto Ramoth in Gilead to the battayll, or shouldest thou let alone the sude: Wo vpon, and yet thou prosperest. I shall be good to you in your handes. But the kynge sayde vnto him: I charge the yet agayne, that thou tell me nothyng but the trueth in the name of the LORDE.

Then saide he: I sawe all Israel scattered aboute vnto the mountaynes, as the shepe which haue sheperdes. And the LORDE sayde: I am the lord: Let every one come home agayne in peace. The kynge the kynge of Israel vnto Josaphat: Dyd not I tell the, that he wolde prophesie me so good, but euell?

And he sayde: The four heare ye the wordes of the LORDE: I sawe the LORDE sitte vpon his seate, and all the host of heauen standinge at his right hande & at his lefte. And the LORDE sayde: Wo wyll I disceane. And the kynge of Israel, that he mays go vnto Ramoth in Gilead: And whan one sayde thus, another so, there came forth a spere, and stode before the LORDE, and sayde: I wyll disceane him. The LORDE sayde vnto him: Where is thy spere? he sayde: I wyll go forth and be a false spere in the mouth of all the prophetes. And he sayde: Thou shalt disceane him, and shalt be able: go thy waye.

And he so. Beholde now, the LORDE hath geuen a false spere in the mouth of all these thy prophetes, and the LORDE hath spokt euill agaynst the.

Then stode forth Ebedias the sonne of Chana, and smote Mithas vpon the cheate, and sayde: Whiche waye is the spere of the LORDE departed from me, to speake thus vnto the Mithas sayde: Beholde, thou shalt saie, whan thou comest in to thy synnest chancel: byde the, but the kynge of Israel sayde: Take Mithas, and let him remayne in the name of the ruler of the cite, and with Iona the sonne of Mithas, and saye: Thus sayeth the kynge: Put this man in prison, and lobe him with bread and water of cruell, till I come agayne in peace. Mithas saide: If thou comest agayne in peace, then hath not the LORDE spoken thus vnto me. And he sayde: Herkened all ye people.

So the kynge of Israel and Josaphat the kynge of Iuda came vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto Josaphat: The kynge thy suster, and come to the battayll in thine arraye. And the kynge of Israel charged his rayment, & came in to the battayll. But the kynge of Syria had commaunded the rulers of his charrettes: He shall fynde me agaynst him all my greace, but onely agaynst the kynge of Israel.

Now whan the rulers of the charrettes sawe Josaphat, they thought: It is the kynge of Israel, and they wolde aboue to fyghte agaynst him. But Josaphat cryed, and the LORDE helped him. And God turned them from him: for whan the rulers of the charrettes sawe that it was not the kynge of Israel, they turned backe from him. But a certayne man benched his bowe backe, & shot the kynge of Israel betwene the mayne and the legges. The kynge he vnto his charret man. Turne thine hande, and carry me out of the booke, for I am woundid. And the battayll was foue the same daye. And the kynge of Israel stode vpon his charret agaynst the Syria as vntill the eveninge, and dyed whan the Sonne wente downe.

The XIX. Chapter.

But Josaphat the kynge of Iuda came home agayne in peace vnto Jerusalem. And Iohn the sonne of Zonabie the ster were sent to meete him, & sayde vnto the kynge Josaphat: Shaldest thou so helpe the vn godly, and loue them that hate the LORDE? And for this cause is the wrath vnto the from the LORDE: wherefore there is some good souer in the, that thou hast put the graces out of the londe, and hast prepared thine heart to let the God. So Josaphat abode at Jerusalem.

And he wente agayne amonge the people, from Bersaba into moite Ephraim, and brought them agayne to the LORDE God of chea fathers. And he set Judges there vnto the londe, in all the stronge cities of Iuda, and a certayne in every cite. And sayde vnto the Judges: Take heede what ye do: for ye execute not the iudgement of men, but of the LORDE, and he is with you in iudgement: therefore let the feare of the LORDE be with you, and beate, and dole: for with the LORD our God there is no righteousness, nor respect of personnes, nor acceptings of gifts.

C And at Jerusalem byd Josaphat ordeyne certayn of the Levites and presten, and of the amonicie fathers of Israel for iudgment of the LORD, and ouer the matters of the lawe, and caused them to dwell at Jerusalem, and commaunded them, and sayde: Se that ye do thus in the feare of the LORD, in faithfulness and in a perfect heart. In all cause that come vnto you from yowre brethren (which dwell in their cities) betwene bloude and bloude, betwene lawe and commaundement, betwene statutes and ordinances ye shal iudgeme them, & they synne not against the LORD, and so hee wylth to come vpon you and youre bretherin. Do thus, and ye shal not offend.

Beholde, Amaria the prest is here ouer you in all cause of the LORD: so is Sababias the sonne of Imad prync in the house of Juda in all the bygges matters: he haue officiate wysse the Levites before you. Take a good courage vnto you, and be daynges, and the LORD shal be with the good.

The XX. Chapter.

After this came the child of Moab, the children of Ammon, and certayn of Ammanini vnto them, to fighte against Josaphat. And they come and tolde Josaphat, and sayde: There cometh a greates multitude agaynst the from beyonde the See of Syria, & beholde, they are at Hazazon Tamar, that is in Engaddi.

And Josaphat was afraied, & se this saie to the LORD, & caused a fast to be proclaimed in all Juda. And Juda came together to see the LORD. And ones all the cities of Juda came they to see the LORD. And Josaphat stode amonge the congregation of Juda & Jerusalem in the house of the LORD before the altar, and sayde:

O LORD God of our fathers, are not thou God in heauen, and hast dominion in all the kyngdomes of the earth? And in thy hand is strength and power, and there is no man that can withstande thee. Hast not thou O God expelled the inhabiteers of this lande before thy people of Israel? and hast thou sent vnto the fide of Abraham thy loner for euery thing that they haue done in it, & haue buylded the Sanctuary vnto thy name there in, and in thyself there come any plague, sword, indignite, pestilence, or vnto vpon vs, we wyl stonde before this house euen before thee

(for thy name is in this house) and we pray vnto thee in our trouble, and thou shal heare, and shal save vs. Beholde now, the children of Ammon, of Moab, & they of the mount Seir, vpon whom thou mostest not lift the children of Israel to go, when they wote out of the lande of thy grace, but they were fayne to departe from thee, and now they encrope them: and beholde, they deale contrary with vs, and come to this house of the inheritance, that thou hast giuen vs in possession. O our God, wyle thou smite agaynst them? For in vs is no strength, in multitude this greates multitude that is amonge us. We knowe not what we shal do, but our eyes see vnto thee. And all Juda stode before the LORD, with their children, wyues and sonnes.

But vpon Jehasiel the sonne of Bachan, the sonne of Benaias, the sonne of Jehoi, the sonne of Machania the Leuite of the children of Issachar, came the spere of the LORD in the myddes of the congregation, and sayde: He heere all thou Juda, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem, and thou king Josaphat: Thus sayeth the LORD vnto you. Be not ye afraied, neither feare ye this great multitude: for it is in us, & not in the multitude. Behold, I will be with you, & ye shall see the rebbe by the hand of the LORD. Behold, they go vpon by Seir, and ye shal fynde them at the rebbe by the hand of the LORD. Behold, they go vpon by Seir, and ye shal fynde them at the rebbe by the hand of the LORD. Behold, they go vpon by Seir, and ye shal fynde them at the rebbe by the hand of the LORD. Behold, they go vpon by Seir, and ye shal fynde them at the rebbe by the hand of the LORD.

The Josaphat heared him lift & he stode to the earth, & all Juda, & the inhabiteers of Jerusalem fell before the LORD. And he shipped the LORD. And the Leuite of the children of the Zababites of the children of the Zababites arose to praye the LORD God of Israel & londe wyce on by. And they gathered vnto early in the morning, and were with by the wilderness of the Jordan.

And when they were going out, Josaphat stode, & sayde: Behold, I will be with you, & ye shall see the rebbe by the hand of the LORD. Behold, they go vpon by Seir, and ye shal fynde them at the rebbe by the hand of the LORD. Behold, they go vpon by Seir, and ye shal fynde them at the rebbe by the hand of the LORD. Behold, they go vpon by Seir, and ye shal fynde them at the rebbe by the hand of the LORD.

for humerity and meeth for euer. And when they began to geue shantes and piys, the LORD caused the hyndes watch that was came agaynst Iuda, to come vpon the diuise of Ammon, to loab z them of moue at Seir, and they smote them. Then stole the diuise of Ammon z to loab agaynst them of moue Seir, so to smite them, and to despoyle them. And when they had despoyled them of moue Seir, one helped another to despoyle many places also. And when Iuda came to Mispa vnto the wilderness, they came them to rebuke the multitude, and to holde the dew to be laye n p the earth, so that there was a sicke.

And Josaphat came with his people to haue the spoyle of them. And they founde amonge them so much goodes and rayment and precious Jewels (which they toke for an spoil) that they could not beare them. And when they were they were bringinge the spoyle, then was a smatch. On the fourth daye came they together to the valley of blessing: for there blessed they the LORD. For there the place called the valley of blessing was in this daye.

So every man of Iuda z Jerusalem returned agayne. Josaphat beset them, to go to Jerusalem with joye: for the LORD had granted them gladness on their enemies. And they returned in to Jerusalem with psalteries, harpes z tympanes vnto the house of the LORD. And there came a feare of God o ver all the kingdome in the loaden, when they heard that the LORD had foughte agaynst the enemies of Israel. Thus was the kingdome of Josaphat in quietnes, z God put him rest on every syde.

And Josaphat reigned ouer Iuda, z was foure thirtie yeare olde when he was made kynge, z reigned fye z twenety yeare at Jerusalem. His moother name was Atha the daughter of Achis. And he walked in the waye of his father Asa, z departed not asyde from doynge that which was righte in the sighte of the LORD: sayinge that he hys places were not put downe, for the people had not yet prepared their hart to the God of their fathers. What more there is to saye of Josaphat, both the first z the last, beholde, is written in the actes of Iohn z sonne of Sotani, which be nooeth up in the booke of the kynge of Israel.

Afterward byd Josaphat the kynge of Iuda agree to Atha the kynge of Israel, which was widoonly in his doynge. And he sent with him to make shippes, for to go vpon the see. And they made the shippes at Ezion Gaber. But it leste the sonne of Dodan of Maresha people, and agaynst Josaphat, and sayde: Because the best agreed with Atha, therefore hath the LORD beo feachy wroten. And so the shippes were broken, z mighte not go vpon the see.

The xxi. Chapter.

And Josaphat fell on slepe z his father, z was buried in his fathers in the cite of David, z Joram his sonne was kynge in his steade. And he had birthed the sonnes of Josaphat: Azaria, Jachiel, Zacharias, Azaria, Michael z Sephania. All these were the children of Josaphat kynge of Iuda. And their father gaue them many giftes of syluer, golde z Jewels, so stronge cytes in Iuda. But the kynge Joram he unto Joram: for he was the first borne.

But when Joram came up ouer his fathers kynge, he had gotten the power of it, he slew all his birthed with the sword, z euen his rulers also in Israel. Two z thirtie yeare olde was Joram when he was made kynge, z reigned eight yeare at Jerusalem, z walked in the waye of the kynge of Israel, euen as the house of Achab byd for Achab's daughter was his wyfe: he dyed then which was a smell in the sighte of the LORD.

Eleazer the son of the LORD wolde not bestride the house of David, for the concumens sake, which he made to David, and a carnage as he had sayd, that he wolde graue him and his children in a lamerne for evermore.

At the same tyme fell the Edomites awaye from Iuda, and made a kynge ouer them selue: for Joram had gooe ouer with his captaynes and all the charrettes with him, z had gotten him up in the nyght season, and slayeth the Edomites on every syde, and the rulers of the charrettes that fell. The Edomites awaye from Iuda vnto this daye. At the same tyme fell the Moabites awaye from him also: because he sought the LORD God of his fathers. He made hys places also on the meentaynes in Iuda, z caught them of Jerusalem co no amborgynge, and discomfited Iuda.

But there was a wayfaringe vnto him the prophet Elia, a wayfaringe: thus sayeth the LORD God of thy father David: Because thou hast not walked in the wayes of thy father Josaphat, neither in the wayes of Asa the kynge of Iuda, but walkest in the waye of the kynge of Israel, and makest Iuda and them of Jerusalem to go amborgynge after the whoredome of the house of Achab, and hast saynt thy brethren also of thy fais gowth in to f house, let him dye. And they shall be in the f yngre wha he gowth out in.

And the Levites & all Juda dyd as Joiaba & pusi had commaunded, and every one of the men that entred on the Sabbath, wh ba & pusi suffered not choferme comfarten to parte asunder. And Joia ba & pusi gaue the captaynes ouer hundredes of ares & syluer, and f yngre Dauidas weapens, which we n in the house of God, and fte all the people earey on th his weapen in his hande, from the righte corner of the house, unto the left corner of the altare, and to the house warde aboue the f yngre. And they broughte forth the f yngre sonne, & fte the crowne upon his heade, and gaue them the f yngre, & made him f yngre. And Joia ba & his fannes amounted him, & sayde God saue the f yngre.

And whan Achalia herde the naye of f people & ranne together and playfde & f y-ngre, he wente forth to the people in to f heuse of the LORD, and let to: and beholde, f yngre stode in his place at f intrance, and the rulers and trompetes aboute f yngre; and all the people of the house were glad, & blenre the trompes, and there were synners f coude playe w all maner of muscalle instrumentes. And she rde hir clothes, & sayde: Gloria, gloria, f yngre. And Joia ba & pusi gaue him forth rounde the captaynes ouer hundredes and rulers of the house, and so yde two them. Whynge the f yngre betwene f wail-les, & who so ever foloweth her, shall be slay-re with f sword: for the prest had commaunded, that she shoulde not be slayne in f house of the LORD. And they layed handes on her. And whan she came at the intrance of the house of the f yngre house, they pur-posed death there.

And Joia ba made a covenante betwene hem and all the people, and the f yngre, & they shoulde be the people of the LORD. The and all the people in to the house of Dauid discovered, & brate downe his altars & made f yngre Machan the prest of Dauid before the altare. And Joia ba appoynted f a house in the house of the LORD and geue the f yngre & Leuites, whom Dauid had ordeyned in f house of the LORD, to offere burnt sacrifices unto f LORD, as it is written in the lawe of Moyses: whoye & songes made by Dauid. And f pousen fte he at f gaten of f house of f LORD, & none shoulde entre, wha were befidde any maner of thinge.

And he ordeyde the captaynes ouer hundredes and the righte men and lordes of f people, and all the people of the house, and broughte the f yngre downe from the house of the LORD, and broughte him thowre the hye poyes of the f yngre house, and caused the f yngre vpon the f yngre house. And all the people of the house were glad, and the cite was as rest.

But Achalia was slayne with the f yngre.

The XXXII. Chapter.

And was fteer yeece elde whan he was made f yngre, and resigned fteer years at Jerusalem. And his motheres name was Zibea of Buseba. And Joia dyd that which was righte in the sighte of the LORD, as longe as Joia ba the prest luyd. And Joia ba gaue him two wifes, & he begat sonnes & daughteres. Afterwardes deuyfde Joia ba renewe the house of the LORD, & gathered together the prestes and Leuites, & sayde unto the f yngre: Ma fouth unto all the cities of Juda, & gather the money of all ftead, to repaye f house of God yearly, and do it righte fteer but the Leuites made no haist.

Then the f yngre called Joia ba the prym-sell, and sayde unto him: Why lokest thou not vnto the Leuites, & they bringe in from Jude and Jerusalem, the colleccion whiche Moses the seruaunt of the LORD appointed to be gathered amonge ftead for the Te-bernacle of witness; for f yngre Achalia & his sonnes have mustred the house of God, and all that was haleden for the house of the LORD, have they bestowen on Dauid.

Then commaunded the f yngre to make a chest, and to set it without at the intrance of the house of the LORD: & transpore to be proclaimed in Juda and Jerusalem, that they shoulde bringe in to the LORD, the collection, whiche Moses the seruaunt of God appointed amonge ftead in wilderness. The were all f rulers glad, & so were all f people, & broughte in, and cast it in to the chest, & all it was full.

And whan the tyme was f the Leuites shoulde bringe in the Arke of fteinges communiment (whan they faw f there was moche money therein) then came the f yngre fteyde, the f yngre appoynted of the chest prest, and empoynted the chest, and caried it a game in to his place. Then dyd the f yngre & the prestes they gathered moche money together. And f f yngre & Joia ba gaue it unto f weefmaffers of f house of the LORD, and they bared mason & carpenters to repaye the house of f LORD, and men that coulde worke in yron and bulke, so repaye the house of f LORD.

And the laboure was wroughte, & the f yngre poursing in f money to repaye the house their hands, and they set the house of God in his house, and made it strong. And when they had performed this, they brought the residue of the money, before the king, and Joab, where of there were made vessels for the house of the LORD, vessels for the ministracion and burnesofferings, spones and ornaments of golde and silver. And they offered burnesofferings alwayes in the house of the LORD, as long as Joab liued.

And Joab reared olde, and had liued longe yough, and dyed, & was an hundred and thurie years olde when he dyed: and they buried him in the cite of Dauid, amonge the kynges, because he had done good vnto Israel, and comrde God & his house. And after the deathe of Joab, came the rule in Iuda, and washipped the kyng.

D Then conferred the kyng & vnto the. And they forsoke the house of the LORD, God of their fathers, and serued & groues and ymagyns. Then came & vnto the LORD, vnto Iuda and Iherusalem because of this trespass of theirs. For thus he prophete, vnto the, & they shoulde turne vnto the LORD, & they wold not heare.

And the speche of God came vpon Zachary the sonne of Ioiada the prest, which stode ouer & people, & sayde vnto the. Thus saith God: When foue & ye transgress the commandments of the LORD, which shall not be to ye prosperites for ye haue forsaken & LORD, then foue shall be forsake you. Tenethen they conspyred agaynst him, & stoned him at & kynges commandement in & court of the house of the LORD. And Ioas & his grethought not on the mercy & Ioiada his father had done for him, but stoned him same. To witth standing what he dyed, he sayde: The LORD shall lode vpon it, and requyte it.

And when the yere was come aboute, & power of the Syrians wente vp, & came to Iuda & Iherusalem, and destroyed the rule in the peopl, and fere all the spoiles of them vnto Damascus. For the power of the Syrians came but with a fewemen, yet gane of LORD a very greates power in to their hand: because they had forsaken & LORD God of their fathers. They executed iudgement al fa vpon Ioas. And when they departed fro him, they left him in greates sickness.

Then reared his seruantes conspyred agaynst him: because of the blowe of the child of Ioiada the prest: & stoned him vpon him bed, & he dyed, and they buried him in the cite of Dauid, but not amonge the sepulchres of the kynges. They that conspyred agaynst him, were these: Sebad & borne of Sebad, the Ammonitish, and Josabad the sone of Sebad, the Moabitish. As for his sones, and the somme that was gathered vnto him, and the buyldinge of the house of God beholde, they are written in the story in the boke of the kynges. And Amasias his sone was kyng in his steade.

The xxv. Chapter.

I Oas and twenty years olde was Amasias when he was made kyng, and reigned nyne and twenty yere at Iherusalem. His mothers name was Iocan of Iherusalem. And he dyd & which was right in the sight of the LORD, but was a whols her. For when his kingdom was in strength, he slew his seruantes which had slayne the kyng his father. But their dide slane he not, for so is it written in the booke of the lawe of Moyses, where the LORD commandeth, and sayeth: The fathers shal not dye for the children, neither shal the children dye for the fathers: but every one shal be in his owne synne.

And Amasias broughte Iuda together, and set them a fere: & the fathers houses, after the rule of ouer thousandes & ouer hundred amonge all Iuda and Ben Iamin, and numbered them from twenty years olde & aboue, and founde of the chym hundred thousand chosen men, which were able to go forth in the warre, and carryd speares and shilds. And one of Israel appoynted he an hundred thousand stronge men of warre in an hundred talents of silver.

But there came a man of God vnto him, and sayde: O kyng, let not the house of Israel come to the: for the LORD is not with Israel, neither with all the chylde of Israhel. For yf thou comest to fere & below in the battail, God shal make the fall before thine enemies. For God hath power to helpe, and to cause for to fall Amasias syde to the man of God: What shal be done then with & hundred thousandes? & I haue great foubyers of Israel: & the ma of God saye the LORD hath yet more the this to par the. So Amasias separated out the men of warre which were come to him out of Ephraim, & they shoulde departed vnto that place. Then reared the men very many agaynst Iuda, and they were agaynst to their place in wothfull displeace. And Amasias streched himself, and caried his people, and wente forth in to the valley, and fere ten thousande of the chylde of Seir.

And the childre of Juda toke euen thousande of the ayre, whom they broughte vpon the toppes of a mountayn, and cast the stone and shabbinges from the toppes of the mount, so that they alle burst in iudgement. And y childre of themen of iudgement whom Amasia had sent awaye agayne: that they shoulde not goe to the battell with his people) fell into the care of Juda, from Samaria vnto Beth Shon, and since the thousande of men, and the much spoyle.

And when Amasia came agayne from the slaughter of the Edomites, he broughte the goddesses of the children of Seir, and made them his goddesses, and worshipped before them, and burnt incense vnto them. Then was the LORD very wroth at Amasia, and sent vnto him a prophet, which sayde vnto him: Why sellest thou the goddesses of the people, which coulde not helpe thee the folk from y hande? And when he calked with him, the kynge sayde vnto him: Howe they made y of the kynges counsell: Cesse, why wilt thou helpe me? Then the prophet ceased, and sayde: For cause, that the LORD is my god to defende y, because thou hast done this, and hast not obeyed my counsell.

And Amasia y kynge of Juda toke costill, and went vnto Jona the sonne of Joashas y sonne of Jeda, kynge of Israel, sayyng: Come, let vs be euen together. But Jona the kynge of Israel sent vnto Amasia y kynge of Juda sayyng: The haughtyte in Libanus sent vnto y Edomite in Libanus, sayyng: We wylle boughthee vnto my name to rise. But wyldest thou in Libanus name ouer y haughtyte, and wyldest thou ouer y haughtyte? He holde, I have synned the Edomites, churfo me thine heart shoulde be boaste, Now wyte as this: why thyselfe thou y first in yffort, and that thou mayest fall to Juda's che?

Wherby the Amasia considered not: for he wote it was by the poffe of God, y they mighte be gree in the hande of the Edomites, because they soughte the goddesses of y Edomites. Then wente Jona the kynge of Israel up, the kynge of Jona, at Beth Seir, and Amasia the kynge of Juda, at Beth Seir, which lye in Jude. But Juda was hurt before Israel, and they slew every one vnto his cene.

And Jona the kynge of Israel toke Amasia y kynge of Juda, the sonne of Jona y sonne of Joashas, at Beth Seir, and brought him to Jerusalem, and built downe the wall of Jerusalem, from y poynt of Ephraim vnto the corner poynt, and foure hundred cubites longe, and toke with him all the golde, and silver, and all the ornaments that were founde in y house of God, with the vessels of gold, and in the treasures in the kynges house, and the childre to pladge vnto Samaria. And Amasia the sonne of Jona kynge of Juda, died after the deathe of Jona the sonne of Joashas kynge of Israel sithen yee.

Wher more there is to saye of Amasia (both the first and last he shoulde, it is written in y booke of the kynges of Juda y Israel. And set the tyme forth that Amasia departed from the LORD, they conspyred agaynst him at Jerusalem. But he fled vnto Lachis. The firste theys slew him vnto Lachis, and threw him there. And they brought him vnto his house, and buried him beside his fathers in the care of Juda.

The xxvi. Chapter.

Then all the people of Juda toke Othasias, which was sithen yee olde, and made him kynge in steade of his father Amasia. He hadde thre wyues, and broughte it agayne vnto Juda, after that the kynge was fallen on slepe with his fathers. His thre wyues olde was Othasias when he was made kynge, and reigned two and sithen yee a Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jehachia of Jerusalem. And he did agayne in the synne of the LORD, as his father Amasia had done, and soughte God as longe as Zacharias the prophete, which taughte in the visions of Gods, and as longe as he soughte the LORD, God made him to prosper.

For he wente forth, and soughte agaynst the Philistynes, and brake downe y walles of Gath, and the walles of Jabne, and the walles of Asdod, and buriedde ceten a boue Asdod, and amonge the Philistynes. For God helpe him agayne st the Philistynes, agaynst the Arabians, agaynst them of Gur Baal, and agaynst the Moabites. And y Ammonites gave Othasias presents, and his name came in to the people: for he was exceeding stronge. And Othasias hadde ceten at Jerusalem vpon the corner poynt, and on the valley gate, and on other corners, and made them stronge. He buriedde costills also in the wynter tyme, and bygged many welles: for he had many cattell, both in the meadowes and in the playnes, husbandmen also and wyngardners on the mountaynes and on Carmel: for he dyed in his bandes.

And Othasias had a booff of men of warre yongge forth in the battell, which were not bad vnder the hande of Jona the kynge y of Maas the officer, vnder the hande of Samas of the kynges rulers. And the nombre of the chiefe fathers amonge the stronge me of warre, was an vnder thousande and fyve hun dred. And vnder the hande of the host thre hundred thousande, and seuen thousande and fyve hundred mere for the battayll.

In the strength of an armie to helpe the En gongayst the enemies. And Othias prepa red for all the host, shyes, speares, helme tes, breastplates, bowes and synggstones. And at Ierusalem he made ordinance continually, to be vpon the comen and in the pyramides, to shute arrowes and gett att stone. And the sa me of him came furte abroad, because he was specially helped, eyll he became mightie.

And when his power was greater, his hert acofs to his awne destruction: for he expresed agaynst the LORD his God, and went in to the temple of the LORD, to bur ne incense vpon the altare of incense. But Azarias the prest wente after him, and sware seue purties with him, valeaunt men, and woylfode kynge Othias, and seide vnto him:
"Thy belongeth noe vnto thy effeie (Othias) to burne incense vnto the LORD, but vnto the preste belongeth it, euen vnto the chyldren of Aaron, which are hallowed to burne incen se. Go forth out of the Sanctuary: for thou offendest, and it shall be no woishippe vnto the before God the LORD."

And Othias was wroth, and had a cen score in his hande. And whyle he moumured with the prestes, the leprosy sprong out of his foreheade in the presence of the prestes in the house of the LORD before the alte are of incense. And Azarias the chiefe prest ear ned his heade towarde him, and so dyd all the prestes, and beholde, he was lepre in his seidehead. And they put him out from thence.
And he made haust himselfe to go forth, for his plage came of the LORD. Thus be came Othias a leper vnto him deathe, and dwale full of leprosy in a se house: for he had put out of the house of the LORD.
But Ioram his sonne had the ouersight of the kynge house, and adged the people in the lord.

What more there is to saie of Othias (both first and last) I say the sonne of Amos hath written it. And Othias fell on slepe w his fa thers, and they buried him with his fathers in the peece of grounde beside of Iyngees spal tree: for the saye: he is leprous. And Jo tham his sonne was kynge in his steade.

his mothere name was Ierusa the daug

He buried the hert poynt of the house of

And he fought with the kynge of the chi

Thus became Iochan mightie, for he dy

When was a twentye yere olde when the abhominacions of the heathen, wch the LORD expelled before the chyldren of Iuda.

And he dyd sacrifice and bent incense vnto the hye places and vpon the hilles, and w

Therefore dyd the LORD his God by waye a greates multitude of his man nere, and broughte them to Damascus. It was geuen also vnto the hande of the ky vpon him. For Deach the sonne of Amas smote in Iuda an hundred 2 twentye thou men) and because they had forsaken 3 LORD God of their fathers. And Sabaui a mightie ma of Ephraim smote Elthosus 3 kynge of mune in eternall to be.

Then rose the Levites: Inhabits the fence of Zassai, and Joel the sons of Zafaria of the children of the Zabachabes. Of the children of Meni: Cis the sonne of Abbi, Zafaria the sonne of Zephaleel. Of the children of the Seti: Gimmu. Zab the sonne of Simma, and Eben the sonne of Joab. And of the children of Elazaphan: Simi. Zai. And of the child of Zassai: Sachary and Maasama. And of the children of Goman: Zephai and Simi. And of the children of Zephub: Serman and Vziel.

¶ And they gathered their brethren together, and were sanctified, and were in readiness to the Emperors commandment at the wordes of the LORDE, to claime the house of J LORDE. And the priestes entred within in the house of J LORDE to purifie, and purge out all the uncleannes that was founden in the temple of the LORDE, in the countrey of the LORDES house: and the priestes set it up on a rynd it out in the backe of Lebanon. The first daye of the first moneth becommen they to sanctifye their selues, and on the eight daye of the moneth wente they in to the poyntes of the LORDE, and halloved the house of J LORDE eight dayen, and synghen in on the sixteenth daye of the first moneth.

And they were in the Pyngre (Eschym, and sayde: We haue clefied all the house of the LORDE, the altare of burnt-offerynges, and all his vessels, the table of shew-bread, and all the apperall thereof, and all the ornaments that Pyngre Zachas cast awaye: whiche was Pyngre, whar eynes he the craftyest, those tynne we prepared, and halloved. Wheloe, they are befor the altar of the LORDE.

D The the kynge Eschias gathered him up raily, and gathered together the Elders of the countrie, and were up vnto the house of the LOR DE, and they brought seven bullocks, seven rammes, seven lambes, and seven he goates to be the synecrymge, for the Samaritans, for Jude, and he spake vnto the puffed the children of Aaron, that they should offer upon the altar of the LORD.

So they slew the bullocks, and the priests toke the bloud, and spinked it upon the altar: and slew the calves, and spinked the bloud upon the altar: and slew the lambes, and spinked the bloud upon the altar. And if soe as he of syn offering toke they befoze the synger and the congregation, and layd their hands vpon them: and the priestes slew them, and spinked their bloud vpon the altar to make attonement for Israel: for the synger commanded to offer burnt offeryes and sye offerynges for all Israel.

And he set the Levites in the house of the LORD with Cymbals, psalteries and organs, as David had commanded, and Gath the King's Secer, and the pscepher Uzziah set to as the common name of the LORD by his pscephers. And the Levites brought with the musical instruments of David, the pscephs with the cempetrees. And the King commanded them to offer burnt-offers upon the altare. And about the time when the burnt-offers began to be offered, the song of the LORD began also, and the cempetrees, and the musical instruments of David, and the King of Israel and all the King's officers gave praise therunto: and the King of the Ethiopian, and 3 blowing of the cempetrees, and burnt-offers of burnt-offers were finished.

¶ Then when the heretofore offprynces were fourteen, the kynge and all the churche with him, bowed them full, and gave pray se and thanken. And Eschias the kynge the rulers commended the swaine to pay se the 1. ORDE with the fonges of David I supp the Dece. And they gave prayse they were iustfull, and they bowed them mes, and worshipped.

And if ye be so favoured and subiecte the place of the sheynnes of all the burnt-offerings, that for ever they their brethren the Levites, till the worke was finished, and till the priestes were halowed (for the Levites are easier to be halowed than the priestes), and many of the house of offeringes were with the fire at the thorn offeringes, and burnt offeringes to the burnt sacrifices. That was the ministration of the house of the LORD prepared. And Esdras rejoyced with all the people, that they were prepared unto God: for it was done righte wisely.

The XXX. Chapter.

And Esdras sent in to all Israel and Juda, and wrote letters unto Ephraim and Manassin, that they shoulde come to the house of the LORD at Jerusalem, to kepe with unto the LORD the God of Israel. And the kynge helde no counsell with his rulers, and all the congregation ne Jerusalem, to kepe Passover in the seconde month: for at that tyme they coulde not kepe it, because the priestes were not sanctified young, and the people were not yet come together unto Jerusalem. And it pleased the kynge well and all the congregation. And they appointed it to be proclaimed throughout all Israel from Bersaba unto Dan, that they shoulde come to kepe Passover unto the LORD the God of Israel: for they were many to kepe it: as it is to be seen.

And the postes wrote with the letters from the hande of the kynge and of his rulers throu out all Israel and Juda, at the kynge commandement, and sayde: The children of Israel, turne you unto the LORD the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and he shal turne to you if ye have sinned, which are left over amonge you from the hande of the kynge of Assur: and ten yeas yowre fathers and he sinned, which rebelled against the LORD the God of their fathers, and heyned be over them destruction as ye see yowre selves. Be not hardened now as were yowre fathers, but obeye yowre hertes unto the LORD, and come to his sanctuary, which he hath sanctified for ever, and serve the LORD your God: for shal the indignacion of his wrath be removede from you. For if ye turne unto the LORD, then shal yowre brethren and children have mercy in the sightes of them which hold them in captivite, that they maye come awaye in to this lande: for the LORD your God is gracious and merciful, and shal not turne awaye his face from you, if ye convert unto him.

And the postes wente from one cite to another in the lande of Ephraim and Manasse, and unto Zabulon. But they mocked them and laughed them to scorn. Yet were there some of Assur and Manassin, and of Zabulon, that submitted them selves, and came to Jerusalem. And the hande of God came in to Juda, so that he gathered the one here to do after the commandement of the kynge, and the rulers at the worde of the LORD. And there came to gather unto Jerusalem a great people, to kepe the feast in thre hundred dayes in the seconde month, a very great congregation.

And they got them up, and put downe of altars that were at Jerusalem, and all the incense put they awaye, and cast it on the broke Cedron, and leave the Passover in the fourteenth daye of the seconde month. And if priestes and Levites were ashamed, and halowed them selves, and brought the burnt offeringes to the house of the LORD, and stode in their ordinance, as it was accordinge, after the lawe of Moses the man of God. And the priestes spent the blande from the hande of the Levites: for there were many in the congregation which were not sanctified, therefore the Levites brought Passover for them which were not cleansed, that they might be sanctified unto the LORD.

There were many people also of Ephraim, Manasse, Judah and Zabulon, which were not cleane, but ate the Easter lambe not as it is written: for Esdras prayed for them, and sayde: The LORD which is gracious, shal be mercifull unto all them that prepare their hertes unto God, to kepe the LORD the God of their fathers, though they be not cleansed after the holy purification. And the LORD heard Esdras, and healed the people. Then the children of Israel that were founde at Jerusalem, helde the feast of unleavened bread seven dayes with great joye. And the Levites and priestes played the LORD every daye with the laude instruments of the LORD. And Esdras spake hereto unto all the Levites, which had good understandinge in the LORD, and they ate the first of the dayes, and offered the offeringes, and gave thanks unto the LORD the God of their fathers.

And all the congregation besought to kepe the feast yet other seven dayes, and so they helde it: these seven dayes also with laude: for Esdras the kinges of Juda gave an offeringe for the congregation, men a con-for be bullockes, and four thousand shepe. And there were great heuereofferynges for y congregation, euen as thousand bullockes, and ten thousand shepe. And many of the prestes sanctified their shewen.

And the whole congregation of Iuda reioyced, the prestes and Leuites, and all the congregation that came out of Irael, and the straungers that were come out of the landes of Irael, and they that dwelt in Iuda, and gratesoyes was there at Jerusalem: for since the tyme of Salomon the sonne of Dauid the kynge of Irael, was there no such ioye at Jerusalem. And the prestes and Leuites stode vp and blessed the people, and their voyce was herbe, and their prayer came in to his holy habitation in heauen.

The XXXI. Chapere.

AND when all this was finished, all the Iudites that were founde in y ciues of Iuda, wente out, and brake the pilles, and hewed downe the groves, and made downe the hye places and altares out of all Iuda, Ben Iamin, Ephraim, and Manasse, yd they had destroyed it. And all the children of Irael were agayne euerie one to his possession vnto their ciues.

But Ezchias the prestes and Leuites in their obediencie, errey ones after his ordre, both the prestes and Leuites, for the burntofferings and thankofferings, and mynstre, to geue thanks and praye in the gates of the house of the LORD. And the kynge gaue his portion of his substance for the burntofferings in the morninge and euenyng, and for the burntofferings of the Sabbath, and of the newmone and of the fastes, as it is written in the lawe of the LORD.

AND he spake vnto y people which dwelt at Jerusalem, that they shoulde geue portions vnto the prestes and Leuites, y they mighte the more substantially endure in the lawe of the LORD. And wha y wordes came forth, the children of Irael gaue many firstfrutes of corn, wyne, oyle, honey, and all manner of fruites of the fild, and broughte in much of all manner herbes. And the children of Irael and Iuda which dwelt in the ciues of Iuda, broughte the tithes also forent and present, and the tithes of such thinges as were sanctified, which they had halowed vnto the LORD the God, and made her an heape, and there an heape. In the thirde moneth began they to laye vpon heapes, and in the seventh moneth byd they finished.

And wha Ezchias with the eunuchs, and same the heapes, they paynted the LORD, and his people of Irael. And Ezchias and the prestes and Leuites commynge the heapes. And Asaria the prest dwelt in the house of Sabao, sayd vnto the prestes: Sence the tyme that they began to laye the heuereofferynges in to y house of the LORD, we haue eaten, and are sate, and yet is there lesse ouer: for the LORD hath blessed his people, therfore this is pfecte ouer. Then commanded the kynge, that they shoulde prepare chesens in the house of the LORD. And they prepared them, and put in the heuereofferynges, and men and beastes which was halowed, faithfully.

And the oversighte of the same was Ezchias the Leuite, and Simai his brother, secunde, and Jehiel, Zafai, Haglach, Jehiel, Jeramech, Josabab, Eliah, Jesnath, Eliahach and Benai, orderyng of the house of Chanania and Simai his brother, accordinge to the commaundement of Ezchias. But Asaria was paynter in house of God. And Cere y sonne of Jonath the Leuite the porter of the eastgate was ouer the strewylange gyses of God (which were giuen for heuereofferynges vnto the LORD) and ouer the ydell hely. And wher his hande were, Elden, Miniamin, Isua, Semai, Asaria, and Sacharia in the ciues of the prestes vpon credence, that they shoulde geue vnto their brether accordinge to their courses, as the lawe is in the geseit.

And vnto them that were comyd for moudred from thir years olde and abow, amongst all the that were in the house of the LORD, euerie one vpo his daye, ther was office in their attendaunce of their courses. And they that were returned for pson in the house of their fathers, and the Leuites from twentye yeres and abow, in the attendaunce after their courses. And ther that were cleked amongst the children, nes, ymnes and daughters amongst the whole congregation: for that which was lowed, sanctified they vpon credence. There were men also named by name amongst the children of the prestes vpon the lawe of the lawe in all y ciues, that they shoulde geue portions vnto all the men which were amongst the prestes, and so all them that were named amongst the Leuites.

Thus byd Ezchias in all Iuda, and in that which was good, righte and iust and upon Iob and Jerusalem. I was the hea of Ezechias humbled him selfe because his heart had bene exalted, with them in Jerusalem: therefore came not the wrath of the LORDE vpon them, while Ezechias liued.

And Ezechias had very greates riches and worshippes, and made him treasures of siluer, golde, precious stones, spices, myrrours, and all manner costly vessel, and came bou-ses for the increase of oile, wine and oyle, and stables for all manner cattell, and foldes for the shepe, and buyded him cities, and had many cattell in shepe and open: for God gaue him very much good.

S It is the same Ezechias that covered the hye altar in Iherusalem, and covered it in with the west hyde of yf cite of Dauid: for Ezechias prospered in all his works.
 Dacuban the interpreter of the chiefe of Da-uid son sent vnto him, to aske question of him concerning the wonderfull thing that had happened in the lorde: God left him - to be compelled, that is might be knowne what secret was in his heart.

Deut. 24

What more there is to saye of Ezechias, and of his meritafulnes, beholde, it is written in the vision of the prophet Esay the sonne of Amos, and in the booke of the Kinges of Iuda and Iuda. And Ezechias fell on slep with his fathers, and they buried him ouer the sepulchres of the children of Dauid, and all Iuda and they of Ierusalem dyd him worshippes in his death: and Manasses his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

Manasses was twelue yere olde when he was made kynge, and eni-gned fyue and thirtie yere as Jerusalem, and dyd that which was euill in the sighte of the LORDE: (even as after the abomi-natione of the heathen, whom the LORDE expelled before the children of Israel) and turned backe, and buyded the hye places, whiche his father Ezechias had broken downe, and set up altars vnto Baalim, and made groves, and worshipped all the hoste of heauen, and sturde them. He buy-ded altars also in yf LORDEs house, wher-of the LORDE had sayde: "Ye Ierusalem shal my name be forever. And vnto all the hoste of heauen buyded he altars in both the courtes of yf house of the LORDE. And in the valley of the sonne of Hannon caused he him auncient men to go thow the fire, and choise of hyes, and regarded hyde cryn-ge, and witches, and somber soothsayers and expounders of tokens, and byd what was euill in the sighte of the LORDE to prouoke him vnto wrath.

Carned ymages also and Idols (which he caused to make) he byp in Gaba house, wher the LORDE saide vnto Dauid as to Salomon his sonne: In the house of Jerusalem which I haue chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, wyl I set my name there and wyl nomore let the face of Iffad me or fro the londe that I appoynted for the fathers, so farre as they obiecte to do it.
 I haue commaunded them, in all the law, statutes and commaundes by Moyses. Ye Manasses viscaued Iuda and them of Jerusalem, so that they dyd worse then the heathen, whom the LORDE destroyed before the children of Israel. And the LORDE left vnto Manasses and his people, and they regarded it not.

Therefore dyd the LORDE cause the lera of the house of the kynge of Assiria to come vnto the, which toke Manasses priu-with his bones, and bounde him with chynes, and brought him vnto Babilon. And when he was in trouble, he made intercession before the LORDE his God, and humbled himselfe greatly before the God of his fathers, and prayed and besoughte him. Then he he his prayer, and broughte him agayne Ierusalem to his kyngdome. And Manasses knewe that the LORDE is God.

Afterward he buyded he yf vnto the of the cite of Ierusalem, in the wast place of the hye altar, and at the entrance of the sytyng, and he made altars. He buyded made it very hye, and layed capres in yf struge cities of Iuda, and put away yf goddes and Ioln out of yf house of yf Iuda, and all the altars which he had buy-ded vnto the mount of the house of the LORDE, and in Ierusalem, and cast them away, and buyded the altare of the LORDE, and offered slayn offeringes and thank-offeringes thereon, and commaunded Iu-da, that they shoulde serue the LORDE of Israel. I was the LORDE thehye the people offered vnto the LORDE their God, as they dyd they vpon the hye places.

What more there is to saye of Manasses and of his prayer to his God, and the wodes of the Seers that spake vnto him in the name of the LORDE God of Israel, be-he, they are amonge the actes of the kynge of Israel. And his prayer and intercession, and all his synne and offence, and the wherein he buyded the hye places, and and sundry ydols, as foue he hidde him selfe, beholds, they are in my eyes amonge the actes of the Senns. And Manasse fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buried him in his booke, and Amon his sonne was kynge in his steade.

Two and twetye yeare olde was Amon when he was made kynge, and reigned two yare at Ierusalem, and dyd euill in the sighte of the LORDE, as Manasse his father had done. And Amon offered vnto all the Idoles that his father Manasse had made, and feared the. Yet dyd not he humble himselfe before the LORDE. And Manasse his father had suborned him selfe, but Amon refusede war more and more. And his seruantes conspired agaynst him, and slew him in his house. Then smote the people in the lord all them that had conspired agaynst kynge Amon. And the people in the lande made Josias his sonne kynge in his steade.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

Josias was eithe yeare olde when he was made kynge, and reigned one and thretye yare at Ierusalem, and dyd that which was a righte in the sighte of the LORDE, and walked in the wayes of his father, and turned not asyde, as he had to the right hande ne to the left. For in the eight yeare of his reigne wha he was yet in a childe, he beganne to seeke the God of his father Dauid: and in the twelvethe yare beganne he to cleane Iuda and Ierusalem from the hye places and groves, and carued Idoles, and molten ymagis: and caused the altars of Baalim to be broken downe before hym, and the ymagis that were thereon, he mede he downe. And of groves and carued Idoles and molten ymagis brake he in peeces, and made them to be asst, and scattered it upon the groves of them that had offered vnto them. And the bones of the priestes heare he vnto the altars, and so clesed he Iuda & Ierusalem, in 3 cities of Manasse, Ephraim, Simon, and vnto Iephthaim in their wyldernes on euery syde. And wha he had do done the altars and groves, and smyte to the Idoles in peeces, and hewed downe all the ymagis in all the lande of Ierach, he came agayne to Ierusalem.

In the eightieth yeare of his reigne wha he had clesed the lande and the house, he sent Saphan the sonne of Achia and Maasias the sonne of the pier, and Joash the sonne of Josias the Chamberler, to copenye the booke of the LORDE his God. And they came to Gedchias of hye prest, and there was deliuered vnto them the money that was broughes vnto the house of God, which the Levites (that kepe the chishoudes) had gathered, of Manasse, Ephraim, and of all the residue in Ierach, and of all Iuda & Ben Jamin, and of them that dwelt at Ierusalem, and they deliuered it vnto the hande of the workers in the house of the LORDE, and gaue it vnto the chif that wrought in the house of the LORDE, where it was in decaye, & they shulde repare it. And the same yere it fort vnto the carpenters and buyders, to buye fre stones and between timber for the altars in the house, which the kynge had desired. And the men laboured faithfully in the worke.

And ouer them were ordeyned, Jothab and Obadiah the Levites of the children of Amon: Zachary and Meshelem of the children of the Zaphathites, to see that theye were, and they were all Levites that coude playe vpon instrumentes. And ouer them that bare borchers and furebore all manner of worke in all the offices, there were saybers, officers and buyders capers of the Levites. And wha theye toke out the money that was broughes vnto the house of the LORDE, Gedchias the prest founde the booke of the lawe of the LORDE given by Moyses. And Gedchias answered, and saide vnto Saphan the Scribe. I haue founde the booke of the lawe in the house of the LORDE. And Gedchias deliuered the booke vnto Saphan. And Saphan bare it vnto the kynge, and broughes the kynge agayne, and sayde: All that was gaue vnder the hande of thy seruantes, that make theye: and if money that was founde in the house of the LORDE, howe they gathered together, and deliuered it vnto the officers, and to the workmen. And Saphan the Scribe tolde the kynge, and sayde: Gedchias the prest hath deliuered me a booke.

And Saphan red them before the kynge. And wha the kynge herde the wordes of the lawe, he rente his clothes. And the kynge commanded Gedchias and Aziel the sonne of Saphan, and Abdon the sonne of Micha, and Saphas the Scribe, and Aisio the kynge's seruante, and sayde: Go yeare waye, and counsell at the LORDE for me and for the remanent in Ierach, and for Iuda, concerninge these wordes of the booke that is founde. For greate is the indignacion of the LORDE that is gone forth ouer vs, because oure fathers haue not kepte the worde of the LORDE, to do a contrarye as it is myten in this booke. These were Helchias (with the other that were sent from the kynge) unto the prophetesse Hulda the wife of Salum the Sonne of Thecoath the sonne of Asaie the keeper of the clothes, which dwelt at Jerusalem in the secche parte, and they spake this unto her.

¶ And she sayde unto them: Thus saith the LORDE God of Israel. Tell the king I sent you unto me: Thus saith the LORDE: Beholde, I will bringe plagues vpon this place and the inhabitants thereof, as all the curses which are myten in the booke, that was red before the kynge of Iuda: because they have forsake me, and have not kept my covenant, nor hearken unto my voice, nor have they done as I commanded them: therefore shall I send upon this city, and shall not be quenched.

And after this manner shal ye sove unto the kynge of Iuda, that sent you: as ye counsell at the LORDE: Thus saith the LORDE God of Israel concerninge the moide that thou hast herde: Because thine heart is moved, and because thou hast humbled thy selfe in the sighte of God, whan thou herdest his wordes agaynst this place and the inhabitants thereof, and hast humbled thy selfe before me, and rent thy cloio, and wepte before me, therfore have I heard thee, saith the LORDE. Beholde, I will gather the unto thy fathers, and thou shalt be layed in thy grave with peace, so that thine eyes shal not see all the evill that I will bringe over this place, and the inhabitants thereof. And they brought the kynge wordes a gayne.

¶ Then sent the kynge, and caused all the Elders in Iuda and Jerusalem to come together. And the kynge wente up into the house of the LORDE, and all the men of Iuda and inhabitants of Jerusalem, the prestes, the Levites, and all the people both small and greates: and all the maidens in the booke of the covenant that was founde in the house of the LORDE, were eed in their eares. And the kynge stode in his place, and made a covenant before the LORDE, that they shulde walke after the LORDE, as he hath commaunded them, his testimonies, and his statutes with all their heart and with all their soule, to do accordinge unto all the wordes of the covenant that are written in this booke.

And there stode all they that were founde at Jerusalem and in Ben Jamin. And the inhabitants of Jerusalem byd accordinge to the commandment of God the God of their fathers. And Josias put awaye all obhomi-nacions out of all the landes that were children of Israel, and caused all them that were founde in Jrael, as ferne the LORDE their God. As longe as Josias lived, he passed they not from the LORDE the God of their fathers.

The xxxv. Chapter.

¶ And Josias kepte Passover unto the LORDE at Jerusalem, and serveyd the Passover on the fourteenth daye of the first moneth, and set the prestes in their offices, and strenghted them to their ministracion in the house of the LORDE, and sayde unto the Levites that were in all Jrael, and were sanctified unto the LORDE: Put the holy like in the house that Salomon the sonne of David bygge of Israel by barde. Ye shal beare it nowre upon you: as shulders. Be that ye serve now the LORDE your God, and his people of Jrael, and prepare the house of your fathers in your contere, as it was appointed by David the kynge of Jrael, and by Salomon the sonne: and stonde in the Sanctuary after the comf of the fathers house amonge your brethren the children of the people. And after the comf of the fathers house amonge the Levites, and byll Passover, sanctifie and prepare your brethren, that they may do accordinge to the moide of the LORDE by Moses.

And Josias gave lambs and yonghe of deas which were male, to the house offeringe for the comenrye: [all to the prestes for every one that was founde] in the combre thirtie thousande, and the sheafes open, all of the kynge good. And his price of theis aunes good myll gave to the house offeringe for the people, for the prestes and Levites: namely, Helchias, Zacharyah, and Jehiel the prynces in the house of God amonge the prestes: for the Passover, two thousande and six hundred. And theis shew open. But Chananiah, Semaia, Jiel and Josiah the deff of the Levites gave the Levites the house offeringe for the Passover, fyt thousande shepe, for the house offeringe.

Thus was the house sanctified by the prestes, and the prestes stode in their place, and the Levites in their courses accordinge to the kynge's commandement. And they byd the Passover, and the prestes toke it of their handes, and sprinkled toward the Levites toke the steynne off them, and set the burnt offeringe there from, as was made Sbedchias his brother kynge ouer Iuda and Jerusalem.

One and cxxxviij. yere. also was Sbedchias when he was made kynge, & reigned thowen yere at Jerusalem, and by this tyme which was called the sighte of the LORDE his God, and submytted not himselfe for the face of the prophet Jeremy, which spake out of the mouth of the LORDE. He full awate also from Labuchodonosor the kynge of Babilon (which he had taken an oath of him by God) and was stiffnecked, and hardened his hart, that he shoulde not conuerse unto the LORDE God of Iherusalem. And all of dieft amonge the prestes, and the people, multiplied their synnes, accordinge to all the abominacions of the heathen, and defiled the house of the LORDE, which he had sanctified at Jerusalem.

And the LORDE God of their fathers sent vnto them early by his messengers (for he spared his people and his habitation) but they laughed the messengers of God to scorn, and despised his wordes, and had his prophetes in derision, so lge tyll the indignacion of the LORDE increased ouer his people, and there was no remedye of healinge. For the broughte the kynge of the Caldees vpon them, and caused for to slaye all their yonger men with the swerde in the house of their Sanctuary, and spared neither yonger man nor virgin, neither aged nor graue father, but gaue them all in to his hande. And all the vessels in the house of God, greates and small, the treasures of the house of the LORDE, and the treasures of the kynge and of his prynces, all this caused he to be caried vnto Babilon. And they brent the house of God, and brake downe the wall of Iherusalem, and all the palaces therof burnt they with fyre, so that all the costly ornaments of it were destroyed.

The III Chapter.

When in the seventh moneth came, and the dispersion of Israel were now in their cities, the people came together then as one man, unto Jerusalem, where they stood up Jesus the sonne of Iosue and his brethren the priests, and Scribe bel the sonne of Saathias and his brethren, and burned the altare of the God of Israel, to offer burnt-offerynges there, as it is written in the lawe of Moses the son of God, that the altare shal they erect hereafter, for there was no fear upon any them because a feche nacione and lodes) and tem, and offred burnt sacrifices daylie a feere feringes also, and of the new Moyses and of all the first dayes of the LORD that was halowed, and all maner of fre willin-ge offeringes, which they did of their aune we wyl oute the LORD.

5 Upon the first daye of the seventh mo-neth beganne they eo offre burnt sacrifices unto the LORD. But the foundation of the temple of the LORD was not yet layed.
Nevertheless they gaue money vnto y^e masons and carpenters, and meate and drynke and oyle vnto them of Sidon and of Tyre, whereby the Cedre ymbe from Libanus by Sea vnto Joppa, according to the co-mmandement of Cyrus the kynge of Persia.

6 In the seconde yeare of their commynge was the house of God at Jerusalem in the fourth moneth, beganne Zorobabel the son of Salathiel, and Jesus the sonne of Jo-shai, and the remnant of their brethren the priestes and Leuites, and all they that were come out of the captiuyte vnto Jerusalem, and appointed the Leuites fro euen the year eue and aboues so that the worke of the house of the LORD wete furwarde.
And Jesus stode with his sonnes and brethren and Cabmel retych his sonnes, and the children of Juda, to further the worke of the house of God, namely the chylde of Senead which their chylde and their brethren the Leuites.

7 And when the bylders layed the foundation of the temple of the LORD, the pastor stode in their aaye, with trompete-men. And the Leuites the children of Asaph with Canticles, to playe y^e LORD. much they singe together, gaingye playe t^han and because his mercy endureth for euer vpon Israel. And all the people shouted lobe in playng the LORD, because the foundation of y^e house of the LORD was layed.

Esdras the man of the old priestes and Leuites and an ancient father, which had seene the house afore in his foundacion, and this was now be fore their eyes, wept loue. And many shouted with ioye, so that the noyse gaue a grea^t resounde, in so much that the people coulde not heare y^e ioyfull sounde for the noyse of the weeping in the people: for the people heaued lodes, so that the noyse was hebre farre of.

The iiii. Chapter.

8 De when the aduersaries of Juda & and Ben Jamin herbe, that the chyldren of the captiuyte bylded the temple vnto the LORD God of Israel, they came to Zorobabel & to the principall fathers, and sayde vnto them: We wyl bylde with you: for we sike the LORD your God like as ye do. And we haue bene sacrifice vnto him, since the tyme that Asit^h had on the Pyng of Asit^h been gyte we goe further. But Zorobabel and Jesus and the other ancie^t fathers of Israel, a nswered them: It is not meete for us and you to bylde the house of oure God, but we wyl bylde alone vnto the LORD God of Israel, as a tyme the kynge of persia hath commaunded us.

Then the folke of the londe bynded the people of Juda, and made them cstra^yed to bylde, and bynded counceles aganst them and bynded their deuyces, as longe as Cyrus the kynge of persia lyued, vntill the reigne off Darius kynge off persia. But when Darius was kynge, in the begyn-nyng off his reigne wrote they vnto him a compla^ynt agaynst them of Juda and Jerusalem.

9 And in the tyme of Artaseres, wrote Bisalam, Mischnideth, Tabeel and the other of their counsell vnto Artaseres the kynge of persia. But the scripture of y^e letter was wrytten in the Syriane speach, and was interpreted in the langage of the Syriane.
Rehum y^e chaunceller, and Simis the serybe, wrote this letter agaynst Jerusalem to Artaseres the kynge.

10 We Rehum the chaunceller, and Simisai the scribe, and other of the counsell off Dine, off Arphasath, off Carpat, off persia, off Bend, of Babelon, of Susa, of Bata, and of Elam, and other of the people - wherin the greates and noble Asaphat broughe ouer, and sit in the cities of Samaria, and other on this syde the water, and in Canaan, And thus is y^e summe of the letter that they sent vnto kynge Artaseres:

11 Thy seruantes the men on this syde the water and in Canaan. We be knowne vnto y^e kynge, that the Jewes which are come vp from the water vnto Jerusalem in to that separate & wiche cite, bylded the same, and make up y^e wallis of it, & bygyde it out of y^e foundacion. We be knowne now therfore vnto y^e kynge, y^e yf this cite be bylded & the malice made up agayne, the shal not they gener-tuer, eall, and yearly custome, and their devices shal be of thynges harnes. Due now that we all are thereby which destroyed the temple, we holde no longer se the kynges deshonour. Therfore sent we out, and caused the kynges to be certified therof. That it may be sought in of Chronicles of thynges pomeours, and so shalst thou fynde in the same Chronicles, and perseeue, that this cite is sedicious and noysome unto kynges and lordes, and that they cause acher also to redde of olde, and seche the same cause was this cite destroyed. Therfore do we certifie the kynges, that if this cite be buylded, and the walles therof made up, thou shalt seepe no change on this syde them after by the reason of it.

D Then sent I kynges an answer unto Re-hum the chawnceller, and Simai the Scribe, and to the other of that counsell that dwelde in Samaria, and unto eche other beyonde y water, Peace and salutation. The letter which ye sente unto us, hath bene ope-lyed before me, and I have commaunded to make search: and it is founde, that this cite of alder hath made insurrection agaynst kynges, & how y opyl and rebellion hath bene committed therein. There have bene myghtie kynges also at Jerusalem, which have reigned over all that is beyonde the water, and collected and yettly custome to an geuen unto them. Do ye now a fitt this commaundment, for byd the same men, that the cite be not buylded, till I have geue comendement. Take hede now that ye be not negligent here in, lest the kyngs have harme there theron.

Now whā kynges Artaxerxes a letter was red before Behum the chawnceller and Simai the Scribe and that counsell, they wente up in all the hault to Jerusalem unto the Jewes, and forbade them wth the same and answer. Then certified the route of the house of God at Jerusalem, and continued so unto the thirthe year of Darius kynges of Persia.

The V. Chapter.

A The prophetes, Aggeus and Zachary sonne of Iddo, prophesied unto y Jewes that were in Iuda and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Israel.
Then came up Zerobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and Iesua the sonne of Josdec, and be-ganne to buyde the house of God at Jerusalem, and with them the prophetes of God which strengned the. At the same tyme came to the Thathnai the belier on this syde the water, and Setchar of Dofin, and the councellers, and sayde thus unto them: The hach commaunded you to buyde the house, and so make up the walles thereof. In-terse we them the names of the men that made this buyldinge. Due the one of the God came upon the Elders of the Jewes, that they were not in buyde, till the man was brought before Darius, and yll the came a writinge therof agayne.

Thia is the summe of the letter y Setchar the Scribe on this syde the water, and Setchar of Dofin, and their counsellors y Aphasach, which were on this syde the water: sent unto kynges Darius. And thus the word was that they sent unto him: Darius the kyng, all peace. Be it knowe unto the kynges, that we came into Jeru-ze the house of y greates God, which is buy-ded with all manner of stone, and build wallayes in the walles, and y worke goeth forth, and prospereth in this hant. No wonderles we are the Elders and saye unto them: Who hath commaunded you to buyde this house, and so make up the walles therof? We answered them names also, that we myght certifie the, and have written the me of the men that were their rulers.

Due they answered us in this word, and sayde: We are the scrives of the house of beaur and earch, and buyde the house y was buylded many yeares aggo. Which a greates kyng of Israel buylded and sem.
Zorobit whan oure fathers pomeaded God as heauen unto moche, he geue them ouer in the hande of Nabuchodonosor kynges of Babilon the Calde, which had downe this house, & caried y people away unto Babilon.

It cometh then in the first year of the kynges of Babilon, y same kynges commaunded to buyde this house of God for the vessels of golde and silver to the house of God, which Nabuchodonosor had of the temple at Jerusalem, and brought in to y temple at Babilon, the vessels of the kynges take out of y temple at Babilon, and deliuered them unto Sebaschazar the sonne of Iddo, and saye unto him: Take these vessels, go thy way and bringe them unto the temple at Jerusalem, and see the house of God be buylded in his place. Then came the same Sebaschazar and layed y foundacion of the house of God at Jerusalem. Since that tyme hath bene in buyldinge, and see is tomes finished. It please y kynges now, let there be fast made forme of Zakon the chiefe priest, which was a quoyd scribe in the lawe of Moyses, which the LORD God of Israel byd goe. And he byng gone, burn all that he requyred, and bange to the hande of the LORD his God upon him.

And there came vpon ceremony of the children of Israel, and of the priestes, and of the Levites, of the syngers, of the porters, and of the Lechpinims vnto Jerusalem, in the seuenth yere of the kyng Artaxerxes. And they came to Jerusalem in the fifth month, that is the seventh yere of the kyng. For upon the first daye of the first moneth, dewisid he to go vpon to Babilon: and on the first daye of the fifth moneth came hetho Jerusalem, according to the good hande of God vpon him: for Esdras prepared his hart to sette the lawe of the LORD, and to do it, and to teach the precepte and iudgment in Israel.

And this is the summe of the letter, that kyng Artaxerxes gaue vnto Esdras the priest, the scribe, which was a teacher in the wordes of the LORD, and of his statutes ouer Israel. Vnto Esdras the priest and scribe in the lawe of the God of heauen, peace and saluacion. I haue commaunded, that all they of the people of Israel, and of the priestes and Levites in my realme, which are mynbed of their owne good wyll to go vpon to Jerusalem, that they go with the beryng sine of the kyng: and of the seven lordes of the counsell, to visyte Iuda and Jerusalem, according to the lawe of God, which is in thy hande: And that thou shouldest take with the, syluer and golde, which the kyng and the lordes of his counsell geue of their owne good wyll vnto the God of Israel: in his habitation to be at Jerusalem: and all the syluer and golde that thou canst fynde in all the countrey of Babilon: with it that the people and priestes geue of their owne good wyll to the house of God at Jerusalem.

Take thou the same, and bye diligently such the same money, calves, lambes, goats, and meate offeringes, and drynke offeringes, to be offred vpon the altare of the house of your God at Jerusalem. And loke what it is left the, and thy bretheren to be with the remmainge of the money, that do a ffeer the wyll of your God. And the vessel that a gentile the for the mynistracion in the house of thy God, that is belangen than before God at Jerusalem.

And what so ever thinge more shal be necessary for the house of thy God, which is necessary for the temple, let the same be geue one of the kynges chamber. I charge you that haue commaunded all the treasure beyonde the water, I loke what so ever Esdras the priest shal saye in the lawe of the God of heauen, requyryth of you, that ye fyll the same diligently, vntill an hundred talentes of syluer, and vntill an hundred quarters of wheate, and vntill an hundred measures of wyne, and vntill an hundred measures of oyle, and sale without measure. What is belongeth to the lawe of the God of heauen, let the same be done with diligence in the house of the God of heauen: that there be no want vpon the kynges table: in chyliden.

And I charge be it vnto you, that ye shal haue no answere to requyre a sayinge: I will, and yearly reuokes vpon any of thy porters, Levites, syngers, porters, Lechpinim, and mynistrers in the house of the God.
 And thou Esdras a ffeer the mynstrance of the lawe in thy hande: for thou iudge and arbitres, to iudge all the people that be in Iuda, even all such as knowe the lawe of thy God: and them that knowe it not se for the kyng to teach. And who so meruail diligently fyll the lawe of the God, and the kynges lawe, shall haue his reward in the hebe, whether it be vnto deeth, or to banyshe, or to be condemned in good, or to be put in prison.

It may be the LORD God of our fathers, which hath inspyred the kyng to geue the house of God at Jerusalem and hath enclaymed his mercy vnto me in the presence of the kyng, and his counsell, and before all the kynges bye estate. And I was comforted (according to the word of the LORD my God) and so geue I the heade of Israel together, I might go vpon with me.

The viii. Chapen.

These are the heade of the children that were named, which were vnto me from Babilon, whar came at the kyng Artaxerxes commaund. Of the childe of Pinea, Gersom: of the childe of Jithanai, Daniel: of the childe of Damiel, Harai: the childe of Pateos, Zachary, and the childe named with him, an hundred and fiftye. Of the childe of Pahath Moab, Eleamai the sonne of Serabai, and so two hundred males.

Of the childe of Sechania, the sonne of Jehasai, and with him the hundred and fiftie. Of the childe of Abinab, the sonne of Jenechan, and with him the hundred of the children of Elam, Jesai the sonne of Iehalia, and with him foure score maile. Of the children of Serphania, Sebubia the sonne of Iudabel, and with him foure score maile. Of the children of Iouda, Obadiah the sonne of Iehiel, and with him two hundred & a score men children. Of the children of Zabai, Zachary the sonne of Zabai, and with him eight and twenty males. Of the children of Aghaz, Johanna the yongest sonne, and with him an hundred and twenety males. Of the last children of Iudoniam, and these were their names: Eli phiel, Jeld and Semana, and with them thre score males. Of the children of Digeu, Daba and Sabub, and with them six maile. And J gathered them together by the water that runneth towarde Aghaz, and there abode there thre dayes.

And when J leste amonge the people & the prestes, J fonde no Leuites there. The first J Eliezer, Arie, Semana, Elashan, Jahn, Elashan, Nacha, Zachary and Meslem the rulers, and Joarib and Elashan the teachers, and the first J vnto Iddo & deshe & Caliphia, that they shoulde fetch in mynstrel for the house of oure God, and tolde them what they shoulde do ye vnto Iddo and to his brethren that Lecherims at Caliphia.

And accordinge to the good hande of oure God vpon us they broughte us a wysman from amonge the children of Iudabel the sonne of Leui the sonne of Israel, euen Serbia with his sonnes and brethren, eight men. And Serbia, and with him Jesai of the children of Iudoniam, with his brethren & their sonnes, twenety. And a sche Lecherima, a hon Dama and the princes gaue to mynstrale vnto the Leuites, two hundred & twenety, all named by name.

And when there at the water by the Aghaz, I a fullinge to be proclaimed, & we mighte humble oure selues before oure God, & see of him a righte waye for us, & our children and all oure substance. For I was ashamed to requyre of the kynge, for I was a huswife, & helpe us agaynst the enemy in the waye. For we had sayde vnto the kynge: The hande of oure God is for the best vpon all them that fele him, and his vniuersall: and reach vpon all them that forsake him. So we fasted and soughte this as our waye, and he berde us.

And J tolde our counsaile of the chefe prest:

tas, Serbia and Serbia, and een of the brethren with them, and weyed them there the silver and golde & a vessell for the house offeringe vnto the house of oure God, which the kynge, and the ladies of his counsell and pryces, and all Israel that were at hande, had gyven to the house offeringe: and there weyed J them with their hande six hundred and fiftie talentes of silver, and in silver vessell an hundred & talentes, and in golde an hundred & talentes, twenety cuppes of golde of a thousande gildenes, and two corry ornaments of good beaiffe, as cleare as golde, and sayde vnto them: Ye are holy vnto the LORDE, therefore are the vessells holy also, and is in the silver and golde that is given of a good will vnto the LORDE God of yours fathers: Watch ye therefore and kepe it, tyll ye weye it becomen before the chefe prestes and Leuites, and offer ite fathers of Israel at Jerusalem in the chesles of the house of the LORDE. Then offer the prestes and Leuites that be: the silver and golde & vessell, to bringe it to Jerusalem vnto J house of oure God.

So we wente up, from the water of Aghaz to the twelveth daye of the first moneth, to go vnto Jerusalem: and the hande of oure God was vpon us, and deliuered us from the hande of the enemies and from maninges by the waye. And we came to Jerusalem, and abode there thre dayes. And on the fourth daye was the silver and golde, and vessell weyed in the house of oure God vnder the hande of Iudoniam the sonne of Dama the prest, and with him Iudas the sonne of Phineas, and with them Josafab the sonne of Jesua, and Elashia & sonne of Dama the Leuites, accordinge to the number & weighte of every one. And the weighte was all wrytten up at the same tyme.

And the children of the captiues, which were come out of prison, offered his offeringe vnto J God of Israel: twelve bullocks for all Israel, six and threty rammes, sixten and threty lambe, and twenety goates for a synofferinge, alio: the best of offeringe of the LORDE. And they deliuered the kynges commysion vnto the kynges officers, & to the chyetes on this syde the water. And they promoted the people and the house of God.

The ix. Chapter.

When all this was performed, the rulers came to me, and sayde: The people of Israel, and the prestes, & Leuites are not separated from the nations,

For they have taken the daughters of the same, & their sonnes, and have mynne the holy febe with y nacions in the londes: and the hande of the rulers and lordes of counsell hath bene pun capall in this trespass.

When I herde this, I rente my clothes and my to ymne, and plucked the heere of my heade and of my beere, and sat mournyn ge. And there reioyd unto me all such as feared the worde of the LORDE God of Is rael because of the grate transgression. And I sat mournynge: untill the euenynge sacrifice. And aboute the euenynge sacrifice I rose up fro my heepes, and rente my clothes and my raiment, and fill upon my knees, and speed out my handes unto the LORDE my God, and saye:

Deu. 21. 1

My God, I am ashamed, and dare not lifte up mine eie unto the my God: for our wickednesse are growne ouer our heade, & our cruelties are as mayen greates unto y hea uel. Sence the tyme of our fathers haue we bene in grates trespase unto this daye, and because of our wickednesse haue we and o kynges bene deliuered in to the hands of y kynges of the nacions, in to the swerde, in to captiuite, in to spoyle, and in to confusion of face, as it is come to passe this daye.

But now is there a litle and sodane graciousnes came from the LORDE our God, so that some of vs are escaped, that he maie geue us a name in his holy place, that our God maye lighte our eyes, and geue us a litle lyfe in our bondage. For we are bondmen, and o God hath not forsake us though we be bondmen, and hath enclined mercy vnto vs in the sighte of the kynges of Persia, that they shalbe geue us lyfe, and promote the house of our God, and to set up the desolation therof, and to geue us an heb ge in Iuda and Jerusalem.

O our God, what shal we saye now after this? that we haue forsaken thy commandmentes, which thou hast commanded by thy seruantes the prophetes, and saide: The lord is with y: shal come to possesse it, is an vncleane lorde: thou in the ty limes of the people of the londes, in their abhominations wherewith they haue made it full of vncleannes as an euery fynde. Therefore shal ye not geue your daughters vnto their sonnes, and their daughters shal ye not take vnto your sonnes, and seke not their pea ce and welch for euer, that ye maye be singe, and enioye the good in the londe, and ye and your children maye haue the iustitiance of it for euermore.

And a fater all this that is come vpon us (because of some cruel bedes and greuous trespases) thou our God hast spured our wickednesse, and hast geuen us a deliuerance as it is come to passe.

As for vs, we haue turned backe, & haue let go by commandmentes, so manye contracte with the people of these abhominations. While then they be wroth at us, yet we be wroth at ourselves, so that nothyng maye, and yett there be no deliuerance: O LORDE God of Israel, then are righteous, for we remaine yet escaped, as it is this day. Beholde, in y passinge are we in our trespases, for because of it is there no standing before the.

The X. Chapter.

When Esdras prayed after this manner and thus, he wept, and lay before the house of God, thus reuolunt vnto him one of Israel a very greuous congregation of men and women, and children: in the people wept very sore. And Sadaia the sonne of Jehoiada one of the children of Sclamar, answered, and saye vnto Esdras: We haue respced agaynst the LORDE our God, in that we haue taken strange wyse of all the people of the londe. Now thus hope yet in Israel concerning this, that in lee we make a counsaile now with ourselues, that we shal put awaye all the wyse (as such as are borne of them) conynges at the counsaile of y LORDE, and of them that lo re the commandment of our God. For we maye do a conyng to the lawe. For they therfor, for the matter belongeth vnto the LORDE, will be much to, be of good comfort, and do it.

Then rose Esdras, and toke an othe of the rulers, priests and Levites, and of all Israel, that they shoulde do a conyng to the wyse: and they iurce. And Esdras set up before the house of God, and wrote in a the chamber of Iohanan the sonne of Sclab. And when he came thither, he am hebd, and diant no water: for he wept because of the transgression of them that had bene in captiuite.

And they caused a proclamation to be made throug out Iuda and Jerusalem, vnto all the children which had bene in captiuite, that they shoulde gather them selues together to Jerusalem: And that who soeuer came are many, & it is a long tyme, whether they can not finde their way out: neither is this a worke of one daye or tyme, for we are many & have offended in this transgression. Let us ap-

Then were appointed Jonathan the son of Ishai, & Josiah the son of Zebadai the father of the king, And the fullmen and Satharthe & Kitesa helped them. And the children of the captivity were cured, And the king was perfect, and he wrought fathers that were the pool of their fathers, and all that were now taken by name, separated the slaves, and he came down on the first day of the tenth month, to examine this matter. And on the first day of the seventh month brought they the matter to a conclusion, concerning the all the men that had been from the month.

The liii. Chapter.

2 B ut when Samballar herde that we buylded & wall, he was wroth, & toke grace in his hand, & moched & Jewes & Jude before his buyld & the mightie men of Samaria: What do the impoete Jewes? shall they be thus suffred? shall they offier? shall they perfourme it in mine daye? shall they make & stones whole againe, & all brought to dust, & haunt? And Tobias the Ammonite beside him saide: Let the build on, yf a fore go vp, he shall breake downe their stony wall. Heate O thou oute God, how we are despayre, turne their shame vpon their owne head, & thou mayest rent them out in a dispayning in the lande of their captiuitie. Coe not their wickednesse, & put not out their sinne fro & preserue: for they haue promoued the buylders. We buylded we the wall, & they not it whole together, vnto & halfe beate. And the people were well mynded to labo.

3 But when Samballar, & Tobias, and & Arabise, & Ammonite, & Abbedira herbe, & the wallers of Jerusalem were made vp, and that they had begonne to scowpe vp & gappes, they were very wroth, and cōspired all together, to come and fight agaynst Jerusalem, to make an hinderance therein. Tethiurnas we made of prayr vnto our God, & see wroth, and the wall daye & night ouer agaynst them. And Jude saide: The strength of the beareers is to fible, & they is to much dust, we are not able to build on the wall. And & aduersaries thought: They shall be knowe neither se, yll nor come in the moun among the, and slay them, & synber & me. But when the Jewes that dwelle in Jerusalem, came out of all the places where they dwelle aboute us, and tolde us, as a good and tyme, then se & the people after them & rebu with their sinnes, & peares & bones: such in the some places beynd the wall, & looked, and gar me up, and sayde: we to the fenners and rulers, & to the other people: Is not yet asayed of them, thynke vpon & pte re LORDE which ought to be feared, & light for ye bechism, fornes, dangere, wroth house. There chiles we haue & enemies here & we haue gotten worde of it, & God bringe their counsell to nought, & we the mard of agaynce the wall, every one vnto his self. And from that time forth it came to pass, & the halfe parte of the yonge men dyd the beare, & the other halfe parte helde the fures. Flydes, & oves, and best places, and the talers stode beynd the all the host of Jude, which buylded on the wall, & bare burde, from those that labored the. With me haue byd they & wroth, and with the other pte they the weapen. And every one & buylded, & had his stowde garde by his sin, & to holden they. And the teem pte re stode beside me.

And I sayde vnto the pynapal men, rulers, and to & other people: The wroth grece & large, & we are separatod vpon the wall one farr from another. Let in the place now ye heate the noise of & trumpet, for ye thier vnto us. Our God shal fight for vs, & we wil be labourers to & wroth. And the halfe parte of the helde & speares for & meyninge speinge, till & farrre came forth. And as & some tyme sayde I vnto & people: Every one abyde with his seruante at Jerusalem, & in the night fass for we may: put our aduancer to & watch, and to labour in the daye tyme. As for me and my brethren, & my seruantes, and & men of the watch beynd me, we put neuer of our clothe, & so much as to wathe our clethe.

The V. Chapter.

4 T id there arose a grece complaine of & people, & of their wyues & child their brethren the Jewes. And then were same & sayde: our fomen and daughter are to many, let us take counse for this case, that we maye live. Some sayde: Let us see of london, wyngard & houses to plough, & take up count in the bush. But some sayde: Let us bere we money of the king, & let us in fure londes and wyntardes. Now are we kempens bodys as our aunc bodys, and their children as our children: as shall we suffer our fames and boughtens unto bondage, and some of our boughtens are fild with alceyde, and no strength is there in our handes, and other men shal haue our londes and wyntardes.

But when I herde their complaynt and sode wisdom, in displeasure me fere, and I advised so in my mynde, I troubled the ean oars, and the rulers, and sayde unto them: Why require you of one of another? And I broughte a greates congregacion agaynst them, and sayde vnto them: Ye a fewe ere sillye, have boughte our brethren the Iewes, in high price to solde vnto the heythen.
And yet ye fill youre barnes, when we haue boughte vnto vs. Then helde they their pace, I coude fynde nothinge to answer.

And I sayde: It is not good that ye do, because ye not to walken in the feare of God, because of the rebuke of the heythen our enemis: I and my brethren, and my seru-ants haue sold them money and come: but as su vnto, let vs leaue it. Therefore this same day I seth: ye restore thei londes agayn us, their wyntardes, oyle gardens and houses, and the hundredth parte of the money of the come, wyne and oyle that ye haue recei-ued of them. Then sayde they: We wil restore them agayne, and wil require nothinge of them, and wil do as thou hast spoken. And I calld the prestes, and toke an othe of the,
that they shoulde do so. And I sheld my lap-pe, and sayde: God shal ouer every man after the same maner as his house and laboure, that man maye not this worde: euen thus he shal be ent, and voyde. And all the congregacion sayde: Amen, and no paynted the LORD. And the people dyd so.

And from the tyme forth that he was C conuyned vnto me to be a Debye in the lunde of Iuda, namely from the twentieth yeare vnto the two and thirtie yeare off tyngs Xerxes (that is twelue yeare) I and my brethren had not of such sustenance as was giuen vs a Debye: for the olde Debyes that were before me, had bene chargeable vnto the people, and had cald a schellard and wyne, and fortye Sydes of siluer: and their seruantes had oppressed the people. But so dyd not I, and thus because of the feare of God. I laboured also in the walle vpon the wall, and boughte no lode. And all my seruantes came thither together vnto 3 worte. Moreover there were at my table on hundred and fiftie of the Je-wes and rulers, which came vnto me, from amonge the heythen, that am about vs.

And there was amongst us buyle an eye, and fyve chofu shepe, and bynde, and eue-ance in euen dayes a greates summe of wyne.
But requyred not the synners of a Debye for 3 bondage was giuen vnto mee 3 people.
Thynke vpon me my God vnto 3 deif, accordyng to all that I haue done for this people.

The Vi. Chapter.

¶ And when Saneballat, Tobias and Gosin the Arabian, and the other of 2 oure enemye herde, that I had buydede the wall, and that there were no mo gap-pes ther in, howbeit at the same tyme he 3 I not hangd the doores vpon the gates. Sa-neballat and Gosin sent vnto me, sayenges Come and let vs meet together in the wyl-lages vpon the pylme of the axe due. Then I theltes they shoulde be to do ne well. I tooke schylendyngs I sent messengers vnto them, sayenge: I haue a greates buyngs to do, I can not come to done. The wote shul-de stande full, yf I were negligent, and came to done to you. Howbeit they came vnto me as good as feure tymes a fter the same maner.
And I gaue the same answers.

Then sent Saneballat his seruant vnto me the fift tyme, with an open letre in his hande, wherein was written: I am collect he heythen, 2 Gosin hath syde it, that then and the Iewes thynke to rebell: for 3 which cause thou thyself the wall, and wyle be their kynge in the seruantes, and hast sedyinto the prophetes to preach of the at Jerusalem, and to saye: He is kynge of Iuda.

Now shal this come to the kynge as was come now therfore, and let vs take ouer conced together. Nevertheless I sent vnto him sayenge: There is no such thinge as as thou sayest: thou hast sayned it out of thi ne enemye here. For they were all mynbed made me a fraye, and thought: They shal wilde drame their handes from the walle, 2 they shal not labour. Howbeit I stitghed my hande the more.

And I came vnto 3 house of Emmaia 3 me of Belata the sonne of Mederabed, 2 he had shod him selfe with shyn, I sayde: Let vs come together in to 3 house of God, and vnto 3 myddes of 3 temple, 2 spare 3 doores of 3 temple: for they wil come to slaye 3, yet eue in the night wil they come to put the to death.
But I sayde: Shylde such a man flye? Shalde such a man as I am, go in to 3 temple, as his life? I wil not go in.

For I perceived, that God had not sent him: yet spake he by prophesie upon me, neither sheldst I Tobias and Saneballat had putted him for money. Therfore toke he the money, that I shoulde be assayed, and so to do and smite, that they might have an well repaite of me, to blasphemie me. My God chyned them upon Tobias and Saneballat, accordyng unto these thre wordes, and of I prophete I Tobias, and of the other prophetes, I wolde have put me in feare.

And the wall was synthesed an the fyve & twentye dayes of the moneth Elul, in two and fiftye dayes. And when all o enemies herde thereof, all the heithen I were aboute us, were a fraide, and their courage failed the: for they perceived, that this worde came of God. And at I same tyme were there many of I chiefe of Iuda, whose loceris were unto Tobias, & from Tobias were theyem: for there were many in Iuda that were sworne unto him: for he was the sonne in lawe of Sacharias the sonne of Irah, and his sonne Johanan had the daughter of Misellam the sonne of Baidas, and they spake good of him before me, and tolde him my wordes. And Tobias sent letters, to put me in feare.

The vii. Chappere.

Now when we had buylded the wall I hanged on the doores, and the porters, singers and Leuites were appointed. And I commaunded my brother Hanani, and Hanania the ruler of the palace at Ierusalem: for he was a faithfull man, and feared God more then dyd many other: and I sayde unto them: Let not the gates of Ierusalem be opene, until the Sonne be upste. And while they are yet standinge in the watch, the doores shall be shute and barred. And there were certayne custodians of Ierusalem appointed to be watchmen, every one in his watch, and aboute his house. As for I cite, it was a large of towne, and grece, but of people were fewe sherin, and the houses were not dayded.

And my God gave me in my heart, that I gatherd together the principall men and I people, to number them, and I founde a register of their number, which came up afore me out of the captyne (whom Nabuchodonosor I kynge of Babilon had carryed away) and dwelt at Ierusalem and in Iuda, every one unto his cite, and were come with Tobababel, Iehua, Iechman, Asaria, Raamia, Iabachai, Iabachai, Bilan, Misipetere, Bigeani, Ithum and Baana.

When the seventh month came them selves together so one man upon the streets before the Watergate, and sayde unto his brother the scribe, that he shoulde fetch the booke of the lawe of Moyses, which the LORpriest befor y^e lawe before the congregacyon both of men and women, and of all that coulde seventh month, and red the thorn in the flesh that is before the Watergate, from y^e light mornynge, untill the moone be y^e before men and women: and iohas could underfonde it: and the eares of all the people were indeed vnto the booke of the lawe. And when the scribe stode: a pen an hyppocrite of woe, which they had made for the preachynge, 2 before him stode y^e Mathithias, Serna, Anania Uza, Eschias, and Matias on the right hand: And on the left hand stode Bede pagan, Mathiel, Mathia, Hasim, Esibabara, Zachar and Michulam.

was the prest and scribe, and the Levites & counted the people to take heed, sayde unto all the people: This day is holy unto the LORD your God: be not ye sorry therefore, weep not. For all y^e people wept, wher they heard the wordes of the lawe.

E Then four sayde he unto them: Go youre wayes, and eate the fat, and drinke the sweete, and sende parte unto them also that have not prepared themselves: for this day is holy unto our LORD. He that sayeth these wordes for the isye of the LORD is your strength. And the Levites stylled all the people, and sayde: holde your peace, for the day is holy, we see noe youre felawes. And all the people wente their wayes to ease and drinke, and to sende parte unto ether, and to make great mirth, for they had understode the wordes that were declared unto them.

And on the next daye were gathered together the chiefe fathers amonge all the people, and the prestes and Levites, unto Esdras the scribe, that he shoulde read them y^e wordes of the lawe. And they founde written in chelane, how that the LORD had commaunded by Moyses, that the children of Israel shoulde dwell in booths in the feast of the seventh moneth. And so they caused it to be declared and proclaimed in all their cities, as Jerusalem, so yengerde up unto y^e mount and feth Olyve baunches, Pymbraunches, Myubbaunches, Palmebaunches, & broun ches of chelacree, to make booths as it was written.

And y^e people wente up, and feshed the, and more than booths, avery one upon the roofe of his house, and in their cottes, and in the courtes of the house of God, and in the streete by the water gate, and in the streete by the pynes porte. And all the congregation of them that were come agayne out of the captivite, more booths, and dwelt therein: for since the tyme of Josue the sonne of Navi unto this daye, had not the children of Israel done so, and there was very greute gladnesse. And every daye from the first daye unto the last, red he in the booke of the lawe of God. And sinner daye halde they the feast, & on the eight daye the fatheringe together, a comynge unto the maner.

In the foure and twentieth daye of the moneth came the children of Israel together with fasting and sackclothes, and a reb upon them, and separated the seed of Israel from all the strange children, and stood and knowledged their synes, and the wickednesse of their fathers, and stood up in their place, and red in the booke of the lawe of the LORD their God seven tymes on the daye, and they knowledged, and worshipped the LORD their God seven tymes on the daye. And the Levites stood by, namely Josue, Dani, Camiel, Gedania, Dani, Seracia, Dani, and Chonai, and cryed loud unto the LORD their God, as the Levites, Josue, Camiel, Dani, Gedania, Seracia, Gedania, Gedania, Gedania, Gedania: Stande up, praye the LORD our God for us: and let thynke be gent unto thynke of thy glorie, which excelleth all thynges, and praye the LORD, the great one, thou hast made hyman, and the hyman of all beaunes, with all their goodlye wayes, and all that therein is, the See and all that therein is, on gent life unto all, and y^e host of beaunes bene themselves unto the. And art the LORD God, that hast chosen Abrahama, and brought him out of Ur in Chelane, and called him Abrahama, and founde him faithfull before the, and madest a covenant with him, to give unto his seed the land of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites, the Pherezites, and the Gergesians, and hast made good thy wordes: for thou art righteous. And hast considered the misery of our is here in Egipte, and herde their complaint by the reed See, and shewed iofes and rebared up Pharaos, and on all his seruantes, and on all his people of his land: for the knowest y^e they were presumptuous against thee, to makest them the name as it is this daye. And the reed See parted them in sunder before them, so that they were thowen the mydea of the See by the waye, and their prynces thowen them in the See as a stone, in the mighty waters, and left them on the waye tyme in a straie place, and on the night season in a place of fire, so shewen them lightes in the waye y^e they were.

Then comest thou also up to mount Sinai, and spakest unto them from heauen, and gavest them thynges indurmaner, and lawes, good commandmentes and statutes, and declared unto them thy holy Sabbath, and commaunded them peace, and obedience, and lawes, by Moyses thy seruante: and thou hast them led from heauen in ban they were brought, and brought forth water in them out of the rock, when they were thynge: and purged them, that they shoulde go in, and take possession of the land, wher thou hast biddest us to go, and thou hast us their bondage in thire disobedience. But thou my God singe grace, and most gracious, mercifull, patient, and of greates goodnesse, 1 and comforte them now. And though they made a molten calf, and sayde: This is thy God, that broughte the out of the lande of Egypte, and yd greace blasphemers, yet for his sake thou shalt not in the wyldernes, con-4 tinge to thy greates mercy. And þ cloudy pillar departed not from them on þ dayes in to kepe them the waye, whether the pilot of freten the mighte season, to shewe them lighte in the waye that they wente.

¶ And thou gauest them thy good spirite to instruct them, and withholdest not thy 1 flame from their mouth. and gauest the water which they were thirstie. For ye yea-longe made the good provision for them in the wyldernes, so that they wanted nothinge: 2 their clothes waxed not olde, and their feet faded not. And thou gauest the figgdomes 3 to natione, þ patreth the accordinge to their prouince, so that they possessed the lande of Sihon, the lande of Basan, the lande of Og 4 þ kyng of Basan. And their children multified them as the steeles of heauen, and 5 broughte the in to the lande wherof thou haddest spoken vnto their fathers, that they shold goin to it, and haue it in possession.

¶ And þ children wente in, and possessed the 1 lande, and thou subduest before the inhabitantes of the lande, euen the Canaanites, þ gogites, in to their hands, and thei þ yriges and þ people of the lande, þ they mighte be much then what they wolde. And they waxen the stronger ciues, and a fat lande, and the possession of houses þ were full of all maner goodes, welles dygged out, vynyards, olive trees, many fructifull trees, and they were filled, and became fat. And yod in the theowen thy greates goodnesse. Vnto them they were disobedient, and rebelled against the, and cast thy lawe beynde their 1 backs, and leaue thy prophetes which exhorten them so earnestly, that they shold be waxe once they end yd greates blasphemers.
Therefore gauest thou them ouer in to the hand of their enemies that vexed them.

¶ And in the tyme of their trouble they cried vnto the, and thou hartest them from heauen: and thoue they greates merry thou ga-uist them sauoure, which helped the out of the hande of their enemies. But when they came to rest, they turned back agayne to be euill before the. therefore leuest thou them in the hande of thine enemies, so þ they had þ dominion ouer them. So they chereed, and cryed vnto the, and thou hartest them from heauen, and many a tyme hast thou deliue-red them accordinge to þ greates mercy, and rested vnto them, that they sholdcaine agayne vnto thy lawe.

¶ To wyldest thoue they were proude, and hertend not vnto thy commandementes, but sinned in thy lawes (in which a man shold be, and lyue in them): and turned their shulder awaye, and were stiffnecked, and wolde not heare. And many yeares þ yddest thou sokede the, and rested vnto them thowen þ spere, euen by the office of þ prophetes, and ye woldest they not heare. Therefore gauest thou the in to þ hande of þ nationes in the lande. But thou greates mercies sote thou hast not vnto the yd juned them, neither forsake them: for thou art a gracious and mercifull God.

¶ Now oure God, thou greates God, myghte and terrible, thou that thyself enuouante and mercy, regarde not a litle all the ermyle þ hath happened vnto us, and oure kynges, prynces, puffed, prophetes, facters, and all thy people, sence the tyme of the kynges of As-sur vnto this daie. Tho a arenghe so as in all þ thou hast broughte vps vs: for thou hast dane ryghte. As for vs, we haue bene vexed ly, and of kynges, prynces, puffed and facters haue not done sote þ lawe, nor regarded y commandementes, and thy carnest exhortacion wherewith thou hast exhorted them, and haue not listened þ in their kyngdome, and in thy greates goodnes þ thou gauest them, and in the large and plenteous lode whiche thou ga-uist them a good, and haue not conuerted from their wicked workes. Therefore, therefore are we in bondage this daye: we come in the lode that thou a gauest vnto oure fathers, to enioye the frutes and goodnes thereof, beholde, these are we bondmen. And grace in the increase of it vnto the kynges, whom thou hast set ouer us because of oure synnes, and they haue dominion ouer oure bodies and cattell, and we are in greates trouble.

¶ And in all this made we a iure countaunce, and wrote it, and let of prynces, and oure þ prynces scale it.

¶ And in the dedication of the wall at Jerusalem, where the 2. voice saith: one of all these places, that they might be brought so Jerusalem, to keep a dedication in gladness, with chaine, organs, with synagage, with children, psalteries and harpes. And the children of the synagage gathered the filines together from th: playne countries about Jerusalem, and from the villages of the thephath, and from the heafe of Gilgal, some of the fildes of Obea & Asanath: for the synagars had buylded them a village about Jerusalem. And the psalter and 2. voice praised them selves, and censured the people, the gates and the wall.

And I caused the princes to go up upon the wall, and appointed two greater quires of psalterieynge, which were on euerie hande of the wall towarde the Doorgate, and a fiftie them were of psalm, and halfe of the princes of Iuda, 2 Asai, Elhanan, Melchiam, Iuda, Des Jamin, Semai and Jeremy: and euerie of the psalles dyd he trowpetto, namely Zachary 3 sonne of Jonathan, the sonne of Semai, the sonne of Maachia, the sonne of Michai, the sonne of Zachar, the sonne of Asaph, and his brethren, Semai, 2 Israel, 2 Iolai, 2 Silai, 2 Iai, 2 Iaphael and Iuba and Hanani, with the musickall instruments of Dauid 3 man of Geth.

And the same daye were there greates sacrifices offred, & they reioyced: for God had groue them greates gladnesse, for that both the royalles and children were ioyfull, & the myn-

In the same tyme were there men appoynted ouer the wals and the flos (wherby were) the outrynges, the firstlings and the lastes: that they shoulde gather them ouer of felices aboute the ciues, to befridene the wode periles and Leuities accordinge to the lawe: for Iuda was glad of the periles, and Leuites, that they shoulde and wayte vpon the office of their God, and the office of the purification. And the singers 2 poeters shoulde after the commanement of Dauid of Solomon his foine: for in the tyme of Dauid and Asaph, weete the chiefe singers singeth, and the songes of praye and thanksgyngs vnto God. In the tyme of Sathobad and Rehobias, byd all synners geue poises vnto the singers and poeters, say they haue poises, and they gaue the singers to haue vnto the Leuites, and the Leuites gaue the songes that were sanctified, vnto the chiefe of Dauid.

The XIII. Chapter.

After that tyme as the booke of Moyses was red in y^e eares of the people, there was founde wyrtten therein, y^e the Ammonites and Moabites shoulde awaite comen to the congregation of Iehou, because they mete not the children of Israel in heere and water, and byed Balacain agaynst the, that he shoulde curse them: manerleson also God turned y^e curse in to a blessing. Now when they herbe the lawe, they sperrand from Israel awayne crying that hath myght him selfe therein. And before this had the p^rest Elusai deliuered the chylde of y^e house of Ase God unto his kynsmen Tobie: so he had made him a great dreft, and thure hath cryd for evermy lye the moute sturmenge, hauekenace, agillall, and the erbes of come, nye and oyle (as condynge to the commandment) gent to the Levites, fingers and porters) and the house offeringes of the priests.

But in all this was not the Jerusalem: for in y^e said and thirtieth yere of Ahaser for tyng of Babylon, came I unto the Egypt, and after certayne dayes obtained I lycence of the Egypt to come to Jerusalem. And I got knowledge of I^erael that Elhasib dyd meo Tobias, in that he had made him a chest in the court of the house of God, and it greut me sore, and I cast forth all the vessel of Tobias house out of the chest, and commaund them to close the chest. And thither brought I againe the vessel of the house of God, the meat offeringes and the incense.

And I perceived, that the porters of I^e Levites were not given them, for the which cause the Levites and fingers were fied, sue they to his lordes for to worke. Then reproved I the rulers, and I sayde: Why forsake ye the house of God? But I gathered them together, and set them in their places. Then brought all Juda the tithes of corne, wyne and oyle unto the treasure, and I made treasure over I^e treasure, even Selema I^e prest, and Sadoc the scribe, and of the Levites Pebaria, and under their hands Chanai the sonne of Sadoc the sonne of Marbana: for they were conformed faithfull, and their offices, to distribute unto their brethren.

L Thenke upon me O my God here in, I wy penne me my mercy, that I have shewed on theise of my God, and on the officers ther of.

As the same tyme sawe I some credingis myneste on the Sabbath, and bringynge wynn disters, and asses laden wryth wyne, grapes, figges, and bringynge all maner of lombes unto Jerusalem, upon the Sabbath daye. And I rebuked them earnestly I^e some daye that they shold I^e wryales. There brake me of Tyre also the m, which brought with him all maner of ware, and solden the Sabbath unto the childen of Juda and Jerusalem. Then reproved I the rulers in Juda and said unto them: What ruelles thinke ye that ye do, and breake the Sabbath daye? Dyd not our fathers cuncheus, and our God brought all the plague upon us upon this cite? And ye make the worst man yet upon Israel, in that ye breake the Sabbath.

D And when the portes of Jerusalem were shewen up before the Sabbath, I commaund to shut the gates, and charged that they shold not be opened till after the Sabbath, and some of my firmamentes for I at the gate, I there shold be no dutch be brought te in on the Sabbath daye. Then remayned the chapmen and merchants once or twyce over nyght without Jerusalem with all maner of ware. Then reprovon I them seer, and sayde unto them: Why carry ye all myghte abowte the wall? If ye do it once agayne, I wil laye handes upon you. From that tyme forth came they nomore on the Sabbath. And I sayde unto the Levites which were cleane, that they shold come and kepe the gates, to halowe the Sabbath daye. Then I spake unto me: O my God, I comynge this also, and spare me accordynge to thy greute mercy.

And at the same tyme sawe I Jewes, the multitude of I^e Levites, 2000 men and of I^e Meab, and their children spake halfe in the speache of I^e Levites, and entle not speake in I^e Jewis language, but by I^e conge myghte a man perceave every people. And I reprovoned them, and entled them, and shew certayne men of the, and placate them up, and toke an othe of them by God: That shal not gene yeure daughters unto their fennes, neither shal ye take their daughters unto youre fennes, for youre selves. Dyd not Salomon I^e Kinge of Israel synne ther in? ye omonged many wycheben man there no kynge like him, I^e he was deare unto his God, and God made him kynge over all Israel, and the overlandish men.

And one of the children of Joiada the sonne of Elhasib I^e hye prest, had made a contracte wryth Sathballath the horetite: but I disced him frome. O my God, thenke thou upon them that are quyte of the presthode, and have defyled the covenant of the presthode and of the Levites. Thus cleasid I them from all such as were overlandish, and appoynted the countes of the prest-tee and Levites, every one to his office, and to asse the web at tyme appoynted, and the first fittes. Then I^e then wpen me O my God for the best.

The first Chapter.

At the tyme of Abasuerus, which reigned from India unto Ethiopia, out an hundred and seven and euenye landis, whiche tyme as he sat on his seate reiall in the castell of Susane the thirde year of his reigne, he made a feast unto all his prynces and sekourtes, namely unto the myghty men of Persia and Media, so the Debates and rulers of his countre, that he might shewe the noble riches of his Kingdome, and the glorious worshippe of his greatnesse, many dayes longe, unto an hundred and foure score dayes.

And when these dayes were expyred, the kynge made a feast unto all the people that were in the castell of Susane, both unto grete and small, seven dayes longe in the court of the garden by the kynge's palace: where ther charyng was by the red and yallow clothes, fastened with cordes of linnen and scarlet in silver kynges, upon pylers of Marble ston.

And the kynges tyme was made accordyng to the power of the kynge. And a roman was appointed what he shoulde haue: for the kynge had commended all the officers of his house, that every one shoulde do as they wold. And the quene Dasthi made a feast also for the women in the palace of Abasuerus. And on the seventh daye when the kynge was merry of the wine, he commended Medasman, Baltha, Charbona, Baltha, Abagtha, Serhar and Charbona, the four chamberlaynes (that dyd seruyce in the presence of kynge Abasuerus) to seeke the quene Dasthi with the crowne regall, that he might shewe the people and prynces his myght: for she was a heuynfull. And the quene Dasthi wolde not come at the kynge's wynde by his chamberlaynes. Then was the kynge very wroth, and his indignatyn shewed in him.

And the kynge spaketh to wyse men that had vnderstandynge in the dynasties of the londe: for the kynge's matter must be decided before all such as haue knowlege of the lawe and iudgement. And the nyxe wyse men were, Charfena, Serhar, Abasue, Chasbi, Mireia, Mactina and Mactan, the four prynces of the Persians, and Medes, which sawe the kynge's face, and sat about in the kynge's house: what lawe shoulde be decreed upon the quene Dasthi, because she dyd not accordyng to the wynde of the kynge by his chamberlaynes. The same daye the kynge sent the kynge the prynces. The quene Dasthi had not only more call agaynst the kynge but also agaynst all the prynces and all the people in all the londes of the kynge Abasuerus: for this dede of the quene shal be decreed unto all women, so that they shal wysse their husbandes before their eyes, and shal saye: The kynge Abasuerus commended Dasthi to quene to come before him, but she wolde not. And so shal the pryntesses in Persia and Media saye likewise unto all the kynge's prynces, when they heare of the wynde of the quene, thus shal they crye withynnes and withoutyn. If it please the kynge, let there go a kynge's commaundment from him, and let it be wrytten accordyng to the lawe of the Persians and Medes (and not to be transgressed) what Dasthi come before the kynge Abasuerus, and in the kynge's house the kynge's wynde shal be decreed to better then she.

And þis writinge of the kynges which shalbe made, be published shewyn ouer all his myghte (which is greater) that all prynces are holde their hupbandes in honoure, to be charge greute and smal.

One pleakod the kyng and the prynces, and the kynges to a cordyng to the wordes of Manachan. Then were there letters sent shup in to all the kynges london, in to every lorde accordinge to the wayynges ther of, and to every people after their langage, þat every man shulde be loude in his owne house. And thus causeth he be spoken after the langage of his people.

The II Chapter.

After these accens when the dyspleasure of kyng Alphasurus was layde, he thought upon Vasshy, what she had done, and what was concluded concerninge her. Then sayeth the kynges seruantes in then be sayre yonge virgins soughte in the kyng, and let the kyng appoynte officers in all þe london of his myghte, that they maye bringe together all sayre yonge virgins unto the castell of Susan to the Wynde byrding, under the hande of Segai the myghte chambelaine, that kepeth the weene, and let hem gowne them their apparell. So let which damfyll pleaseth the kyng, let her be quene in Vasshy steade. This pleaseth the kyng, and he dyd so.

In the castell of Susan there was a Jewe, whose name was Marbodens, the sonne of Jair, the sonne of Sama, the sonne of Gai, the sonne of Jemini, which was carried awaye from Jerusalem: when Jeronias the kyng of Juda was led awaye, (whom Nabudodonosor the kyng of Babylon carried awaye) and he net. The Gadissa (that is Hester) his onely daughter: for shi had a father rather merrier, and she was a fayre and beautifull damfyll. And when her father and mother dyed, Marbodens receaued her as his onely daughter.

Now when þe kynges commaundment and comynge was published, many damfylls were gathered together unto the castell of Susan under þe hande of Segai, hisler, was tald of to all þe kynges house under þe hande of Segai, the kyng of þe weene, and the damfyll pleaseth him, she founde grace in his sighte. And he put her in maye's in þe best place of þe weene's bulding. And Hester shewed he not to the people that she myghte: for Marbodens had charged her, þat shi shulde not tell it. And Marbodens walked euery daye before the gate of þe weene's buldinge, þat he myghte knowe howe Hester lyde, and what shulde be come of her.

And when the appointed tyme of euery damfyll came that she shulde come to þe kyng Alphasurus, after that she had bene chauncous monethes in the bestyng of the weene (for their bestyng must haue so much tyme, namely sixe monethes with Daime & Myre, sixe monethes in good speces, so were the weene beautified) when wene there one damfyll unto þe kyng, and what as so euer she requyreth, þe must be gredy her to go to her out of the weene's buldinge unto þe kynges palace. And when one came in the eueryng, þe same welle fild him as þe moneth in to þe second house of Susan, under the hande of Saasgao the kynges chambelaine, which kepeth þe concubines. And she must come unto the kynge none, excepte as pleased the kyng, and what he causeth her to be called by name.

Now when the tyme came of Hester the daughter of Abihail Marbodens welle (whom he had receaued as his onely daughter) þe shulde come to the kyng, she desired nothyng but what Segai the kynges chambelaine the kyng of the weene's buldinge.

And Hester founde fauour meke sighte of all them that looked vpon her. And Hester was taken unto the kyng Alphasurus in to the best royall, in the tenth moneth which is called Tebeth, in the fowente yere of his regnes.

And the kyng loved Hester above alle the women, and she founde grace and meay in his sighte before all the virgins: and he let the quene come vpon his heade, and made her quene in steade of Vasshy. And the kyng made a iurre fast unto all his payneces and seruantes. . . . the fast was because of Hester, and let the london be in quyetnes, & gaue royall giftes.

And when the weene's were gathered together the secunde tyme, Marbodens sat in the kynges gaite. And as yet had not Hester shewed her kyng and his people, a cordyng as Marbodens had byoden her: for Hester dyd a fter the wordes of Marbodens, like an rhan he was his wome. At the same tyme whyle Marbodens sat in the kynges gate, two of the kynges chambelaines, Bigthan and Therax which kepeth the doore, were wroth, and soughte to laye their handes on the kyng Alphasurus: Wherof Marbodens gat knowlege, and tolde it vnto quene Hester, and Hester certifieth the kyng thereof in Marbodens name. And when inquisi cion was made, is in a founte so. And they were both hanged on tre: and it was written in the Chronicles before the bynge.

The iii. Chapter.

After that it was by the bynge promysed vnto Aman the sonne of Amadath the Agagite, and his hys, & his hys firste aboute all 9 prynces that were with him. And all the bynges seruantes that were in the gate, bowed their knes, and byd neueren ce vnto Aman: for the kinge had so commaunded. But Warbochus bowed not the knes, and worshipped him not. Then the bynges seruantes which were in the bynges gate, sayde vnto Warbochus: Why traist thou selfe thou the bynges commaundement? And when they spake this daye vnto him, and he sawe vnto them not, they tolde Aman, that they mighte be rebuked: Warbochus matters wolde be rebuked: for he had tolde them, & he was a Jewe. And when Aman sawe, that Warbochus wolde not the knes vnto him, nor worshipped him, he was full of indignacion & charyte, that he shulde laye handes dely on Warbochus: for they had shewed him 9 people of Warbochus, but he soughte to destroye the people of Warbochus, and all the people that were in the whyle empyre of Abasuerus.

In the first moneth that is the moneth Nissan, in the twelue year of kinge Abasuerus, was there occasion and oportunitie sought by Aman, from one daye to another, and from the same moneth vnto the twelue moneth, that in the moneth Abas. And Aman sayde vnto kinge Abasuerus: There is a people scattered abroad and dispersed amonge all people in all the landes of thine empyre, and they do not after the bynges lawes, neither in the bynges profie to suffice the a fewe this manner. If it please the bynge, let him saye, that they maye be destroyed, & so will I weye downe ten thousand talents of silver, wher the handes of the workmen, to be brought in to the bynges chamber. Then so the bynge his bynge from his hande, and gaue it vnto Aman the sonne of Amadath the Agagite the Jewes enemye. And the bynge sayde vnto Aman: Let the silver be given thee, and that people also, to do withall what pleiseth thee.

Then were the bynges seryes called on the thirteenth daye of the first moneth, & there was written (as was bynge an Aman commaunded vnto the bynges prynces, and to the Debes every wher in the landes, and to the captaynes of every people in the countrey on every byde, accordinge to the writinge of every nation, and a set their language in the name of bynge Abasuerus, and that with the bynges bynge. And the seryes were sent by postes in to all the bynges landes, to be sent out, to Eyll, and to destroye all Jewes, both yonge and olde, childen and men in one daye, namely upon the thirteenth daye of the twelue moneth, which is the moneth Abas, and to spoyle their goodes.

This was the summe of the writinge, that there shulde be a commaundement given in all landes, to be published vnto all people, that they shulde be ready agaynst the same daye. And the postes wente in all the half abynge to the bynges commaundement. And in the castell of Susa was the commaundement decayed. And the bynge & Aman bewailed. But of the Susa was bewailed.

The iii. Chapter.

When Warbochus perceaved all that was done, he was in charyte, and put on a sack cloth, & aske, & wente out into the myddes of the cite, and cried lowde and lamentably, and came before the bynges gate: for there mighte no man be within the bynges gate, as he had said. And in all landes & places, as far as the bynges wrote and commaundement extended, there was greates lamentacion amonge the Jewes, and many fasted, wept, mourned, & laye in sack clothes & in aske. So Hester dauid, and his chamberlaines came and tolde it her. Then was she quene exceedingly astonied. And she sent requyre, that Warbochus shulde put them on, and laye the sack clothes from him. But Warbochus wolde not take them. The called Hester Hathach one of the bynges chamberlaines (which she be before her) and gaue him a commaundement vnto Warbochus, that he mighte knowe what it was, and what he shulde do. So Hathach wente forth to Warbochus vnto the floore of the cite, which was before the bynges gate.

And Warbochus tolde him of all that had happened vnto him, and of the summe of the use that Aman had promysed to make vnto the bynges chamber because of 9 Jewes for to destroye them, and he gaue him the paye of the commaundement, that was written at Susa, to destroye them, that he mighte see them in the Hester, and so he mighte see and charge her, & she shulde gaue in to the bynge, and make her praye and supplication to him for his people.

And whā hachar came in, and tolde hester the wordes of Mardocheus, hester spake unto hachar, and commaunded him to loyue Mardocheus: Al the tyngea seruante, and the people in the lombes of the tynge, knowe, that who so carer commeth with in the court unto þe tynge, whether it be man or woman, which is now called, the commaundment is that the same shal dye immediately: excepte the tynge holde out the golde ceper vnto him, that he maye lyeue. As for me, I haue not bene called to come in to the tynge vnto this thurte dayes.

And whā Mardocheus was certified of hester wordes, Mardocheus had saie agayne vnto hester: Thynde not to saue thine owne life, whyle thou art in þe tyngea house: be swaill tynge: for yf thou heldest thy peace in this tyme, then shal the Jewes haue helpe and deliuerance: one of another place, & thou & thy fathers house shal be destroyed. And who knoweth whether thou art come in the tynge, for this tyme sake: hester let wyse Mardocheus this asswere: We shal go to Mardocheus, & gather together all þe Jewes þat are souer at Susa, & fast ye foure, & yett are not to drynte nor in this dayes, necher dayes nor night. I & my handfelo wil fast likewise, & so wil I go into the tynge as way to the commaundment: yf I perishe, I perishe. So Mardocheus wente his waye, & yd all þe hester had commaunded him.

The V. Chapter.

And on the thirte daye put hester on her royal apperell, and stode in the court of tyngea palaceth: the ouer against the tyngea house. And þe tynge sat vnto his royal seate in tyngea palaceth ouer against þe dore of the house. And whā the tynge sawe hester the quene stouinge in the court, he founde grace in his sighte. And þe tynge tolde her the golde ceper in his hande toward hester. So hester stode forth, and woked the tappe of þe ceper. Then sayde tynge vnto her: What wilt thou quene hester: what requestest thou: & what wilt thou helpe of tynge, & so shal be geue the. hester sayde: I please þe tynge, let þe tynge & Aman cometh daye vnto þe bancke þe I haue prepared. The tynge sayde: Cause Aman to maichail, & he maye do as hester hath saide.

And whā the tynge & Aman came to þe bancke þe Aman had prepared, the tynge sayde vnto hester: whā he had beenen in ynto hester, what is thy petition: it shal be geue the. And what requestest thou: what the halfe of the empire shal be done.

The vi. Chap. Ho. cxi.

Then answered hester and sayde: My petition and desire is, yf I haue founde grace in þe sighte of the tynge, & yf it please the tynge to geue me my petition, and to fulfill my request, then let the tynge & Aman come to the bancke þe I shal prepare for the, and so wil I be comouen as the tynge hath sayde.

Then wente Aman forth the same daye ioyfull and merry in his mynde. And whā he sawe Mardocheus in the tyngea gate, þe he stode not up and kned before him, he was full of indignacion at Mardocheus. Mardocheus he restrained himselfe: and whā he came home, he sawe, and called for his frendes, and stee his wyfe, and tolde them of the glory of his riches, and the multitude of his children, all together howe the tynge had promoted him so greatly, and howe they haue taken about the payntes and seruantes of the tynge. Aman sayde moouer: How and hester the quene let no man come with the tynge vnto the bancke that he had prepared, excepte me, and came iowen in Jibben vnto her alse with the tynge. But in all this am I not satisfied as long as I in Mardocheus the Jewe syttinge in tyngea gate. Then sayde Sara his wyfe and all his frendes vnto him: Let the make a galow of fiftye cubites hie, & comouen speake then vnto the tynge, that Mardocheus maye be hangyd thereon, yf thou comist merly with the tynge vnto the bancke. Aman was well contented withall, and caused a galow to be prepared.

The VI. Chapter.

The same night coulde not the tynge slepe, and he commaunded two beynges of Chronicles and Rectors: which wā they were rid before tynge, they happened on the place where it was wynt, how Mardocheus had tolde, that the tynge was chāberlayne: which keppe þe tynge tolde seuerall to laie handes on tynge Mardocheus. And the tynge saide: What worshippe and good he we be done to Mardocheus the tynge saide: Then sayde the tynge seruantes that mynistered vnto him. There is nothinge done for him. And the tynge sayde: Who in in tynge court? (for Aman was gone in to tynge court withouthen þe tyngea house, þe he might speake vnto tyngea house Mardocheus on tynge, þe he had prepared for him.) And the tynge se was men saide vnto him: Beholde, Mardocheus in the court. The tynge saide: Let him come in. And whā Aman came in, tynge saide vnto him: What shal be done vnto þe man, whom the tynge wold saye beyng vnto woisshippe: But Hamā thought in his herte: Whom shoulde the kynge els be glad to buy a ge vnco woisshippe, but me? And I may saye vnto the kynge. At the man vnto whom the kynge wolde be glad to do woisshippe, he broughte hither, that he maye be arayed with the royal garments which the kynge used to weare: and the house that the kynge rydeth vpon, and that the crowne royal maye be set vpon his heade. And let this rayment and house be deliuered vnder the hande of one of the kynges paynters, that he maye araye the man withall: whom the kynge wolde buye honoure) and carry him vpon the horse thorow the strete of the cite, and cause: as he is proclaimed before him: Thou shalt be done to every man, whom the kynge wolde saye honoure.

C The kynge sayde: Make hast, and take (as thou hast sayde) the rayment and the horse, and do euen so with Marдохeus of Ierus: that stiereth before the kynges gate, and let nothinge fayle of all that thou hast spoken. Then came Aman the rayment and the horse, and arayed him, and broughte him on horsebacke thorow the strete of the cite, and proclaimed before him: Euen thus shalt it be done vnto every man whom the kynge is disposed to honour. And Marдохeus came agayne to the kynges gate, but Aman gat him home in all the hast, mourninge with bare heade, and tolde Seres his wyfe and all his frendes, every thyng that had happened him. Then sayde his wyfemen and Seres his wyfe vnto him: Wiste Marдохeus of the febe of the Jewes, before whis thou hast begonne to fall, thou canst do nothinge vnto him, but shalt fall before him. Whyle they were yet talkyng with him, came the kynges chamberlaynes, and caused Aman to make hast as he came vnto the dancet that Hester had prepared.

The viij. Chapter.

A And when the kynge and Aman came to the dancet that quene Hester had prepared, the kynge sayde vnto Hester on the second daye whan he had dancet agayne: What is thy petition quene Hester, that I maye be geue thee? And what requyre thou? For euen half of the empyre, and it shall be done. Hester answered and sayde: If I have founde grace in thy sighte (O kynge) and yf it please the kynge, then graunte me my lyfe as my desyre and my people: for my petitions sake: for we are solde to be destroyed, to be slayne, and to perishe. And molde God we were solde to be bondemen and bondwomen, then wolde I haue my songe, I shoulde not the enemye be hye to the kynges harme. The kynge that thus spake: I made vnto quene Hester: What is he that? Or where is he? Wherof I was in his mynde to do such a thinge after that manner: Hester sayde: The enemye and the sory is this wicked Aman.

As for Aman, he was exceedingly a synner before the kynge: I quene. And the kynge on the first the dancet: I sit I rayment in his dysposure, and went in to the palace garden. And Aman stode up, and besoughte quene Hester for his lyfe: for he sawe there was a mischance prepared for him at the kynge allready.

And when the kynge came agayne out of the palace garden in to the palace wher he had eaten, Aman had lard him vpon the bed that Hester sat vpon. Then saide the kynge: I will be force the quene also before me the house. As I am as that word: none out of the kynges mouth, they come to Aman face. And Garbona one of the chamberlaynes that stode before the kynge, sente Beholde, there stiereth a galore in this house: I see cub yow hye, which he had made for Marдохeus, that spake good for the kynge. The kynge sayde: Change him thence: as they changed Aman out of the galore that he had made for Marдохeus. Then was the kynges wrath styled.

The viij. Chapter.

The same daye vnto the kynge Hester agayne the house of Aman the Jewes enemye, vnto quene Hester. And Marдохeus came before the kynge: and Hester tolde him that he beloged vnto her. And the kynge put of his synner kynge, which he had taken from Aman, and gaue it vnto Marдохeus. And Hester sit Marдохeus out of the house of Aman. And Hester spake vnto me before the kynge, and fell downe at his foete, and besoughte him: that he wolde put away the wyrdenes of Aman the Agagite, in his denice that he had ymagined agaynst the Jewes. And the kynge helde out the golde scepter vnto Hester. Then saide Hester, and sit before the kynge, and sayde: If I please the kynge, and yf I haue founde grace in thy sighte, yf it be comen for the kynge, and yf it be accepted in thy sighte, as it is to be myght, of the letters of the denys of Aman: the sonne of Amadachai the Agagite, which was called agayne: which letters he wrote, to destroye the Jewes in all the synners house. In howe can I be the euill that shall befall me?

people, and how can I lye upon the belief of my kynred?

Then sayde þe kynge Abasucan unto queen Hester, and so Mardochaeus the Jewe: Sabote, I haue gaue Hester the host of Israhel, & him haue they hanged upon a tre, haue be layed hādē upon þe Jewes. Wryte thou therefore for the Jewes, as it liketh you in the kynge's name, and scale it with þe king's ringe (for the wytynges that were written in þe kynge's name, and scaled with the kynge's ringe, durst no man dysannulle.) Then wrote the kynge's scribes called at the scripture in the thurde moneth, that in the month Sivan, on the thre & tweneuth daie.

And moche wrytten (as Mardochaeus of wrote) unto the Jewes and to the pry-nces, to the Dabitan and capteynes in the lodes from Iudia vntyll Ethiopia, namely, seuerally and sūen and twenege londes, was sent out according to the wytynges that, woe every people in fear their spyches, and the Jewes according to their wytyng-es in language.

And it was written in the kynge Abasucan no name, and scaled with the kynge's ringe, and by power that rode upon fiftie yonge Mules, sent by the wytynges, & wher in the hoge presumed the Jewes (in what cities þe men they were) to gather them sūen to gether, and so sūnde for their lyfe, and for their ouer, to slay, and to destroye all the power of the people and londe that wolde rule them, with children and women, and to spyle their good upon one daye in all the lodes of kynge Abasucan, namely upon the thurth daye of the tweluth moneth, whiche is the moneth Adar.

þ The forme of the wytyng was, how that was a commaundement given in all Ion but to be published vnto all the people, that þe Jewes shoulde be ready agaynst that daye to smite their selues on their enemies. And to spyle that rode upon the Mules, mnde highten it spede, accordinge to be tūgen wode and the commaundement was deu-ysed in the castell of Susan.

As for Mardochaeus, he wente out from the kynge in royall apparill of yalour and chyre, and with a greace cre wone of golde, he was arrayed with a garment of fīninen and purple, and 7 ciens of Susan reioysed & wone glorye but vnto the Jewes there was come lyf and gladnesse, & hope of reioysing. And in all londen and citie, in in whiche places so out the kynge's wode and commaundement reached, there was hope & mych prosperite and good dayes amonge the Jewes: in so much that many of the people in the londe became of the Jewes belou, for the feare of the Jewes came upon them.

The X. Chapter.

¶ At the tweluth moneth, that is the moneth Adar, upon the thurth daye, which the kynge wode and commaundement had appoynted, that it shoulde be done, vnto upon þe same daie þe enemies shoulde haue destroyed the Jewes or haue oppressed them, it earned conerney wile, when þe Jewes shoulde sūdde their enemies.
Then gathered the Jewes together in the cities within all þe londen of kynge Abasucan, to laye honde on soch as wolde do the wyl, & no man coulde withstande them: for feare of the woe come ouer all people. And all the rulers in the londen, and prynces and Dabitan, and officers of the kynge promoted the Jewes: for the feare of Mardochaeus came vnto the. For Mardochaeus was graue in the kynge's house, & the capone of him was noted in all lodes, how he increased & grewe.

Then the Jewes smote all their enemies with a sūre slaughter, and slew and destroyed all, & vnto after their wyll vnto soch as were their vnderuises. And ne of Susan slew the Jewes & destroyed fūshūderch men: 7 slewe Parsindacha, Dalphon, Aspatha, Pasacha, Aonia, Aridacha, Parnascha, Arascha, Aridai, Vaisacha, the ten sonnes of Aman & sonne of Mardochai & enmus of the Jewes: but on his goodes they layed no han-de. At the same tyme man the kynge certified of the nombre of thos that were slane as the castell of Susan. And the kynge sūde vnto queen Hester: The Jewes haue slayne and destroyed fūshūderch men: 7 castell of Susan, and the ten sonnes of Aman: What shal they do in the othe londen of þe kynge?
What is thy petition, that it maye be given the? & what requyreth thou more to be done?
Hester sayde: If it please the kynge, let him suffice the Jewes tomorrow also to do accordyn-ge vnto chin daye commaundement, that they maye hange Amana ten fūshūderch men. And the kynge charged in so do, and the commaundement was deuysed at Susan, & Amana ten sonnes were hanged. And the Jewes gathered the sūen together at Susan, upon the fourteenth daye of the moneth Adar, and slew the hundredch men at Susan, but on their goodes they layed no hand.

As for the othe Jewes in the kynge's lo-des, they came together, & rode for their ly-ues, & gat rest fūshūderch men & slew of their enemies yve and seaventye thousande, howbeit they layed no handes on their goodes. This was done on the thirteenth daie of the moneth Adar, and on the fourteenth daie of the same moneth rested they, which daie they observed to be a daie of feasting and gladnesse. But the Jewes at Susan were come together both on the thirteenth daie and on the fourteenth, and on the fiftenth daie they rested, and the same daie observed they to be a daie of feasting and gladnesse. Therefore the Jewes that dwelt in the villages and uninclosed townes, observed the fourteenth daie of the moneth Adar, to be a daie of feasting and gladnesse, and one sent giftes unto another.

And Mordechaus wrote these actes, and sent the writings unto all the Jewes that were in all the kingdome of Persia, both nye and farr, that they shoulde yearly receive and holde the fourteenth and fiftenth daie of the moneth Adar, as the daies wherein the Jewes came to rest from their enemies, and as a moneth wherein their payne was turned to joye, and their sorrowe in to prosperitee: that they shoulde observe the same as daies of wealth and gladnesse, and one to sende giftes unto another, and to distribute unto the poore.

And the Jewes received it that they had begonne to do, and that Mordechaus wrote unto them: how that Aman the Sinne of Amadathai all the Jewes enemy, had devised to destroye all the Jewes, and caused the lot to be cast for to put them in feare, and so bringe them to naught: and how Hester wente and spake to the kynge, that heron letters his riched devyce (which he ymagyned agaynst the Jewes) might be cutted upon his wene heade, and how he and his sonnes were hanged on the tre. For the which cause they called this daie Purim after the name of the lot, and bringe to all the wives of the wythin yeare and wher they chancelous had bene, and what had happened unto them.

And the Jewes set it up, and take it upon them and their febe, and upon all such as they ned themselves unto them, that they shoulde not mysse to observe these two daies yearly, accordinge as they were appointed and appointed, how the these daies are not to be forgotten, but to be kepte of children children amonge all synners in all london and cities. They are the daies of Purim, which a remembrance is quierlye amonge the Jewes, and the memoriall of them ought not to passe from their febe.

And queene Hester the daughter of Abail and Mordechaus the Jewe, went with all auctoritee, to confirme this seconde writinge of Purim, and sent the letters unto all the Jewes in the hundredth and fiftenth and twentie londen of the empire of Persia, with friendly and faithful wordes, to cause the daies of Purim, in their times appointed, a continuinge as Mordechaus the Jewe and Hester the queene had ordeined: concerninge themselves as they upon their febe and upon their febe had confirmed the same of the fiftenth and of his captivitye. And Hester commaunded to stablish these same with the Purim, and to write them in a booke.

The X. Chapter.

And the kynge Artaxerxes layd downe upon the londe, and upon the towne of the See. And for all the might of his power and auctoritee, and the great worship of Mordechaus, which the kynge gave him, beholde, it is written in the Cronicle of the kynge of Media and Persia, for Mordechaus the Jewe was the seconde nyght to kynge Artaxerxes, and graced amonge the Jewes, and receaved amonge the multitude of his brethren, as one that stretch the welch of his people, and stretch the best for all his febe.

The ende of the seconde parte of the Olde Testament.

The boke of Job.

B Now upon a tyme, when the seruantes of God came and stode before the LORD, Sathan came also amonge them. And the LORD sayde vnto Sathan: From whence comest thou? Sathan answered the LORD, and sayde: I haue gone aboute the erde, and walked vpon it.

Then sayde the LORD vnto Sathan: Hast thou not considered my seruant Job, how thou hast seen an innocent and vertuous man: he is as pure as snow, and as chaste as a wall, and thou hast seen none like him in the land: Sa-than answered, and sayde vnto the LORD: Doth Job feare God for naughte? hast thou not preferred him, his house, and all his substance vnto euery thing? hast thou not blessed the last of his house? Is not his possession increased in the land? But laye thyne hand vpon him a litle, and once all that he hath, and I holde: he shall curse the eue thy face. And the LORD sayde vnto Sathan: Lo all that he hath, is in thy power: only vpon him selfe I spare: thou shalt not touch his bone.

C Then wene Sathan forth from the LORD, and vpon a certayne daye when his son-nes and daughters were eatinge, and they kinges were in their eldest brothers house, the re came a messenger vnto Job, and sayde: Whye the oxen were a plowinge, and the asses goinge in the pasture, by the hande Sabeos came in violently, and roke them all awaye: yet they haue sone the seruantes with the sheepe, and I onlye came my waye to tell the.

And whyle he was yet speakinge, there came another, and sayde: The fyre of Gods faller from heauen, it hath consumed 7 bitt up all the shepe and seruantes: and I onlye remayne waye, to tell the. In the meane tyme for whyle he was yet speakinge, there came another, and sayde: The Caldees made the camels, and fell in vpon the camels, which they haue caried awaye, yee and slayne the seruantes with the sheepe: and I onlye am gozen awaye, to tell the. Whyle he was speaking, there came yet another, and sayde: Thy sonnes and daughters were eatinge ad they kinges were in their eldest brothers house, ad soderly there came a mightie greute wynde off the South, and smote the liue, corners of the house: which fell vpon thy children, so that they are dede: and I am gozen awaye alone, to tell the.

Then Job stode up, and rente his clothes shured his heare, fell vpon the grounde, and worshipped, and sayde: Naked came I out of my mothers wombe, and naked shall

The iij. Chapter.

S It happened also upon a tyme, that when the seruantes of God came, stode before the LORD, Sathan came also amonge them, and stode before him.
And the LORD sayde vnto Sathan: From whence comest thou? Sathan answered and sayde: I haue gone aboute the erde, and walked vpon it.

Then sayde the LORD vnto Sathan: Hast thou not considered my seruant Job, how that he is an innocent 7 veray man such one as feareth God, and escheweth malice: and that there is none like him in the land: But thou moudest me agaynst him, in pynnyng him: so it is wayne, for he cometh still in his godly mynde.

Sathan answered the LORD, and sayde: Whye thou saynest? a man will geue all that he hath, for his life. But laye thy hand vpon him, touch him once vpon the bone and flesh, and I holde: he shall curse the eue thy face. Then sayde the LORD vnto Sa-than: Behold, thou hast thou him in thy power, I spare his life.

So wene Sathan forth from the LORD, and smote Job with marvellous sore byles, from the sole off the fete vnto the crowne: that he sat vpon the ground in the floure, and scraped off the scabbe off his skin with a porsorde.

Then sayde his wife vnto him: Despitest thou yet thy perfectness? curse Gods blythe. But Job sayde vnto her: What speake like a foolish woman? Wherfore haue I not receyued prosperite at the hande of God, wher re should hee not be content with what he saith? In all these thinges, dyd not Job sin with his lippen.

Now when Jobes friends heere of all this trouble, that happened vnto him, they came to him, and every one from his own place: namely, Eliphaz the Themanite, Baldaad the Sabeite, and Sophtar the Na-mathite.

For they were agreed together to come to him, to shewe their compassion vpon him, and to comforte him. So when they like vpon them saw a sacke off, they knewe him not.

The boke of Iob.

Then they cried, and wept: then every one off themselves his clothes, and spym-ed best upon their beades in the aye. They sat upon the ground by him also upon the ground and wept, and wept. Neither was there any of them that spake one worde unto him, for they sawe that his payne was very great.

The III. Chapter.

After this opened Iob his mouth, and cried his daye, and sayde: lost be that daye, wherein I was borne: and the night, in the which I was a yode: there is a manifold curse. The same daye be cursed on to daye, and the night be cursed on to daye, neither be thyne up w' light: ne be covered with burdnesse, and the shadow of death. Let the byrme cleave full upon it, and let it be lapped in wick sovere. Let the hard frost come over me y night, let me be refreined amonge the dayes off the yere, nor counted in the monethen. Defpnd be that night, and discommended: let darknesse curse the daye, geue it their curse also, when those that be curd by thyng up &e with. Let the starre be byrme thow hardnesse of a. Let ite lode for light, but let it be none, neither the risinge up of the saye nor ying: because it shal not up the wombe that bare me, nor byd the footen fro mye eye.

And, why dyed I not in y birth? Why did not I perishe, as I have as I came out of my mothers womb: Why let they me up of the earth? Why geue they me act' with chear fuller: Then shaloe I now haue lym still.
I shaloe haue slepe, and bene as refulke as the hynde and lodes off y earth, which buy betweene climes speciall places: As the pyne that haue greates substance of golde, & their houses full of silver. What I verely had to be mye, as were as a thigge come out of mye (because pte aye) ether as yonge dullum, which neuer sawe the light. There was the wether cast: from their cyanary, C there was as one overlabored, be as rest: there as those taken out of fre, which haue bene in paine, so that they heate more the voyce off the oppressour: There are full of gnaue: the bonde man, and he that is fre fro bondage.

Wherfore is the light given, to him that is in misery? and life vnto them, that haue buye deathe? Why long for deathe, and come nether: for yf they myght fynde the in greue, they wolde be marciouse glad, as those that bygge up treasure. To the man whos tyme is hyd, which God kepeth backe from him.

This is the cause, that I syge before I ate, and my roagings fall out like a water flood. For the thyng that I feared, is come vpon me: and the thyng that I was afraid of, is happened vnto me. Was I not happy: had I not quyetnesse? Was I not in rest? And now cometh such misery vpon me.

The III. Chapter.

Item answered Eliphaas of Theman and sayde vnto him: If we begynne so common with the peradventure thou wilt be my consenter, but who can withstand himself from speake thyng? Beholde, thou hast bene a teacher of many, and hast comforted the weery borders.

Thy wordes haue let up those that were fallen, thou hast refresshed the weake thow.
But now that the plague is come vpon the, thou shiddest acknowledge that it hath couched thy self, thou art silent barred. Where is now thy feare of God, thy selfe iustitie, thy patience, and the perswasie of thy life?
Consider I praye the: who art perswaded yng an innocent. Or, when were the goodly destroyed? As for these that plowe wickednesse, as I haue sinned myselfe, and some myne sister, they scape yf some. For why? God bloweth vpon them, they perishe, and are destroyed thow: the blast of his wrath. The roagings of the lyon, the cryenge off the yoness, & y weep off yf lyde whelpes are burst. The greate lyon perissheth, because he can get no pray and the lyons whelpes are scattered abode.

There is spoken vnto me a thyng in coun-cell, which hath growen a terrible sounde in myne eare, with a wisdom in the night, when men are fallen a slepe. Each feare and dread came vnto me, that all my bones shoke. And when the wynde passed ouer by me, the bay-res of my flesh shode vp.

Then stood there one before me, whose face I knewe not: an ymage there was, and the wyther was still, so that I herde this voyce that he a man be iustified before God? If I were there can man be iustified to be cleare, by testimony of his owne wordes? Beholde, he hath founde in freyde falsnesse amonge his owne seruantes, and proude disobedience amonge his angels.

How much more shal they that dwell

The vi. Chap.

In herde of claye, whose foundation is but earth: which eateth. They shall be destroyed from the mourning: once the cunningge: ye they shall perish, as ever they be wrore: and be taken awaye so cleare, that none of the shall remayne, but be dead, as ever they be aware off it.

The V. Chapter.

Y Amecome claye, if thou canst finde anye: lose abouce the, upon any of the holy men. As for the foolish man displeaseth thy lych bun, and anger slayeth if ignominy. I have sene my self, when the fool hath mas desperet, that he was heavy mas fode ly destroyed: but his children were wuth out perpetrator: hee had: that they were slyne in the dore, and no mā to deliuer them: that his harvest was eaten up off the hungrie: that the weapen to man had spoiled is, and that the church had brought up his riches.
It is not the earth that bringeth forth tra-wale, neither cometh forth out of it of groll: but it is man that is borne into misery, like as the byre for coite.

But now will I speake off the LORD, and of all of Job: which doeth thinges, that are wonderful, and marvellous which no man can reach: which geath rayne vps the earth, and pouret hie vpon all thinges: which stateth vpon them of leues degree, and sundery proof proue, to these that are in heuynesse: which destroyeth the denyers of the fayth, so that they are not able to performe the thynges that they take in hode: which compasseth yf myse in thier owne craftynesse, and overweeth the counsell of the wisest: In so much that they iunne in to doctryne by fyre daye, and grop aboute them at thier owne daye, like as in the thynghes.

And so he deliuereth the poore from the sweate, from their mouth, and from the bly-nde of the cruell: that the poore maye haue hope, that the mouth of the opprobrious maye be flopped.

C Beholde, happie is the man, whom God punisheth: for hee, by his chastitee thou of chas-titynge of the Almyghty. For though he make wounde, he geath a medecyne a goyne: though he smyte, his wounde maketh wile a goyne.

He deliuereth the out of fyre troubles, so that in the storme there can no harme reach the. In the myddle of bonny he saureth yf from death: and when it is wrore, from the power of the sword.

He shall kepe the from the petyous for hee when trouble cometh, thou shalt not neede feare. In desolation, and want thou shalt be merry, and shalt not be affrayd for the beastie of the earth: but the aspe in the londe shall be confederate with the beastie of the felde: shall geath the pouer:

For thou shalt see, that thy dwellyng place shall be in rest: thou shalt beholde thy li-stence, and be without punishment. Thou shalt see also, that thy fode shall mance, and that thy posteritee shall be as the grase vpon the earth. Thou shalt come early grove in a saye o ge, like as yf come from ore brought in to the barn in the season.
So, this is the matter, as we are slyne become pite and by experience. Therfore now theu hearest it, take better hode to thy self.

The VI. Chapter.

God answered, and sayde: O the mystery were my eye, and my punishment layed vpon the balancas: thou shalt be the heavier, than the fonde of the the: so the cause, that my wrore art so roufull.

For the almyghty he hath shote at me his arrowes, whose in biggion hath directed up my space, and of reuelle feared of God fright a gaynest me. Doeth the wilde offe when he hath grassed: Or cracheth the oxe he hath fodder yongh: Wylde a thynge eaten in a fowle, or in the hole. Who canst hee yf in thee with the yere an age.
The thynges that some tyme I might see now ye were hall, are now my meate for my se-rom. O the I might haue my desire: O yf God wolde are me the thynges, that I longe for: that he wolde teygne me, that I meat that he wolde let his herde go, to me to me. The shude I haue a clym-ye I wolde desire him in my payne, that I shuldence space, for I will not be a gaff wrode of the holy one.

What power haue I to endure: Or what is my ende, that my fute might be possi-le my strengthe the strengthe of steene: Or is my fleshe made of brasse: Am I able to pemy self: Is not my strengthe gone from me, like as yf one withdrer a good tyme his frende, and seeketh the frare of God: My ne owne brethren passe ouer by me as they reioyce, thee hastily runneth the: and yf they saye: What they char fere the best of the: so we shall fall vpon the.

The booke of Job.

The viij. Chap. Ho. iij.

When their tyme cometh, they shalbe deliucred and pershe: and when they be set on freed, they shalbe removed out of their place.
And the parties yf they go on, are croked: they hall after wayne thinges, and shal pershe.
Conside the pathes off Tcheman, & the way off Ebla, wherin they haue put their trust: Confounde are they that put any confidence in them: For whil they came so spey the chynge, that they looked for, they reuenged to confound.

¶ And so are ye also come unto me: but now that ye are my mysery, ye are afraied. Dyd I desire ye to come hyther? Or do geue me any off your sustenance? To deliuer me from the enemies hande, or to saue me from the power off the mighty? Tready me and I will holde my tongue: and yf I do er-re, shewe me wherent.

Wherfore blame ye them the wordes, that are well and truly spoken: which of you can reproue them? So wyng and ye that ye are so-lly so dead mine in pangs, and can speake many wordes in the wynde. Ye fall upon the sufferers, as do a hounde to ouerthrowne you in your frende. Wherfore loke not only vpon me, but vpon youre selues: whether I be a no. Tyme into ye are come felous. I paye you: be indifferent iudges, and confide myne sayng: in case whether there be any unrighteousnesse in my wyng, or in anye word in my mouth.

The VII. Chapter.

¶ Since the life off mē is vpon earth a very daye: yett are not his dayes, like the dayes of an hyed steuener. For like as a hounde seruante deserveth the shadow, and as an hyedlinge wolde fynde haue the end of his woyle: I am so haue I labored, and whyle no man longer dur in vayne, and many careful mighte haue I tolde. When I sayd me downe to slepe, I sayde: O when shal I ryse? Agayne, I longed sore for the nigh. That as I fall off sorrow, till it be done. My flesh is clothed with wormes, sickenesse and dust: my sayne is wythered, and a temple together: my dayes passe ouer me, as speck, and a woman can reuere out his wombe, and are gone, or I am amare. O cement, that my life is but a wynde, and that my eye shal nomore see the pleasures therof: ye and that none other mans eye shal se me any more. For yf thou shalt thine eyes vpon me, I come to naught. Like as a cloud is co-sumed, and vanishes awaye, even so be that goeth downe to hell, commeth nomore vp.

Neither shall he in to his house, neither shall his place thome him any more.

¶ Therfore I will not spare my mouth, but I will speake in the trouble of my soule, in hytynes of my mynde, and I will saye. Am I a fre or a wholfish, that thou testest me so in prouen? When I rynde my bedd shall comfort me, I shall haue some refreshinge by talkyng with myself vpon my couch: The troublest thou me with diuines, do makest me so a frayed thorne vision, that my soule will bechethers to be hangid, and my bones to be ded.

Deu. 8.

I can see no remedy, I shall yse no more:
O spare me then, for my dayes are but vayne.
Wher is man, that thou hast him in such reprouation, and seestest so much by him? Thou takest diligent care for him, and soodly dost thou reche him.

make wele stande in thy waye, and am so be-uoyd by me into myself? Why dost thou not forgiue me my synne? Wherfore takest thou not awaye my word chaste? Acholde, now must I slepe in the dust: and yf thou sekest me tomorrow in the morning, I shall be gone.

The VIII. Chapter.

¶ Then answered Baldaab the Smiter: And sayde how longe wilt thou talke of such thinges? how longe shal I me with speake so pious wordes? Dost thou perpetrate the things that is lawfull? Or dost thou the Almighty destroye the chynge that is right? What thy synne synned agaynst him, by whiche he punyssheth thee for thy wickednesse?
Wilt thou woldest now requyre vnto God by synne, and make that humble prayer of the Almighty: yf thou woldest I see a pure and a goodly synne: he not make vpon thee the unmerciful, & geue thee the benediction of righteousnesse agayne? In so much, that where-re I se thee thou holdest little as a se, thou shal best not haue greater abundance. I require of thee that thou be before the sithers, and generally amongst thy soe facters. I am, yf we are but of yesterday, and confide not, that our dayes vpon earth are but a very shadow. They shall shew thee, they shall tell thee, yett they will gladly confesse the sa-oether be the stem so grech it wylth all them, thas foure: God: and euen thus also shal the dence shal be destroyed, for he confesth in a spydous webbe.

He leaueh him vps his house, but he shal not stonde be holden him fast by it, yet shal he not anoude. Ofi cymes a thinge both fleshy, and men thynke that it maye abyde the dournefhyne: it shuteh forth the beaun chee in his garden, it coterh many eaters, in so moche that it is like an house of stones.
But yf it be taken out off his place, every man denyceth it, so yenge: I knowe the not.
So, thus it is wth him, that relyeth in his owne beinge: and as for oether, they growe out of the earth.

Deholis, God will not cast awaye a ver-tuous man, neber wil he helpe the vngodly.
Thy mouth shall be fylled with laughter, and thy yppes with gladnesse. They that hate the, shal be confounded, & f derlinges of y vngodly shal come to naught.

The X. Chapter.

Job answered, and sayde: As for y I knowe it is so of a truthe, y a man comparied vnto Job, can not be iustified. If he wil argue with him, he shall not be able to confute him vnto one amonge a thousande. He is wyse of heart, and mightie in strength. Whoeuer prospereth, that take parce agaynst him: he is translated the mo lian-ces, on euer they be aware, & overthoweth them in his weath. He remoueth the earth out of hir place, that his pilers shalke with-all. He commaundeth the Sene, & is exalted nor: he closeth up the starres, as it were vnto a signer, he hymself a loner of speech: eue y heauen, and goeth vpon the woones of: the sea. He maketh the waynes of heauen, the wione, the way starres and the sacre places of the earth. He doeth greace thinges, such as are vnsearchable, yea and wonderous without number.

If he came by me, I might not loke vps him: yf he were by mye, I shoulde not perceane it. If he be haughty to take any thinge awaye, who wil make hym rest it agayne?
Who will saye vnto him: what doest thou?
He is God, whose wylth no man maye withstand: but the pryncesse of all must stonde vnto him. How shoulde I turne as swete him, or what wordes shalbe I fynde out agaynst him? Hea though I be righteous, yet will I not geue him one worde agayne, but much saue me my self to my iudge. All be it that I call vpon him, and he heare me, yet will not saue, yf he hath heard my wordes: he wil leech me with the tempest, and wounding me with the measure without a cause. He wil not leaue mye in rest, but fill me w bytternesse.

If men will speake of strength, he is the strongest of all: yf me will speake of rich-nes, who darre denye recorde? yf I will saye that I am mye owne mouth shall cōdemne me: yf I will saye that I am a perfit man, he shal pake me in wicked deat. In that I shoulde be an innocent, my cōscience knoweth it not, yet I my self am many of my life.

Thio one charge wil I saye: he destroyeth both the righteous & vngodly. And though he slaye iustly wth the scourge, yet laugheth he at the punishment of the innocent. He for the wylde, he geneth it an rine, the power of the wicked, such as the ruler be, chap of all tondes are full. Is it not so? where is there any, but he is soch one?

Why do ye haue beneuolence wth him, then runnes: the yare gone suddenly, and haue no good thinge. They are puffed awaye the shippes that be good in the sale, and as the Zegle that haisteth to the puny. When I am purposed to forger my complainte to charge my cōscience, and to cōfute my self: when am I afrayed of all my wor-kes, for I knowe, thou sawest not an ill doer. If I be then a wicked one, why haue I laboured in vayne: though I wash my self with snewe water, and make myne bodies net so cleane, yet shouldest thou drype me in y maye, & myne owne clothes shoulde fyle me. For the yf I must geue a sūre vowe and with whom I go to lawe, in a nete as I am I teacheth there any daye man to repue before the parties, yet to laye his hnd betwixt vs. Let him take his robe awaye frome, yet let him make me none a sūre of him, and when shal I answer him wth out any feare. For a charge as I am in fearfulnesse, I cannot be a sūre: I why: greaueh my soule to lye.

The X. Chapter.

When the lesse, now will I put my wordes: I will make out of the very deuyll off my soule, and wil ſerue God: O do not condemne me, but ſhew me the cauſe, wherefore thou wouldeſt me in this manner. Thinkeſt thou it well to be ſet againſt me, ſo caſt me off beinge in woe? Is it thy hande? And to manie yeres thou ſaileſt of the ingobly? Haſt thou fleſh by eye, or doeſt thou loſe an man loſer? Are thy dayes as the dayes of man, and thy yeeres as manns yeeres? That thou makeſt ſuch miſquation for my wickedneſſe, and ſaicheſt againſt my ſinner: as herens (notwithſtandinge) doeſt thou ſaie: I am no wicked perſon, & that there is no man able to deſerue mine cure of thine hande. Thy handes haue made me, & ſhal ſhew me all together rounde aboute, wile thou then deſtroye me ſuddenly? O remember (I beſeeche thee) howe ſharpe thou madeſt me of the mounte of the earth, and ſhaile bringe me to earth againe.

Haſt thou not mulcted me anie wete my ſelf? and turned me to crubben like cheſe? Thou haſt outward me with ſtymie and fleſh, and inward me in gecher wete bones & ſynowes. Then haſt graunted me life, and done me good: and theſe thinges haſt thou doct upon me, haſt preferred my ſerue.

Though thou hydeſt theſe thinges in thy heart, yet am I ſure, that thou rememberſt theſe all. Wherefore doeſt thou kepe me, when I ſinne, and haſt not clenſed me from myne offence? Iſt thou wickedly, to name thee ſon? Iſt I be righteous, yet darre I wele ſtand vpon my heade: I ſhall am I of conſolation, and I ſhall ſaye wete anſwer.

Then haſt thou ſaid: (bye age in heuyn: ſhall it not be ſeene) And thou troubleſt me out of my ſonne. Thou haſt ſet my weteſſe againſt me, thy weteſſe in creaſt thou upon me, veryn my weteſſe plagen thee I am in.

Wherefore haſt thou broughte me out of my weteſſe: to ſaye: O that I had perſhed, & that my eye had ſene me. Iſt they had caried me to my graue, or ſonne in I was borne, then ſhoulde I be wete, as though I had wete bene.

Shall not my ſhort life come ſonne to an ende? O helpe thee fro me, let me alone, that I maye cuſtome my ſelf a litle: ſonne I goe thy waye, ſonne I ſhall no more come againe. I praye, ceſſe loſe of doctiſſe: & ſhaue of death: & ſonne to that bareſt cloudy lode: & deadly ſhadowe, where as I am oute, but weteſſe ſaie as in the darckneſſe.

The XI. Chapter.

Then answered Eliphaz the Temanite, and ſayde: Shoulde not he that maketh many wordes, be anſwered?

Shoulde he that buleth much, be commended? Shoulde he in geue care vnto thee only? Thou wilt laugh when I ſpeake to thee, & ſhall no body niſke thee againe: Wilt thou ſpeake vnto God? The thinges thou ſaieſt in thine hande, is perfect, & I am cleane in thy ſight. O that God woulde ſpeake, and open his lips: & ſaye: that he might ſhewe thee (out of his ſecrete wyſdome) howe many folde he haſt lured: & then ſhouldeſt thou knowe, that God had ſougotten thee, becauſe of thy ſynne.

Wilt thou ſynce out God with thy ſelf? I praye: wilt thou attayne the perfectneſſe of the Almighty? He is higher than heaue, what wilt thou do? Deper the hell, howe wilt thou then knowe him? Hea lenger ſeceaſeth the length of the earth, and his breadth of the breadth of the ſea. Though he wete all thinges vpon ſyre dome, cloſe he man in, or that he ſhoulde ege thee, who darre cheſt him then ſaie?

For it is ſo, that knoweſt the vanite of men: he ſeeth the end of theſe alſo, ſhall he not then conſider it? A wayne body exalteth him ſelf, and the ſonne of man in like a myſte aſſen ſaile. Iſt thou haſt not ſeene a riſte herte, & liſteſt vpon thine handes to ward him: yf thou wouldeſt put a wete vpon the wickedneſſe, which thou haſt in thine hande, ſi thou no ingoblyſſe wete in thy heade? Then mighteſt thou liſt vpon thy face withoute ſhamme, che ſhouldeſt thou be ſure, and haue no neede to ſaie.

Then ſhouldeſt thou forger thy miſery, and thynke none vpon it, then vpon the waters that runne by. Then ſhouldeſt thou liſe be an cleare an: the noone daye, and ſpyng a forth in the morninge. Then mighteſt thou haue comfort, in the hope, that thou haſte & ſleepe quietly, when thou art buried. Then ſhouldeſt thou take thy reſt, and no man to make thee ſtrayue, & manye ſoule ſhoulde ſerue thee by the. As for the eyes of the ingobly, they ſhall be conſumed, and not of ſea perth hope ſhall be miſery and ſorrowe of mynde.

The XII. Chapter.

So Job answered, and ſayde: Then I (no deure) reuente the men alone, and my ſonne ſhal periſh with you. Wete I haue vnderſtandinge as well as ye, and am no leſſe then ye. The XVI. Chapter.

JOb answered, and sayde: I haue oft tymes herde such thinges. Myne eyes are gawens of comforte are ye, all the face of you. Shall noethyng anye wordes come yee as a reuerend. Wha hast thou yett any more to saye? I coude speake, as yee do also. But wolde God, that your soule were as my soules steade: then shall I heape vp wordes against you, and shall my heade at you. I shoulde comforte you with my mouth, and releefe your payne with yf saltinge of my lyppe. But why shall I do: For all my wordes, my sorrowe will not cease: and though I holde my tounge, yett it will not be parte fro me. They haue opened their mouthes wyde upon me, and smitten me upon the cheeke despitously. They haue eased the place of my paine as a quiesce. God hath geuen me ouer to the enemye, and he yeece me in the handes of yf wicked. I was sometime in weatch, but suddenly he hath brought me to naught. My bowels hath he powred upon the gronde. He hath graue me one wounde upon another, and is full upon me like a grannie. I beseech my dayes are strented. I am harte at deathes bowe. I haue defaced no man, yett I maye yett continue in heuynesse. My dayes are past, my trespach are wounde awaye, which haue vexed myne heart, chaunginge the night into daye, & yf lighte to darcknes. I though I saye neuer feare, yett the grace is my hope, and I muste make my bed in the darcke. I call compass my father, and the women call I my maye and my sister. For what carrye he, what becom of his house: he a fere his death: whiche methes passe awaye sin fier then an ax. In an mede he as Gode hath yf yf pene of all, who can reach him any mentage: Cu dyerh new reben he an mightie & at his best, rich and in pacifertice: when his bond are at the fere, and his bones full of may. Another dyerh in fere come and beuyshe, and neuer had good daies: To slepe they had a lile in the earth, & the wormes cometh them. Dye I knowe what ye chinde, yet omble ye ymagin agaynst me vngedy. In ye saye: where is the pynnes palace: where is the dwellinge of the vngedy? For any man that geeth by the waye, and yf he will not regard thei to dena & debes: he shall saye, that the wicked is de pento the daye of destruction, and that the vngedy shall brouge forth in the daye of wrath. The vane repode him for his woe: so he has fere to remeare him for the vngedy: that he dech: yet shall he be brought to the graue, and wryth amonge the heape of the ded. The shall he be fayne to be burnt, and the fere by the backe fere. Almightie folowe him, & there are innumerable gyte before him. O howayne in the conpense ye geue me: Are not yours a fere: contrary to me and contrary.

The XXII. Chapter.

So Eliphaz the Themanite gave answer, saying: Maye a man be compared vnto God in wisdom, though he seme to himself, for to be like him: What pleasure hath God in y^e thou art righteous: Or what good he purposeth him, y^e thy woies are perfect: To be a synner to reprove the, & to steppe forth wth the into iudgement: Cometh notches for y^e greater, and chaste, & for thine magnificence becometh which a renumeration: Thou hast take the pledge from thy brethren for naught, & robbed the naked of their clothing: To such as were weery, hast thou given no rest: To drynke, thou hast with drawen the founteyne: Thou hast made such ane chaste a way of weies, w^{ch} geve oppression (doinge all thynges of parcialitee, & havinge respect of persons) dwell in the lode: Thou hast putte wyddowes amonge emperie and oppressed the poor fatherlesse.

Thus are thou compassed aboute with furies on every syde, & suddenly wepest wth feare. Shaldest thou shew thy hande of force: Shaldest thou make the water flowe turne over the: Thou becomest y^e God in hyer the heauens, & because thou sayest y^e the starres are so hye, with thou charstest say: To shew, how shaldest God know: Doth his dominion reach beyonde the cloudes: To shew, the cloudes cover him, y^e he maye not se, for he dwelleth in heauen. Well thou wilt kepe the olde waye, y^e all evill cometh there gone: both olde & yonge, whose foundation is a runninge water, which saye unto God go from us, and a fier this manner.

To shew, what wylde the Almightye do vnto we: what as he (not wth standinge) smytheth the houses wth all good. Which meanynge of the wylde shalbe farr frome. For wth idyl shaldest thou, and wth godnesse shal the innocents shalbe that in cressh shal be broken downe, & their posterite consumed wth the fyre.

Thus are thou vnto God, & he continueth shal prosper wth the righte wyl. Because the lame at his mouth, & la ye wth his wimbe in thine herte. For y^e thou wth comest the Almightye, thou shaldest not fall, & all wth the on line shal be farr from thy dwellinge: he shal geve thee a habyt, which in plenty & abundance shal be wth the tust of the earth, and the golde of Opphe like river stones. Bee the Almightye has comen shal be thine house, & the heape of thy money. Then shal thou have thy dwelinge in the Almightye, & life vnto thy synners.

Thus shaldest thou make thy prayer wth him, & he shal heare the, & then shaldest thou praye, & he shal be what thou wyldest in herte, he shal make it to prosper wth the, and the light shal shyne in thy wayen. For whoso humblyeth himself, him shal be set up: and who so loobeth himself, shalbe dealed. If thou be unmeete, he shal save the: and thou comest the ungodlynesse of thine handes shaldest thou be deluere.

The XXX. Chapter.

Job answered, and sayde: My sayenge is yet this daye in p^{er}petrue, and my handes haue amonge my grownges. O what I mighte see him & synde him: O what I mighte come before his face, & pleade my cause before him, and to fill my mouth wth arguments: That I mighte knowe, what answer he wolde geve me: & that I mighte understande, what he wolde saye vnto me. Wth he pleade agaynst me wth his greates power & strength, or wth he leane him self vnto vnto me: Oh no, let him not be so wth me. But let hym geue me life power to go to lawe, then am I sure to wyne my matter. For though I go to lawe, I synde him not: y^e I come before him, I can get no knowlege of him: If I go to the left syde to p^{er}sewde his wthkes, I can not accorde vnto them: Agayne, y^e I go to the right syde, he byndeth himself, y^e I can not be harn. But as for my waye, he knoweth it: & rich me as y^e golde in y^e fyre.

Thus he wylde his face, his party, his hyestate have I holden, and not gone out of it: I have not forsaken the commaundment of his lawes, but lest what he charged me wth his mouth, that have I kept vnto my herte. It is he himself alone, who wthll turne him back: he doeth as him listeth, and byngeth to passe wth the wthll. He wthwardeth me in to my bosome, & many other thynges mo doeth he, as he maye by his power. This is y^e cause, that I shewe as he p^{er}sewde, so that when I confide him, I am a synner of him. For in so much as he is God, he maketh my herte so fast, and byngeth that he is Almightye, he putteth me in feare. Thus can not I get out of dardnesse, the cloudes hath so covered my face.

The XXXI. Chapter.

Consideringe then that there is no remedyd from the Almightye, how hap penech it that the wthch I knowe him, wthll not regard his dayes: For some tyme there be, that remoure other men, so that they shal be robbed the of their cauel, and kepe the same for their own sake: that theye awaye the of the fatherlesse: that take y^e wyddowes of the a pledge: that theye the poore out of the waye, & oppress the symple of the wthch.

er together. Beholde, the wilde asses be yf be the very wilde herdes minifresh foode for their children. They eate the corne felde that is not cheate, and gather the grape out of his vineyard, whom they have oppressed by violence. They are the cause yf so many men are naked and bare, have ymgine clothes to cover them and kepe them

B from colde: So that when the she were in the meynynges, have rained upon them, & they be all wet, they have none other succure, but to kepe them amonge the rocks.

They spoyle the sackinge sacklesse children, and presse poore in prison: Juste methas they lathen in go naked withoute clothinge, and yet the yf they beate the sheewe.
The poore are yf labour in their oyle myles, yet so yf labour in their royme pres-sen, and yet so yf labour.

ORDE with sighinge, the soules of the sheewe make the complaine: But God destroyeth them not for all this, where as they (not yf siddinge) are rebellious and disobedient: and so: which like not his lighe and waye, nor name agayne unto his pith. Tymely in the moynynges do they oryse, comurbe the simple and poore, & in the myght they go a seekinge.

C The eye of the wygodly is like the abusa-ceer, that was yf the dardeste, and yf yeth as in himselfe: Tush, there shal no mū se me, so he desyrt his face. In the myght raisen they search the houses, and hye them selues in the daye tyme, but will not name yf lighe. For as some as the bare breake, the shame of death cometh up to them, and they go in horrible dardeste. The wygodly is very swift: yf his power also up to earth were swifter then yf runninge water, which sufficeth not yf thym to beholde the face yf pleasur yf myn. O yf they, for the dardeste myght they have done were seen to the hell, sooner they shone more then the heave.

D yf all of passion upon one were forgore: yf their synnes were forgiven: that they we re cleane pure out of scrumblance, & utterly have borne life an offence fullere. For they mame the barren, & make them yf they can not beare, & yet so yf they do no good. They please to be the myghty of their power, & when they them selues are gotten up, they are as water withoute fire, as long as they live. And though they myght be safe, yet they will not to come it, for their eyes lye o-pon the same wayes. They are equalde for a lode, but shortly are they gone, brought to extreme power, & take one of the wayes: yf yf they place of as the rates of com. yf is not so: Who will the rates of com. yf saye yf my myght is not thinge worthy.

The xxv. Chap.

E then answered Balad the Sabie, z saye: Power z fure is with him above the earth peace (leaving) his myght, whose men of warre are inma-rable, and whose lighe is as the sunne. But how maye a man compared unto God, becomfied: O, how can he be done, whose borne of a woman? Beholde, the Moone shyneth in change in comparison to him, z the starres are wene in his lighe, z as much more the mā, that is but corrupcion: and the forme of man, which is but a worme.

The xxvi. Chap.

S Ob answered, and saye: O how he pist thou the weak: what comfoundeth thou unto him that hath no strength: Where is yf comfoundeth him, which hath no myght? What thou so shewe thine excellence: Before whom hast thou spoken these wodes? Who made the bery to come out of yf mouth: The gromme z the wiche yf are sayne, z the under yf moode of their capanone: yet z all they which dwell beneath in the hell z not yf to him, z the very destruction of his sight. He stretcheth out yf mouth once che empire, z he stretcheth up to nothinge. He dwelleth yf in his cloudes, that they fall not become: He holdeth back his stole, that it can-be seen, and spureth his cloudes before.

He hath covered the waters of certayn boundes, until the daye z night come to an ende. The very pilers of heavē tremble at his repose. He stilleth the sea with his power, z thorn his myghte hath he fure yf moode. With his power hath he made the hands, z with his myghte hath he mounted the rebellious people. This is now a shewe summe of his myghte. But who is able sufficiently to repare his myghte?
Who can perseege and understande yf the due of his power? The xxvii. Chap.

S Ob also proceeded and wrote fast in his communication, saye: What ly as God lyueth (which hath taken awaye my power from me) z the Almightie that hath wred my myghte: I shal speake of no name, and my tongue shal speake no disceate, while my beeth wme me, and as long as the wynde (that God hath given me) is in my nostrils.

The boke of Job.

God said vnto Job: What I shalde graunte you mauſt be to thyſe. As for me, what myne me come to? I neuer go from myne innocen-cially righteous dealinge and I kepe fast, me ſiſe be it. For my conſcience reproche me not in all my conſolation. Therefore my neemy ſhalde ſounde as the vngodly, & he of ſuch parte againſt me, as the vngodly man. What hope hath yf I proceſſe, though he be a greater good, and though God geue him riches after his heart's deſire? Doeth God heare him the ſooner, when he crieth vnto me in his neceſſite? Hath he ſuch pleaſure in you in the Almightie, that he darre all-waie call upon God? I wil teach you in the name of God, & the change that I haue of yf Almightie, wil I not kepe from you. Witholde yf ſome in yf one conceite, not though ye ſee all things. What ſee then do ye go aboue of ſuch wayne wordes, ſayſt ye? This ye ſee portion that the wicked ſhall haue of God, & the heretike that I ſayme ſhalde come of yf Almightie. If he get many dili-deth, ſhal payneth in the ſweate, & he poſſeſſe ſhall haue ſcarcenesse of bread. Loke when he loatheth behende him, they ſhall be yf he be rich, & no man ſhall haue parte of his riches. Though he haue as much money as the duſt of the earth, & carye it a reavnto the daye, he maye well prepare it: but the goodly ſhal put it upon him, and he ſhal deale out the money. His houſe ſhal more as the moche, & as a bothe that he much man maketh. When the rich man dyeth, he caryeth nothinge much him: he is going yf myndlynge of an eyer. Deſtruction ſhall be vnto him as a waier floure, & yf ye ſhall ſtretched him awaye in the night ſiſe. A wherment ynto caryeth him hence, & departe: ſo a ſtorme ſhal catch him out of his place. Jeruſalem in upon him, and ſporeth him not: he maye not ſcape from the power thereof. Then claſpeth their hōdes as him, ye and iſaie of him, where he yloke vpon his place.

The XXXVIII. Chapter.

Here are places where ſtuffe is molten: where golde is cryed: where yron is digged out of the ground: & ſtores ſlued to metall. The varden ſhal on a cunctation onde, he can ſee out the grounde of all things: the ſtones, the barde, & the boulders floure. In the ryuer of water partye he a ſhadowe of the ſtrange people, yf knowing no good neyghbourhood: ſuch as are men, humanly: & beſtyous. He dryngeth continually he wryteth. There is founde a place, where ſtones are cleme Saphire, and where yf cleme of the earth are golde. There is a waye alſo that the bydes knowe not, that no vulture e yf each ſine: whether yf ſonde & the nynded walle not, & where no yron commeth. There yf wryteth he has bonde vpon the ſtony rockes, & emeth howeth the moun-taines. A yuere ſtroke out of the rocke, & loke what is pleaſant, his eye ſiſe. Out of dioppe bringeth he great ſtones ege ther, & the change that is byd bringeth he lyght. How commeth a man then by wrydme? Where is the place that men ſynde underſtondinge? Durely no man can tell how much yf a thinge ſhe, neither is ſhe foſde in the lide of ſiſtelynge. The boke is yf ſhe is not in me. The ſe ſiſtelynge ſhe is not with me. She can not be gotten for the moſt ſine golde, neither maye the pryce of her be bought with my moneye. No webges of golde of Ophir, no precious Omy ſtones, no Saphire maye be compared vnto her. No neither golde ner Chullall, neither ſene dones ner golden place. There is nothinge ſo mothy, or ſo celyſte, as once to be named vnto her: for perſeaz wrydome geeth ſure to be yonder the all. The Topos that cometh out of Jude, maye in no wyſe be likened vnto her: ye no moſt ner of ſpawed hom pleaſant and ſaye ſo cur: it be.

From which then commeth wrydome? C where is the place of vnderſtondinge? She is byd from the eyes of all men, yet ſiſt the ſorde of the ayre. Deſtruction & deatch ſaue we haue her deatch of her no oure care. But God ſiſteth her maie, & haue her place. For he holdeth the ender of the monde, & lokech vpon all that is vnder the heauy. When he weyeth the wyndes, & meaſureth yf waetes: when he ſeteth the rayne in orde, & no gouer-nour the ſtoure in laue: Then byd be ſe her, the deatch bi her, prepared her and thence her. And vnto man he ſayeth: Beholde, ſe ſe re the LORD, & wrydome: & to ſiſtelyng is vnderſtondinge. The XXX. Chap.

The boke of Job.

1 I have be it from God, that he shoulde me be wound with neede: and sacre be it from the Almightie, yf he shoulde me be much wrongfully: and I saye: but he rewardeth the woe of man, and casteth every man to synde according to his wayes. For sure it is, that God doth correct me man unconsciously, and heudgeth of the Almightye is not without cause. Wherewith the earth in his leade: Whom hath he set to gouerne the whole universe: To whom hath he geuen his herre, and daunte his princes and breth vnto him: 2 All flesh shal come together vnto nought, & all shal come agayne vnto earth. If thou wilt haue anberst thine eare, heare what I saye as he hath to be the voyce of my wordes.

Manye haue made whole, that loueth no right. If thou wouldest a very innocent man, that shouldest be punysshed: For he is a man of time, yf thou wouldest the rebellious kynges, yf thou wouldest the princes: Waghody men are ye that haue no respect vnto the personnes of yf knight, regardeth not the rich nor the poore, for he is he all the woe of his bondes.

3 In the crandlings off an eye: Shall they be scourged, and as mynought, when the people & dynasties rage, then shal they perishe, and be taken awaye without honores. And they kepe lode vpon the wayes of man, and he synneth all his dayes. There is no dardene without shaddowe, yf can hyde the wicked from him. For na man shalbe suffered to haue iudgement with God.

4 Many one, yee innumerable hath he puny-sshed and stretch other in their strades. For he knoweth their euill & dardene woordes, therfore shal they be destroyed. They that were in fteade of Seers, shall like vngodly men.
Therefore turned they backe as yeerously and in ftead of Seers, shall like vngodly men.

hath turned himself to yf wicked: For abo-ne his finnes he hath blasphemed, which of fence he hath done men before vs, in yf he stryueth agaynst God with his wordes.

The XXXV Chapter.

2 Liu spaketh monar, and sayde: Think it thou in righte chace thou sayest: I am righteous before God: Strange thou sayest so, how dost thou knowe it: What thinge hath thou more exalted, the I y am a synner: Therefore wilt I geue answer vnto the thy frendes I shalbe vnto the bene, & beholde me: I shalbe, how they re hye then thou. If thou synnest, what dost thou vnto him: If thou offendest, be many, he is geest thou his fauour: If thou be righteous, what geest thou him: O what recoureth he of thy handes: O foch an vngodly personne as thou, & of yf forme of man that is righteous as thou present off to be: there is a greater crime & crime made by the that are oppresseth with violence, yee every man complaine vpon the cruel

Where is God that made me: And yf synnest vpon vs, that we mighte prayse him in the myght: Which geerth us more vnderstodge then he doth the beastes of the earth, and teacheth us more then the foules of the heaue.
3 If any loch complaine, no man geueth an-swere, and yf because of the wickednesse off proude tyrantes. But yf a man call vpon God, doth not he heare him: Doth not the Almightie he excuse his crime: Whiche thou test thou, shouldest not he part on the, yf the open thy self be to him, and purty trust in him: Then wyldest he no violence in his myght neither hath he pleasure in euill and depe inquisitions. Therefore hath Job opened his mouth but in vayne, and falsly hath become so many wordes.

The XXXVI Chapter.

2 Liu prohabed forth in his talkinge, & sayde: holdeth still a lile, and I shal heare the. What I haue yet to speake on Gods behalfe, I wil open vnto yf yet more of myn: vnderstandinge, and proue my nether righteous. True are my wordes, & no yee on the lilewage in herne shall I argue agaynst the, is perfect. And shalbe, God casteth not awaye yf myght, for he himself is myght in power and in domine.

As for the engadly, he perswaueth the not hine helpe the poore to the right. He turneth not his eyes awaye from the righte one he setteth up pynges in their heeles, and obserueth them, so that they alwaye syn ther in. But yf they be layed in prison and they ne, as bounde with the bondes of poverte: then sheweth hee howe they shal be free and the synners in her they have used cruell violence.

B The which purgynge and nurturynge off them, rowneth them in the earre, warneth them to leaue of from their wickednesse, and to amende. If they now will take heed nū be obedient, they shal weare out their dayes in prosperie, and their yeares in pleasure ad joye. But yf they will not obeye, they shal goe throughe in the earde, & perishe as ever they be souer. As for such as be sayned, by sym-blers and hypocrites, they heape up wrath for them selves: for they call not vpon him, though they be in prison. Thus their soule persyeth in foolishnesse, and their lyfe is condemned. The poore deliuereth be out of his straitnesse, and comforteth such as be in neede: and erowable (wen so shall he become, yf thou wilt be content) from the deedelesse pyere that is betwixt: & yf thou wilt holde the quyre, he shal fyl thy table with plenteuousnesse.

C The which deliue, thou hast condemned the iudgement of the engadly, yet euen so thou iud-gement and sentence shal be thou suffice. For then shal not thy cause be filled with crui-ties, nor pacified with many giftes. For God is wroth with them, that the glorious life off the all such mightie men shoulde not be put downe: prolonge not thou the synners, till they come a night for the, to sit other people in thy steade. But beware what thou entice not a-nyde to wickednesse and synne, which hyeth to the: for thou hast chosen more than wickednesse. Be-holde, God in of a mightie hye power: Where with ere such a gyde and lawe generas he:
Who will reprove him of his waye: who wil saye vnto him: thou hast done wronge?

D Consider howe grante and excellent his workes be, whom all men loame and prayse: yet worboe at him, and yet they se him but a furrer of. Beholde, so great is God, that he passeth our knowledge, neether are we able to come to yf experie of his yeares. Serueneeth yf we are to smal droppes, he dryueth his cloudes together for to caine, so that they poure downe and droppe vpon men. He can spue out the cloudes: & couerynge off his tabernacle, and canse his lighte to synne vpo them, and to couer the bottom of the sea.

By these thinges gouerneth he his people and geneth the abundance of meate. In turnynge of a hande he hyeth the light, & at his commaundment it cometh agayne.
The which wyth the of sheweth he to his fynnes and to the caitell.

I T is my heart is afflicted, and my soudes of his voyce, and the syf gouch out of his mouth. He gouerneth eu-ry thinge vnder the heauen, and his light reacheth vnto the ende of the world. A mange voyce solemneth him: for his glorious magesty geueth such a thond in clappe, as (though a man be here) yet maye heare because it is afterwarde. He geueth an heu-ly sonne, when God sendeth out his voyce fades for forgether, that they can not be funder.

It is as if it were like a gli flaringe fyre, and mouth goe torches, and fyre burnes, cut off his greates that geeth a smoke, like no cut off as from searunge poete. His breath maketh the coales burne, the flame geeth out of his mouth. In his necke remaineth strongly, and before his face sorrowe is turned to glad-nesse. The members of his body are joynted so they are one to another, and cleue so fast to gether, that he can not be moued.

His backe is as hard as a stone, as fast as the fynch, so that the hammer man maye chur measures, and the reemes heuy. If he turne, he maye the fowarde, there maye neither fear nor best place abyde him. He stretcheth him by a stature as by yron, and as a moode by a cettel so d'ee as by metall. He stretcheth as a waye in him that bendeth the barre, & is full of yonge stones, he stretcheth as much for his backe as for thorn. He counteth the hammer no better then a strawe, he laugheth him in scorn that he stretcheth the speare. He crea-teth the golde in the nyghte like yf that he potteth. He maketh the beere so much and boy-lith: pax, and stretcheth the sear together like in symment. The waye is lighte a fier him, he hope is his moode yonge place. Upon earth is there no power like vnto his, for he is so sure, that he stretcheth not. If a man will establish all the thinges, this same is a yunge & will the children off payde.

The XLII. Chapter.

Job answered the LORD, and saide: I knowe that thou hast po-nothinge hid vnto the. For who can kepe his counsell so secret, but it shall be thinges that I will aske the. I haue a greene vail after your foolishnesse: in that ye haue

So Eliphaz the Themanite, Bildad the Subite, and Sophar the Naamathite, the three that were with him, and had a coudynge, & the LORD commanded them. The LORD also ceped the persunne off Job, and the LORD turned him vnto Job, and he prayde for his friends: For the LORD gaue Job twelffe children, as he had afoie.

And when he came there vnto him all his children, all his sisters with all them that had bene off by his acquittance a fore, and are bery with him in his house, mourninge as him, & comfortinge him ouer all the trouble, & the LORD had brought vpon him. And the LORD gaue him a shepe and a Jewell of golde like a camle, a thousand, and a thousand had children also: six hundred and in daughters. The first he called Days, the second y power, the thirde, All pleneousness. In the londe were none founde so faie, as the daughters of Job, & their father gaue the enheritance amonge their brethren.

After this luyed Job thre yeres, so that he sawe his children, & his childrens childrens so he died, beinge olde & of a perfect age.

The tymes of the earth shal come to an

In his wrath shall be tyned shoulde; blessed

The xxxiii. psalme.

The xxxiii. psalme of David.

I Will alwaye geue thanks vnto the LORDS, his payse shall cure be in my mouth. My soule shall make his doare in the LORD: the poore oppressed shall heare thereof, and be glad. O praye for the LORD with me, let vs magnifie his name together. I sought the LORD, and he heard me, yet he deliuered me out of all my feare. They that haue an eye vnto him, shall be lightened, & their faces shall not be ashamed. Thin poore man cried vnto the LORD, and he heard him, yet not deliuered him out of all his troubles. The angel of the LORD pearcheth his wings rounde aboute them that feare him, and deliuereth them.

He saith, O staff and staffe feble the LORD is, blessed is the man yf crucified in him. O sea reach the LORD, yet he haue sayntes: for they that feare him, shall be reaching. The rich shall moue and suffer hunger, but they which seeketh the LORD, shall haue no want of thinge, that is good. Come hither, o ye children: hearken vnto me, I will teach you the feare of the LORD. Who se lieth to lye, & wolde saye he good daye. Abraham refrayne his tongue from euill, and his lippen that they speake no gyle. As him which euill, and do good: Let him selle peace & euill. For the eyes of the LORD are ouer the righteous, and his eares are open vnto their prayours. But the face of the LORD kecheth them that do euill, to destroye the remembrance of them out of the earth.

When the righteous crye, the LORD heareth them, and deliuereth the out of all their troubles. The LORD is a nye vnto them yf are comite in him, & wil helpe such as be of an humble spete. Greates are yf troubles of the righteous, but the LORD deliuereth them out of all. He kepeth all their bones, so yf one of them is broken. But trust for me shall paye the vngodly, and they that haue yf righteous shall be glorie. The LORD deliuereth the soules of his seruantes, and all they that trusteth in him, shall not offend.

The xxxiii. psalme of David.

I Will thank you with them (O LORD) that they used me, higher than agaynst them that hate me, higher than agaynst me. Laye hands vpon the syde and speake, and shewd up to helpe me. Dismoue they sinard, and stoppe the waye agaynst them that persecute me, saye vnto my soule: I am yf helpe. Let them be confounded and put to shame, that seken for my soule: let the be turned backe and brought to confusion, that magnifye my soule. Let the be as yf before the wynde, and the angel of the LORD scatteringe the. Let their waye be made and slippery, and the angel of the LORD to persecute them. For they haue proudly laide their nettes to destroye me: where as I can see, yete and made a pitte for my soule, which I neuer defensed. Let a stone be defensed, and come vpon him in malice, and yf not that he hath laide his hand, catch himself, that he maye fall into his owne myshap. Let my soule be comforted in the LORD, and in his helpe. All my bones shall saye, O LORD, who is like vnto thee: which deliuereth the poore from the shales, and to stronge sinners, yet the poore and the needy from his need.

False witnesses are risen up, & laze they charge thinges that I haue not done. They reuolue me euell for good, & the true of comfote of my soule. I was enuied, when they were sicke, I put on a sack cloth: I trembled in my soule much fasting, and my prayer tarried in to myne eares before me. I laboured myself in the strength which I had benemy hande to my brother, I reuered him, as one yf much for his mother. But in my malice they reuoyce, and gather them together: yf they same come together agaynst me: where as, me theyng me not in me, & euill me.

Which yf gredey & somefull yf comes they agnified vpon me with their teeth. LORD, I thanke wilchen loke vnto this. O LORD, come my soule from yf deliuerance of the my dearsinge from the yonn. Sound yf thankes in the greates congregation: playe the amenge much people. O let the not triumphe ouer me, that me myne enemies for nange: O let them not wynd euill their eyes, that hate me withoute a cause. Let the yf their come in yf not for place, let they yf magin false wordes agaynst yf wordes of the lorde. They gnipe vpon me of their mouthes, sayenge: there be teeth: with our eyes. The thou self, O LORD, holde not thy tongue: geue not fauour to me. O LORD, awake (LORD) and stande vpon agaynst my cause, my God, and my LORD. Judge me (O LORD) my God: as a iudged of thy rightnes on iustise yf they rephren ouer me. O let the not saye in their hearts: there be teeth, so wolde we have let them not saye: we haue ouercome him.

Let them be put to confusion and shame, that ranysent me: out: let the be dechd with rebute and dissonance, that be seik felous agaynst me. Let them also be glori

The Psalter.

Though the waters of the sea raged & were wrought & strong & how, & though the mountains in floods as the depths of the same. Sela.
For there is a flood, which is his refuge most of the city of God, the holy dwelling of the most perfect. Sela. God is in the midst of her, therefore shall she not be removed: for the help is her, & yet the earth. The dei-ties are made, the kings of the world make much a tumult, but he shall rebuke his voice, & earth shall be a way. The LORD of hostes is with us, the God of Jacob is our defence.
Sela. O come hither, & behold the work of the LORD, what destructions he hath brought upon the earth. He hath made war as in a castle in all the world: he hath broken the bow, he hath snapped the spear, as on the chariots, & broken the chariots in the fire. He will be confided in, I am God: I will be exalted among the earth, & I will be exalted upon the earth. The LORD of hostes is with us, the God of Jacob is our defence. Sela.

The XLVI. A psalm of the children of Corah.

Clappeth your hands together, all ye people: O sing unto God with the voice of the psalter. For the LORD hath most by his to be feared, & he is the great king upon all the earth. He shall judge the people under us, & the heathen shall be silent. He doeth no for an heretic, the death of Jacob whom he loved. Sela.
God is gone up to a many voice, & the LORD is the strength of the earth. O sing praises, sing praises unto God: O sing praises, sing praises unto our king.
For God is king of all the earth, O sing praises unto him with understanding.
God is king over the heathen, God stretch his holy seat. The princes of the people are gathered together unto the God of Abraham: for God is sure sure upon the earth, then the mighty lord of the earth.

The XLVII. A psalm of the children of Corah.

Seat in a LORD & by his to be pray ed, in the city of God, and upon his holy hill. The hill of Zion is like a fair place, the corner of all the world: upon the north side, yet the city of the great king.
God is well known in his palace, & he is the defence of the same. For so, kings gathered, and gone by together. They were led, as fish in a net: they were taken and, & so they were borne. For so came the revenge, & so was a woman in her mantle. Then shall break of stripes of the sea, the sea of the east world. Like as we have heard, so we in the city of the LORD of hostes, in the city of God: God uphold-eth the same for ever. Sela. We will sing thy name in the temple: O God, in the midst of thy temple. O God, according to thy name, so is thy praise unto the world: under thy right hand is full of righteousness.

O her that is of Zion, & cry, & of the city of God, be glad because of thy victory.
Sela. Walk about Zion, go round about her, and tell her towers. Mark well her walls, & see, his houses: that ye may be bold of them, & come after. For so, God is of God for ever & ever, and he shall be glorified.

The XLVIII. A psalm of the children of Corah.

Hear ye this, all ye people: ponder it well, all ye that dwell upon the earth.
Hear ye, & ride ye, & ye, one with another.
My mouth shall speak of thy wonders, and my heart shall make of understanding. I will incline mine ear to the parable, & I will hear thy speech upon the harp. When fore shall be thy fear, the small days, when the world shall be of thy hand, & of thy hand abound. They that were their trust in their goods, & boast them in the multitude of their riches. To man in way, & he will be with them, & we make agreement for him unto God.

For it is better to rebuke their souls, so that he must live alone for ever. Yet though he live long, & so of years. For he shall be seen, & so of years, & so of years together, as well as the signs, & so of years together, & so of years, & so of years, & so of years.
What is in the house, & so of years, & so of years.
The dwelling place endure from one generation to another, & so of years, & so of years.
The name upon the earth, & so of years, & so of years.
Abundant not in such place, but in the place to of years, & so of years, & so of years.

This was of the city is very foolishness, & ye see their foolishness, & so of years, & so of years.
Sela. The city in the hill shall be, & so of years, & so of years, & so of years.
The city shall be, & so of years, & so of years.
The city shall be, & so of years, & so of years.
The city shall be, & so of years, & so of years.
The city shall be, & so of years, & so of years.
The city shall be, & so of years, & so of years.
The city shall be, & so of years, & so of years.

The Psalter.

Thou lovest to speak all words y maye to praise, O chearfull tongue. Therefore shall God cleane destroye the, in y the in peace, and the one of thy dwellings, and ouer the one of the londe of the hynges. Sela.

The righte hand shall set him, & feare, and laugh him to scorn. Lo, this is the ma, y sette not God for his strenght, but trusted in cothe multitude of his riches, & was might in his wickednesse. As for me, I am like a gentile of yue in y house of God: my trust is in the tender mercy of God for ever & ever.

Just alwaye geue thanks unto the, for that thou hast done: and wil hope in thy name, for thy strength is like a wall.

The LV. A psalme of David.

The foolish bodie saie in their heart: surely, there is no God. Corrupte are they, and become abominable in their wickednesse: there is none, that doth good. God lefted downe from heauen vpon the children of men, cause yf they were ynchar wolde vnderstande, as yf they were God. But they are all gone out of waye, they are all become impossible: there is none yf doth good, no none, howe as they haue vnderstandinge, that are the workers of wickednes, raisinge up my people as a merueyle, & call not vpon God. They are afrayed, where no feare is: for God beate the bones of them that blythe they haue putte them in confaunt, for God despiseeth them. Oh yf the saynges beate were geuente Israel out of Siem: Oh that the LORD wolde deliuer his people out of captytie. Then shoulde Jacob reioyce, & Israel shoulde be righte glad.

The LVI. A psalme of David.

And I sayde O chear I had wynges like a dove, that I might fle somwhere, and be at rest. Lo, then wolde I geue me awaye farre off, and remayne in the wilderness. Sela.

My mercy also z my mercy shal be euer vnto him, and in my name shal his name be exalted. I wil see him honde in the sie, and his righte hand in the fendes. He shal call me thou art my father, my God, and the strengch of my saluacion. And I wil make him my firstborne, better then the kinges of the earth.

My mercy wil I hope for him for evermore, and my couenaunt shal stonde fast vnto him. His seed wil I make to continue for euer, yett and his Throne as the dayes of haue.

Butt if his childen forsake my laue, and make noe in my iudgements. If they breake myne ordinaunces, and kepe not my commandementes. Thou hast put out his glory, and cast his Throne downe to the grombe. The dayes of his youth hast thou shortened, and couered him with dishonoure.

The LXXXIX psalme. A prayer of Moyses the man of God.

LORD E. thou art our refuge from one generacion to another. Before the mountaynes were brought forth, or euer the earth z the worlde were made, thou art God from euerslastinge and moudest not ouercome. Thou turnest man to dust, thou sayest, thou sayest I come agayne the children of men. For a thousande years in thy sighte are but as yesterdaye that is past, and like a nighte that is gone.

As for as thou stonest them, they are as a sleepe, and like a smoke they are like the grasse. In the morninge they grow and greene up, but in the eveninge they are cut downe and withered. For we consume awaye in thy displeasure, and are ashy as thy wrathfull indignacion. Thou seest our mischaunce before thee, and our secret synne in the lighte of thy countenance. For when thou art angry, all dayes are gone, we bringe of years to nothinge, as it were a tale that is tolde. The dayes of our rage are in. Some years z ten z thre monethes so stronge that they come vnto us. Some years, yett in their strengthe they are but like smoke, and for owre, so some passeth it awaye, and are gone. But who regardeth the point of thy wrath, thy fear full z terrible displeasure? We reach vnto remember dayes that we maye applye ouer to our synnes. Remember O LORD E. the last, and be gracious vnto thy seruantes. O sacrifice vnto thy mercy, and thou shalt shal be mercifull and be glad all dayes of our liue. Comforte vs O gayne, now after the tyme that thou hast plagued vs, and for the years wherein we haue sinned aboute.

Behold thy seruantes thy righte, z thou shalt shal thy glory. And the glorie of thy testy of the LORD E. our God be vnto vs prospereth as the word of our hymne vnto vs, O prospereth thou our bondes.
